He wanted to make money, and frankly told my father that this was his present ruling aim. He was wholly candid and sincere in his dealings. Would my father give us to him for a certain time, and permit him to manage our exhibition wherever he chose, receiving by terms of contract a stated and continuous percentage on all public shows in which we might be concerned?

My father, ill and needing money, consented. I never regretted his consent, though at first I rebelled against it. Perhaps I would have rebelled more than I did if Conrad had cried and protested less. But I deemed it my duty to resent contumacy of any sort on my brother's part, dearly as I loved him.

By this time my influence over him was potent in the extreme. He was devotedly fond of me, looked upon me as a guiding spirit, and faithfully followed all my counsels. I soon became aware that the influence which I exerted over him was of a strangely forceful kind. I suppose it was what would nowadays be called hypnotism. Weird as it may seem, I discovered that by the exertion of a little concentrated will-power I could throw him into a sleep and afterward awake him at pleasure—almost at pleasure, that is, though not quite, and not always. The bond of flesh extended from my right side, while it met his just over the aorta. The physicians who had examined us when little boys had nearly all agreed that any operation performed upon us in the way of cutting us apart would certainly result in Conrad's death, while it might fearfully imperil my own life, even if the worst did not result.

Oscar Shreiner might have proved a stern custodian. As it fortunately happened, he was the gentlest and kindest; we were taken by him to many different parts of Europe, but treated always with the tenderest care. I shall never forget my delight on first meeting his daughter in Berlin. By this time we had learned of our father's sudden and painless death at home. Linda's delicate sympathy softened, for myself at least, the poignance of grief. She was only a little girl, but her big, sweet blue eyes, her rosy mouth, and her air of exquisite sympathy could not pass from memory. Her father obtained permission for her to leave the boarding-school of an afternoon and chat with us in a quiet, domestic way, at the end of our loud, busying hours in the crowded museum.

It would now have been easy enough for Oscar Schreiner to grasp all the money which our constant exhibition brought him in. Our father had died; we were, in a manner, quite his own property. But apart from showing any such avaricious spirit, this admirable man kept perpetually depositing to our credit a distinct percentage on every coin that he received. Far more than that, he employed tutors for our education, and though Conrad was a dull scholar and learned all or wholly failed to learn what was taught him, I, with my quicker and keener mind, soon became strikingly proficient.

Knowledge, cultivation, brought me sorrow mixed with joy. I was of course agreeable to think and feel in a more refined way, but this very enlightenment induced the inevitable moods of self-disgust. I found myself beginning to loathe the band of flesh which bound me to Conrad. With my brother it was quite different. He accepted his condition without a murmur. Gradually I began to realize it; he was more a part of me than I of him. Not merely a great affection for me swayed him at all times, but a feeling that I was in a way the source and center whence all his best energy sprang. From a physical point of view this fact was noticeable thus: If a sickness of any sort overtook me Conrad was sure to share it, while if he were ill I often remained perfectly well. Once, in our thirteenth year, he was attacked by a malady which came near ending his life. To me the tedium and anxiety were intolerable, since I was in fairly good health. And then, suddenly, one day came the terrifying thought "What if he should die?"

But Conrad recovered, and my fears vanished. Still, a resolve was slowly taking shape within my brain. I mentioned it to no one for a very long time, but nevertheless it grew and grew like a plant in the dark.

Oscar Shreiner treated us in the most honorable manner regarding all profits which accrued to us, keeping both the letter and spirit of his contract with our dead father. As we became older our financial prospects brightened; we drew larger audiences as young men than we had drawn as boys. I wearied greatly, now, under the continuous vulgarity and monotony of our life. I knew by heart, and so did Conrad, the speech with which Oscar Shreiner was wont to present us for public inspection. Then, to lessen the ennui, I set myself the task of learning it from the bottom upward. This feat I at length achieved, to the wonder and admiration of my brother, whose mental powers it completely surpassed.

In appearance I was tall and fair, with a pleasing face and a well-built figure. I perceived that I was by no means ill-favored, and when I had reached early manhood the frequent smiles of women and maidens told me that my looks attracted them. But always a touch of compassion was blent with their admiring glances, and this troubled me more than words can express.

Conrad was a slender, shrinking lad, almost a head shorter than I, and unengaging both as to form and feature. When we had passed our twenty-first year the contrast became almost pitifully striking. His dependence upon me, his belief in me, had increased rather than lessened. Nothing could have been more pathetic than either. His spirits rose and fell in affectionate obedience to mine. If a cloud gloomed my thoughts I could trace its sooty reflection in the dull yet wistful eyes uplifted to me.

CHAPTER II.

In the year 18— we drifted again to Berlin for the fourth or fifth time. A young physician, named Olaf Aveling, a Dane who had already won some little note in the medical and surgical world and was believed anxious to win considerable more, came very often to see us, and with Schreiner's full sanction made repeated minute examinations of the peculiar link that bound us together.

I had never especially liked Aveling. He struck me as cold and unsympathetic, and I could not but comprehend that if he should ever make a proposal to perform upon us a distinctive operation, it would be from motives of a severely selfish character.

Still, I liked his conversation, which was often brilliant and forcible. He was a handsome fellow, with a pale keen face lit by small though shining dark eyes, and an air of command and assertion which became his shapely build.

All in all, I rather prized his visits; and though for many days he did not let fall even a single hint that he desired to operate upon our bond of flesh, he still contrived to make it clear that such was his actual aim and wish.

Shortly after our arrival in Berlin the daughter of Schreiner left a relative with whom she had been living since her graduation at the German boarding-school, and came to dwell with her father. I took this for a sign that Schreiner had finally yielded to my persuasions on a certain subject, and I rejoiced in consequence.

One day I said to our friend: "This is a pretty little home, and I hope sincerely that instead of merely passing the next few months here for purposes of rest, we may reside indefinitely under its peaceful roof."

Oscar Schreiner started, while Conrad looked up at me inquiringly with his placid, trustful eyes.

"Do you mean, brother," he asked, "that you want us never to appear in public any more?"

"Never!" I said emphatically, and fixed my gaze upon Schreiner. "Have we not gained enough?" I went on. "Conrad and I can live comfortably on our money for the rest of our days, be they many or few. As for yourself, you have acquired a snug little fortune beyond all doubt."

"Yes," said Schreiner, "I have told you every thaler."

"Of course you have," I broke in, with impetus. "That is just my reason for now speaking straight to the point. And the point, dear Oscar, is this: Let us give up 'showmanship' forever. I detest it, as you know, and Conrad isn't by any means enamored of it. Besides, now that your charming daughter has come to live with us we ought to make the happiest sort of a household. Surely Linda prefers to remain with you. But that will be impossible if you again travel."

Schreiner looked at me with a smile that slowly deepened, and then drew near to me, taking me by the hand in his. "It shall be as you say, Victor," he replied. "After all I believe you are right. But how will you and Conrad pass your time? I fear that after a certain term of leisure you will both long for the old life again."

"Oh," I said, laughing, "I will talk with Linda for an hour or two every day. That will never tire me."

These words were gayly thrown as Linda Schreiner, who had just then entered the room. But immediately her father echoed my laugh, saying gravely:

"Oh, you must do more than that. We will talk too much in that case. Aveling might overhear you and betray your secrets."

It was the dawn of my discovery that Dr. Aveling had come to see the lady for whom I was beginning to feel a most tender interest.

Linda tossed her curly head, and gave a contemptuous glance at the whole sex. Conrad was with a blush. Then in the sweetest way, she lowered at me and said:

"We don't care a straw, do we, Victor, what Dr. Aveling does?"

"No! a straw!" I returned, though the affected gaiety with which I spoke cost me inward pain.

Linda had become a very beautiful girl now, and it is not in the least strange that a man of Aveling's comparative youth should have been fascinated by her radiant face, aureoled in bounteous hair of silky gold. When she and I next held one of our private talks together, which means when Conrad's head had sleepily drooped itself upon my shoulder, I somewhat boldly questioned her.

"Tell, me," I said, "do you think that Olaf Aveling really wishes to marry you?"

"I think nothing whatever on the subject," declared Linda, with a little forbidding frown."

"But if he should ask you to be his wife, Linda," I persisted, "answer me frankly, would you refuse him?"

She gave me a strange, fervent look, which somehow ended by resting on the slumberous face of Conrad.

"WOULD YOU REFUSE HIM?"

"No," she exclaimed, with great ardor, and with a wild, wistful light flashing forth at me from her sweet, blue eyes. Then, in another instant, she had burst into tears, and darted from the room.

I sat dazed, ominous, vaguely thrilled. I know not why. The keenness of her tones had wakened Conrad, who asked of me:

"Victor, what is it? Was Linda angry at you, hurrying off like that?"

"Oh, no," I answered, though absently, with the tips of my lips, as it were.

He seemed satisfied with the answer and let his head sink again on my shoulder. I slowly turned and regarded him, he being unconscious that I did so. And then a terrible thing happened. Momentarily and yet with intense acuteness there came across me a shuddering detestation of this frail creature whose life was so indissolubly linked to mine. The impulse that seized me was, I suppose, a murderous one. If it had lasted, if some wave of ethical and fraternal potency had not soon swept it aside, God knows what might have happened!

As it was, the re-humanizing change took place, and I presently found myself still seated at my brother's side, with an altered and remorseful spirit and with cold beads of sweat clustering on cheeks and brow.

Still, the hour sent, so to speak, its lasting reverberations through my life. I did not cease to regard Conrad both with tenderness and pity, but the love which I now knew that I felt for Linda Schreiner controlled me with novel stress. I must here admit that it left behind it a certain strange residuum of cruelty toward Conrad.

And yet, was I so wholly blameful? If the severance was effected between him and me my own peril would be immense. I had become sure that my chances of survival, in such a case, would be about one in ten. Yet this love for Linda, mixed with a joyous glimmering of faith in her possible love for me, set my heart throbbing with a sort of divine courage.

"Divine!" in my will-ess. "And why?" they will further urge, "since it was essentially selfish." I grant that selfishness had much to do with it, as all yet was love except the latter altruistic love is unconcerned with egoism. A passion like mine is not, nor ever was. And swiftly, even horribly, as I may add, my love for this charming girl had blossomed into a passion.

Almost whenever Linda and I held conferences after this I used my power over Conrad—hypnotic, mesmeric, whatever one pleases to call it. Not a word of confession ever left my lips. But by suggestion, by innuendo, I am certain that I must have spoken. Whether she understood me or no, I cannot tell. It seems to me now that she understood perfectly. All this time I was possessed by a prophetic sensation that sooner or later my repressed fervor of sentiment must break bounds in terms of transport and avowal.

Olaf Aveling held several conversations with me after this, and at last I could no longer endure the knowledge of his evident yet concealed purpose. One day I exerted my influence over Conrad, while the young physician was present, yet it wholly failed, as now and then it had previously failed.

Conrad grew nervous, petulant, even peevish. "You want to say something that you prefer I shouldn't hear," he declared. "I've often thought this before, but now it's very clear to me. You've been hiding things from me for a good while past. Oh, I've seen and case it is treachery to an especial trust; it is the surrender of a castle you were especially appointed to keep; it is treason to a natural law, and it is treason to God added to ordinary murder.

To show how God of the Bible looked upon this crime, I point you to the rogues' picture gallery in some parts of the Bible, the pictures of the people who have committed this unnatural crime. Here is the headless trunk of Saul on the walls of Bethshan. Here is the man who chased little David—ten feet in stature chasing four. Here is the man who consulted a clairvoyant, Witch of Endor. Here is a man who, whipped in battle instead of surrendering his sword with dignity, as many a man has done, asks his servant to slay him, and when that servant declined, then the giant plants the hilt of his sword in the earth, the sharp point sticking upward, and he throws his body on it and expires—the coward, the suicide! Here is Ahitophel, the Machiavelli of olden times, betraying his best friend, David, in order that he may become prime minister of Absalom, and joining that fellow in his attempt at parricide. Not getting what he wanted by change of politics, he takes a short cut out of a disgraceful life into the suicide's eternity. There he is, the ingrate!

Here is Abimelech, practically a suicide. He is with an army, bombarding a tower, when a woman in the tower takes a grindstone from its place and drops it upon his head, and with what life he has left in his cracked skull he commands his armor-bearer: "Draw thy sword and slay me, lest men say a woman slew me." There is his post-mortem photograph in the Book of Samuel.

But the hero of this group is Judas Iscariot. Dr. Donne says he was a martyr, and we have in our day apologists for him. And what wonder, in this day when we have a book revealing Aaron Burr as a pattern of virtue, and in this day when we uncover a statue of George Sand as the benefactress of literature, and in this day when there are betrayals of Christ on the part of some of His pretended apostles—a betrayal so black it makes the infamy of Judas Iscariot white! Yet this man by his hand hung up for the execration of all ages, Judas Iscariot.

All the good men and women of the Bible left to God the decision of the earthly terminus, and they could have said with Job, who had a right to commit suicide if any man ever had, what with his destroyed property and his body all aflame with intolerable carbuncles, and everything gone from his home except the chief curse of it, a pestiferous wife and four garrulous people pelting him with comfortless talk while he sits on a heap of ashes scratching his scabs with a piece of broken pottery, yet crying out in triumph: "All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change comes."

Notwithstanding the Bible is against this evil, and the aversion which it creates by the loathsome and ghastly spectacle of those who have hurled themselves out of life, and notwithstanding Christianity is against it and the arguments and the useful lives and the illustrious deaths of its disciples, it is a fact alarmingly patent that suicide is on the increase. What is the cause? I charge upon infidelity and agnosticism this whole thing. If there be no hereafter, or if that hereafter be blissful without reference to how we live and how we die, why not move back the folding doors between this world and the next? And when our existence here becomes troublesome why not pass right over into Elysium? Put this down among your most solemn reflections. There has never been a case of suicide where the operator was not either demented, and therefore irresponsible, or an infidel. I challenge all the ages and I challenge the universe. There never has been a case of self-destruction while in full appreciation of his immortality and of the fact that that immortality would be glorious or wretched according as he accepted Jesus Christ or rejected Him.

You say it is a business trouble, or you say it is electrical currents, or it is this, or it is that, or it is the other thing. Why not go clear back, my friend, and acknowledge that in every case it is the abdication of reason or the teaching of infidelity, which practically says: "If you don't like this life get out of it, and you will land either in annihilation, where there are no notes to pay, no persecutions to suffer, no gout to torment, or you will land where there will be everything glorious and nothing to pay for it." Infidelity has always been apologetic for self-immolation. After Tom Paine's "Age of Reason" was published and widely read there was a marked increase of self-slaughter.

A man in London heard Mr. Owen deliver his infidel lecture on socialism, and went home, sat down, and wrote these words: "Jesus Christ is one of the weakest characters in history, and the Bible is the greatest possible deception," and then shot himself. David Hume wrote these words: "It would be no crime for me to divert the Nile or the Danube from its natural bed. Where, then, can be the crime in my diverting a few drops of blood from their ordinary channel?" And having written the essay he loaned it to a friend, the friend read it, wrote a letter of thanks and admiration, and shot himself. Appendix to the same book.

Rousseau, Voltaire, Gibbon, Montaigne, were apologetic for self-immolation. Infidelity puts up no bar to people rushing out from this world into the next. They teach us it does not make any difference how you live here or go out of this world; you will land either in an oblivious nowhere or a glorious somewhere. And infidelity holds the upper end of the rope for the suicide, and aims the pistol with which a man blows his brains out, and mixes the strychnine for the last swallow. If infidelity could carry the day and persuade the majority of people in this country that it does not make any difference how you go out of this world you will land safely, the Potomac would be so full of corpses the boats would be impeded in their progress, and the crack of the suicide's pistol would be no more alarming than the rumble of a street car.

I have sometimes heard it discussed whether the great dramatist was a Christian or not. He was a Christian. In his last will and testament he commends his soul to God through the sacrifice of Jesus Christ.

Would God that the coroners would be brave in rendering the right verdict, and when in a case of irresponsibility they say: "While this man was demented he took his life;" in the other case say: "Having read infidel books and attended infidel lectures, which obliterated from this man's mind all appreciation of future retribution, he committed self-slaughter!"

Have nothing to do with an infidelity so cruel, so debasing. Come out of that bad company into the company of those who believe the Bible. Benjamin Franklin wrote: "Of this Jesus of Nazareth I have to say that the system of morals He left, and the religion He has given us are the best things the world has ever seen or is likely to see." Patrick Henry, the electric champion of liberty, says: "The book worth all other books put together is the Bible." Benjamin Rush, the leading physiologist and anatomist of his day, the great medical scientist—what did he say? "The only true and perfect religion is Christianity." Isaac Newton, the leading philosopher of his time—what did he say? "The sublimest philosophy on earth is the philosophy of the Gospel." David Brewster, at the pronunciation of whose name every scientist the world over bows his head—David Brewster, saying: "Oh, this religion has been a great light to me, a very great light all my days." President Thiers, the great French statesman, acknowledging that he prayed when he said: "I invoke the Lord God, in whom I am glad to believe." David Livingstone, able to conquer the lion, able to conquer the panther, able to conquer the savage, yet conquered by this religion, so when they find him dead they find him on his knees.

Salmon P. Chase, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, appointed by President Lincoln, will take the witness stand. "Chief Justice Chase, please to state what you have to say about the book commonly called the Bible." The witness replies: "There came a time in my life when I doubted the divinity of the Scriptures, and I resolved as a lawyer and judge I would try the book as I would try everything else in the court-room, taking evidence for and against. It was a long and serious and profound study, and using the same principles of evidence in this religious matter as I always do in secular matters, I have come to the decision that the Bible is a supernatural book, that it has come from God, and that the only safety for the human race is to follow its teachings." "Judge, that will do. Go out back again to your pillow of dust on the banks of the Ohio." Next I put upon the witness stand a President of the United States—John Quincy Adams. "President Adams, what have you to say about the Bible and Christianity?" The President replies: "I have for many years made it a practice to read through the Bible once a year. My custom is to read four or five chapters every morning immediately after rising from my bed. It employs about an hour of my time, and seems to me the most suitable manner of beginning the day. In what light soever we regard the Bible, whether with reference to revelation, to history or to morality, it is an invaluable and inexhaustible mine of knowledge and virtue." "Chancellor Kent, what do you think of the Bible?" Answer: "No other book ever addressed itself so authoritatively and so pathetically to the judgment and moral sense of mankind." "Edmund Burke, what do you think of the Bible?" Answer: "I have read the Bible morning, noon and night, and have ever since been the happier and the better man for such reading."

Young men of America, come out of the circle of infidels—mostly made up of cranks and imbeciles—into the company of intellectual giants, and turn your back on an infidelity which destroys body and soul.

Ah! Infidelity, stand up and take thy sentence! In the presence of God, angels and men, stand up, thou monster! Thy lip blasted with blasphemy, thy cheek scarred with uncleanness, thy breath foul with the corruption of the ages! Stand up, Satyr, filthy goat, buzzard of the nations, leper of the centuries! Stand up, thou monster, Infidelity. Part man, part panther, part reptile, part dragon, stand up and take thy sentence! Thy hands red with the blood in which thou hast washed, thy feet crimson with the human gore through which thou hast waded, stand up and take thy sentence! Down with thee to the pit, and sup on the sobs and groans of those thou hast destroyed, and let thy music be the everlasting miserere of those whom thou hast damned! I brand the forehead of infidelity with all the crimes of self-immolation for the last century on the part of those who had their reason.

My friends, if ever your life, through its abrasions and its molestations, should seem to be unbearable, and you are tempted to quit it by your own behest, do not consider yourself as worse than others. Christ Himself was tempted to cast Himself from the roof of the Temple, but as He resisted, so resist ye. Christ came to medicine all wounds. In your trouble I prescribe life instead of death. People who have had it worse than you will ever have it, have gone songfully on their way. Remember that God keeps the chronology of your life with as much precision as He keeps the chronology of nations, your grave as well as your cradle. Why was it that at midnight, just at midnight, the destroying angel struck the blow that set the Israelites free from bondage? The four hundred and thirty years were up at twelve o'clock that night. The four hundred and thirty years were not up at eleven, and one o'clock would have been tardy and too late. The four hundred and thirty years were up at twelve o'clock, and the destroying angel struck the blow, and Israel was free. And God knows just the hour when it is time to lead you up from earthly bondage. By His grace make not the worst of things, but best of them. If you must take the pills, do not chew them. Your everlasting reward will accord with your earthly perturbations, just as Caius gave to Agrippa a chain of gold as heavy as had been a chain of iron. For the asking you may have the same grace that was given the Italian martyr, Algerius, who, down in the darkest of dungeons, dated his letters from "the delectable orchard of the Leonine prison." And remember that this brief life is surrounded by a rim, a very thin, but very important rim, and close up to that rim is a great eternity, and you had better keep out of it until God breaks that rim and separates this from that. To get rid of the sorrows of earth, do not rush into greater sorrows. To get rid of a swarm of summer insects, leap not into a jungle of Bengal tigers.

There is a sorrowless world, and it is so radiant that the noonday sun is only the lowest doorstep, and the aurora that lights up our northern Heavens, confounding astronomers as to what it can be, is the waving of the banners of the procession come to take the conquerors home from church militant to church triumphant, and you and I have ten thousand reasons for wanting to go there, but we will never get there either by self-immolation or impenitency. All our sins slain by Christ who came to do that thing, we want to go in at just the time divinely arranged, and from a couch divinely spread, and then the clang of the sepulchral gates behind us will be overpowered by the clang of the opening of the solid pearl before us. O God! Whatever others may choose, give me a Christian's life, a Christian's death, a Christian's burial, a Christian's immortality!

TO RENEW THE LOBSTER SUPPLY.

The Government's Effort to Propagate This Kind of Shellfish.

The United States Government is making great efforts, by scientific propagation, to restock the coast waters of Maine with lobsters. The United States Fish Commissioners' schooner Grampus, which has been at work along the coast for several months, has collected 1750 seed lobsters from which 18,000,000 eggs have been obtained and hatched out at Gloucester, Mass. Of these fry about 5,000,000 have been released in Casco Bay and the others are to be distributed at various places from Portland eastward.

The fry are very small, but through the thin and transparent shell can be seen the perfectly formed lobster, with the eyes especially prominent. Constant changes of water are necessary to keep them alive. It is likely that a lobster hatchery will soon be established on the Maine coast, and before many years these shellfish will be as plentiful and cheap as ever they were.

ANTISEPTIC SURGERY RESULTS.

Gratifying Reports From the Surgeons of the Navy.

Surgeon-General Van Reypen, of the United States Navy has received a report from the Surgeons with the fleet, showing that in the many cases of wounded, some of them serious, not a rise of temperature or an accumulation of pus has appeared in any case.

From a medical standpoint this is said to be a marked advance from the conditions during the Civil War, and is attributed to the introduction of antiseptic treatment of wounds. It shows that no fever follows the wounds, and that with the absence of pus the wounds heal rapidly without complications.

Considering the great number of wounds to be treated, now and hereafter, this is regarded as a most satisfactory showing not only in medical science, but in the alleviation of suffering.

Stone in Her Stomach.

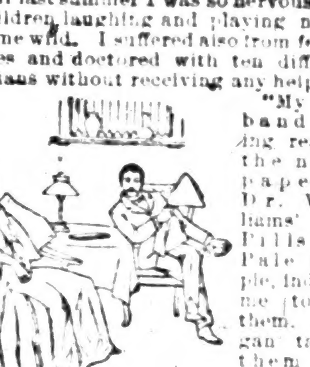
From the Gazette, Van Buren, Ill.

The wife of the Rev. A. B. Adams, pastor of the Bedford Christian Church at Blandinsville, Ill., was for years compelled to live a life of torture from disease. Her case baffled the physicians, but to-day she is alive and well, and tells the story of her recovery as follows:

"About six years ago," said Mrs. Adams, "I weighed about 149 pounds, but my health began to fail and I lost flesh. My food did not agree with me and felt like a stone in my stomach. I began to bloat all over until I thought I had dropsy.

"I had pains and soreness in my left side which extended clear across my back and also into the region of my heart. During these spells a hard ridge would appear in the left side of my stomach and around the left side.

"These attacks left me sore and exhausted. All last summer I was so nervous that the children laughing and playing nearly drove me wild. I suffered also from female troubles and doctored with ten different physicians without receiving any help.



"My Husband Read."

"My husband having read in the newspaper of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, induced me to try them. I began taking them last November but experienced no relief until I had taken six boxes. I am now taking the eleventh box and have been greatly benefited.

"I was also troubled with nervous prostration and numbness of my right arm and hands that at times I could hardly endure the pain, but that has all passed away. I now have a good appetite and am able to do my own work. Have done more this summer than in the past four years put together. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cured me and I think it my duty to let other sufferers know it."

Hundreds of equally remarkable cases have been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

THE VALUE OF PERSISTENCE.

How a Stranger Got and Kept a Good Job.

"I'm lookin' for a job. I'm a good feller and I'll work cheap."

This is the language in which an honest and rather simple looking man approached the head of a Chicago firm.

"Sorry," smiled the proprietor, "but we have nothing to offer just now. Call 'round again."

Jake, as he called himself, walked away a couple of blocks, and then faced about and returned to repeat his application.

"I been here," he said, "fur a job, and you told me to come again. I'm here."

The proprietor, being busy, did not recall the previous visit, and, after informing Jake that there was nothing for him yet, asked him to come again. This time Jake made a round trip of about half a mile, and again dropped in, offering his services as twice before.

"Persistent and looks honest," said the proprietor to his bookkeeper. "Wonder what he could do?"

"Might give him a chance to collect some of our impossible accounts," laughed the bookkeeper. "He's the kind of a man to keep pegging away, and even creditors can be worn out."

Jake was given some of the worst old accounts that could be hunted up and started out. By making forty or fifty calls on the same man on the same day he began to make an impression, and the firm is now getting a good deal of money that had long since been charged to profit and loss.

"I can't afford to have people think I don't know about this particular question," said the politician, "and I haven't the time I need to read up on it." "Well," replied his wife, "in that case I'll tell you what I'd do. I'd look wise and get some paper to announce that you decline to be interviewed."—Washington Star.

Liquid Pistol PRICE, 50 CENTS

PROTECTION OR FUN.

Shoots Ammonia, Water, Cologne and Other Liquid.

It is a weapon which protects bicyclists against vicious dogs and foot-pads; travelers against robbers and toughs; homes against thieves and tramps, and is adapted to many other situations.

It does not kill or injure; it is perfectly safe to handle; makes no noise or smoke; breaks no law and creates no lasting regrets, as does the bullet pistol. It simply and amply protects, by compelling the foe to give undivided attention to himself for awhile instead of to the intended victim.

It is the only real weapon which protects and also makes fun, laughter and lots of it. It shoots, not once, but many times without reloading; and will protect by its appearance in time of danger, although loaded only with liquid. It does not get out of order; is durable, handsome, and nickel plated.

Sent boxed and post paid by mail with full directions how to use for 50c. in 2c. Postage Stamps, Post-office Money Order, or Express Money Order.

WINE OF CARDUI

FOR ALL WOMEN

Nine-tenths of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THOS. J. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says: "My sister suffered from very irregular and painful menstruation and doctors could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her and also helped my mother through the Change of Life."

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

Is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

Robbed The Grave.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, Eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back, and sides. No appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying "Electric Bitters" and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Editor BANNER.—I understand there is a report being circulated over the county by the enemies of S. M. Adams that I have said that $300 had been put into my hands to buy the managers of election with. I have never said any such thing or anything that could be construed in that way. The man who started it is a liar and ought to have been in the chain gang ten years ago. There has never been a dollar of campaign money in my hands and I have heard of no one else having any. Let us all go out next Monday and vote for S. M Adams. My advice to everybody is to work and vote for Adams.

Coopers, Ala., July 26, 1898

Editor BANNER—I wish to say a few words to the Populists as to the condition of the campaign. We have been confronted with many Independents, and it is now plainly seen the intention of it was to divide the Populists as much as possible, but it seems that most of the Populists have their eyes open to the fact. It is plainly seen now that the Democrats are all in line for Foshee, and that Harrison is trying to carry the negroes. But there is enough white Populisss to elect their ticket against the combined Independent move, and I believe they will be on hand and cast a solid vote. We must also remember our state ticket headed by Hon. G. B. Deans, and every Populist in the state should know and understand so that they can fill it out themselves. We ask the help of all Populists in counties where they are not strong enough to elect a county ticket. Their help will be felt on the state ticket. So come one, come all, and cast a solid vote and show that "United we stand, divided we fall." Long live the Populist party and the Banner.

Persons troubled with diarrhœa will be interested in the experience of Mr. Wm. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance, Providence, R.I. He says: "For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhœa, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy; much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction. For sale by J. S. Johnson, jr.

There continues to be nice rains; corn crops are fine, cotton has the blight some but bids fair for a reasonable good crop; melons continue to be plentiful.

Politics is all the go now. The Hon. Thomas Harrison, of Jemison, was down at the meeting of the colored voters of this section at the Pratt old mill place on the 23rd inst., shaking hands and soliciting votes; he also delivered an address.

Although this section will turn up a large majority for Adams. Let every Populist stand by his colors and remember that this is not a personal matter. FARMER.

Especially valuable to women is Browns' Iron Bitters. For sickly children overworked men it has no equal. No home should be without this famous remedy. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

SPEAKING AT CLANTON.

On Saturday last Congressman W. F. Aldrich addressed the people of Chilton county at the Court House. The court house was well filled at 11 o'clock when L. B. Pounds called the meeting to order.

Mr. Aldrich commenced his address by disclaiming any intention of interfering with the local affairs of the county, but his intention was to show the position of the Republican party in the election in this State. Previous to the State Republican convention the sentiment of the Republicans was in favor of a straight Republican ticket in the State. Mr. Aldrich was a member of the committee at that convention and made a minority report suggesting that no Republican ticket should be put out, and upon this report the Republican State convention said, in effect, that the Populist State ticket suited them and they declined to put out a Republican ticket. The Republican State Executive committee followed up the action of the convention by endorsing the Populist State ticket and strongly recommending all Republicans to vote the Populist ticket as embodying the strength of the anti Democratic opposition All Republicans throughout Alabama were instructed by the high authority they had to support anti-Democrats in county matters and to vote for all candidates who were opposed to a constitutional convention and who were in favor of honest elections.

Mr. Aldrich said we cannot reform existing abuses in the government of this State until we have a majority in the Legislature to make new laws. We are all anxious to secure control of the Legislature, and in this fight Republicans are standing shoulder to shoulder with Populists. In every part of the State Republicans are co-operating with Populists to carry the Populist ticket. He advised both Republicans and Populists to not forget to mark their ballots for the Judicial candidates and spoke in favor of H. R. Golson for chancellor for this division. He said Mr. Golson was in every way qualified to fill this important office. Mr Aldrich said he had no idea but that every Populist and Republican in Chilton county would vote the straight Populist ticket. Mr. Deans, our nominee for governor, is a farmer and business man, he has had experience in legislation, and the Democrats had not been able to say one word against him. All the other officers on the State ticket had been unanimously filled, and would be as unanimously supported.

In Chilton county, Mr. Aldrich said, I understand there are five candidates for Judge of Probate. I take it for granted each is a proper and worthy man. From a Republican standpoint each is as well qualified as another. But four will have to stand out. Republicans have to select one of the five. We go to our leaders for advice. Primarily the State convention is our highest authority, and next is the State Executive committee. They have decided we shall support the nominees of the People's Party. The two most prominent candidates in this county for Probate Judge are Rev. S. M. Adams, the regular nominee of the People's Party, and Judge Honeycutt. I believe and feel both these gentlemen are my friends socially and politically, and it puts me in a disagreeable unenviable position. What I say to-day is not in any way to reflect

Public Statement From A Public Man

Hon. W. H. Ohley, Ex-Secretary of State of West Virginia, writes an open letter.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Mar. 9, 1898.

To whom it may concern:

"I most heartily recommend Pe-ru-na as of great benefit in cases of catarrh. It is especially beneficial wherever the mucous membranes are affected. As a tonic it certainly has no superior."

W. H. OHLEY, Ex-Secretary of State.

Hon. W. H. OHLEY.

Pe-ru-na has cured thousands of obstinate cases of catarrh, and is perhaps the only efficient remedy in existence for catarrhal diseases; but there are countless multitudes of people who are still struggling with catarrh and need help. To such as these the unqualified recommendation of Pe-ru-na by Ex-Secretary Ohley is directed. Pe-ru-na is scientific and purely vegetable. All druggists sell it.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

CLANTON, - ALABAMA.

Coal is King of the Seas, to-day. Brains are his coadjutor, not his master. 'Tis Coal that makes history in the age of steam power. But the doom of steam is not far off. Something more tractable and less wasteful will supplant it, and then King Coal will be dethroned.

It is not quite right to look closely at the working of a note penned in a time of great sorrow, but surely attention may be called to the peculiar use of "foreign countries" in the following, which appears in the London papers: "Owing to the overwhelming multitude of messages of sympathy received by Mrs. Gladstone and her family from all parts of the British Empire, from the United States, and from foreign countries, they are obliged to ask all, whether private individuals or members of public bodies, whom they may not be able personally to thank, to accept their heartfelt gratitude, expressed through the medium and by the courtesy of the press. Mrs. Gladstone feels deeply the kindness showered upon her, which neither she nor her sons and daughters can ever forget." The United States, it will be seen, are not numbered with lands alien to the English people.

Swinging windows above the second story on all new buildings are required by a building ordinance lately passed in Chicago. The avowed purpose of the new law is the prevention of fatal accidents in washing windows, now so frequent. The law says that the window must swing on horizontal or vertical pivots, or a balcony must be built in front of every window. The law is objected to by architects and builders, who claim that it was passed in the interest of the owners of patents on swivel windows. It is also objected that the size of windows will have to be reduced owing to wind pressure, and they predict that fatal accidents will result from falling window sash. In many of the recent high office buildings of New York City a staple is secured to each side of every window opening, and the window cleaners wear stout belts, to each side of which is attached a strap. A suitable clip on the end of each strap enables it to be readily attached to the staples on either side, and the straps have slack enough to permit the free movement of the window cleaner.

Unusual interest has attached to [illegible] ecasts of the American [illegible] of 1898. The [illegible] shortag[e] [of th]e world's supplies [illegible] the two [illegible] ent foreign harvests of 1897 and [18]96, and the consequent assured continuance of a foreign demand at profitable prices, united to show that American prosperity had a peculiar stake this year in the production of an abundant crop, thinks the New York Post. The one possibility of misfortune which has qualified the views of optimists has been the ever-existing chance of a deficient American harvest, and this possibility is now in large degree removed. The Agricultural Department has published its estimate for the growing crops and forecasts may be made with safety. The Government estimate shows, as was to be expected after the season's high prices, a great increase in planted acreage of wheat. For the early and late crops combined, the estimated area is 43,000,000 acres, as compared with 39,465,000 acres harvested last year, 34,618,000 in 1896, and only 39,916,800 even in the "record year" 1891. In other words, the planted acreage under wheat this year is by far the largest in our history.

The Alpine Good Night.

Among the lofty mountains and elevated valleys of Switzerland the Alpine horn has another use besides that of sounding the far-famed "Ranz dez Vaches," or cow song; and this is of a very solemn and impressive nature.

When the sun has set in the valley and the snowy summits of the mountains gleam with golden light, the herdsman who dwells upon the highest habitable spot takes his horn and pronounces clearly and loudly through it, as through a speaking trumpet, "Praise the Lord God!" As soon as the sound is heard by the neighboring herdsmen they issue from their huts, take their Alpine horns and repeat the same words.

This frequently lasts a quarter of an hour, and the call resounds from all the mountains and rocky cliffs around. When silence again reigns the herdsmen kneel and pray with uncovered heads. Meantime it has become quite dark. "Good night!" at last calls the highest herdsman through his horn. The words resound from all the mountains, the horns of the herdsmen and the cliffs, and the mountaineers then retire to their dwellings.

GEN. GARCIA HAS RESIGNED

Cuban Commander States His Grievances in a Letter to Gen. Shafter.

OBJECTS TO RETENTION OF OFFICERS.

Offended Because He Was Not Notified of Surrender, and Because His Army Was Not Represented at the Capitulation Ceremonies.

A dispatch from Santiago gives the following as being a letter sent by General Garcia to General Shafter:

"Sir—On May 12th the government of the Republic of Cuba ordered me as commander of the Cuban army in the east to co-operate with the American army, following the plans and obeying the orders of its commander. I have done my best, sir, to fill the wishes of my government, and I have been until now one of your most faithful subordinates, honoring myself in carrying out your orders as far as my powers have allowed me to do. The city of Santiago surrendered to the American army, and news of that important event was given to me by persons entirely foreign to your staff. I have not been honored with a single word from yourself informing me about the negotiations for peace or the terms of the capitulation by the Spaniards. The important ceremony of the surrender of the Spanish army and the taking possession of the city by yourself took place later on, and I only knew of those events by public report. I was not honored, sir, by a kind word from you inviting myself or any officer of my staff to represent a Cuban army on that memorable occasion.

"Finally, I know that you have left in power at Santiago the same Spanish authorities that for three years I have fought as enemies of the independence of Cuba. I beg to say that these authorities have never been elected at Santiago, by the residents of the city, but were appointed by royal decree of the queen of Spain. I would agree, sir, that the army under your command should have taken possession of the city, the garrison and forts. I would give my warm co-operation to any measure you may have deemed best under American military to hold the city for your army and to preserve public order until the time comes to fulfill the solemn pledge of the people of the United States to establish in Cuba a free and independent government. But when the question arises of appointing authorities in Santiago de Cuba, under the peculiar circumstances of our thirty years' strife against Spanish rule, I cannot see but with the deepest regret that such authorities are not elected by the Cuban people, but are the same ones selected by the queen of Spain, and hence are ministers to defend against the Cubans the Spanish sovereignty.

"A rumor, too absurd to be believed, General, ascribes the reason of your measures and of the orders forbidding my army to enter Santiago to fear of massacres and revenge upon the Spaniards. Allow me, sir, to protest against even the shadow of such an idea. We are not savages, ignoring the rules of civilized warfare. We are a poor, ragged army, as ragged as we are poor, as was the army of your fore-fathers in their noble war for independence; but, as did the heroes of Saratoga and Yorktown, we respect too deeply our cause to disgrace it with barbarism and cowardice. In view of all these reasons, I sincerely regret to be unable to fulfil any longer the orders of my government, and, therefore, I have tendered today to the commander-in-chief of the Cuban army, Maj.-Gen. Maximo Gomez, my resignation as commander of this section of our army. Awaiting his resolution, I withdraw my forces to the interior, very respectfully yours, Calixto Garcia."

Americans Land at Tayabacoa.

A telegram from Havana reports that the insurgents attacked Gibarara, on the north coast of the province of Santiago de Cuba, and that the garrison, after a severe fight, evacuated the place. Many of the insurgents were killed. The dispatch also reports that a force of Americans landed at Galamalacoa (Tayabacoa) and invested Tunas de Zaza, and the warships shelled Galamalacoa.

POINT DESIGNATED

By Madrid Government Where Spanish Prisoners Are to Be Landed.

The Madrid government officially has recognized the proposed return by the United States of the Santiago prisoners to Spain. This recognition came in the form of a letter to General Shafter from General Toral, commander of the Spanish troops at Santiago. General Shafter's dispatch to H. C. Corbin, adjutant-general, says:

"I am just in receipt of a letter from General Toral, who says the Spanish secretary of war desires the troops landed at Vigo Coruna, on the Atlantic, and at Santander, in the bay of Biscay.

"SHAFTER."

CAMP ALGER TO BE MOVED.

Order That No Permanent Buildings Be Erected There.

WASHINGTON.—Word has been received at Camp Alger from the war department that no permanent buildings must be erected either at the old camp or at Dunn Loring. This order has caused some speculation, and the prevailing opinion is that it indicates either that a large body of troops is to be sent to the front or that the camp site is to be changed, with the latter the more probable.

GARCIA ATTACKS SPANIARDS.

Who Were Marching to Santiago to Surrender—Cubans Repulsed.

A dispatch from Santiago says: Great excitement was caused in Santiago Thursday by a story brought in by Cubans that 4,000 Cuban insurgents, composing General Garcia's army for the eastern department of Cuba, were routed in a fierce engagement with a detachment of Spanish troops bound for Santiago to surrender. In this battle, which took place at a point several miles to the north of this city, forty-one Cubans were killed, the Cubans say, and many more wounded. The Spanish loss was much smaller, it is said.

There were at least 5,000 Spaniards in the body, according to the report, and they drove Garcia's men into full retreat a few hours after the battle began.

When the Cuban general withdrew his troops to the mountains he resolved to move on to Holguin, about sixty miles to the northwest of this city. If the Americans would not allow them to wreak vengeance on the Spaniards in Santiago, the Cubans proposed to storm some other important place and take possession of it on their own account.

It was with this object in view that General Garcia withdrew his troops from the American lines and refused longer to act as an ally of General Shafter. He decided to capture Holguin, if possible, and there set up an insurgent government, making that place the Cuban headquarters for the eastern department.

SPANISH TROOPS SURRENDERING.

There Are Nearly 12,000 at Santiago Which Will Soon Be Doubled.

The war department Sunday night posted the following dispatch from General Shafter at Santiago:

"Lieutenant Miley has returned from San Luis and Talma Soriana, where he went four days ago to receive the surrender of the Spanish troops. The number surrendered was larger than General Toral reported—3,005 Spanish troops and 350 volunteer guerillas, gave up their arms and gave parole and have gone to work. Three thousand stands of arms were turned in, loaded on ox carts and started to the railroads, Spanish troops accompanying him to San Luis, and all apparently greatly delighted at prospects of returning home. They were on the verge of starvation and I have to send them rations tomorrow. If the numbers keep up as they have, there will be about 24,000 to ship away—nearly 12,000 here, 3,000 from San Luis, 6,000 from Guantanamo and over 2,000 at Sagua and Baracoa."

TRANSPORTS REACH CAVITE.

No Advance on Manila Has Yet Been Made By American Forces.

HONG KONG, (Special.)—The German steamer Wuetan, at this port from Cavite, reports that the United States transport China, with American reinforcements for Admiral Dewey, arrived at Cavite on Saturday last, and that the other transports arrived on Sunday.

The Wuetan also brought the news that no advance had been made by the American forces. They are awaiting the coming of General Merrett, who was expected to reach the place within ten days. The insurgents still invested the town.

The news of the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet at Santiago was received at Manila on July 17, and created consternation among the Spaniards.

General Ferguson Re-Elected.

The Alabama division of Confederates met at the Kimball House, Atlanta, and elected the following officers:

General Fred S. Ferguson, of Birmingham, commander of division; Brigadier-General J. W. A. Sanford, of Montgomery, commander of First brigade, to succeed General Williams, of Mobile, resigned; Brigadier-General George P. Harrison, of Opelika, commander of Second brigade, to succeed General William Richardson, of Huntsville, resigned.

Officers for the Mississippi division were elected as follows: W. A. Campbell, of Vicksburg, major-general; W. D. Cameron, of Meridian, first brigadier-general; Sam H. Pryor, of Holly Springs, second brigadier-general; B. V. White, of Meridian, adjutant-general, and James S. McBride, of Copiah, ensign.

Government Aid to Schools.

The United States government paid into the state treasury Saturday the sum of $24,000, Alabama's portion for this year of the fund arising from the sale of certain public lands under what is known as the Morrill act, passed by congress in 1890. The act provides that certain moneys be set aside for the Agricultural and Mechanical schools in each state, and the above amount is Alabama's share. This amount will be divided between the Agricultural and Mechanical schools for negroes at Huntsville, the college at Auburn receiving the amount of 55 per cent and the college at Huntsville the remainder.

Bloody Tragedy in Lamar.

A tragedy occurred on the streets of Sulligent the past week. D. Boyd, a prominent citizen, was met by Burley Johnson, another citizen, who, without a word, began firing on Boyd with a revolver. Johnson fired five shots, four of which took effect, one in Boyd's breast, another in the head, and two in the back. Boyd drew his pistol and fired twice at his antagonist and then dropped to the ground dead. Johnson fled immediately.

FIRST EXPEDITION ARRI[VES]

Off the Coast of Porto Rico---Gener[al] Miles in Command.

WILL FIGHT FIRST BATTLE AT SAN PIEDRAS.

The Expedition Will Probably Await the Arrival of the Whole Expedition Before Making a Landing—Battle Expected This Week.

A Sunday's special from Washington says: There is little doubt in minds of army and navy department officials that General Miles' advance expedition arrived today off the point on the coast of Porto Rico, selected as a rendezvous of all vessels of the expedition. Whether or not he will attempt to make a landing in advance of the whole expedition will depend entirely upon conditions as he finds them. Meanwhile the department is making every effort to hurry along the remainder of the expedition. Some troops are now on their way from Tampa and Charleston and should reach Porto Rico by the middle of the week. Naval officials are assisted actively in getting the troops off and were engaged today in sending the necessary orders to that end to commanders of the naval auxiliary vessels which have been placed at the service of the war department.

In the course of a day or two the troops brought from Chickamauga by General Brooke will sail from Hampton Roads, where they have been arriving all day. There is a probability that General Miles may be delayed for several days in his landing operations for lack of lighters, but several of these are now on their way and others will be hurried forward as rapidly as possible. However, it may be, as to his speedy landing on Porto Rico soil, it will be well along toward the end of this week before the active campaign can be begun in Porto Rico.

First Battle at San Piedras.

The first great battle of the war in Porto Rico will be held at San Piedras. This town is the point of conveyance for the army of General Miles, moving west from Fajardo, and the army of Brooke, moving north from Guamia.

At least three expeditions against the coast are a part of the plan of campaign. Fajardo is one of the points where an expedition will land. It is very near the island of Viaques, which was the first place selected by the war department. The second is Guamia, on the south coast. The expedition to Guamia is to be in charge of General Brooke. General Miles is to land at Fajardo, General Booke at Guamia and General Wilson and General Ernst are expected to land at Barcelonita, but will not advance into the interior until General Miles and Brooke have made a junction at San Piedras. From San Piedras Miles and Brooke will advance to Bayamau, and from there to the key of the land approach to San Juan.

The war department expects that the first momentous battle will be fought at San Piedras. General Miles will be reinforced by about 6,000 troops before he begins the march to San Piedras.

PREPARING TO SEIZE THRONE.

Madrid Alarmed Over Fear of An Uprising of the Carlists.

LONDON (By Cable).—Don Carlos left Brussels secretly Sunday, ostensibly for Switzerland. At the same time his leading Spanish agent, Marquis Cerralbo, left Madrid for the north, probably to meet his chief. There is great alarm in Spanish government circles and activity in the army. Police spies have been doubled in the last week. Carlists clubs in Madrid, Barcelona, Valencia and other cities are closely watched and the leaders shadowed. Private advices from Madrid, which escaped the censor, say the Carlist uprising will be general throughout Spain. The signal will not be given until peace is negotiated, or unless the conditions imposed cause such indignation among the people that Don Carlos will have a chance of winning support. Carlos recognizes that this is his last chance of getting the throne, and is making extensive preparations. He is willing to risk all, and if civil war comes it will be frightful for its bloodshed and cruelties.

Big Order From Paris.

The Walker Manufacturing company of Cleveland, O., has received one of the largest orders ever booked by that firm. The order came from Paris and was for equipment for five hundred electric street cars. This includes one thousand motors, one thousand controllers, five hundred trolleys and other details. The order will amount in value to over $500,000.

Wounded Arrive at New York.

The United States hospital ship Relief arrived at quarantine, New York, Saturday from Siboney, with 125 sick and wounded officers and men. Twelve men died during the voyage.

Hobson Coming South.

Lieutenant P. Hobson who, is now in Washington, will make two visits before he returns to Cuba to overlook the work of raising the Spanish hulks sunk off that coast. One visit will be to his mother at Sweetwater, Ga., where she has gone for the summer, and the other will be to Annapolis to thank Admiral Cervera for his kind message to Admiral Sampson assuring the latter of the safety of himself and his crew. He may be able to run over to Alabama and visit his old home, but of this he is not certain.

MESSAGE FROM DEWEY.

News of the Destruction of Cervera's Fleet Causes Rejoicing at Manila.

ON BOARD UNITED STATES FLAGSHIP OLYMPIA, MANILA BAY.—The good news of Admiral Sampson's great victory is welcome. While I might suggest that the result may cause me to look to my own laurels, I gladly express my sincere gratification of the destruction of the Spanish fleet in Cuban waters, which, with their loss in Manila Bay, must end the Spanish sea power in this war—if not forever.

From the telegram just at hand I note the remarkable similarity of the Spanish fighting off Santiago to that in Manila Bay. In both battles their firing was ineffective. They fought their ships to the least advantage, and finally scuttled or burned them to cover their defeat. The small loss of life on the American side is indeed extraordinary, and rivals our deathless record here.

In view of the ships engaged, I trust that the results of these battles, as well as the other incidents, may prove to the American people the value of a strong and well-trained navy.

GEO. DEWEY, Rear Admiral.

BATTLE AT NIPE.

We Whipped Two Forts and Sunk a Gunboat Making Ready to Land.

KEY WEST.—The Topeka arrived here Saturday morning bringing an account of the attack on Nipe on the 21st. She reports that the Topeka, Wasp, Annapolis and Leyden were ordered by Admiral Sampson to enter the harbor of Nipe and prepare a landing place for troops.

On steaming in they found the place guarded by three forts and the gunboat Jorge.

The vessels opened fire meeting with a response from the Spanish force. After a sharp engagement the gunboat was demolished and the forts silenced. The forts fought bravely, but the gunnery was characteristically Spanish. None of our vessels were hit.

Portuguese Troops Ordered to Frontier.

Dispatches filed at Lisbon, Portugal, on July 18, but which were suppressed by the censor, say that owing to the suspension of the constitution in Spain the Portuguese government has ordered reinforcements of troops to be dispatched to the frontier, fearing Spanish uprising and the entry of revolutionists into Portugal, as has been the case in the past.

Patrick Henry Elected to Congress.

Returns from the primary election in the Seventh Mississippi congressional district indicate the election of Patrick Henry by an overwhelming majority.

Will Not Allow Annexation.

LONDON.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily News says: "The powers, with the exception of Great Britain, have agreed not to allow an American annexation of the Philippines or an Anglo-American protectorate over the islands."

Dr. H. B. Wilkerson, of Montgomery, has been notified of his appointment as a surgeon in the United States army, and left for Washington, D. C., from which city he will sail, without delay, for Santiago, where he will enter upon his duties.

CHAPTER III.

I remember nothing until a period ...
...which must have been two or three ...
...hours later. And then, as it now recurs ...
...to me, I was so weak and yet thorough... ...
...ly peaceful that I had no desire to use ...
...my memory at all. This was no doubt ...
...a result of the great blood-loss which I ...
...had sustained. Afterward came a blank. ...
...I learned, later, that this blank lasted ...
...for nearly five days. The nurses watch... ...
...ing me twice decided that I had ceased ...
...to live. Then vitality flickered back ...
...into a vague semblance of its old sway. ...
...What I first clearly recall is refusing ...
...to drink a certain potion put by the ...
...nurse to my lips, and saying with ve... ...
...hemence that I had already eaten and ...
...drank more than was good for me. At ...
...this time my watchers were afraid that ...
...I might die of starvation, since the in... ...
...jections of nourishment on which I had ...
...been living had begun to fail of their ...
...nutritive office.

But from that hour, straight along, I ...
...began to recuperate. Once started, my ...
...bodily recovery was rapid. Not so, ...
...however, my mental recovery. For a ...
...good while I saw Conrad at my side, ...
...though he was no longer there. For a ...
...good while I spoke to him and thought ...
...that he returned my answers. The ...
...realization that we had been separated ...
...in a bodily way crept upon me with ...
...drowsy slowness. At last I inquired of ...
...my nurse:

"Where is my brother?"

"We thought it best, sir," came the ...
...glib reply, "that you should be kept ...
...apart while you're both so ill."

"Then he is alive?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"Thank God! And has he suffered?"

"Suffered? Oh, no, sir, not at all."

I heard myself heave a strong, grate... ful sigh just as I sank into a sleep ...
...which those few sentences made one of ...
...exhaustion.

But a little later I rallied most appre... ciably. Still to weak too leave my bed, ...
...I could yet hold converse with two or ...
...three doctors who visited me. The ab... sence of Aveling became a source of ...
...surprise, and I soon inquire l for him.

"He has been called away," said one ...
...of the doctors.

"Yes—to Paris, I believe," struck in ...
...another; and then I saw them exchange ...
...a quick, peculiar smile—a smile which I ...
...was destine l presently to understand.

"Where is my dear old friend, Oscar ...
...Schreiner?" I next questioned. "Why ...
...does he not come to me—he of all ...
...others?"

"We thought you were not strong ...
...enough yet," I was answered.

"Not strong enough?" I returned, al... most mockingly; "why, that is really ...
...absurd. Let him come at once."

But they refused, and three good ...
...days had passed before Oscar appeared ...
...at my bed-side. He was very grave of ...
...demeanor, and looked somewhat hag... ...
...After a little while, during which ...
...d my hand and stroked it with ...
...ss, he broke to me the tiding... ...
...onrad had died (wholly without ...

...ad! Conrad dead!" I cried, and ...

...re days passed before I learned ...

...more so. Desiring most earnestly ...
...see Linda, I was told that I could ...
...t, for the reason that she had become ...
...rs. Olaf Aveling, and was on her wed... ...ing tour with her new-married hus... ...band.

Then the whole hateful truth burst ...
...upon me. Trembling with passionate ...
...revolt and disgust, I rose from the great ...
...arm-chair in which I was seated, and ...
...shook my c enched hand at Oscar.

"Olaf Aveling wanted to perform that ...

"Victor!" exclaimed Oscar Schreiner, ...
...shocked and horrified, "how can you ...

...has given you your liberty?"

"Liberty!" I echoed, with a scornful ...

Oscar visibly shuddered and raised ...

"I had no dream that you cared for ...

"And then," I shouted, "you forced her ...

"I persuaded her——"

"You forced her," I struck in, "Yes, ...
...you must have forced her, for she loved ...
...me, she loved me. I had seen it; I had ...
...felt it through every fiber of my life!"

"But, Victor, listen. It seemed such ...

"You consented, however, that she ...

"Oh, Victor! Think! If he had wished ...

I broke into a laugh of bitter irony. ...
..."No. He was watched by those other ...

"Victor, Victor," sighed my listener. ...
..."Remember that you are not yet well— ...

"I'll reopen it myself," now rang ...

...I tore from my side the bandages which ...

The Hop-Pickers.

A chronicler of the past and pres... ent records, in the New York Even... ing Post, the degeneracy of the busi... ness of hop-picking in the interior of ...

SHAFTER'S REPLY TO GARCIA.

Expresses Regret That the Latter Should Feel Aggrieved.

General Shafter has sent the follow... ing reply to General Garcia's letter:

Mr Dear General Garcia—I must say that I was very much surprised at the receipt of your letter, and regret extremely that you should regard yourself as in any way slighted or aggrieved. You will remember the fact that I invited you to accompany me into the town of Santiago to witness the surrender, which you declined. This war, as you know, is between the United States and Spain, and it is out of the question for me to take any action in regard to your forces in connection with the surrender, which was made solely to the American army. The policy of my government in continuing in power temporarily the persons occupying the office is one which I am, of course, unable to discuss.

To show you the views held by my government, see the copy of instructions received from the president, which appear to cover everything that can possibly arise in the government of this territory while held by the United States. Full credit has been given you and your valiant men in my report to my government, and I wish to acknowledge to you the great aid and valuable assistance you rendered during the campaign. I regret very much to know of your determination to withdraw yourself from this vicinity.

I remain yours, very sincerely,

WILLIAM R. SHAFTER,
Major-General Commanding.

Gen. Merritt Will Proclaim Martial Law.

A dispatch from Washington says: Upon the arrival of Maj.-Gen. Merritt within ten days of Manila that officer will issue his proclamation declaring the Philippines temporary dependencies of the United States, and will enforce martial law to such extent as may seem desirable, leaving the Spanish municipal authorities in possession of such points as they have governed and are capable of governing. Such action may result in an immediate clash with Aguinaldo, whose future course is a matter of speculation.

Did Garcia See the Letter?

SANTIAGO, DE CUBA.—It now turns out that the letter alleged to have been addressed by General Garcia to General Shafter complaining of the treatment accorded the Cubans and advising General Shafter of General Garcia's resignation was prepared by a newspaper correspondent named Arms, who has been acting on the staff of General Castillo. It is not clear that General Garcia ever saw the letter.

Fever Situation at Santiago.

A dispatch received at Washington Sunday night by the adjutant-general says that 396 new cases of fever of all classes developed in Shafter's camp Saturday. As only four deaths—from yellow fever—from among the hundreds of cases of fever known to exist in the camp, the war authorities are more than ever inclined to the belief that the cases of yellow fever are of very mild type. Some clear cases of yellow fever are reported, but the officials say they are few, as compared with those of other fevers.

FOUR OF THE SPANIARDS WEL...

The Invading Army Will Move on to Capture the Town of Ponce and Then to San Juan, the Principal City of the Island.

PORT OF GUANICA, Island of Porto Rico, Monday.—The United States military expedition under the command of Major-General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army of the United States, which left Guantanamo Bay during the evening of Thursday last, July 21, was landed here successfully today, after a skirmish with a detachment of the Spanish troops and a crew of thirty belonging to the launch of the United States auxiliary gunboat Gloucester. Four of the Spaniard were killed, but no Americans were hurt.

The troops were pushed forward promptly, in order to capture the railroad leading to Ponce, which is only about ten miles east of this place. From Ponce there is an excellent military road running eighty-five miles north to San Juan.

The whole of General Brooke's force, with the New Orleans, Annapolis, Cincinnati, Leyden and Wasp are expected here within twenty-four hours.

The ships left Guantanamo Bay suddenly on Thursday evening with the Massachusetts, commanded by Captain F. J. Higginson, leading. Captain Higginson was in charge of the naval expedition, which consisted of the Columbia, Dixie, Gloucester and Yale. General Miles was on board the last named vessel.

The troops were on board the transports Nuezcas, Lampas, Comanchee, Rita, Unionist, Stillwater, City of Macon and Specialist. The voyage from Guantanamo Bay to this port was uneventful.

Early this morning the Gloucester, in charge of Lieutenant-Commander Wainwright, steamed into Guanica harbor in order to reconnoitre the place, the fleet waiting outside.

Guanica Bay is a quiet place, surrounded by cultivated lands. In the rear are high mountains and close to the beach nestles a village of about twenty houses. The Spaniards were completely taken by surprise. Almost the first they knew of the approach of the army of invasion was in the announcement contained in the firing of a gun from the Gloucester demanding that the Spaniards haul down their flag.

The Gloucester then hove to within 600 yards of the shore and lowered a launch having on board a Colt rapid-fire gun and thirty men, under the command of Lieutenant Husee, which was sent ashore without encountering opposition. Quartermaster Beck thereupon told Yeoman Lacey to haul down the Spanish flag, which was done, and they then raised on the flagstaff the first United States flag to float over Porto Rican soil.

Suddenly about thirty Spanish opened fire with Mauser rifles on the American party. Lieutenant Husee and his men responded with great gallantry, the Colt gun doing effective work. Almost immediately after the Spaniards fired on the Americans the Gloucester fired on the enemy with all of her three and six-pounders which could be brought to bear, shelling the town and also dropping shells into the hills to the west of Guanica, where a number of Spanish cavalry were to be seen hastening toward the spot where the Americans had landed.

Lieutenant Husee then threw up a little fort, which he named Fort Wainwright.

Want the Regimental Canteen Abolished.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union of America is going to do what it can to abolish the "canteen" system maintaining in the army of the United States. The "canteen" is a regimental saloon. For instance, the First Alabama at Miami gets a car load of beer a day, which is sold to the soldiers at 5 cents a quart or "canteen." The Women's Christian Temperance Union wants to break this up. To this end the Alabama and other state organizations of the order are circulating petitions to President McKinley praying him to stop the practice.

Cervera's Officials Will Not Return.

MADRID.—Captain Aunon, minister of marine, says Admiral Cervera's officers will not return with the Santiago prisoners, but that their return will be negotiated with the United States government. He denies having demanded the expulsion of Don Carlos from Belgium.

It is said in a dispatch from Havana just received here that the report of the killing of Cerpero, the insurgent leader, at Jicotao, is confirmed.

Manzanillo is said to be tranquil, and it is denied that the Americans have invested that place.

Fred Grant's Brigade Ordered to Move.

The Third brigade of the First division, First corps, General Grant commanding, stationed at Chickamauga, received orders Tuesday to strike tents and pack up for immediate departure to Newport News. WARSHIPS ASSEMBLING.

Japanese Men-of-War Ordered to Cooperate With Dewey.

A special dispatch from Shanghai says four Russian men-of-war have left Port Arthur, and it is supposed their destination is the Philippine islands.

The Japanese warships Wohino, Chin Yen, Itaukushima and Sai Yen have been hastily dispatched to Saesebo to reinforce the Japanese squadron there, making it the strongest fleet in those waters. It has been ordered to co-operate with the British and American admirals in the event of international complications. While the dispatch does not explain the matter, it is inferred the squadron is desired to be in readiness for Philippine operations.

Merritt May Need 50,000 Men.

SAN FRANCISCO.—It is understood that Brigadier-General Charles King will be in command of the next Manila expedition. Of the men that are to go to Manila, General King said: "It is my personal opinion that every man of the expeditionary forces will be wanted in the Philippines and will go there. VOTE the straight Populist ticket. You will find the names of all Populist nominees on pape 1.

IF no Registrar has been appointed it will be the duty of the managers of election in each beat to appoint a Registrar on the day of election. This Registrar will register all the voters that did not register in the beat in the last election and also those that have come of age since the last election. This is the law and don't forget it.

J. G. BARBOUR, the "free silver and reform Republican opposed to conventions" candidate, has withdrawn from the race for Judge of Probate in favor of W. H. Foshee, and endorsing the other nominees on the Populist ticket. We congratulate Mr. Foshee and the other beneficiaries. Presumably, Mr. Barbour is now at peace with all the world excepting only the Populist nominee for Probate Judge.

No man can afford to vote the Populist ticket and not vote for the Populist nominee for Probate Judge. Our people are coming together every day. In conclusion I am going to say our ticket is going to be elected, and by a handsome majority. The majority is going to be increased. If I am elected I shall not know any man by the color of his skin, but will administer justice to all alike.

J. G. Barbour, who had called a meeting here to-day, was offered the privilege of addressing the meeting, and did so at some length but the audience gradually melted away.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught colu which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption, and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at Dr. Johnson's Drug Store. ...is the ... and it seems ... you held your primary ... had the opportunity to select your best men, and in your judgment and wisdom you did so. When Mr. Adams came before you in the primary in effect he said "I have been in this reform movement since its incipiency. If you think I can acceptably fill this office I shall be glad to receive your support." It seems to me that Mr. Adams has fulfilled all his obligations and it is your duty to support him in this coming election, and I have no doubt but that you will do so.

In order that the plan of campaign may be carried out throughout all the State the Republicans must support the nominees of the People's Party. In all county matters where there are no regular Republican nominees it is the duty of the Republicans to support the nominees of the Populist party. We have a greater chance of success to-day than we have had for a number of years. The Democratic party are again split up, in fact they are getting to be very fine kindling they have been split up so much. The Populists were the first to split from the Democratic purty. They have been followed by the sound money Democrats. Johnston, the present Democratic nominee, has made himself notorious by some of his appointments, and a large number of his own people are dissatisfied with him. If all his old friends were now to support him he would still be a long way from being elected. Mr. Deans and his friends have made such a vigorous campaign as will greatly assist in their success. The original Democratic plan was to give Warner, their colored candidate for governor, 75,000 majority. But Warner can't have that number now, for governor Johnston needs it. Warner is a big man with a large voice. What is called the Warner ticket is composed of Democrats. They never were Republicans. The State Executive commirtee has expelled them from the Republican party.

If the vote in this State is counted as it is cast Mr. Deans and the other nominees on the ticket will be elected, and not only will be elected but will take the seats to which they are elected.

Mr. Aldrich in reply to a question about his congressional race said this is not the time to go into that matter. Let us get through with this State election first. Let us get through with Santiago before we take Porto Rico. He had already sent two Democrats back home and could send another; if the Democrats want to trot out a new horse he (Mr. Aldrich) could send him back as well as those who had come before. It might be well for the Democratic nominee to take an excursion ticket, as it would be only a short time he would spend in Washington. Mr Aldrich thanked the audience for their kind attention and hoped to address another meeting when the congressional campaign opened.

S. M. Adams followed Mr. Aldrich. He said it was unnecessary for him to again define his position. He had not changed either his views or his position. He was still fighting the same fight he had been fighting for a good many years. Our organization must be maintained. Populists must rem in true and loyal to their orga ization. Populists and Republicans are agreed upon one thing—honest elections. That is why Populists and Republicans should vote together in this election, it is their common interest in this country. This fight must go until it is conceded that the people of Alabama should rule. Talk about harmony and peace among the people! We all want it, but can never have it upon political questions while our votes are set aside by false and fictitious returns from a few counties. The Democratic p...ty is to-day better than it has been in the p... by reason of the pressure brought to bear upon it by the Peop...'s Party. Wharton Barker, in his alleged Populist paper, "The American," opens up his editorial page with "Spain is in a pitiful plight," and anyone who wades throug his columns of wailing over the giving up of the Cincinnati convention will be convinced that "there are others." Those not familiar with the habits of the "Roader" may be surprised to learn that Mr. Barker's chief backers, most enthusiastic supporters, those who first proposed him as prevldential nominee, have deserted him This would seem to indicate that the G. O. P. managers bargained for the Populist machine, with chairman's Butler's head thrown in, and that the "Roaders" not being able to deliver either one, the "value received" was not forthcoming, and thus all raisond' etre of a convention vanished. If Mr. Barker's itch for a Presidential nomination had permitted him to wait until his adherents had gotten their state deals with their Republican allies rounded up he might not have had so short a political pipe dream.

Now that the Cincinnati convention is off, what will the Roaders do?

Senator ("Grand ma") Hoar recently was put up by his party in the senate as chief accrobat to make a speech beginning with opposition to annexation and "imperialism" and winding up by urging that Hawaii be added to our domains.

A great howl has gone up from the shippers and merchants over the express companies having put their war tax off on the people but we have yet to see a line in any paper anent the check stamp or the justice with which it could have been paid by the banks rather than by the people.

The American fish companies have, it seems, declined to close the deal with English capitalists, and will unite in a trust of their own and skin the dear people as skillfully as could Johnny Bull himself.

Oklahoma Populists are split on the subject of congressional candidates. The Roaders prefer a "straight" (?) candidate who will poll enough votes to send up a Republican, to a fusion candidate who they might name and vote for.

The Democrats are waking up to the fact that after having forced the Republicans into the war and furnishing 75 per cent of the soldiers to do the fighting they are to be cut out of all glory connected with it, and as a result the question of espousing the cause of annexation, extension, increase in army and navy etc., is to be made prominent in all their conventions hereafter. This will be begun at the Missouri State convention August 7.

Federal employes all over the country are alarmed over the rumor that as soon as President McKinley can get through the rush of war business he will turn his attention to the civil service rules as they now exist and so modify them as to give him unlimited decapitating power. Thus will pass away the one un infamous act of the late Grover Cleveland.

TO THE PEOPLE OF ALABA

Without Reference to Party The Appeal is Made.

NOT FOR PARTY SUCCESS

t the Cause of Human Liberty---The Whole Country Is Aroused, and the People Are Full of Hope---Words of Encouragement From Chairman Crowe.

HEADQUARTERS STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,
BIRMINGHAM, ALA., July 23.

To the people of Alabama - The columns of the Independent Citizen this week are devoted almost exclusively to the general news of the campaign. I desire to call the attention of every voter in Alabama to the speech our candidate for governor, Mr. Deans, made at Clanton a few weeks ago. This speech has been published in this paper before and in several other state papers. It is given place in this paper again because we are too poor to pay for its publication in pamphlet form, and make avail of this last opportunity of giving it the greatest possible circulation. The speech of Senator Deans never has been answered. For the first time in twenty years the democratic party in this state has been forced to the defensive. In his opening campaign speech at Tuscumbia Governor Johnston devoted a third of his time in an attempt to answer Mr. Deans's speech, but he did not answer a single charge, and was unable to meet one issue raised by Mr. Deans. All that he could say was that Mr. Deans had not, while a member of the legislature, put through any reform measure. Every intelligent man in Alabama knows that no populite or republican ever has been able to pass reform measures through a democratic legislature in Alabama. If you have not read Mr. Deans's speech you should read it, and if you have read it you would better read it again.

In this paper there are also published two addresses over my signature, which have been published before. So many requests have come from populists, republicans and independents for back numbers of this paper, that we decided to get out an extra edition, hence the republication of these matter relating to the campaign.

I desire to call the attention of every voter to the letter over signature of "Citizen," in this issue. This letter was written by a man who has enjoyed exceptional opportunities for investigation of lawlessness in Alabama, and he is well qualified to speak of what he has seen and heard." No patriotic man can read this letter without realizing that we are in a dangerous condition, and every good citizen has a duty to his state, and fame and his God, which he cannot evade.

We have made the best fight we could. We know our cause is just, and we must money to meet the actual necessary expenses, we have gone on trusting in God and the sober judgment of the good people. The cause of human liberty is with the people. If they are willing to toil and suffer like slaves let it be, and the consequences upon them and their children. But let every act the part of men our cause is worth.

G. B. CROWE,
Chairman.

Within a few days the people of Alabama will be called upon to decide whether this state shall be ruled by the white people, through the agency of the men of their choice, or by the will of a few politicians through the agency of a lawless and dangerous element. State officials, members of the legislature and county officers are to be elected. If every man who has the right to vote is allowed to go to the polls and cast his vote for the men of his choice, and every vote is counted, and the honest return made of the votes actually cast, everybody should be satisfied. This is said to be a government of the people and by the people, and all that any honest man can ask is that the will of the majority shall prevail.

Before deciding how he will vote every honest man will try to learn the truth about the character and capacity of the candidates and the principles which these candidates represent. There are three state tickets in the field. It would take up too much time to look into the personal character of every one of the candidates for state office, but it will answer every purpose to make a careful investigation of the principles and measures for which the different parties stand as shown by their history and the statements of their leaders.

The first and most important issue in this state is the question of honest elections. It seems strange that this should ever be an issue in politics, but conditions in Alabama have been such that this has been an issue for a long time. It is a disgrace to our civilization and a great outrage upon the people, that they should be forced to struggle year after year for the right which has been guaranteed to them under the law. Would it not seem strange if any political party in this state should demand the right of trial by jury, or the right to worship God according to the dictates of conscience, or the right of the habeas corpus writ? It would be strange, indeed, if any political party, backed up by a large number of good citizens, should put out a platform demanding any one of these rights, for they are guaranteed under the constitution and are counted among the inalienable rights of a free people. These rights are essential to a free people and lie at the foundation of a republican form of government, but they are no more essential than the right of suffrage, which is the keystone of republican institutions. And yet we find that the right of suffrage has been an issue in Alabama politics for a long time. It is the one great issue today and will be a great issue until it is settled in favor of the people who are demanding their rights under the law. This issue has been made by populists, republicans and independents, who charge that the democratic party in this state has prostituted the right of suffrage to its own selfish ends, and that this great safeguard of republican institutions and palladium of liberty has been debauched to the great injury of the people and the disgrace of the state. And with these grave and specific charges, opposition to the democratic party has time and again gone before the people, and is before the people today, repeating those charges and demanding that the guilty be punished and the state freed of this lawless class.

The proof of these charges, the proof of altered registration papers, falsified poll lists, and wholesale ballot debauchery, has been furnished time and again. But the men who are at the back of this conspiracy have not gone to jail and have not been troubled even to explain. But the people continue the fight and the day will come when election frauds will be punished as other crimes against the state, and ballot box stuffers will be no more respected in Alabama than they are in other states where such crimes are not tolerated.

Every voter should inform himself regarding these great crimes before he casts his vote. It is the purpose of this article to give some of the proof at hand in support of these charges. Space for only a small percentage of the testimony which could be furnished is allowed in this article. But enough can be crowded into this space to convince any fair minded, honest man that the charges are well founded.

In the first place, these crimes against the right of suffrage are perpetrated to a greater extent in that section of the state known as the black belt than in any other part of the state. Crime is always found where there is the least respect for the law, and the public conscience are the beneficiaries of the lawless acts.

Dallas county is in the black belt, and for a long time has been noted for the enormity of its crimes against the right of suffrage. Here are a few of the many outrages committed in that county:

At Brown's beat No. 29 only 17 men voted in the state election of 1894, while falsified returns gave a majority of 317 for the democratic ticket. Mr. W. D. Parnell, who was a confederate soldier and is a highly respected citizen, has lived in that beat for many years. He watched the polling place all day and made affidavit to the fact that only 17 men went into the polling place.

J. Gilbert Johnson, a farmer and respected white man, who was born and brought up in Lexington precinct, No. 9, Dallas county, makes affidavit to the fact that he knows every white man in that beat, and there were only 47 white voters, and that he was within 75 feet of the polling place from the time the polls opened until they closed, and the 45 men and no more entered said polling place. The falsified returns from that beat showed a vote of 277.

Mr. S. P. McIlwan is a white man who has resided in Dallas county nearly seventy years, and is well known. He testifies that at the court house, precinct No. 36, in the city of Selma, only 719 voters, including election managers, clerks and returning officers, entered the polling place on election day. The falsified returns from this voting place showed a vote of 2083. There are many other affidavits from that county. There were not over 1,577 votes cast at the state election in 1894, in Dallas county, but the falsified returns showed a total vote of 6,517, a steal of 5,000 votes.

At Clifton precinct, Wilcox county, only 38 men entered the polling place, as shown by affidavits of Messrs. Pearson and Pritchard, two highly respected white men of that county. The fraudulent returns from that precinct gave the democratic ticket 223 votes and the opposition 7 votes. At Mims, No. 13 precinct, in the same county, only 57 men went to the polling place on election day, as shown by the testimony of W. B. Rogers, a respected white man of that county. But the fraudulent returns gave 142 votes for the democratic ticket and 12 for opposition. H. C. and J. T. Pearson, white men, and good citizens, were at Bethel precinct, beat 6, and testify that 137 votes and no more entered said place on election day. The fraudulent returns from this precinct gave 457 votes for the democratic ticket, and 14 for the opposition. These are a few of the outrages from Wilcox county. In that county there was a steal of over 4,000 votes. In Hale county, at Hollow Square, beat No. 6, only 52 men entered the polling place, as shown by the testimony of H. T. Stringfellow, a white man who was born in that county and is highly respected. Fraudulent returns from that beat gave the democratic ticket 360 votes and the opposition 8 votes. Testimony of several reputable citizens of Hale county, among the number, Judge James M. Hobson, father of the gallant hero of Santiago, and Hon. S. A. Hobson, brother of Lieutenant Hobson, show that at one beat in that county there were only 56 voters registered, as stated by the judge of probate and Mr. P. H. Waller, the registrar, yet the fraudulent returns from that beat gave 504 votes and every one for the democratic ticket.

In Bullock county, F. E. Tompkins and W. P. Carter, men who stand high in that county, testified that they were at Greenwood beat No. 8, in that county, all day and that 104 men went to the polling place. Fraudulent returns from that beat gave 354 votes. Mr. M. R. Hall, a native of Bullock county, and a white man of illelligence and good character, testified that he was at Midway beat on election day and saw every man that went to the polling place and that only 197 voters entered the polling place. Falsified returns from this beat gave a vote of 323.

In Lowndes county Mr. L. Reese testified that he was present at the court house in said county when the votes were canvassed and that he then and there took down the official vote as announced by the county board. 361 for the opposition, but the official declaration of the vote from that county, as announced by the speaker of the house of representatives, was 4,995 for the democratic ticket and 361 for the opposition. Mr. Reese is well known [illegible] Alabama as a man of intelligence [illegible] gh character.

The sat[illegible]aracter of evidence came from Barbo[illegible], Clarke, Greene, Henry, Macon, Marengo, Monroe, Montgomery, Perry, Russell and Sumter counties. In North Alabama the frauds have not been so palpable, but some of the North Alabama counties have made a record in this line. In certain precincts of Calhoun, Jefferson, Madison, Morgan and Talladega counties the crimes against the right of suffrage were flagrant. The last named county attracted the attention of the whole country four years ago. It was advertised far and wide, north, south, east and west, on account of the monstrous frauds in a democratic primary. Here is a clipping from the Selma Times, a democratic newspaper, commenting on that outrage:

The Times is democratic—warp, woof and filling. It believes that the principles of democracy are eternal and will not die. It believes that the faults, the follies, the vices of the white man's party are preferable to the virtues, the best intentions and wisest capabilities of the black man's party in the south. It deplores the weaknesses, it laments the shortcomings, and would cure, if it could, the blindness of the party of Morgan and Houston in Alabama. It stands by the nominees of the democratic party; it gives aid nor comfort to the candidates named by the enemies of our party. But at the same time it raises the red flag of danger and burns the red lights of democratic peril.

A primary election, so-called, to nominate a democratic candidate for congress in this district has just been held. The frauds in that election were patent, gross, palpable and indefensible. The nominee's best friend dare not try to defend them on the stump; the party's most devoted adherent is powerless to condone them on the hustings.

The nominee may be, and doubtless is, a man of great probity of character and spotless integrity. He may have none of these small vices which are common to humanity; but he is, or hopes to be, the beneficiary of corruption more disgraceful than has ever dishonored the party in this state.

The means by which Mr. Plowman was nominated are not irregularities. They are not the result of impulse, such as might grow in the heat of a convention and spring from an unconsidered determination on the part or friends to win a fight for their favorite. They are the preconcerted, predetermined, preconceived, prearranged plan to nominate a certain candidate at every hazard and without regard to the party's good. As the Calhoun county paper puts it, "It is Talladega's fraud." It is the party's dishonor; it is Mr. Plowman's shame. It is time to call a halt. It is time to appeal to fixed principles of reason. It is time to take our bearing in the storm.

We appeal to party authority to save the democracy of this district from a danger more imminent than ha threatened it in many long years. We appeal to Mr. Plowman to rescue the democracy, and not bring it to shame. It is possible he will be elected. If he is, no distinction, no profit, no honor can come to him from that election. Like all other men who have been the beneficiaries of fraud, he can only hope to reap the reward of temporary success, and after that drink the bitter dregs of permanent bitterness and oblivion.

We hoist no name at our masthead We wish we could do so without the blush of shame. We await Mr. Plowman's decision; we are listening for the party's command.

The beneficiary of this fraud inside the party was forced to retire by public opinion, but he came forward again in 1896 and got the nomination as a free silver Johnston democrat. He was given the certificate, but his seat was contested and he was unseated. Dallas county is in his district, and the testimony filed before the committee in this contest, revealed the same character of frauds in Dallas as has been already mentioned. A great mass of evidence has been gathered in this matter, but there is not space for further reference to the testimony in support of the charges of crimes against the right of suffrage in this state. In his opening campaign speech at Clanton, Mr. Deans referred to the speech of the late chairman of the democratic executive committee, who declared before the last democratic convention: "It cannot be denied that our election laws are defective, and that the punishment of fraud is difficult, if not impossible."

In a recent report on one of the contested election cases from Alabama, a committee of congress said: "If the election laws of Alabama had been designed to encourage fraud and thwart the people's will they could not have been in some respects more ha[illegible] framed to meet that purpo[illegible] opinion of good [illegible] the election [illegible]

The democratic party claims that the election laws of this state are based on the ballot reform movement, and are often what is known as the Australian system. There is no warrant for this claim. On the contrary, it is safe to say that the election laws of this state are the very worst that could be designed. No other state has such iniquitous laws. For the purpose of comparing our laws with other states, the election laws of twenty-five states have been examined. Amongst the number are the states of Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Iowa, Arkansas, Florida and California. And it is proposed to demonstrate not only by the results that have been seen, but by the design of the law itself, that there has been, and is, a conspiracy to defeat the will of the people. In doing this, only a brief abstract of the laws can be given, but enough will be shown to establish the falsity of the democratic claim. This can be done by reference only to the salient features.

In the first place, "The distinctive feature of the ballot practice in New South Wales is that the names of all the candidates being on one ticket, the names of person for whom the voter does not wish to vote must be crossed off, a blue pencil being provided for the purpose by the authorities, while there are clearly printed on the ticket, in red ink, directions as to how many candidates must be voted for."

REGISTRATION.

In Alabama the judge of probate superintends the registration of voters. The governor appoint a registrar for each county, who holds office for four years. The county registrar appoints precinct registrars, who hold office for four years. It is the duty of the precinct registrar to make registration of elections in their precincts in each year when a general election is to be held. Registration shall begin the first Monday in May and continue for eighteen days except in cities of 5,000 or more when thirty days time shall be given. Registrar must within two weeks make copy of registration list and return it with original list to the office of the judge of probate. Judge of probate must make alphabetical list of electors returned to his office as the same appears from the returns of the registrar. One copy of this alphabetical list shall be delivered to the inspectors of election immediately preceding every election. If any precinct registrar fails or refuses to act, the county registrar must appoint some competent person to act in his stead.

In other states where elections are not a farce, Illinois and Connecticut and California for instance, the following laws obtain regarding registion. In the state of Illinois there is a board of election commissioners, and this board is also known as the board of registry, having charge of the matter of registration of voters. In every city and incorporated town, there is a board of commissioners appointed by the county court, the board is composed of three members, each of whom is designated as an election commissioner and is an officer of the court. A board of election commissioners is also appointed by the county court for every precinct not inside an incorporated town. These commissioners hold office respectively for one, two and three years. Two of such commissioners, at least, shall always be selected from the two leading political parties of the state, one from each of such parties and all shall be legal voters and householders, residing in such city, village or incorporated town, and be men of well-known political convictions and of approved integrity and capacity. No commissioner can hold any other public office. Whenever it shall come to the knowledge of such judges of the county court that one of the leading political parties of the state is not represented upon such commission by a person of the same political faith he shall at once remove one of such commissioners and fill the vacancy with a member of the leading political party not so represented. Complaint made against any commissioner, stating grounds of complaint and signed and sworn to by at least twenty-five legal voters of the precinct, or incorporated town, shall be sufficient to bring the matter to the attention of the judge of the county court. Board of election commissioners must organ[illegible] and duties of clerk. Such commissioner shall also give an official bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars.

The persons authorized by law, or appointed pursuant to any town or city ordinance, to act as judges of elections in any town, city or ward or other election district or precinct, shall constitute a "board of registry" for their respective towns, cities, wards, districts or precincts, and shall meet on Tuesday, three weeks preceding any state election, at 9 o'clock a. m. and proceed to make a list, as hereinafter prescribed, of all persons qualified and entitled to vote at the ensuing election in the election district of which they are judges, which list, when completed, shall constitute and be known as the "register" of electors of said election district. It shall be the duty of this registry board to make an alphabetical list of all voters as shown by the poll list of the last election, on file in the office of the judge of probate. In making said list the board shall include all voters well known to them as entitled to vote at the next election who were not listed on the poll list, and from this new registration list shall be stricken the names of all electors who are known to have died or removed since the last election. This work of revising registration lists shall begin at least three weeks immediately preceding an election, and during this period any qualified elector who did not vote at the preceding election may register. The office of register shall be at some convenient and comfortable place.

The registration list shall be open to inspection of any elector, and any voter may point out errors or omissions. The name of an elector on the list who, has been proven to be disqualified by oath of two voters, will be erased and such voter will be notified to appear and show cause why his name should not be stricken off. Upon the revision of registration lists one copy must be filed with the judge of county court, posted at place where last election held and a number of copies is allowed for distribution.

In Iowa the city council appoints the board of registration; in California the county clerk is required to keep a open registration book for precincts not in incorporated towns. In all o the above mentioned states, and others, and, in fact, in a number, if not all, the southern states, except Alabama, the registration lists are either posted or open to inspection. Anyone can see at a glance the rottenness of the Alabama registration laws and that they were never intended for honest purposes. If our registration laws conformed to the laws of all, or ninety per cent of the other states, the registration lists would be open to public inspection and false entries could be exposed. If such were the case it would do away with a great deal of the rascality. In 1894 the negroes were advised not to register and they did not register in the black belt, still their names were entered on the registration lists and they were counted for the democratic ticket.

ELECTION MANAGERS.

in Alabama are appointed by the judge of probate, sheriff and clerk of the court. These mana,[illegible] are called "inspectors, and the inspectors must be appointed for each place of voting, "two of whom shall be members of opposing political parties IF PRACTICABLE," and one returning officer shall be appointed for each precinct. The sheriff is the returning officer for the county. Inspectors and returning officers are appointed thirty days before election day. The inspectors 'select two persons to act as clerks." The inspectors "must appoint two or more markers or assistants for illiterate and disabled electors, one from each of the opposing political parties, each of whom must be a DISCREET PERSON, able to read and write."

"Clerks and markers must be appointed from a list of persons, not less than six nor more than ten in any one precinct, who may be suggested for that purpose by the duly constituted authorities, respectively, of the opposing political parties, * * * and the opposing political parties shall each have the right to suggest a list of names." The inspectors, clerks and markers must take an oath to perform their duties at the election according to law."

The laws of other states, particularly those states that have been mentioned, are clear and unmistakable in all matters relating to the holding of [illegible] and duties of

THE one armed hero of the wire-grass has repented of his sins, and now says that he is in favor of honest elections. When an old sinner like Wm. C. Oates repents and comes out and acknowledges that he was never elected, or words to that effect, and that he can not any longer afford to tolerate ballot-box stuffing, as he is growing old, the little fellows that are left had better heed his warning. Don't throw up to the old hero that it is sour grapes; that if he had captured the plum for United States senator he would now be in a different frame of mind. Give the old gentleman credit for being sincere. Maybe some day you will get left and wish to wash your hands of fraud and corruption.

ward or precinct, or other persons managing the political interests for such party in such ward or precinct, and, in the absence of such selection, it shall be the duty of the judges of such election to admit into such room two persons of each political party so voting at such election, who shall be vouched for by the judge or judges representing such political party, to be present during the canvass of such votes and the making af such returns. That such persons shall be of good character and sober, and shall in no-wise interfere with such canvass. The challengers present and watchers of such canvass shall be allowed to be present, and so near that they can see the judges and clerks of said election are faithfully performing their duties. Each candidate for an office to be filled at such election, by certificate in writing, signed by him, may designate one person for each election precinct in which he is a candidate, to be present at such canvass of the ballots, and such persons shall be admitted to a position in said room as a watcher of such canvass. And the judges of election shall permit him to be present, and so near to them that he can see such canvass and the statements required by them of the voters are correctly made, and no judge of election or police or other officer shall allow such person to be molested or removed during the canvass of such ballots, nor until such statements have been made, completed and signed, unless he shall be personally guilty of fraudulent or disorderly conduct."

The election laws of Illinois and California, and indeed the great majority of states, are very comprehensive, but would be interesting to thousands in this state if these laws could be quoted in full, particularly the parts relating to the management of the election and the counting of the votes. But not even the length of this article will justify a full reprint of those laws by way of comparison with the shameful methods practiced in Alabama. However, a word more in regard to informing the public as to result of the election.

"When the canvass of the ballots shall have been completed, and the poll clerks shall have announced to the judges the total number of votes received by each candidate, each of the judges of election in turn shall then proclaim, in a loud voice, total number of votes received by of the persons voted for in such cinct, and the office for which he is designated, and the number of votes for and the number of votes against any proposition which shall have been submitted to a vote of the people, such proclamation shall be prima facie evidence of the result of the canvass of such ballots."

Every election judge and clerk retains a copy of the abstract of vote, the ballot box is given to one judge of the election and the key to the same to another, and the ballot box, with tally sheets, is returned to county board.

Any person who personates an elector for the purpose of registering or voting is guilty of a felony. Any person guilty of either of the following offenses, shall, on conviction, be adjudged guilty of a felony and sent to the penitentiary for not less than one and not more than five years: Fraudulently registering, or attempt to register; false entry on registration list; hinder or delay any person having right to register; aid, counsel, procure or advise any voter, person or judge of election to violate any election law; or knowingly and wilfully hinder or delay an officer of election; or keep false poll list; or make any false entries on poll list; or omit to do any act by law directed to be done.

By this comparison it is plain that the Alabama laws for holding elections, and the qualifications and duties of the officers are as defective as the registration laws. In short, any person with three grains of common sense can see that they were designed for the sole purpose of preventing an honest expression of the will of the people, and destroying the very form of republican institutions. It is a burning shame, an outrage upon the people, and a disgrace to any self-respecting state in this day of advanced civilization. The wonder is that the people have quietly submitted to it. They would have been justified in resorting to any means to destroy this iniquitous system.

Look at the abstract of these laws. In Alabama two inspectors shall be members of opposing political parties "IF PRACTICABLE." It is seldom practicable, and white men, the sons of freemen and the wealth producers must go fawning and cringing before a lot of lawless officials and beg for representation. And these petty tyrants often treat the petitioners with contumely. In other states the law is mandatory, opposing political parties must be represented [illegible] election manager from a bull's foot [illegible] if he be the most [illegible] liar or debauchee [illegible] In fact, it is quite [illegible] as the inspector lists or republicans, or both, the most illiterate and venal negro that can be found. In other states the judges of election must be qualified electors and men of "good repute and character, who can speak, read and write the English language, and be skilled in the four fundamental rules of arithmetic, and must be of good understanding and capable." The marker is a unique creature of our statute, he must be a "discreet person," and it matter not whether he can speak or read the English language. Discreet is a good word here, at least it means precisely what was intended. A man may be a liar and a thief and a villian and yet discreet. The discreet man is he who selects the best means to accomplish a purpose, and the people of Alabama have known some very discreet markers.

THE BALLOT in Alabama is well suited to the purpose for which it was intended, i. e., to keep the democratic party in power. It must be "printed on plain white paper, with a slender line between each name and extending sufficiently to the left of the names to easily permit making a crossmark (X) before each name, and in the appropriate place, the words 'Vote for one.' The order in which the titles of the several officers to be filled may be arranged upon the ballots shall be left to the discretion of the judge of probate, but the names of all candidates for the same office must be printed together and arranged alphabetically according to the initial letters of their surnames, irrespective of party."

The popular form of ballot with states which have adopted the reform system of voting, is to group all names and officers by parties, over each of which is printed a distinct sign or emblem. The voter of a straight ticket marks a cross in the circle at the head of his ticket. The voter who wishes to scratch or scatter marks in a square opposite the name of the candidate of his choice. Another form is to group each party's names and officers in one column, over which is placed a circle, and the voter who wishes to vote a straight ticket marks in the circle. The first form with the emblem is more convenient for the illiterate voter, but the illiterate voter could easily be taught to vote a straight ticket under the second form. For instance, if the ticket should be arranged in following order: Democratic, populist, republican, the illiterate voter wishing to vote the straight democratic ticket need only learn to make a mark in circle at top of first column, or second column is for the populist ticket, and so on. Both of these forms have name of party printed in large letters at top of ticket. Two forms of ballot have been attached as an exhibit to this article and the writer hereof hopes they will find space in this paper. In practically all of the few states where neither of the two forms mentioned is used, the name of the party is placed opposite the name of each candidate.

The writer of this article has not examined the election laws of every one of the forty-five states, but he has examined the laws of a large number of states and from a general knowledge of election laws of all the states he feels justified in saying that the Alabama election laws are the worst in the United States.

Georgia laws are bad enough, and in Florida they have practically the same form of ballot as Alabama, but in that state there are some safeguards around the registration. All of the election managers MUST NOT be of the same political party, ballots must be counted in "presence of public," and the result "publicly proclaimed," and heavy penalties are provided for violation of any election law. And in Arkansas where, it is said, honest elections are not the rule, the election managers must be of different political parties. The party is designated on the ballot opposite every name of the candidate, and penalties are provided.

In Alabama, no penalties are provided for the violation of an election law. The election laws in this state are the most vicious that could be made. That these laws were designed to encourage fraud and defeat the will of the people there is hardly the shadow of doubt.

But malfeasance in office and lawlessness in Alabama has not stopped at infringments upon the right of suffrage. The whole legislative, judicial and administrative departments of government have been tainted with corruption, and it is daily growing more alarming. Our state government is more depraved today than it has ever been, except, perhaps, under the corrupting influence of the state banks in 1846, or the dark period of reconstruction. In 1846 the state banks had grown so powerful that they tainted every department of state, and some of the most prominent men of that period became involved. A portion of our bonded debt is a remnant of those corrupt times. The rapacity and venality of aliens and denizens of the reconstruction period is a familiar story. What [illegible] y, and what [illegible] times?

lobby was silent under his powerful invectives. Leading democrats have declared that the general assembly of two years ago was more corrupt than that of four years ago. Railroads and industrial corporations and municipalities have felt the nefarious affects of this demoralizing state of affairs. The management of large enterprises declare that legislative expenses are among the heaviest fixed charges.

It is not the purpose of the writer to reflect in any way upon the supreme court, but it is a notorious fact that prominent attorneys frequently reflect upon our court in private conversation. This thing was unheard of a few years ago, but it is daily growing more common. Charges of incompetency, malfesance and corruption against our inferior courts are as common as as charges of crimes against the right of suffrage. The moral and intellectual standard of our judiciary is lower than it has been in twenty-five years, and those charged with ministerial functions are plodding in stupidity and inoculated with corruption. A distinguished attorney of this state, Mr. Jno. B. Knox, while chairman of the democratic executive committee, and speaking before the state convention of that party, after referring to crimes against the right of suffrage, said: "It is impossible for us to estimate the injury which will result from the tolerance of official dereliction. The ultimate result is the same without regard to the office held; purity of administration must exist from the office of chief executive down to the the humblest manager of an election. If corruption in one is approved or tolerated, as sure as night follows day, it will ultimately lead to the corruption of the other, and I may say of all others. The results of such an influence will enter every branch of society. It will reach your bank cashiers and affect positions of trust in every department. It will ultimately enter your courts and affect the administration of justice."

The administrative department has not escaped the corrupting and blighting influence. Disclaiming any purpose to reflect upon the private character of the governor, it is within proper criticism to speak from the records of administrative malfesance, corruption and incompetency.

The reports of the public examiner developed the fact that there had been gross irregularities and incompetency in the important department of agriculture. There was a shortage of over $5,000, and the humiliating spectacle of charging these shortages to the deceased son-in-law of the commissioner was presented, but the miserable makeshift was shown to be flimsy and false.

In the department of education incapacity and irregularities go stalking hand in hand with an insolence that never characterized this department before. A lot of stuff called "advance sheets" of thirty-ninth biennial report was put out by the superintendent of education in October, 1896. The folder, edited by the deaf and dumb, and printed by the blind, is a literary digest and a work off art compared to these "advance sheets." The pamphlet contains 100 pages and on the first page explanation is given of fifty-five errors and there are abous 445 more errors that are noted under "Errata." On account of the great expense of publishing reports, the superintendent was unwilling to give anything but an "advance sheet." But in this "advance sheet" the superintendent promised to "furnish such a report as I think will materially change the complection of Alabama, educationally." All this was to be done in the face of "difficulties to overcome and obstructions in the way," and with every thing "conspiirng to embarrass my administration." The complexion of Alabama has been materially changed and the educational department has been a factor in making the change. "Rosy with hope, green with jealousy and pallid with despair" is the story of the change.

Within the past six months several of the state papers, particularly the Age-Herald, have called attention to the deplorable condition of our educational department. Within the past three months, a pamphlet of 150 odd pages under the title of "Circular of Information from Department of Education: authorized by His Excellency, Joseph F. Johnston," has been given to the public. According to this voluminous circular our educational department was in better condition in 1871 than it is today, and it was better in 18 3 and in 1888. It could hardly be worse than it is today and is the worst in the United States.

In his speech at Clanton, a few weeks ago, Mr. Deans gave some interesting figures relating to our educational department. The only answer to his charges is found in one of those beautiful periods, for which our governor is famous. "My position," said he, "is that there shall be steady [illegible] results made against the cohorts of ignorance. And within the past two days we have another circular, [illegible] interesting statement, from the super- [illegible] of education trying to bolster [illegible] for the campaign by [illegible] penditures from [illegible] individuals and religious denominations and public collections in the north for colleges. Shameful subterfuge! What the people want to know is how the $631,516,64 is disbursed.

CITIZEN.

EXPLANATORY NOTE—Since the beginning of this campaign it has been my purpose to get out a campaign text book. At my request, Mr. William H. Skaggs has furnished this office with a great deal of valuable data. It will be recalled that Mr. Skaggs was chairman of the campaign committee in the reform movement of two years ago. At the close of that campaign Mr. Skaggs devoted several months to a personal investigation of election frauds and other lawlessness. He obtained a great deal of valuable information and evidence which he intended to have published in the interest of the reform movement. Unfortunately, sufficient funds could not be secured for this purpose.

I thought that I should be able to raise sufficient funds to publish this valuable work of Mr. Skaggs in pamphlet form. It would be interesting reading, because it is based on the highest testimony and shows a condition of lawlessness in this state known to but few people.

However, the above article and signature of Citizen was prepared by Mr. Skaggs. It is a lengthy article but interesting in its treatment of the two great questions of election frauds and election laws in this state.

Mr. Skagg's article also embraced a review of the frauds of two years ago, a comprehensive treatment of the state finances as shown by state auditor's report, an exposure of the back tax business, and examination of public account, and an interesting story of the administration of populist county officials as compared with democrats. I am sorry that I could not arrange for the publication of this work, and at the last moment I put as much of it in this paper as I can find space for.

G. B. CROWE,
Chairman.

To the Republicans of Alabama:

At a meeting of the republican state executive committee, in the city of Birmingham on July 2d, 1898, the following resolutions were adopted: Whereas, the state convention of the republican party on the 7th day of June, 1898, passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That under the existing conditions in this state, it is unwise to nominate a state ticket. Be it further resolved that this convention recommend and direct the republican county committees to use their best judgment, and earnest efforts to nominate and indorse anti-democratic candidates for judicial and county offices and for the legislature, who are pledged to honest elections and against constitutional conventions. Therefore, be it resolved by the republican state executive committee, that we recommend and urge the republicans of Alabame to vote for, and support the populist state ticket, headed by G. B. Deans for governor.

We beg to call the attenfion of the republican voters to these resolutions and urge upon you the importance of supporting the ticket headed by Hon. G. B. Deans for governor.

Very Respectfully,
N. L. STEELE,
Chairman of Republican State Campaign Committee.

DUTIES OF INSPECTORS

And Returning Officers—How Places Supplied on Failure to Attend.

Section 1591, Code—It shall be the duty of inspectors and returning officers appointed to meet at the place of holding elections in the several precincts for which they have been appointed, by eight o'clock, of the morn- of the day of the election, and, before nine o'clock, open the several polling places as designated; and on the failure of any inspector or returning officer to attend at the hour of eight, such as may be present may complete the number. If none of the inspectors appointed are present, the returning officer of the precinct shall appoint three inspectors to act, who, in every such instance, shall be qualified electors who are entitled to vote at that voting place; and if there should be no inspector or returning officer present by the hour of eight, at any polling place, then any three qualified electors who are entitled by law to vote at the polling place in the election then to be held, may open the polls and act as inspectors during the election.

Sec. 1592—If the returning officer is not present at the hour appointed, the inspectors or those acting as such, must appoint one to serve during the election.

Sec. 1595—Clerk and markers must be appointed from a list of not less than six or more than ten, suggested by opposing party.

Sec. 1597—Oath of office must be administered.

Sec. 1638—The vote is counted by taking the ballots one by one from the box and not in packages.

NOTE—Let the managers representing the opposition to democracy look at the ticket when read and see that it is carefully read.

Before the election proceeds, demand markers and clerks and furnish a list not less than six or more than ten to be selected from.

TO ALL CONSERVATIVE VOTERS OF ALABAMA.

In 1894 Reuben F. Kolb, whom the people had elected but had not seated governor of Alabama, issued me a commission as adjutant-general of the state troops, with instructions to organize a militia for the purpose of maintaining a state government. As you doubtless remember, many of you whom I organized, I executed his orders. But owing to his abject cowardice, when the time came for action, I could never get him to give me an order to establish him in power in Montgomery, or to establish a government in some other county. The reason he gave me for refusing to issue this order was, first, that he was a married man with a large family, and could not afford to run the risk of being hurt. The second reason was, that Grover Cleveland occupied the presidential chair, and that he knew that if he should declare the state of Alabama to be in a state of revolution he would be unable to secure national recognition of his government from the party then in power. That was four years ago. Conditions in national affairs have changed, and instead of having an enemy of liberty and a friend of the ballot-box stuffers occupying the position of chief executive of this nation, we have in the person of Wm. McKinley a president who is and has always been a friend of liberty and fair play. Now, in view of these facts, and in view of the action of our old time enemy, the democratic party, in selecting and placing in charge of this campaign Gen. Chas. M. Shelley and Col. Frank Pettus, both of Dallas county, and Col. Ed Booker and Mr. Wilson R. Brown, both of Perry county, to manage it, I say that it is a notice to the good people of Alabama that the election frauds of 1894 and 1896 will be again perpetrated, unless some positive action is taken to prevent the same.

When Alabama was redistricted the old Fourth Congressional district was set aside as being hopelessly republican. And it was then when Gen. Charles M. Shelly, Joe Johnston, the present governor of Alabama, and the balance of the members of the democratic campaign committee, with the exception of Mr. Smith and Mr. Lowe, inaugurated the system of ballot-box stuffing which has ever since prevailed in Alabama. When they paid Bill Stevens, Carlisle, Warner and a lot of other disreputable negroes to put forth a state ticket of negroes, you know as well as I do, that it was done for the purpose of confusing the illiterate voters, and for the further purpose of affording the democratic officials in the different counties a pretext to refuse to give the People's Party representation at the polls. Under the pretext that the officials were giving the opposition representation, they placed on the list of managers negroes whom they could control, claiming that they were republicans, and representing the Warner ticket. You know as well as I do that if the democrats control the majority of the next General Assembly, that you will be given a constitutional convention, which will mean the disfranchisement of seventy-five per cent of the illiterate voters of Alabama. If you have any doubt as to their intention, I refer you to the leading democratic papers in the state, and to the private expressions of the leading democrats.

I want to say to you that we have nominated a man for governo-, in whom we can place implicit confidence. And one upon whom we can rely that when the time comes for action he will not follow in the footsteps of Ruben F. Kolb. And I want to ask that you go to the polling places on the morning of the election, before the polls open, and have prepared and ready the men whom you want to act as your fixers and clerks, and see that you get them.

The time for talk has passed and the time for action has come, and if you will do this, and either have a fair election, or no election in your precinct, we will elect a majority of the members of the next legislature, and if we do, these election frauds will be a thing of the past.

I would like to have prepared a tally-sheet in every election precinct n Alabama with the name, if you can get it, of every voter who votes, and for whom he votes, if you can ascertain, and send me as soon after election as possible the original sheet, or copy of it, to these headquarters in Birmingham. Keep your tally-sheet, and after the polls close, if you have any reason to doubt the honesty and integrity of the returning officer, it would be well to appoint a committee to accompany him with the election returns, until they are placed in the hands of the proper officials.

When the returns are made make a copy of them and send me the result at once. If you will do this, and devote this much of your time to this work, I will promise that if, from the returns as you send them in, I am satisfied that this election has been carried [illegible] course of action which will result [illegible] the seating of your entire state ti[illegible] if it is elected, and the stopping [illegible] election frauds for all time to co[illegible] Alabama. I make you this pr[illegible] knowing full well what is invol[illegible] it for me, and knowing what th[illegible] have come to the conclu[illegible] own mind, that the late [illegible] Colonel Troy, of Montgo[illegible] right when, shortly before [illegible] he gave utterance to the w[illegible] would be better for the [illegible] bama to have a dead ma[illegible] polling place, than to [illegible] frauds perpetrated.

I would dislike very m[illegible] any of our people mo[illegible] but I have come to the [illegible] liberately, and after [illegible] and study, that if we [illegible] that we will not a[illegible] quarter of a century [illegible] tunity.

I am in possess[illegible] formation that I do[illegible] municating in a pub[illegible] know that good citizens [illegible] who are democrats [illegible] sick of Governor J[illegible] they want is half a chance [illegible] down. They know he [illegible] false claim of being [illegible] with the people. He [illegible] ful neither to the people [illegible] sonal friends. I am holding [illegible] reserve which will interest [illegible] Johnston at the proper [illegible] that I ask is for you to d[illegible] like men, and I will take [illegible] rest. Don't fail to do as I [illegible] quested. There will be no [illegible] any one if you will stand up [illegible] Governor Johnston is already [illegible] ing his own weakness.

Now let me urge upon you [illegible] portance of making some sac[illegible] this fight, if not for your own [illegible] the sake of your children and [illegible] future of Alabama. It is [illegible] for me to say that you [illegible] prosper so long as your affairs [illegible] trolled and dominated by the [illegible] ballot box stuffing conspirators [illegible] sole aim is to capture the [illegible] seal the pay thereof. They [illegible] come to you and claim that [illegible] actuated by a desire only to s[illegible] people and maintain white sup[illegible] which you as well as I knew [illegible]

HEADQUARTERS
STATE EXECUTIVE COM[illegible]

To the Populists of Alabama

Our people should be of good [illegible] all over the state. Never before [illegible] our enemies been so divided [illegible] never before have our people [illegible] united. We have never had the [illegible] port of the republicans so unanimous as we have today.

The negro democratic ticket [illegible] by Warner, operated by Bill S[illegible] is doing us no harm, and will [illegible] the negro democratic vote which [illegible] be bought, and which the d[illegible] have already bought. Bill S[illegible] and his crowd are to the rep[illegible] party what Judas was to his [illegible] and what Benedict Arnold was [illegible] cause. And they are so know[illegible] are treated accordingly.

Do not be misled by this st[illegible] trick of the black belt politicians [illegible] are working it. They are already [illegible] of the job, and it is proving a [illegible] erang upon them, as the people [illegible] and do recognize whose work [illegible] and while he has often fooled [illegible] people, the people will fool him [illegible] the first day of August, repudiate [illegible] him and his running mates at [illegible] polls and forever retire them [illegible] public life.

The great I am, Joseph F. [illegible] Johnston, in his speech at Tusc[illegible] on July 2, made the assertion that [illegible] ticket and this democratic ticket [illegible] were running mates. Simese twins [illegible] so-forth. And on the same day [illegible] state executive committee of the [illegible] publican party, passed a resolution [illegible] and said these negroes were put [illegible] the democrats. Now whom do [illegible] believe, the great I am, who was [illegible] ed to resign the chairmanship of [illegible] party, as you will see from the [illegible] pers, or the entire executive com[illegible] tee of the republicans. They say [illegible] that they have no opposition, as the [illegible] two chairmen, Messrs. Lowe and [illegible] Stevens, in the report they give [illegible] after the democratic meeting held [illegible] the 9th seem to have a greed for [illegible] hand, as to what they would say, [illegible] their opinions were published in the [illegible] same article by their democratic [illegible] pers.

Now, if the honest [illegible] of Alabama will only come [illegible] to the polls on election [illegible] and do their duty, and not [illegible] the responsibility, we will poll [illegible] votes than both of these tickets [illegible] tricksters combined. You should [illegible] member that this is a poor man's [illegible] and made by poor men, who have [illegible] rich and powerful corporations at their [illegible] backs, and if we do not flood them [illegible] with speakers and literature, it is [illegible] cause we are unable to pay them.

We will carry by increased [illegible] ties every county we carried at the [illegible] election, and will carry by good [illegible] large majorities more than nine [illegible] ten of the rest of the white counties. [illegible] And we will also carry several [illegible] belt counties, where we have a [illegible]

G. B. CROWE, Chairman

HEADQUARTERS
STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

To the Populists of Alabama:

Our people should be of good cheer all over the state. Never before our enemies been so divided, never before have our people been united. We have never had the port of the republicans so unanimously as we have today.

The negro democratic ticket, headed by Warner, operated by Bill Stevens is doing us no harm, and will only the negro democratic vote which be bought, and which the democrats have already bought. Bill Stevens and his crowd are to the republican party what Judas was to his master and what Benedict Arnold was to cause. And they are so known are treated accordingly.

Do not be misled by this statement trick of the black belt politicians are working it. They are already of the job, and it is proving a boomerang upon them, as the people and do recognize whose work it and while he has often fooled people, the people will fool him the first day of August, repudiate him and his running mates at polls and forever retire them from public life.

The great I am, Joseph Forney Johnston, in his speech at Tuscumbia on July 2, made the assertion that ticket and this democratic subterfuge were running mates Simese twins so forth. And on the same day state executive committee of the publican party, passed a resolution and said these negroes were paid the democrats. Now whom do believe, the great I am, who was ed to resign the chairmanship of party, as you will see from the pers, or the entire executive committee of the republicans. They claim that they have no opposition, and two chairmen, Messrs. Lowe Stevens, in the report they gave after the democratic meeting here the 9th seem to have a greed beforehand, as to what they would say. their opinions were published in same article by their democratic pers.

Now, if the honest voters of Alabama will only come to the polls on election and do their duty, and not shirk the responsibility, we will poll more votes than both of these tickets tricksters combined. You should member that this is a poor man's fight and made by poor men, who have rich and powerful corporations at their backs, and if we do not flood the with speakers and literature, it is cause we are unable to pay the bills.

We will carry by increased majorities every county we carried at the election, and will carry by good large majorities more than nine out ten of the rest of the white counties. And we will also carry several black belt counties, where we have alre

HON. G. B. DEANS

The People's Party Standard-Bearer.

His Convincing Arguments Are Unanswerable.

Read and Heed His Wise and Conservative Words.

My Fellow Citizens:

We are again face to face with momentous issues. They are not new questions, but they are the same old issues that have been fought over before in this state. And the basic principles of these issues have moved the contending forces that have arrayed class against class in every age and in every country from the dawn of civilization to the present time. On the one side, it is an aristocracy of office holders, representing a privileged class that respects no opinion or purpose antagonistic to its own narrow views and selfish ends. On the other side, we see the masses of the plain people, with charity for all and having no purpose beyond a desire to secure for themselves and their children the blessings of a government by the people, and a proper regard for the sovereign right of the individual guaranteed under our organic law. And if this wise provision, ordained by our fathers for the perpetuity of republican institutions, had been held inviolately and the guaranteed rights of the people had been respected, there would be no occasion for our presence here today.

Our forces are not organized for the specific purpose of making any radical change in our organic law. We come with no new or untried theories of government. We advocate no new doctrines and are promoting no novel measures. Nor are we a strange people in a strange land seeking to reap where we have not sown, or to rule where we have not served. We are to the manner born. Our fathers felled the forest and tilled the virgin soil of Alabama. They fought the battles of their country on land and sea. A rich heritage has been left us, and we as an honest and industrious people have endeavored to live at peace with our neighbors and to serve our country and our God. We have earned our bread by the sweat of our brow, and cheerfully and honestly have we paid taxes to maintain the state. It may be true that our skin has been tanned beneath the heat to which our labor in the fields exposed us, and that our arms are brawny from hard labor in the mine or the shop, but, thank God, our conscience has not been seared by a generation of misdeeds and our hearts have not been crusted over with a veneer of clannish conceit. We do not belong to the race of office holders of which the ideal democrat in Alabama today is so splendid a type. We are not of that class that has been a public charge upon the tax payers of this state for a quarter of a century. Nor has any of our kith or kin enjoyed the opportunity of trading on positions of public trust, or robbing the public treasury of funds wrung from the tax payers of this impoverished land. We are only the plain people. We make no pretensions to wealth or experience in state-craft, but we know our rights and we have determined that our grievances shall be heard. We come not with a blowing of trumpets. We have none of the gew gaw and tinsel of a privileged class of office holders and do not cultivate the fashion of pompous office seekers. We are the people who toil and sweat. We produce the cotton and the corn, the minerals and the lumber. We make war upon no industry or section, but we know that we have been treated with scurrilous contumely by those who have robbed us of our ballot and pilfered our scanty earnings. It is our business to protest against existing evils, and if possible guard against greater calamities which are sure to come if we do not destroy the agencies for evil that are at work against us. We shall continue to protest against these evils until by the grace of God and our own strong arm our cause is won.

There are practically only two political parties before the voters of Alabama in the present campaign. The one is the old enemy of civil liberty and human rights; an affete bourbonism masking under the name of democracy; the other is the people's party, steadfast and vigorous in battling for the cause of the people and civil liberty. Happily, the republican party has, with discretion and genuine patriotism for the present discarded national issues, and is nobly battling with us in the great struggle for a free ballot and an honest count.

We shall be prepared to meet every issue in the pending campaign. We ask no quarter and we will give none. We shall be aggressive from the start. We have no apologies to make for our cause or its advocates, and there is not a line in our platform th-t we are not

us as a state government and which demand treatment and solution at the hands of this convention, it seems to me the one of supreme importance is the condition of the right of suffrage in this State."

The democratic party has been in absolute control of the State government for twenty-four years, almost a quarter of a century. It cannot be denied that our election laws are defective, and that the punishment of fraud is difficult, if not impossible. I have heard it said that in some parts of this State irregularities have occurred in the holding of elections, and the managers of elections have not been as careful as they should have been in certifying the votes as actually cast." Further in this connection, Mr. Knox said:

"I submit it to the intelligent judgment of this convention that there is no higher duty resting upon us as democrats and citizens, than that which requires the enactment of such laws as will protect the sancity of the ballot in every portion of the State."

We indorse all that Mr. Knox has said. We regret that his party did not indorse his views and sustain him in his advanced position on a great question. But Mr. Knox was not supported by the convention of his party. Not a democratic paper in this State published his speech, although it was the only thoughtful speech worthy of public attraction that was made at the State convention of the democratic party.

That unstable journalistic enterprise that has wrecked so many unwary advocates of free silver who have been called to the confiding bosom of Gov. Johnston, did not find room to say much about Mr. Knox's speech. But Mr. Knox has wisely and kindly had his speech printed in pamphlet form, and, in this way, the populist party has been given the use of a valuable campaign document.

It is not surprising that the Democratic convention did not indorse Mr. Knox. That party has not for ten years indorsed honest methods and it does not propose to begin at this late day, and under present leadership. As now constituted, it is further removed from a proper appreciation of the sanctity of the ballot than it has ever been.

The democratic party in Alabama today stands for dishonesty and corruption in public office as it has never stood before. It has less brains and more rascality than ever before. Already the leaders have given out in a semi-official way that the majority for their ticket in the August election will be not less then eighty thousand. They could just as well have named one hundred and eighty thousand. No doubt some of their shrewd calculators have instructed their debauched henchmen to make the majority to suit themselves, and we all know that they will resort to any rascality to carry out their devilish ends. The Governor of Alabama, and every intelligent democratic leader in this State, knows that there are not over eighty thousand white democrats in Alabama today, and there has not been since 1892. An honest election held in this state in 1892 or any other year since that date, would have resulted in the defeat of the Democratic ticket by 50,000 to 75,000 votes. In fifteen or twenty counties of this state there has not been an honest election or any pretence to fairness or honesty in holding elections for the past twenty years. The ballot box has been polluted, the election managers debauched in the most shameful manner to the disgust of all honest people and the disgrace of the State. These things have been done with the knowledge and connivance of the democratic candidate for Governor. I make this charge advisedly and challenge the candidate or his representative to deny it.

It would require more space than I am allowed in this address to go into the details of the monstrous crimes that have been perpetrated in this State in the interest of a clan of outlaws calling themselves democrats, against the rights of honest, industrious citizens and the peace and dignity of the State. The whole State government as presently constituted was conceived in the inordinate selfishness of a few men, brought into existence by fraud, and has continued, and is today the most dangerous compact of mediocrity, demagoguery and rascality that ever disgraced this State. If the testimony at hand in support of these charges were published, it would shock the sensibilities of the whole country. I doubt if any man could successfully withstand the intemperate outburst of persecution that would surely follow his assuming responsibility for publishing the whole truth about the corruption and lawlessness in Alabama.

Credible and competent testimony has been furnished to show that the holding of an election in many precincts of the State is a miserable farce, and an appeal to the courts, or those charged with the administration of the law, has been without effect. And the same trustworthy testimony supports the proposition that the men who steal the votes and falsify registration lists and election returns, are not infrequently guilty of dishonesty in other official relations. Nor is evidence lacking to show that these corrupt practises have already tainted the judiciary of the State. These frauds have betious that we are almost daily reminded by some humiliating reference to our unhappy condition. Only a few days ago the civilized world paid tribute to the heroic conduct of a young Alabamian. The nation and the world were proud of the gallant naval lieutenant from Alabama, and the praise if Lieutennt Hobson wss sung in every land. But how humiliating to reflect upon the fact that if this young hero of the nation should return to his native county in Alabama and indentify himself with the Populist party, as his respected father and brother have been identified, he could not vote and have his vote counted as cast. I recall in this connection that Judge Hobson and his son, S. A. Hobson, testified that in Precinct No. 7, of Hale county, there were only 58 voters registered as officially stated by the Judge of Probate and the Registrar of that county, but the falsified returns of that beat gave a vote of 504, a steal of 446 votes in the interest ofl Democracy, so-called. Again, the same trustworthy witness testifies that in Beat No. 1 of said county, one of the managers refused to sign the returns because of gross irregularities and falsifications, and said manager appeared before the county board of supervisors at the request of witness, for the purpose of giving evidence, but the democratic board refused to entertain a motion of witness to set aside the illegal returns. From the same county we have testimony of a reputable witness to the fact that at Beat No. 1 of said county he remained at the polling place from the time the polls opened until they closed and that fifty-two voters and no more entered said polling place, but the official returns from that precinct showed a total of 368, a majority of 360 for the Democratic candidate. This witness was a brave confederate soldier, an honest, industrious and intelligent farmer, and this disgraceful and lawless deed was done within a stone's throw of his home and the grave of his father. This despicable work was done in the name of democracy, and in the interest of its leader at that time, Gov. Wm. C. Oates, whose great work for democracy and white supremacy was so ably seconded by that distinguished advocate of white supremacy, the Hon. William J. Stephens.

Testimony of like tenor from reputable white witnesses is on file showing the same character of lawlessness only more aggravated, in Dallas, Wilcox, Lowndes and many other counties, but I have not time to quote this testimony in detail, nor is it necessary. The forcible argument of the late Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee presumes a state of facts hardly less deplorable than we charge. And if further evidence were needed in support of the testimony we have, it is only necessary to point to the open confessions of such Democratic papers as the Selma Times, Anniston Hot Blast, Birmingham News, and others that could be cited.

Many democrats have the frankness to confess these crimes against the right of suffrage. They offer in extenuation of their guilt the theory that these irregularities and frauds are perpetrated and winked at in the interest of white supremacy. They claim that they are justified in doing these things to secure white supremacy, which is better for the white men and the black men. Further on I shall speak in no unmistakable terms touching the question of white supremacy, but at the outset I desire to challenge the hypothesis upon which this beautiful theory is founded. The alleged fact is a real falsehood upon which a dazzling generality has been built. A more plausible subterfuge was never concocted by designing men to mislead a confiding people. It arouses the suspicion of a lurking danger, and appeals to the most sensitive impulses of a people who are easily aroused on a question of racial prejudice and are ever ready to defend their state and their homes at any cost. But there is absolutely no warrant for this plausible pretext. Ballot box stuffing was not instituted for the purpose of establishing white supremacy in this State, and it has not continued for that specific purpose. Nearly a quarter of a century ago a large majority of the white people of this stte united in a common cause for economical, honest and stable government by the white people. Old line Whigs and Democrats of every faction, those who stood for the union and those who were against it, united in North Alabama and succeeded, without the aid or comfort of the ballot box stuffer, in getting controrl of this State under the name of the Democratic and Conservative party. But that was in no sense a Democratic victory as we count democratic victories nowadays. The democratic party in Alabama today does not stand for one thing that it stood for when Houston was elected Governor. I cannot dwell at length on the issues of that time; suffice it to say that it was a time of the people's triumph. But in passing from this phase of the question I quote briefly from that gallant confederate soldier and distinguished and fearless advocate of human rights, Hon. Wm. M. Lowe, whose untimely end was a great loss to the State and the most irreparable loss that the plain people of this State have sustained for a generation.

Mr. Lowe said:

"In 1875, at the time of the adoption of the present constitution, the State for sivty years. They were the simple and easy provisions under which our fathers held honest and fair elections. The democratic party of Alabama, having defeated the republicans were then in almost undisputed power throughout the whole State; these were the very laws under which they had regained power.

"What is the use of changing laws that had existed in the State from 1819; that had been tested by experience; that the people had grown accustomed and attached to? Why were these particular amendments intruded upon us at this particular time? Was it to enforce the solidity of the south? The south was already solid. Was it the army at the polls? There was not a soldier in the State.

"The men of the mountains showed signs of independence. They chafed under the party harness and in many cases broke away from the petty restraint of party discipline.

"The people were with the movement. They could not be out-voted; they must, therefore, be out counted. The next election must be held under conditions that insured success. For this purpose the election laws of our honest fathers must be abolished and a new system must be substituted. The elections must be held after the polls are closed and the result determined, not by voters, but by inspectors. Independent opposition must be punished by suppression under the election laws. There must be no new party organized in the State under any name or for any purpose. There must be but one party in Alabama and all contests must be decided inside its ornization. There must be no mutiny against the party, and no appeal to the people; and whoever refused to submit to this despotism must be denounced as a renegade in the canvas and counted as a public enemy."

But let us see is election frauds as practiced today are in the interest of white supremacy. In 1892 the apparent democratic majority as shown by the official returns, was 11,437. In the counties of Dallas, Wilcox, Lowndes and Hale the aggregate majority was 17,000. In those counties there are not exceeding 4,000 white voters and about 16,000 negro voters. Is that white supremacy? In 1894 the official democratic majority was 27,582, with an aggreggate majority of 19,500, from the above named counties. Tht was another instance of so-called white supremacy. Practically the same thing occurred in 1896. In the Fourth Congressional district, there are five white counties and one black belt county. In 1894 the fusion candidate of the republican and populist for Congress in that district carried every white county except one, which he lost by a majority of only 357. He went to the black belt county with an aggregate majority of 1,654, but that county with a white vote not exceeding 2,200 and a negro vote of about 6,000, gave a fictitious majority of about 6,000 for the democratic candidate. Here was a plain case of negro rule. The men who managed the election in Dallas county were guilty of perjury or this district was absolutely under negro control. The will of the majority of the white people was set aside by negro domination in one county. Practically the same thing occurred in 1896. This is not the only district in which negro rule obtains, but the record from this district furnishes a striking illustration of negro rule under democratic supervision. I have not the time to take up the records from other congressional districts.

Among other evils consequent upon negro rule in this State, I may refer briefly to the following: First, the negro has claimed and secured from the democratic party recognition that has made him a dangerous factor in Alabama politics.

One Wm. J. Stephens, to whom I have already referred, is one of the most troublesome and dangrous negroes in the whole State. He is the creature of democracy and is the social pet of the so-called free silver democracy. Bill Stephens was introduced to the public by the wing of democracy that is in control of the state government today. He has received moral and financial support from the Johnston and Shelley democracy, who are acting as his chief counselors today.

Four years ago Bill Stephens was introduced to an audience of white people in the town of Talladega, at the instance and under the special direction of the so-called free silver candidate for Congress, in the Fourth District, whose rascality inside his own party shocked the whole country and resulted in the decent elecment of his party forcing his retirement. Stephens was advertised as Hon. Wm. J. Stephens, and spoke in front of the Court House at Talladega, where, a few weeks before, old and highly respected citizens of that county had been treated with indignity by the Judge of Probate, when they asked for representation at their party in the polling places. Bill Stephens was never allowed to get in speaking distance of the populist party. He was ignored by the republican party, turned down by the gold bug democrats, but always finds comfort in the house of his first love. He is trouble between the whites and blacks it will be due solely to the evil work of designing men who call themselves democrats. The Johnston democracy has given prominence to the most dangerous class of negroes and through its connections and confidential agents has intruded itself with designing purpose, and under the garb of religion into the churches of the colored people. Already we have seen the dangerous tendency of this evil work. Social intercourse between the races has not come at the instance of negroes. They want no social contact, and ask only to be protected in their person and property, under the law, and to be let alone to work out their own salvation. But the designing white man will not let them alone. Into the schools and churches the agents of the present administration have gone to reach the negro and get his political support.

The only tendency in the direction of social equality that has been observed in Alabama is between the Democrats and the boodle negroes. The leading republicans of Alabama are doing all in their poyer to build up their party by adding to its respectability in eliminating the boodle and disreputable negroes and white men. The populists have always demanded that the negro be treated with justice, and encouraged in every effort to improve along lines of educational advancment.

The few thrifty settlers who came from the north to make their homes in the State, and aid in the industrial development, have acted with discretion. They will have no entangling political alliances or social intercourse with the negroes. They advise the negroes to be industrious and thrifty and to work out their own salvation.

The democratic party, and only the democratic party of today, has a well defined purpose to keep the negro in ignorance and vice. The more ignorant and venal the negro is the more easily he is controlled. The men who steal his vote belong to the same class that robs him of his earnings, and the great majority of those who prey alike upon the poor, ignorant white man, and black man, can be found among the organized democracy of today. This oligarchy of office-holders has no nobler impulse or higher aim than the perpetuation of its own power. It is ready at all times to appeal to the lowest prejujdices of the white men and the worst instincts of black men, and to rob both of their ballots, and their small earnings.

The race problem is still an unsettled issue in this country. It is a question that should claim the conscientious attention of the intelligent and upright men of both races, but it should be removed as far as possible from the nefarious influence of a political factio con- fessed of th races and

Next to the right of suffrage the public school question is of the highest importance. The greatest English statesman of modern times has said, that the public school is the corner stone of the republic. In every civilized country, the duty of the State to provide for the education of the children is now recognized as one of the highest obligations of government. There is today no safer guide to the strength, stability and prosperity of the people than the favorable showing of their educational facilities for the education of its people. The present status of the educational department of this state may be taken as a reflex of the condition of the people. Let us examine into the affairs of the educational department of our present state government, and then pass to a brief inquiry as to the condition of the people, and we shall be able to determine to what extent our theory is sustained.

A little while ago, the Birmingham Age-Herald, while temporarily relieved of the censorship of the State administration, gave evidence of capacity, independence and enterprise in the line of legitimate journalism. And among other good things which the Age-Herald said during that brief period of liberty, we find the following:

"The State of Alabama spends annually in the education of her youth, $663,359.00. If the State were to put that amount in any system of public work, or an individual were to invest that amount in a business enterprise, either would first and foremost provide for a competent supervision of the expenditure. Not a step would be taken without it. Upon it all action in connection with the expenditure would turn. The State expends each year, the sum named upon the schools, less by one-half the amount she should expend, but it is large enough to justify a demand by the public for honest, wise and skillful supervision of the educational interests of the state. School supervision in Alabama, state or county, has become a ridiculous farce, an expensive luxury, from which neither the schools nor the people derive any adequate benefits. This every day rule of business, every rule of common sense, is violated and set aside, and to a very considerable extent the state's expenditure is so much money wasted. The want of supervision lies at the base of the school troubles of the State. There are other troubles, but this is the chief one of the lot."

be used in condemnation of the incapacity and the lack of system that obtains in the most important and expensive department of our State government. But the language is not too strong. It is only surprising that so just a rebuke should be found in the administration organ. But it will hardly occur again, at least not during the present campaign. This frank opinion, gives us the inkling of what we would hear if there were absolute independence of the press in Alabama.

This mismanagement of our educational department is a disgrace to any civilization and an outrage upon the tax payers of this state. Our state affords the poorest school facilities of any state in the union and our percentage of illiterates is steadily increasing. Educational facilities, other than schools under municipal control, are worse today tnan they have been since 1868. The public school system of Alabama, outside the cities and towns, is not in as good condition as it was ten years ago. It is worse than it was twenty years ago.

The average expenditure per capita, for school purposes in the South Atlantic states was $1.15, in the South Central states $1.04, in Alabama 39 cent, Mississippi expends 89 cents per capita, Georgia expends 84 cents per capita, Alabama expends 39 cents per capita.

The average expenditure per pupil for the whole school year in Colorado is $38.19; in California, $32.51; in West Virginia, $12.72; in Kentucky, $10.18; in Louisiana, $10.90; in Alabama, $3.38; and the average in the United States in 1893-94 was $18.55, in Alabama, $3.58.

Kansas has seven members in Congress and school property of the value of $10,145,000. Nebraska has six congressmen and school property of the value of over $8,000,000; Washington has two Congressmen and school property of the value of $4,837,000. North Dakota has one Congressman and school property of the value of $1,936,000; Alabama has nine Congressmen and school property of the value of $1,375,000; less than Dakota, a new state with one Congressman.

The large percentage of negroes is the standing excuse of the Democracy for any short coming, maladministration, corruption in high places and every kind of lawlessness and outrage of which the people are made the unhappy victims. And this will be the same apology for the deplorable condition of our schools. But let lance for a moment at the comp fig- ures from Alabama, Geor sippi and Florida. Eac states has a large percent groes. In Georgia the per negroes to the population Florida 42, in Alabama 58. L pare Mississippi, where negr excess of white population, bama where the whites are jority. The total assessed in Mississippi is $116,722,279 ita assessed valuation, $1 bama the assessed valuation is $258,979,575; per capita assessed valuation, $171.17.

Mississippi spends on her public schools, $1.02 per capita. Alabama spends sixty cents per capita. Total school revenues in Mississippi amount to $1,272,500; total school revenues in Alabama amount to $633,359. Average number of day schools in session in Mississippi, 105.4; average number in Alabama, 69.2.

These comparative tables could be extended at great length and into the ramifications of the whole educational and industrial question. And the further we go the more startling the figures and the greater our humiliation.

But not even the figures printed give a true index to the rottenness of ou public school system, or rather lack of system. The funds expen are not honestly disbursed. A la per cent of the money expended our educational department goes the pockets of petty thieves. The average number of day schools open is not so large as indicated in the reports of the superintendent of education. In certain localities schools are not open two days in the year, but funds are collected on the basis of the average school year. These funds go into the pockets of cross roads merchants and other petty despots who and debauch in the name of den and count it no crime to stea the poor whites and negroes, ballot which is the last and on dence of their manhood, and t the scanty allowance for the of their children. If half were told of the su wrongs and injustic these poor people o the black belt, your hearts would moved to pity, your righteous indignation would be aroused, and mank would for a while turn from t tragic scenes in the Gem of the Antilles and listen to the sad story of wrongs and distress from that portion of Alabama, where the enemies of republican institutions and human rights are supreme, the sunlight of prosperity has never dawned, and individual liberty is a dream.

ER OF RESIGNATION FROM CAPT. J. F. JOHNSTON.

NTGOMERY, ALA., June 15, 1876.

ntlemen—You are aware of the ous assaults that have been made me by some of our political ad- es in connection with the publi- f a letter written by myself to Pelham. Whilst I am con- f the purity of my motives, at the letter itself, to say noth- the surrounding facts, is suffi- to show the injustice of the as- still I am unwilling that our should be called upon to explain fend any act of mine, however ly and maliciously misconstrued, possible loss of a single vote. too deeply interested, as a citi- zen of Ala- ua, in the success of the democratic party, to hesitate in making any reasonable sacrifice to promote its triumph.

For these reasons I resign my posi- tion as a member of your committee, and respectfully request your accept- ance of the same.

The confidence that the democratic party has heretofore reposed in me, and the unanimous action of the recent state convention in re-electing me a member of your committee, with full knowledge of all the facts upon which the assaults were made, command my sincerest gratitude.

I desire to add that I shall, in the future as in the past, most cheerfully do all that lies in my power to secure the success of our party, and, through it, to continue to the people of Alabama the blessings of good government.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOS. F. JOHNSTON.

To the State Executive Committee of the Democratic and Conservative Party.

(Montgomery Evening Bulletin, June 16, 1876.)

In Justice to Capt. Joseph F. John- ston, we copy his letter of resignation s Chairman of the state democratic xecutive committee. As this has been e first and only public utterance of in Johnston in reference to the t matter of his published letter ham, proposing to secure a $10,- ppropriation from congress by a on of fees with him for the laud- bject of rebuilding the Episcopal h at Selma, destroyed by Wil raiders, we know it will be read interest. We think it would have b in b tter taste in Captain John- st and given better satisfaction to hiarty friends and the public, had heken more pains to explain the cimstances and motives under wh he acted in the premises than to sign as a reason for his resigna- tion "the malicious assaults which have been made upon me [him] by some of our political adversaries." We belive that most of the "assaults" refered to came from the editor of the Bulletin, who had made every effort in his power to do Captain Johnston jusin the letter, without ever once consciously intending to impugn the personal motive or character of the chairman of the democratic executive committee. The fact is, at that time we did not even know Captain Johnston except by reputation from his official relations to the democracy, and he could have had no reason in the world for making "malicious assaults" upon him. We dealt with him only as a public man, as we had a right to do, and pointed out the obvious inconsistency between the conduct of the democracy in pursuing its political opponents and ignoring a plain and indefensible case, quite similar, when brought home to their own organization. And let us assure Captain Johnston, once for all, that these miscalled "malicious assaults" were never once instigated by "some of our political adversaries," as he is pleased to term us, but by democrats who regarded his re-election to, and acceptance of, the position of chairman of the democratic executive committee, under such circumstances, as highly injudicious and calculated to injure their party.

Nothing would have seemed wiser, after that letter had been published, and while the democratic convention was in session at Montgomery, than for Captain Johnston to have declined a re-election and asked the election of some other person; and if the state committee had then seconded that resolution by electing a new chairman, as was naturally expected of them under the facts of the case, no further comment would have been called for in regard to the matter. But both Captain Johnston and the committee, to the surprise of their party friends, saw proper to pursue a contrary course, and neither he nor they have any right to complain of the criticism which they have brought upon themselves by taking so valuable a position.

The Alabama State Journal says: "Mr. Jos. F. Johnston, chairman of the democratic state executive committee has been charged with attempting to bribe Congressman Pelham, of this state."

The question with us is, did Pelham accept the offer? If so, then there may be some truth in the charge; but if he did not accept it, we cannot believe that any was offered, for it would be a moral impossibility for Pelham to refuse six and a quarter cents, we care not however dishonest the proposition that offered it.—Rome (Ga.) Courier.

The question with the people of Alabama is, why does Mr. Johnston remain silent in the face of the crushing evidence presented against him. Mr. Pelham is not on trial; Mr. Johnston is. The democratic party Johnston one of ry appropriate. Montgomery State Journal, June 7, 1876.

When the chairman of the democratic state executive committee of Alabama offered to divide fees with a member of congress, to induce the latter to support a certain measure, he did that which the democratic party has denounced as infamous, dishonorable and corrupt in the last degree. If such an act is infamous when perpetrated by a republican, is it not equally infamous when committed by a democrat? Does the democratic party of Alabama wish to be placed on record as condoning that in one of its own members which it would punish with disgrace and shame in a republican? If it does not, why was Mr. Joseph F. Johnston made the leader of their party in Alabama? Is there any sincerity in the professions of the Alabama democracy? The facts speak for themselves, and in thunder tones against their assumption of virtue and honesty, and the people look on in utter amazement.—Montgomery State Journal, June 4, 1876.

The democratic party is rich in expedients. In Alabama we have a curious exhibition of the respect of democracy or public opinion; and the answer for its conduct is quite characteristic of that party. A few days ago Congressman Haralson exposed a letter written by Mr. Joseph F. Johnston, chairman of the democratic state executive committee, to Mr. Chales Pelham, when the latter was a member of congress. Mr. Johnston, proposed to Mr. Pelham, that if the latter would urge the passage of a bill appropriating fifteen thousand dollars from the national treasury, he would divide fees with Pelham, as attorney for the parties asking the appropriation. The democratic definition of such propositions has heretofore been bribery and corruption. Had the two parties to the proposition been reversed, the democracy would have demanded that the proposer be disgraced, and driven into utter shame, and, perhaps, to prison. As Mr. Johnston is a democrat, however, he is honored with the leadership of his party almost at the same former offered a bribe, the latter accepted one. In law and morals is there any difference between them? Has it not been the cry of the democratic leaders constantly, that he who offers a bribe is as culpable as he who receives it?—Montgomery State Journal, June 7, 1876.

THE LAW ON THIS SUBJECT.

The code of Alabama shows the following definition of the crime and penalty, viz:

"Any person who corruptly offers, promises, or gives to any executive, legislative, or judicial officer, after his election or appointment, either before or after he has been qualified, any gift, gratuity or thing of value with intent to influence his act, vote, opinion, decision or judgment on any cause, matter or proceeding which may be then pending or which may be by law brought before him in his official capacity, shall be fined $—— or imprisoned in the penitentiary, or sentenced to hard labor for county, for not less than two, nor more than ten years." And the laws of the state further provide that a conviction for a violation of the statute quoted, forever disqualifies the convict as a voter or officeholder in Alabama, unless such right should be restored to him by pardon.

To the People of Alabama.

On Monday, the first day of August next, an election will be held throughout the state, by which many questions will be settled. But over and above them all in importance to you is whether or not a constitutional convention is to be called, by which more than one-half of the men now voting will be disfranchised, and in future many, because of age or move into the state, will not be allowed to vote. In the states of Mississippi, Louisiana and South Carolina new constitutions have been adopted. The constitutions of Mississippi and South Carolina provide that persons over 21 years of age may register at any time before a given date, who can read the constitution of the state, or construe it intelligently when read to them, and may continue to vote at all subsequent elections without again registering after the date fixed for the first registration. Only persons who can write and read the constitution and pay taxes on $300 worth of property can register to vote. They must also pay all poll taxes due at least six months before any election at which they desire to vote. The constitution of Louisiana is not before us, but we understand it makes much greater restrictions than those of Mississippi and South Carolina. It is the purpose of the democratic party, if it can in the coming election elect or steal in enough members of the house and senate, to pass a law calling a convention, in which they will adopt a constitution disfranchising more than half of the persons now allowed to vote; and in future thousands of young men, white as well as black, will be prevented from voting. The constitution the democracy will adopt will, beyond doubt, contain such provisions that the democratic machine can fraudulently register and vote any one they desire to vote, and disfranchise those they do not desire to have vote. And men who will not vote the democratic ticket, though they may be fully qualified, can be prevented from registering or voting.

The purpose of the democratic party to call a constitutional convention in this state is shown beyond question by the following facts: 1st. By the celebrated thirteenth plank, in their state platform of 1890 or 1892, wherein they loid down the proposition that only the virtuous and intelligent should have the right to vote in the state of Alabama. This plank was written by Joseph F. Johnston, your present governor, who still favors it, and has been and is still doing all in his power to disfranchise the people of this state, excepting only such as he and his ilk desire to have vote for them, their plans and schemes.

Since the election was stolen from the people by the democracy in 1892, the election laws have been changed no less than three times, each change being designed, as the new statutes clearly show, to render it easier, as well as safer, to perpetrate frauds upon the voters of this state and to conceal them after they had been perpetrated.

A bill was passed by the house of representatives, in 1896, providing for a constitutional convention and was only defeated in the senate by the vote of one republican senator, ten populist senators, and either four or five democratic senators. But for the votes of the populists and one republican this bill would have passed and we would now have upon us a constitution worse perhaps than those of Mississippi, South Carolina or Louisiana.

We all know that nearly every democratic newspaper and speaker in the their purpose to mislead and deceive, and when it is too late you will find out their real intention, which is disfranchisement for the poor men, white and black, who will not vote with them. They cannot disfranchise the black man only, because the constitution of the United States provides that no state shall deprive any citizen of his right to vote on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude. Hence they cannot make a rule or law that will apply merely to the uneducated or poor man, whether he be white or black. With an educational and property qualification for voters, what will be the effect on the workers for wages—on skilled work in the shops and mines, or on the farms? Such men cannot afford to buy lands and homes, only that they may be entitled to vote, for they may at any time lose their places and have to move away to get another. And unless you do own lands worth so much, they can and will say you shall not vote.

Many of the farmers in Alabama who now rent lands would be denied the right to vote, and of those who own farms, how many could give to their sons lands or property enough to entitle them to vote when they become of age? Look around you and see how many this would disfranchise! And those who are fortunate enough to preserve to your sons this highest and most vital privilege of an American citizen, are you willing, and will you by any act or vote of yours help to disfranchise the sons of your neighbors and friends who cannot give their sons enough property to entitle them to vote? We cannot believe you will aid in the perpetuation of any such wrong and injustice. And if you do, mark the prediction! It will surely come back on you and yours sooner or later, in sorrow and bitterness!! If you cannot give your sons enough to entitle them to vote when 21 years of age, then they must struggle along and try to lay by small sums, until they have enough to entitle them to this right. This may take years, and any misfortune may sweep away their savings and disfranchise or prevent them ever getting property enough to make them legal voters. And then the democratic officials who pass on the value of property can readily find it is not worth enough for the men to vote on, who vote against them.

The ballot-box is the place to protect yourselves. Don't, under any conditions vote for any democratic candidate for state senator or representative. And if any poor but honest democratic voter should do so, let him not be satisfied to have such candidates tell him "they are not in favor of a constitutional convention;" make them make a written affidavit that they will not, if elected, under any circumstances or conditions, vote, either directly or indirectly, for a constitutional convention!

Any candidate who is honestly opposed to such a convention will not object to making the written affidavit; and if he will not, you ought not to trust him.

We have but few speakers or newspapers, and have adopted this means of reaching you, and urging you to awaken to the danger we are all in.

Citizens of Alabama, arouse yourselves!!! Your rights and your liberties are in the greatest peril ever known!!! The Bourbon oligarchy of Alabama, which is disguised under the name of the Democratic party, is attempting to destroy manhood suffrage in Alabama!!! The deadly blow is aimed at you and yours! Take your places in the lines at the polls on the first day of August as you would march into battle for your country! and let the men and the party which would humiliate you into the dust, and bring you to the level of serfs, be crushed and sent into inglorious ruin and defeat under your battle cry of popular liberty and suffrage, of equal rights to all and special privileges to none!!

G. B. CROWE,
Chairman.

IMPORTANT NOTES

From Headquarters--Pointed Suggestions to Voters.

To the Populists of the Seventh Judicial Circuit:

I would like to advise you to keep your eyes open as to the candidacy of one M. D. Ivey. I am satisfied, from the evidence in my possession, that he is a paid tool of the democratic party to come before us posing as an independent populist candidate in that judicial circuit. His sole aim and purpose is to do all he can to defeat Mr. Parsons, the republican nominee, whom I would advise you all to support. Mr. Parsons is by far the best man for us to elect in that circuit.

Respectfully yours, etc.,

G. B. CROWE,
Chairman State Executive Committee.

Below we reproduce copy of a circular, signed by William T. Coggins, chairman of the populist executive Golsom, as we think Col. Golsom is one of the best populists in our ranks, and eminently worthy of your support. Yours respectfully,

G. B. CROWE,
Chairman State Executive Committee.

GADSDEN, ALA., July 18, 1898.

My Dear Sir—I beg your careful attention to the importance of the work to be done on the day of the election. It is of vital importance that our markers understand that it is to the interest of every voter who opposes organized democracy to vote for our candidate, Col. H. R. Golson, for Chancellor, and that this fact be brought to the attention of the voter. The republican party has, as a party, endorsed his candidacy. Your influence with the people of your beat will further insure the election of our candidate. Make such suggestions to the populist and republican markers as will keep them watching for the frauds and undue influence that is sure to be attempted by the opposition. I am aware that this statement will be denied, but we have positive and sworn evidence that the opposition candidate has been guilty of debauching the ballot box in his own county. [See the contest of Aldrich vs. Plowman before the house committee on elections.]

There are grave charges of a personal nature against the opposition candidate that can be substantiated by at least two prominent ministers, and many democrats, among whom are some of the most prominent members of the bar, but Colonel Golson's high moral and professional character and the dignity of the office to which he aspires prevents me from entering into the details of these charges, which are, however, sufficiently well known to the people of Calhoun and adjoining counties to arouse, even within the ranks of the democratic party, serious doubts and misgivings.

We have only to remain active and diligent to win by a majority that will astonish the natives.

WILLIAM T. COGGIN,
Chairman Populist Executive Committee Northeastern Chancery Division.

WAS THIS A RESONABLE FEE?

During the April campaign for nominations friends of Mr. Lane called attention to a trade Mr. Stiles made with Mr. Chambers to copy and rebind an old map for the county that had been damaged by long use, wherein Mr. Stiles exacted 33⅓ per cent to give Mr. Chambers the job. After the work was done they presented a bill to the commissioners for over $2,200. Commissioner Lacey objected to the bill. Commissioner Morrow took the bill back to Judge Porter, who reduced it to $1,800, which was allowed. Judge Porter made an effort at explanation, in which he said the law governing the case provides a "reasonable" fee shall be allowed by the commissioners. Then Judge Porter goes on to try to make the people believe he was entitled to 15 cents per 100 words and 5 cents for each lot. The judge is too good a lawyer to think any such thing. This is the fee allowed in recording and which had already been paid by the owners of the property. If the law had fixed the fee, how could it have been disallowed by the commissioners? If a stipulated fee is allowed why should the law say a "reasonable fee?" Mr. Stiles speculated on the county whereby his father-in-law made $600, and in which he tried to make $750. If he had been looking after the interest of the county he would have sought to have the work done at a "reasonable fee," and not tried to get the most out of the commissioners he could.

Under his contract he was getting into the family coffers 33⅓ per cent of all he could get for the work done.

Mr. Chambers did the work in four months. Is it a reasonable fee to charge the county $600 to let a contract for one man to work four months?

A reasonable fee would have been $100 per month, saving the county $1,400.

HAS IT BEEN CREATED ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY?

The Independent Citizen, as a public journal, is curious to know whether the office of probate judge of Jefferson was created for the members of one family? Judge Porter has held the office for eighteen years; Judge Morrow for a long term of years, and now the son-in-law of Judge Porter, Mr. Stiles, wants to come in for a long time. Uncle first, father-in-law next, and now the son-in-law. It looks to a fellow up a tree that the office has been created especially for this family.

POLITICS is a great game and the "Great I am" is the greatest gamester of them all. Of all the colonels, captains, lieutenants, paymasters, etc., appointed by him in Alabama's quota of volunteer soldiers, not a one is any-was a pronounced goldbug, the present chairman is a pronounced advocate of free silver. The present state administration has alienated practically all the men of ability who formerly led the battles of Democracy when it needed men of brains and courage. If it has any merit in the Democracy of Alabama today, it will be found in the Populistic principles that it claims to advocate. Take away the Populists and Governor Johnston could not have been elected. But his party is faithful to neither principles nor men. It is governed by a bitter enemy of the South from Maine, who had nothing to recommend him but his money, against a native of Georgia, the son of a Confederate soldier, who was making himself a power among the people as an advocate of free silver, while Governor Johnston was a president of a national bank and trading on Wall street. Governor Johnston and his faction have deserted the colors under which they enlisted years ago, and we should not trust them as guerillas in politics. If they want our support let them show their colors and take the oath of allegiance to the cause for which they claim to stand.

Men of Alabama, the issue is before you. It is for you to determine what you will do. It is in your power to restore this State to the rightful rule of the people. You can destroy your despotic masters if you will only act with discretion and courage. With the success of the people's movement we will overthrow the conspiracy against the rights and liberties of the people, and restore to them their birthright—the electoral franchise, of which they have been so long deprived. We will also give to the people an educational system which will secure to every child an opportunity to acquire an education and thus enable all the people intelligently to participate in making a new constitution whenever the necessity for one arises.

You are now discouraged and disheartened, but you should not forget that no great cause was ever won without patience and fortitude on the part of its advocates. The cause of Christianity, as well as the cause of human liberty, has demanded great sacrifices. We can never win the fight in which we are engaged without sacrifice. Are you willing to make these sacrifices for your wives, and your children, for your own peace and happiness? In the interest of your State and the cause of humanity, I appeal to you. Not for myself, but for the cause I represent. I am only one among many, selected as an humble agent for the whole people. You have a great State, rich in natural resources and a splendid climate. You are a brave, industrious and a liberty loving people. For the love of your country and your God, for the sake of your wives and children, I appeal to your to stand up like men. Be true to yourselves and your country. Rally to the support of those who are battling for the cause of human liberty. Be faithful to your homes and your country. Act well your part as good men and true, and God in his wisdom and goodness will show us the way.

ONE indiscreet young man who was full of distilled corn was overheard to remark at the recent conference of the so-called democratic party that his county was "all right, but what he didn't like about the d—n thing a majority of the members present was not as happy as they might have been. That the pops were still very troublesome and it looked like they were becoming more numerous. When a fellow is full of juice and disgust, he generally spits out his honest convictions.

IT is surprising with what tenacity some people will hold on to the public teat. The probate judgeship of Jefferson county seems to be one office where the family tradition for holding office is manifestly hereditary. For some thirty-two years it has been in the family and now the son-in-law wants to wind up the century by drawing on the county for the next six years. Ain't it about time that some other fellow was given a showing to tap the till of the county?

CONGRESSMAN HOWARD and Mr. Deans reached the city last night from a speaking tour through the Seventh congressional district. Chronic Dyspepsia Cured.

AFTER suffering for nearly thirty years from dyspepsia, Mrs. H. E. Dugdale, wife of a prominent business man of Warsaw, N. Y., writes: "For 28 years, I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and a weak stomach. The lightest food produced distress, causing severe pain and the formation of gas. No matter how careful of my diet I suffered agonizing pain after eating. I was treated by many physicians and tried numerous remedies without permanent help. Two years ago I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and Nervine. Within a week I commenced improving, and persisting in the treatment I was soon able to eat what I liked, with no evil effects. I keep them at hand and a single dose dispels any old symptoms."

OUR ARMY PUTS ON ITS NEW UNIFORM.

IDEAL SUITS HAVE BEEN PROVIDED FOR A TROPICAL CAMPAIGN.

Despatches from Cuba tell how the soldiers of our army, burdened with hot flannel uniforms and heavy outfits, are throwing away everything they can on the march, even their coats. In the terrible heat every ounce of weight adds to discomfort while marching, and, regardless of the future, men are casting aside blankets, extra clothing, tin plates and other articles in their Merriam kits, caring only to lighten their burdens.

Men in regular marching order who have been sent to Cuba, volunteers as well as regulars, carry in all nearly sixty pounds, including their rifles, enough to stagger a man in a cool climate. This casting away of every superfluous article is not a new practice, for it was done by tens of thousands of men in the Civil War and has been done by soldiers in almost all other wars.

Recognizing the unfitness of the regulation uniforms for the tropics, the Government is having 40,000 cotton drilling and duck uniforms made, which will greatly add to the comfort and general appearance of the soldiers. Already 4000 of these suits have been completed and shipped to Tampa to be forwarded to Cuba for General Shafter's command.

The new campaign uniform for infantry is made of canvas duck or drill. Its distinguishing feature is a Norfolk jacket, or blouse effect with a box plait down the back. There are four pockets in the front and five buttons. The two upper pockets are faced with blue cloth, the epaulet straps, cuffs and collars being of the same material and color.

The uniform is made with felled seams. Brown canvas leggings somewhat darker than the uniform are used. A web cartridge belt, blue woolen blanket, haversack to contain tin plate, knife, fork and spoon and rations, a water bottle and tin cup complete the equipment. No knapsack is used.

The trimmings of the cavalry uniform are yellow and of the artillery red.

Regulation army uniforms now in use are lined and weigh about eight pounds, being better suited for use in the Arctic regions than in a climate where the sun's rays are as hot as the blasts from a furnace. The lining carefully sewed inside the coats makes them doubly warm, and officers do not wonder that the men under them cast the garments aside in disgust.

Different from any uniform ever before worn by any United States troops are the new styles adopted, and they are as attractive looking as they are durable. The cloths used in the suits for the Cuban campaign are what are known to the trade as drill weave and duck. Housewives would call the first named material cotton drilling.

The cloth is known as kahke in India, where it comes from, and is like brown linen. Uniforms of this cloth cost about $25.

In addition to the canvas and drill uniforms, which will be sent to the camps in the South as well as to Cuba, the Government is providing a blue flannel suit, unlined, which weighs only a few ounces more than three pounds.

Clothing the army and navy is one of the most important problems presented to the War and Navy Departments for solution. The quartermaster-general performs the task for the army and the paymaster-general for the navy. In time of peace the duty involves considerable labor. In time of war, and especially at the beginning of hostilities, when the public are crying for a million men to be enlisted, clothed and put at the front in a minute, the task assumes the proportions of a mountain in a fog.

Take the quartermaster-general, for instance. It is his duty to see that the big army which the President has called to give battle to the Spanish is clothed at the very earliest possible moment. His usual sources of supply are quickly exhausted. Others must be found. The clothing must be made. The first thing the quartermaster-general does is to ascertain, as nearly as possible, the exact number of suits required, the kind of suits, the number of shoes and underclothing, also hats. The exact kind is then specified in detail, and bids for the whole or part of the clothing needed. Accompanying every bid is a check to guarantee that the terms of the contract will be carried out to the letter.

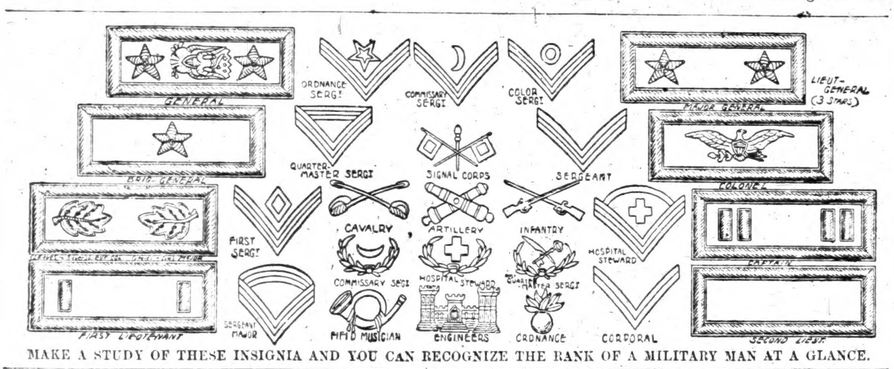
These bids are submitted, together with samples of the goods required. The bids are carefully examined and compared and the lowest bidder (the quality of goods being satisfactory) gets the contract. The goods contracted for must be ready on time and delivered to the Government. When they are delivered they are inspected by Government officials and, if all right, accepted. Then they are forwarded to the store house of the army at Philadelphia to await orders.

When a regiment is recruited and sworn into the United States service, the captain of each company makes out a requisition for the number of uniforms needed and forwards the requisition to the quartermaster of the regiment. The colonel approves of the requisition, and then it is forwarded to the brigade quartermaster, who, if he has not the clothes required on hand, makes a requisition on the corps quartermaster. The latter, when uniforms are needed, makes a requisition on the quartermaster-general, who draws the supplies needed from the depot at Philadelphia.

Upon the delivery of the clothing to the regimental quartermaster, the captains of the several companies are notified. The captains march their men to headquarters and there they receive the clothing apportioned to them and for which the captain gives a receipt to the regimental quartermaster, who keeps it for his voucher. The same formula for the issuing of clothing is followed in the navy.

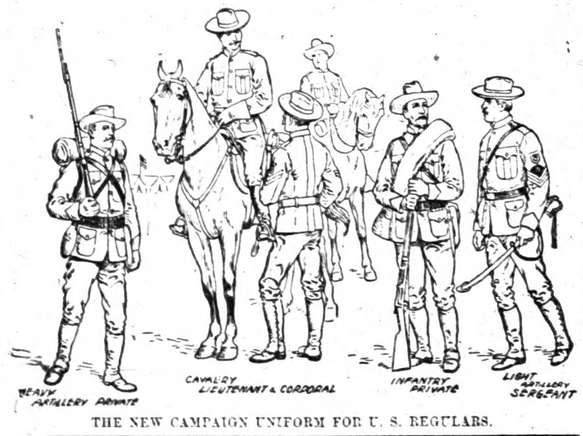
The army and navy uniforms are made in nearly every large city of the Union, and the cost of those for the privates is about $5, and those for men before the mast is about $8 per man. The officers' uniforms range in price from $50 to $75. A bullet will, however, pierce the one as quickly as the other. The uniform of the general officers of the army is a double-breasted blouse of dark blue cloth or serge, with four outside patch pockets with flaps, a rolling collar, with two rows of buttons, grouped according to rank, of the same kind as those worn on the dress coat. For all other officers a single-breasted blouse is worn, of dark blue cloth or serge, with four outside pockets with flaps, falling collar, with five buttons in front of the same kind as those worn on the dress coat. The skirt of the dress coat extends from one-third to one-half the distance from the hip joint to the knee.

Quite as important as the clothes are the shoes. For Cuban service the men will wear dark brown canvas clothes, but the shoes will be the same as worn at home. They are common brogans, these shoes, stout of upper and mighty of sole and heel. In fact, the army shoe is not a thing of beauty, but on the march it is a joy forever, as every veteran knows. They are made of cowhide, and, if possible, of the hide of a very tough cow at that. They are exceedingly broad of sole and heel, and are made with the double view of securing durability and comfort.



MAKE A STUDY OF THESE INSIGNIA AND YOU CAN RECOGNIZE THE RANK OF A MILITARY MAN AT A GLANCE.

NEW U. S. ARMY UNIFORM—LIGHT AND HEAVY MARCHING ORDER.



THE NEW CAMPAIGN UNIFORM FOR U. S. REGULARS.

Suits of these materials weigh less than half as much as the uniforms now in use, and because of their looser weave are much cooler. The cotton drill uniforms, which are of a light buff color, weigh just two pounds and fourteen ounces, while the duck, which are light reddish tan, weigh four ounces more.

No colors could be found better adapted for service in a country where the men are exposed to dust and dirt in all kinds of weather, and even after a hard, long campaign it is expected the uniforms will still present a fairly respectable appearance.

Record in Clothes Making.

Thomas Kitson, employed in one of the cloth mills of Pennsylvania, had six sheep sheared at 6.30 o'clock one morning recently. The wool was then sorted, scoured, dried, carded, spun, woven into cloth and the cloth was given to the tailors and made up into a suit of clothes which were given to Mr. Kitson at 12.34 o'clock, or six hours and four minutes from the time of shearing. The best previous record was about eight hours.

HE WROTE "DIXIE."

Dan Emmett Lives to See the North and South Sing His Famous Song Together.

Perhaps very few people know that Dan Emmett, who wrote "Dixie," is still living.

His home is in Mount Vernon, Ohio, where he was born and where he hopes to end his days. The old man is a picturesque figure on the streets of the town. In his prime he was one of the mid-century dandies of New York City, but now, with calm indifference to the conventional, he usually carries a long staff and wears his coat fastened in at the waist by a bit of rope.

His home is a little cottage on the edge of the town, where he lives entirely alone. On almost any warm afternoon he can be found seated before his door reading, but he is ready enough to talk with the chance visitor, whose curiosity to meet the composer of one of the national songs of America has brought him out from town.

It was this curiosity that took me to the cottage. The old composer was seated in the shade by his house with a book open before him. As I went up the path I said, for I had some doubt in my own mind:

"Are you Dan Emmett, who wrote 'Dixie'?"

"Well, I have heard of the fellow; sit down," and he motioned to the steps.

"Won't you tell me how the song was written?"

"Like most everything else I ever did, because it had to be done. One Saturday night, in 1859, as I was leaving Bryant's Theatre, where I was playing, 'Bryant called after me, 'I want a walk-round for Monday, Dan.'

The next day it rained and I stayed indoors. At first when I went at the song I couldn't get anything. But a line, 'I wish I was in Dixie,' kept repeating itself in my mind, and I finally took it for my start. The rest wasn't long in coming. And that's the story of how 'Dixie' was written.

"It made a hit at once, and before the end of the week everybody in New York was whistling it. Then the South took it up and claimed it for its own. I sold the copyright for $500, which was all I ever made from it. I'll show you my first copy." He went into the house and returned in a moment with a yellow, worn-looking manuscript in his hand.

"That's 'Dixie,'" he said. "I am going to give it to some historical society in the South one of these days, for, though I was born here in Ohio, I count myself a Southerner, as my father was a Virginian."

Half a century ago Emmett was a famous minstrel. Those were the balmy days of burnt cork art, when Bryant's Theatre on lower Broadway was one of the most popular resorts in New York City. Emmett was born in 1815, at Mount Vernon. He began life as a printer, but soon abandoned his trade to join the band of a circus company. He was not long in discovering that he could compose songs of the kind in use by clowns. One of the finest of these was "Old Dan Tucker," of pleasant if inebriate memory. Its success was so great that Emmett followed it with many others.

Finally he took to impersonations, singing his own songs in the ring, while he accompanied himself on the banjo. He made a specialty of old men, and blackened his face and donned a wig of kinky white hair. He became such a favorite with the patrons of the circus in the South and West that at last, partly by chance and partly through intention, he invaded the stage himself.

This was some time in 1842, at the old Chatham Theatre in New York city, when, with two companions, he gave a mixed performance, made up largely of songs and dances typical of slave life and character. The little troupe was billed as the "Virginia Minstrels," and their popularity with the public was instantaneous.

THE REALM OF FASHION.

Graceful Morning Gown.

Blue and white striped percale makes this pretty and graceful morning gown, embroidered edging and insertion decorating the collar and wrists. The stylish adjustment is made over fitted lining fronts that reach to the waist line only. The full fronts are gathered at the neck edges at each side of the centre-front and arranged over the lining fronts. The closing is effected at the centre with buttons and buttonholes and the fulness at the waist is held in position by a girdle of blue taffeta ribbon that is inserted at the under-arm seams and carried forward to the centre, finishing with stylish bow and long ends. Under-arm gores give to the gown a smooth effect over the hips, the back being fitted with curved side and centre back seams. The wattean is closely gathered at the neck and below this point, falls in graceful fulness to the lower edge of the skirt, all seams being sprung below the waist to give the required fulness. A neat rolling collar completes the neck.

The one-seamed sleeves are but moderately full and are gathered at the top and again at the wrists where they are confined by a band of insertion finished with a frill of embroidery. The mode is adapted to cotton or wash fabrics or to soft woolen, flannel, challies, etc.

To make this gown for a lady in the medium size will require nine yards of forty-four-inch material.

An Attractive Shirt Waist.

Roman striped foulard makes the attractive May Manton shirt waist shown in the large engraving, the fronts of which are cut bias and arranged so as to meet in V shape under the straight, narrow box plait in the center. The yoke presented the ever-popular double points in back, reaching further forward on the shoulders, a feature that marks the '98 styles. The fronts are gathered at the top onto the straight yoke edges, the gathers at the waist being arranged to give a modified pouch effect. The under or lining portion of the yoke is cut with a straight back edge, onto which the gathers are arranged, the pointed yoke being then laid over and stitched firmly down on its edges, thus holding the gathers in position and giving a neat and firm finish. Over the standing linen collar is worn a bias stock of material, a narrow string tie finishing the neck. The use of this stock is optional as the linen collar may be worn alone, but the pattern provides for both. The up-to-date shirt sleeves that differ materially from those of a season ago are shaped by inside seams and gathered slightly at upper and lower edges. The usual slashes at the back are finished by under and over laps that are closed

He was a man of simple habit, and evidently from a far distance, and he had wandered into a large city museum. The attendant found him looking with interest at a meteorite, and he asked the attendant what it was.

"That," said the attendant, "is a meteorite."

"Hum! Where did it come from?"

"It fell from the sky."

"Fall near here?"

"No. It fell on a farm out in the country."

"Anybody hurt?"

"No; there was nobody about when it fell."

"Might have been, though?"

"Yes."

"Hum!" The man of the simple habit thought a moment.

"Well," he said finally, "the Lord's kind, but it does seem's if sometimes He was mighty keerless."

Bicyclists and Dogs.

It frequently happens that a bicyclist would like to drive off an annoying dog, but doesn't want to kill the beast, run the risk of a bullet hitting a bystander, nor attract the attention which a cartridge explosion is certain to do. The dog is consequently encouraged to try his trick on the next rider. A soundless pistol, shooting water, ammonia or other liquid, is now mailed postpaid for 50 cents in stamps by the Union Supply Co., 135 Leonard St., New York City. One of these will drive off the most vicious animal, and still not really injure it. A few drops of ammonia in the eyes, nose or mouth of any animal will give it something to think of other than bothering a cyclist. It is a boon to wheelmen and wheelwomen.

War Was Preferable.

"I have about decided," said Dowling, "to go to Cuba and join the insurgent army."

"Oh, you take my breath away," exclaimed Mrs. Dowling. "Going down there where you will have to sleep out on the ground and be eaten up by snakes and mosquitoes?"

"Yes."

"Don't you know you are likely to starve to death?"

"I do."

"And take yellow fever or cholera?"

"I know."

"Or may be captured or shot or something?"

"I know that, Maria, but they won't bang on the piano after I have gone to bed, nor make me get up after midnight to look after burglars."—Atlanta Constitution.

Modern Longevity.

In the seventeenth century the average duration of life was only thirteen years; in the eighteenth, twenty; in the present century it is thirty-six. This great increase in the average length of human life is not, however, an indication of an increase in the vigor and vitality of the race, but it is rather due to the fact that cholera, the black plague and other devastating scourges which formerly overspread whole countries at frequent intervals, sometimes several times during a century, have been brought more and more under control by improved public sanitation and quarantine. The real test of the vitality of the race is not the average length of human life, but the proportion of centenarians. The proportion of persons who have attained great age is without doubt at the present time much less than ever before in the history of the world.

CONSULTING A WOMAN.

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Inspires Confidence and Hope.

Examination by a male physician is a hard trial to a delicately organized woman.

She puts it off as long as she dare, and is only driven to it by fear of cancer, polypus, or some dreadful ill.

Most frequently such a woman leaves a physician's office where she has undergone a critical examination with an impression more or less, of discouragement.

This condition of the mind destroys the effect of advice; and she grows worse rather than better. In consulting Mrs. Pinkham no hesitation need be felt, the story is told to a woman and is wholly confidential. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., she offers sick women her advice without charge.

Her intimate knowledge of women's troubles makes her letter of advice a well-spring of hope, and her wide experience and skill point the way to health.

"I suffered with ovarian trouble for seven years, and no doctor knew what was the matter with me. I had spells which would last for two days or more. I thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken seven bottles of it, and am entirely cured."—MRS. JOHN FOREMAN, 26 N. Woodberry Ave., Baltimore, Md.

The above letter from Mrs. Foreman is only one of thousands.

ANOTHER RAILROAD FOR ALABAMA

The Road is to Be Built from Garland to a Point in Covington County.

The second move on the chess board of Southeast Alabama has been made by the railroads. Mr. Plant made the first real move by building his road from Newton, on the Alabama Midland, over to Elba, in Coffee county. It has been rumored that Mr. Plant intends to get Pensacola instead of Elba as the terminus of this road, the connection to be made by means of a lumber road running out to Florala.

Now comes what is thought to be the next move—it is said that it is made by the Louisville and Nashville people. A railroad is to be built from Garland, a station on the M. & M., sixty-seven miles below Montgomery, to River Falls, or Andalusia, in Covington county, the place that was said to be the objective point of the Central people.

The road is to be thirty miles long, and the contract says that it must be finished—grading, laying ties, rails, and everything—in four months, or by January 1. The contract is to be let this week.

John B. Weakley Killed.

John B. Weakley, Sr., of Florence, was thrown from a wagon Saturday and instantly killed. He was returning to his country home in a wagon with another man. The wagon gave a lurch and the two men were thrown under the mules, which took fright and ran away. Mr. Weakley was dragged a long distance and terribly mangled.

Duel With Pen Knives.

About seventeen miles from Tuscaloosa, on North river, a duel with pen knives was fought between Joe Winter and Millard Gregg. Gregg was severely cut and was carried to the house of Nat Day. Winter followed in a short time and breaking into the room through a window, he brained Gregg to death with a limb of a tree, crushing his skull.

Alabama's Coal Output.

"The output of coal for 1898 will be over 6,000,000 tons," said Assistant State Mine Inspector Culverhouse, in response to an inquiry. He has been making a visit to the various mines in the State recently, and he bases his estimate on what has been done so far this year, and what work is in prospect at the different mines.

Off to Washington.

Mayor J. R. Stephens, Captain Milton Humes and T. W. Pratt of Huntsville are now in Washington urging the war department to make Huntsville a point of mobilization of troops of the United States.

Two Prisoners Escape.

David McDaniel and John Lovelady, convicts at Coalburg, hid in the mines and later surprised and overpowered the guard and escaped. Both were captured after a long chase with dogs. Lovelady was fatally shot.

Gen. Wheeler a Candidate for Re-Election.

General Wheeler has written from Santiago to friends in his district that he thinks that the war will be of short duration and asking their support in the primaries for the congressional nomination.

SANTIAGO IS OUR PORT

And Her Trade Has Formally Begun to Run.

NEW YORK.—The actual opening of the commerce of Santiago as an open American port stated Saturday morning on the departure of the steamship Philadelphia of the Ward line. Her sailing preparations were attended with great demonstrations on the part of the shipping and commercial circles. The ship carries a full complement of passengers.

Europe Objects to Watson's Fleet.

It would not be surprising if it should develop that strong European influences are being brought to bear to dissuade the navy department from dispatching Watson's fleet to Europe, but so far they appear to have been ineffectual, for it is officially stated that the departure of the squadron is only delayed, not abandoned.

Klondike Gold Coming.

VICTORIA, B. C.—The steamer Garrone has arrived here from St. Nicholas. Her purser reports that her 111 passengers brought down close to $1,000,000.

Famous Cavalry to Go With Brooke.

Five troops of cavalry at Camp Alger, Va., have been ordered to proceed to Newport News for embarkation on transports for Porto Rico to reinforce General Miles. They will leave if practicable with General Hains' brigade. The troops sent are all famous ones in their section, the list being troops A and C of New York cavalry, the Governor's troop, Sheridan's troops and the Philadelphia City troop of Pennsylvania.

To Defend San Juan.

The Spaniards at San Juan de Porto Rico are making extensive preparations to resist an expected attack upon the part of the United States warships which are said to be convoying the army of invasion, commanded by General Miles.

Defense Measures.

A dispatch from Havana says that a meeting of engineers and other experts held here, over which Capt.-Gen. Blanco presided, adopted various measures for the defense of the city.

Anecdotes of Macready.

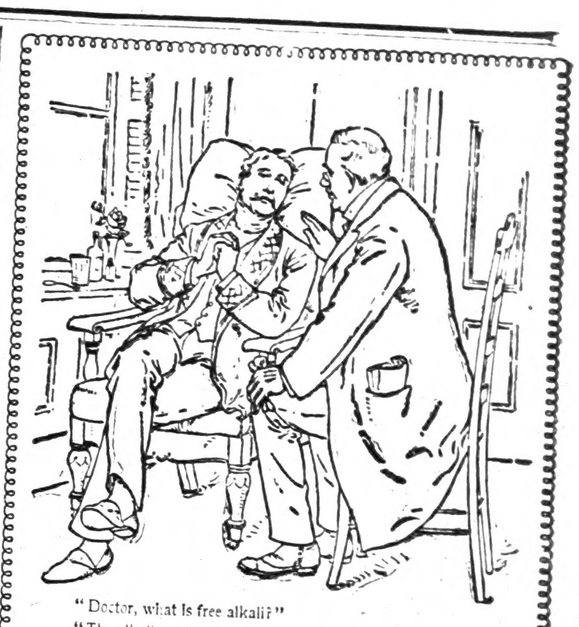
Mr. Sala charged Macready with having habitually used foul and blasphemous language behind the scenes. An apologist hints that Mr. Sala may have been led astray by the fact that in the last act of "Macbeth" Macready invariably lashed himself into a sort of fever, which he aggravated by using all sorts of expressions. When Mr. Phelps played Macduff to him for the first time, he was not a little amazed during the fight at the close of the last act to hear Macready call him a beast, a scoundrel, a hell-born villain, a base-born cur and a devil. Full of resentment, Phelps hurled back the epithets with energy, and heaped foul names upon Macready. At the close Macready said:

"Thank you, Mr. Phelps, thank you; I've never been so well supported."

In another play, where it was necessary to enter in a panting fury, full of rage, exhibiting the gasping exhaustion of mad passion, Macready used to have a hired "super" whom he would grapple and shake and curse at, off the stage, so that he could enter naturally. One night the regular "super" sent a substitute who did not quite understand the business. He resented Macready's rough treatment, which delighted the comedian, who went at his man with increased vigor. The substitute presently "let him have it," and the pair fought savagely a good round. Macready that night burst upon his audience in a splendid rage, out-Macreadying Macready. When the substitute learned the true state of affairs, however, he bolted; but he was unearthed, for Macready came off after the first scene, gasping:

"Hum, ha! Where is he? Hum, ha, bless me! A splendid fellow! Pay him double and let me have him every night."

Scarlet fever is extremely rare both in Asia and Africa.



"Doctor, what is free alkali?"

"The alkali used in the manufacture of soap is a strong chemical and is destructive of animal and vegetable tissue.

"Pure soap is harmless, but when the soap is carelessly or dishonestly made, alkali is left in it and it is then said to be 'free.' Soap containing free alkali should not be used where it may do damage.

"In the medical profession, in sickness, in surgery and in the hospitals we use Ivory Soap because it is pure and contains no free alkali.

"Ivory Soap is a powerful antiseptic, it is healing to a diseased and stimulating to a healthy skin."

IVORY SOAP IS 99 44/100 PER CENT. PURE.

OUR VICTORY!
The American people are noted for their ingenuity. This accounts in a great measure for our easy victory in our naval battles. This same ingenuity is enabling our people to lessen their work and get greater returns from whatever they may engage in. One of the latest inventions is a portable plank fence by Yeung and Cable. This fence requires no posts, cannot be blown down, can be easily taken apart and put up, enabling the farmer to pasture any odd corners not in cultivation. It is safe to say this invention will be worth thousands of dollars to the farmers of the South. They want progressive, practical farmers to sell the rights for using this fence. Write to J. A. GERSTLE'S Female Panacea
Cures All Diseases of Women.
MANY women are under the impression that the diseases peculiar to their sex are natural and incurable because so many suffer constantly from them. This is a mistake. Few women are so badly diseased that they cannot be cured. It is true, that had they taken a remedy that was efficient when the first symptoms of disease appeared, a more rapid cure would have been the result. No woman should neglect herself. When the monthly period becomes too frequent, painful, profuse, diminished, or irregular in any way, or if she suffers from falling of the womb, whites, or any other female trouble, she should at once resort to the use of

PROTECTION OR FUN.
Shoots Ammonia, Water, Cologne and Other Liquids.
It is a weapon which protects the citizen against vicious dogs and foot-pads; travelers against robbers and toughs; homes against thieves and tramps, and is adapted to many other situations.
It does not kill or injure; it is perfectly safe to handle; makes no noise or smoke; breaks no law and creates no lasting regrets, as does the bullet pistol. It simply and amply protects, by compelling the foe to give undivided attention to himself for a while instead of to the intended victim.
It is the only real weapon which protects and also makes fun, laughter and lots of it; it shoots, not once, but many times without reloading, and will protect by its appearance in time of danger, although loaded only with liquid. It does not get out of order; is durable, handsome, and nickel plated.

WINE OF CARDUI

FOR ALL WOMEN

NINE-TENTHS of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THOS. J. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says: "My sister suffered from very irregular and painful menstruation and doctors could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her and also helped my mother through the Change of Life."

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, economic, and literary happenings which are of value to thinking men and women. The "Progress of the World" is succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in free extracts; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the men of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best given in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

Thorsby, Ala., Aug. 2nd 1898.
Editor BANNER: We wish to say there was a man came to this community about four weeks ago claiming to represent Tatem & Whitfield of Troup co, Ga., saying they run a large flouring mill and that he was taking orders for flour for them. He had fine recommendations from the Probate Judge, Circuit Clerk and Sheriff of Troup county and also recommendation signed by Tatem & Whitfield. Through these recommendations J. W. Moore, G. S. Collins and J. N. Flowers bought and paid him for one barrel of flour each at $4 40 per barrel. He promised to deliver the flour in three days from date of purchase. He said his name was E. S. Henderson. He is about sixty years of age, tall and slender built, weight about 160 lbs, complexion light blue eyes and clean shaved wore spectacles all the time. He seemed to be greatly interested in the war and was very restless and seemed to be quite religious. After waiting sufficient time and the flour did not come, we wrote to the firm of Tatem & Whitfield, the letter was returned unclaimed. We then wrote the Postmaster at Gabbetville, Ga. We received answer that there was no such firm or mill there and also that they knew nothing of such a man, and that several other letters had been received by them of the same inquiry from this State. We learn that the names signed on his recommendations are not the names of the officials of Troup co, Ga.

I, J. Bice, N.P. Ex-off. J.P., hereby certify that the above is true. Mr. Henderson, as he called himself, tried to sell me some flour from the same firm as above mentioned.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at Dr. J. S. Johnson's, Drug Store. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

About one month ago my child, which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief, we sent for a physician and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having about twenty-five operations of the bowels every twelve hours, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better; by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. Bostos, Stumptown, Gilmer Co., W. Va. For sale by J. S. An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Browns' Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

Billingsley, July 30, 1898.

As I read Old Mike's letter I can't help saying a word in regard to the dog and road law. We may need a dog law but I don't think that the people of Chilton county need the Dallas county road law, nor I don't think that Old Mike will say so if he will come in to Autauga county and look at the roads. Autauga claims to have the good part of Dallas road law, and if so, God pity the worst for Autauga county is cursed with such law, and the roads are in worse fix than I have seen them in ten years. They are washed in holes and gullies so that the public can hardly travel. They have had the new law nearly two years and I think that if the citizen's ticket sends James Willis to the Legislature and will keep this law, there will be no roads, but I think that the first Monday will put Mr. Willis right where Toney hid the wedge and there will be good roads and farewell to citizens ticket.

Death of Mr. John Wright.

Mr. John Wright, a son of our highly esteemed townsman, Mr. William Wright, and who was well known to most of our readers, was found dead in the road near Wetumpka last Saturday night. He resided in the suburbs of Wetumpka and was on his way home when he was knocked down by some person with a heavy instrument, and falling forward in the sand died partly from the effects of the blow and partly from suffocation. It appears he had had some little difficulty during the day, and the presumption is he was attacked by someone in revenge. So far as we have been able to learn no arrest has been made.

CHILTON BOYS AT MIAMI.

U. S. Camp, Miami, Fla. July 26, '98

Editor BANNER. I send you a few lines telling you something of camp life in the army, especially at this place, Miami, which is decidedly the worst place for soldiers in the United States, if not in the world. Now, while I am, as are all the boys, as patriotic as when I enlisted and as willing to fight, and even die, for Old Glory and suffering humanity, which I consider the principle cause of this war. Having volunteered my service for my country my motto is "Victory or Death," and as long as I can shoulder my rifle will never consent to the Stars and Stripes being trampled in the dust. While, as before stated, the boys are still very patriotic, yet we unanimously think our lot might be more pleasant than it is.

The following is what we have to go through with. We have about got our camp cleaned up after digging stumps and piling rocks for some time. We now are barred from sleep as we have to fight mosquitoes all night, rise at 4 o'clock in the morning, walk about two miles in sand shoe-top deep, and drill about four hours, then walk back to camp there to find water that has been condensed and is so warm that actually a hog would refrain from wallowing in it. This is actually true, and we ask can't something be done for suffering humanity at home?

The Clanton boys are well, although there is about 900 sick at present in camp and an average of three deaths a day.

Very respectfully,
ARISTO ARMSTRONG.

WILLING TO HELP

Securing freedom from the grip of catarrh makes loyal friends for the liberator.

Pe-ru-na has been making friends of this kind for many years. It cures catarrh wherever located.

Mrs. B. Eades, of 35 Twenty-eighth St., Detroit, Mich., is one of the many thousand of Pe-ru-na's friends. This is what she says to Dr. Hartman:

"We have used your Pe-ru-na with the most remarkable results and would not be without it. We have always recommended it to our friends. A few years ago I purchased a bottle of your Pe-ru-na and after seeing its results, recommended it to my grocer who was troubled with dyspepsia, the curing of which induced him to sell it in his store. She has sold large amounts of it. My daughter has just been cured of jaundice with Pe-ru-na. My pen would grow weary were I to begin to tell you of the numerous cures Pe-ru-na has effected in our immediate vicinity within the last couple of years."

Dr. Hartman, President of the Surgical Hotel, Columbus, Ohio, will counsel and prescribe for fifty thousand women this year free of charge. Every suffering woman should write for special question-blank for women, and have Dr. Hartman's book, "Health and Beauty." All druggists sell Pe-ru-na.

CLANTON, - ALABAMA.

"Loyal, efficient, gallant," are the three adjectives which Dewey selected officially to describe his lieutenants. He aims as well with words as he does with guns.

In 1884 Spain exacted a revenue of $34,000,000 from Cuba under her extortionate system of taxation; the estimated revenue for 1898 is $24,775,000, but of course nothing like that amount can be collected.

Boston's latest is a fine innovation. It is nothing less than putting swimming in the public school curriculum. All the public school pupils are to be taught to swim without charge, the city furnishing bathing suits. Twenty-six expert swimmers have been engaged as instructors, headed by the champion swimmer of the country. This is a piece of practical education that every city might well hasten to adopt. It would cost no more than some of the wood-carving and paper-cutting courses that now take up the time of the pupils.

Not satisfied with palming off corn starch on innocent purchasers for wheat flour, thus lowering the price of wheat to the farmer and crippling the legitimate milling industry, the flour adulterators are said to be using a substance known as "mineraline," announces the Louisville Courier-Journal. This is a kind of clay, dried and powdered, and shipped from Greensboro, N. C. The miller who sells corn starch in his flour because it is cheaper is likely to use clay because it is cheaper. Any suspicious flour ought to be sharply watched. Corn meal is cheap and good, but the man who wants corn bread does not care to pay flour prices for it.

For several years a growing interest has been manifested in the value of the study of animals and plants by the young, and in the improvement of the instruction in these subjects in the high schools. Instead of the time-worn method of the analysis of plants attention is being turned to life processes of plants, the function of plant parts and the interpretation of obscure processes through some of the microscopic plants. In the summer school at Cornell University during 1898 special courses are offered for the purpose of training teachers for presenting this new method in the high schools. In view also of the growing popular interest in nature study, and in the study of mushrooms, courses are offered in these subjects.

Every month there is a statement of the number of business failures; but we look in vain for a statement of the causes of failure, remarks the Youth's Companion. It might not be pleasant reading, but it would certainly be instructive. We are told that some men fail because they are too honest to practice the tricks of trade and others because they are too mean to gain and keep confidence; some because they do not give full attention to their business, and others because they drive business recklessly. Some lines of trade are overcrowded. In others the strong and shrewd push the weak to the wall, and small operators are "frozen out" by large ones. Competition, which is said to be "the life of trade," is often its death.

The Minister of Finance of the Republic of Hawaii has submitted his report for 1897, showing the extraordinary increase which has taken place within the period covered in the Pacific archipelago's volume of imports. In the aggregate, Hawaii purchased goods in foreign markets last year amounting to $8,838,730, or $1,618,975 in excess of the sum for the preceding year. Most of the trade thus represented was carried on with the United States, the exact figures covering Hawaii's purchases in this market for the past year amounting to $7,800,028. Some idea of the rapid rate which has marked the growth of Hawaii's import trade may be gathered from the fact that in 1843 she purchased in foreign markets only $223,388, while up to 1894 she purchased only $2,738,213. With respect to Hawaii's exports for the past year, they aggregated the enormous sum of $16,021,775. These figures serve to emphasize the republic's marvelous resources.

LABOR AND INDUSTRY

WHAT PORTO RICO MAY BRING OUR WAGE-EARNERS.

Why We Need the Pretty Island—Salvation Army Colony Prospering—Striking Illustration of the Truth That Progress Makes Work.

Speed the Prow.

Not the ship that swiftest saileth,
But which longest holds her way
Onward, onward, never faileth,
Storm and calm, to win the day;
Earliest she the haven gains,
Which the hardest stress sustains.

O'er life's ocean, wide and pathless,
Thus would I with patience steer;
No vain hope of journeying scathless,
No proud boast to face down fear;
Dark or bright his Providence,
Trust in God be my defence.

Time there was,—'tis so no longer,—
When I crowded every sail,
Battled with the waves, and stronger
Grew, as stronger grew the gale:
But my strength sunk with the wind,
And the sea lay dead behind.

There my bark had founder'd surely,
But a power invisible
Breathed upon me:—then securely,
Borne along the gradual swell,
Helm and shrouds, and heart renew'd,
I my humbler course pursued.

Now, though evening shadows blacken,
And no star comes through the gloom,
On I move, nor will I slacken
Sail, though verging towards the tomb:
Bright beyond,—on heaven's high strand,
Lo, the lighthouse!—land, land, land!

Cloud and sunshine, wind and weather,
Sense and sight are fleeing fast;
Time and tide must fall together,
Life and death will soon be past;
But where day's last spark declines,
Glory everlasting shines.

Why We Need the Pretty Island.

It appears certain that at the close of the war the island of Porto Rico will become part of the territory of the United States, whatever may be the disposition made of Cuba and the Philippines. Its acquisition will be a decided gain, industrially, to this country, in two respects: It will place us much nearer great South American markets, where we have never yet been able to win the consideration to which we are entitled, and it will also give to American enterprise a great home field to develop. Porto Rico, like every other Spanish possession, has never been developed, industrially, as Americans understand that term. Unlike most Spanish possessions, it has not been ruined, nor have its inhabitants been so grievously harassed as elsewhere. It is a fertile land, with a salubrious climate, has excellent highways, broad and deep rivers, and a magnificent harbor. Even the easy-going methods there in vogue have made it a more productive colony for Spain than Cuba. Fruits, coffee, sugar, tobacco, and live stock are the chief staples. These are exchanged for manufactured articles or money from abroad, for manufacturing, as here understood, is unknown there. According to latest statistics, American trade with Porto Rico has been gaining at the rate of $3,000,000 each year. The colony's annual exports to Spain have amounted to something like $6,000,000 of late, while those to America amounted to $75,000,000. Simply with the removal of the burdensome and unjust taxes which Spain imposes upon industry and trade, the productivity of Porto Rico must greatly increase. When to that is added the impetus which American methods, push and money will impart, it can be readily seen that Porto Rico's products must rapidly and enormously increase. And almost all of this wealth will most naturally be exchanged for things made in the States—the thousand and one necessaries and luxuries that people buy when they have money. It is further to be noted that the acquisition of this island carries with it no industrial disadvantages, to temporarily diminish the advantages. Its inhabitants are not in competition with us, and are not likely to be to any material extent for years—certainly not until they have become so thoroughly impregnated with distinctively American ideas that they will be as fully of our kind as are our own people. And when that state exists, their competition will not be of the kind to be dreaded, but simply the kind to which every one is accustomed. Valuable as Porto Rico is of itself, the effect which our possession of it will have upon our South American trade must be an even greater factor of industrial advantage. Nothing will separate the great republic of North America from the republics, great and minor, of South America, but a comparatively narrow strip of ocean—a convenient water highway, rather than a barrier. And this means much. If this country can but once gain its rightful place in South American markets the demand for the product of mills and factories will increase to such a degree that tens of thousands of workers in many occupations would immediately perceive the difference, and welcome it with joy. The South American republics number their citizens by the millions. We already buy a great portion of what they produce—fruits, coffee, tobacco, hides, etc., for the sufficient reason that we cannot supply our demand at home. In return we sell them little. English and German cotton mills clothe their people while our mills in New England are shut down for want of orders. We are so little known that much of what we do sell them has to be shipped via Liverpool, and provided with an English tag, before it finds a market. The great, decisive industrial advantage that will accrue from the possession of Porto Rico lies in this, that it will make a barrier that now separates us from South America and diverts the current of its trade to Europe, a band binding the two continents, and attracting trade that will set in motion cotton mills of New England and the South, keep iron mills glowing in Pennsylvania, and increase the output of the furniture factory, the shoe shop, and the scores of other places where men work and earn money when there is a buyer for the ware.

Progress Makes Work.

Inventions of better and more economical methods of doing things already done, or of performing things before impossible, make work. They throw some men out of work; they destroy or impair some occupations. But they make places, directly or indirectly, for more men than they displace, and they create occupations greater and more remunerative than those impaired or destroyed. Consider electricity for a moment. The rapid increase of the electric business of this country is shown by the fact that at the time of taking the last census, that of 1890, no serious effort was made to give figures showing the extent of the use of electricity. There are in the United States nearly a million miles of telegraph wire, and there are 22,000 telegraph offices, exclusive of those maintained by the railroad companies for the conduct and regulation of their trains. Taking into account telegraph operators, telegraph company employes and those in the telegraph service of railroads, there are 150,000 persons connected with the transmission of telegraphic messages in the United States. There are now 600,000 miles of telephone wire in the United States, more than 1,000 exchanges, and an equal number of telephone branch offices, exclusive, of course, of pay stations. The number of the employes of the telephone companies of the United States is 25,000, exclusive of those engaged in construction and repair work for the companies. The gradual substitution of the electric current for horse power on surface railroads has added largely to the number of employes of electric railroads. There are now in the United States 14,000 miles of electric or trolley roads, and these roads give employment, it is computed, to 100,000 persons as motormen, conductors, clerks, inspectors and electricians. Then there is the item of electric lighting, which is one of the most important branches of the development of electrical service, but likewise one the figures of which are most fragmentary. Nearly every important city of the United States, and many smaller cities, too, are lighted by electricity, as well as private houses, stores, public buildings, tunnels, bridges, caves, mines and parks, and the use of the electric current in manufacturing is constantly on the increase. Machines are run by electricity, many manufacturing operations are run by electricity, fans for cooling purposes are run by electricity, and as these uses are extended the number of persons employed is steadily being increased. There are still to be added the figures of another branch of the business, one of the most important, the manufacture of electric appliances, which, it is computed, gives employment to more than 250,000 persons.

Taking all the figures together, it is probably not far from the truth to say that there are 1,000,000 persons in the United States dependent upon electricity for a livelihood.

Salvation Army Colony.

A year ago the Salvation Army established a colony for the poor at Fort Romie, Salinas county, Cal. Results to date induce its projectors to believe that they now see the solution of the problem of relieving the needy. Ground was broken for the settlement last October and 75 persons were placed on a tract of 500 acres. An irrigating plant was erected at a cost of $8,000. The land was very dry and this season there has been a drouth, but in spite of these conditions splendid crops were raised on 225 acres. The colony now has 32 houses, a postoffice, a schoolhouse, a store, an assembly hall, a blacksmith shop, and a butcher shop. Colonel Holland, national colonizing secretary, is in Salinas to establish another colony. A very large tract has been offered for a reasonable sum. The colonies are open to all farmers of whatever creed or nationality.

France exports rails to Japan.

Another trust of large proportions is being formed which will, it is expected, take in the largest cutlery concerns in the country.

Hamilton, Canada, is the largest place to be taken with the idea that a municipal council can profitably add a fire insurance department to the machinery it looks after.

Oregon has sent to the Omaha exhibition a sixty-foot stick from a tree in the forest near Scappoose. The timber contains $1,000 worth of lumber and it is without a single knot or blemish. The cost of getting it out was about $100.

Siam offers a tremendous opportunity for cotton growers in the United States. The Siamese demand for cotton increases each year. Of the 500,000,000 inhabitants of the oriental countries 400,000,000 wear cotton clothes. There are in the whole orient only about 100,000 square miles of land suitable for raising cotton. All the cotton not raised on this land must be imported. American cotton is preferred to any other kind.

Jesus as a Helper.

This morning I was reading a passage that came sweetly to my heart: "For He knoweth our frame, He remembereth that we are dust." I am weak—Jesus knows it all. I have my anxieties—He feels them all. I am very imperfect—He understands it all. You sit down by your friend and tell him your experience. You ask him: "Did you ever feel so?" If he has, you are satisfied to think some other person feels as you have felt. Go and tell Jesus how you feel. He says: "I have felt the same." Blessed be God, there is not a sorrow of my heart but Jesus understands it. There is not an anxiety, not a depression, but He helps me to bear them.—Bishop Simpson.

TERMS OF PEACE WITH SPAIN

Have Been Agreed Upon by the President and Members of Cabinet.

OPPOSED TO ACQUISITION OF PHILIPPINES.

Spanish Sovereignty in the Entire Caribbean and West Indian Waters Must Close—Government Will Assume No Indebtedness of the Islands.

WASHINGTON.—The cabinet discussed the president's answer to Spain's peace proposal and reached the following decisions:

The absolute surrender of Porto Rico to the United States.

Recognition of the independence of Cuba.

Cession of one of the Ladrone Islands to the United States as a coaling station, and the cession to the United States of at least a coaling station in the Philippines.

It can be stated that there is practically no difference of opinion in the cabinet on the question of the retention of the Philippine Islands as a whole, all the members being opposed to our acquisition of these islands.

There has been no decision, however, as yet on the extent to which the government will go in its decision respecting the future of these islands, but it is probable that the answer of the president will express the willingness of this government to leave the matter of the future government of the Philippines entirely in the hands of a joint commission to be appointed by this government and the government of Spain.

The probability is that the United States will insist upon a guarantee of certain reforms in government in the Philippine Islands.

The cabinet also decided that Spanish sovereignty in the entire Caribbean and the entire West Indian waters must be entirely removed. This means not only that Porto Rico and Cuba must be relinquished, but that the Spanish flag must be taken down on every one of the numerous small islands in the hemisphere.

Two other propositions were disposed of. The indebtedness assumed by Spain and charged against both the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico will not be assumed by this government, and moreover, commercial treaties now existing between these islands and other portions of Spanish domain will be invalidated by the transfer of authority, the cabinet having decided not to recognize them.

Our answer will make no mention of the money indemnity. Neither will there be any armistice at all. The answer will be in the nature of an ultimatum, and if Spain does not accept it she will fare worse in the future.

The note from Spain, it is said, was a very adroit and equivocal document, from the reading of which one would think that the only question involved was Cuba. Apparently Spain might not have really intended getting a direct answer from us, but only to open diplomatic correspondence. This government will not have any such correspondence, but will make a straightforward statement of its peace terms for Spain's acceptance or rejection, naming conditions that under the circumstances are reasonable and even generous.

Cambon Receives McKinley's Reply.

After a day of anxious deliberation and important consultations the reply of the United States government to the Spanish overture for peace Saturday afternoon was at last placed in the hands of M. Cambon, the French ambassador, to be by him transmitted to the government of Spain. It was 4:30 o'clock before the minister received the answer, and as it makes about 1,100 words in all and must be reduced to the diplomatic cipher and then transmitted by cable. At 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning the members of the cabinet began to assemble at the white house to resume their discussion at the point where it was interrupted Friday by adjournment. The points of the answer were ratified as they stood Friday.

As to the Philippines, the cabinet agreed upon the following points: That Manila bay, with the city and surrounding territory, should be retained in the possession of the United States, at least for such a length of time as is necessary to devise and put in operation some plan for the future of the entire group.

It was finally decided that what we desired could best be done by the appointment of a joint commission, limited in its representation to the governments of the United States and Spain, which commission is to endeavor to settle the details of the government of the Philippines and to determine what rights shall be accorded the insurgents, the United States army and navy meanwhile occupying Manila and Manila bay, and thus retaining a position to force speedily the verdict that shall be finally reached by the commission.

Has Manila Surrendered?

A telegram from Madrid says that a cable dispatch has been received at the Spanish capital announcing the surrender of Manila to Admiral Dewey. The war department has no official confirmation of the report.

BISMARCK IS DEAD.

Death of the Iron Chancellor Came as a Surprise to all Europe.

BERLIN.—Prince Bismarck died Saturday night at Friederichsruhe. The end came peacefully, and it was about 11 o'clock when the Iron Chancellor passed away.

The death of the ex chancellor comes as a surprise to all Europe. Despite the family's denials, there was an undercurrent of apprehension when the sinking of the prince was first announced, inspired more by what the family left unsaid than by any information given. But when the daily bulletins chronicled improvements in the prince's condition, detailed his extensive bills of fare and his devotion to his pipe, the public accepted Dr. Schweninger's assertion when he said there was no reason why Bismarck should not reach the age of 90 years.

It appears that the ex-chancellor's death was not precipitated by sudden complications, but was rather the culmination of chronic disease, neuralgia of the face and inflammation of the veins—which kept him in constant pain, that was borne with the iron fortitude which might have been expected.

The beginning of the end dates from July 20, when the prince was confined to his bed. He had been several days prostrated before an inkling of his decline reached the world.

Prince Otto Edward Leopold Bismarck Schoenhausen was born of an old noble family of the "Mark" (Bradenburg), at Schoenhausen, April 1, 1815. He was created a count September 16, 1865, and Prince (Fuerst) Von Bismarck in March, 1871. He was educated at the universities of Gotingen and Griefswald, spent some time in the army, and subsequently settled down as a country gentleman.

Brought up in the political faith of the Junkers, or Prussian tory squirarchy, he became in 1846 a member of the provincial district of Saxony and of the Prussian diet, in which he first attacted attention by his fiery speeches in defense of the old monarchial party. During the revolutionary period of 1846 the services he rendered in the public debates to the conservative cause led to his appointment as the representative of Prussia in the diet of the old German bund at Frankfort. Austria was then all powerful in the German bund. From the time of Bismarck's appearance, however, the voice of Prussia began to have increasing weight. The successful audacity with which he checkmated Austrian intrigue at Frankfort was the source of constant irritation at Vienna and naturally tended to produce some estrangement between the Austrian and Prussian courts.

Bismarck was sent as ambassador to St. Petersburg in 1860, and held that position until 1862. In May of 1862 he became Prussian ambassador at Paris. Five months later he was made first minister of the Prussian crown. Within the next ten years he assembled the Austrian empire, destroyed the French empire, and created the new German empire. He remodeled the map of Europe, dismembering Denmark and France. He enlarged the frontiers of Prussia by the annexation of various provinces, including the dominions of three dethroned German princes, and succeeded in placing Germany, which had previously been the weakest and less respected of all the great powers, at the head of the states of Europe.

Will Connect Our Possessions by Cable.

The San Francisco Post says that the United States will soon be connected by cable with her newly acquired Pacific possessions, and the cable will connect the United States from San Francisco with Hawaii, the Ladrones, the Philippines and Hong Kong. The paper says that most of the surveys have been made. The contract for the laying of the cable has already been let, and according to the terms of the contract the work must be completed within six months.

His Thoughts Are of Death.

The pope has issued an encyclical to the Scotch people, the terms of which are significant in view of the recent reports that the thoughts of his holiness are absorbed with his death. He says that in his stress he addressed them because he sees that his last day is approaching; and in the most solemn terms he recalls the services of the dead Scotch heroes to the church and beseeches the people to return to their ancient faith.

England Considers the War at an End.

All Europe, save a few Spanish radicals, considers the war at an end. For weeks the press of London, Paris, and even Berlin has been advising Spain to ask for peace before going to utter ruin. Everywhere there is a belief that the United States will demand and ought to obtain the independence of Cuba, the cession of Porto Rico and the Ladrones, with a coaling station in the Philippines. There will be a general recognition of America's right to at least this much. The principal comment is on the question of indemnity, and whether the Philippines should be taken.

Hobson Will Visit Alabama.

PONCE HAS CAPITULATED

The American Flag Hoisted Over Ad... other Porto Rican Town.

OUR TROOPS WELCOMED WITH ENTHUSIASM

General Miles Tells of Victory—Spanish Troops Are Retreating from Southern Part of the Island—Navy Has Captured Several Prizes.

PONCE, PORTO RICO.—The port of Ponce surrendered to Commander C. D. Davis, of the auxiliary gunboat Dixie, Thursday. There was no resistance, and the Americans were welcomed with enthusiasm.

Major General Miles arrived here at daylight Thursday with General Wilson's brigade and immediately started for the town of Ponce, three miles inland, which capitulated on arrival.

The American troops are pushing toward the mountains and will join General Henry with his brigade at Guamco, which has been captured by our troops.

A fight before the latter place on Tuesday last was won by the American volunteers. The Spaniards ambushed eight companies of the Sixth Massachusetts and Sixth Illinois regiments, but the enemy was repulsed and driven back a mile to a ridge, where the Spanish cavalry charged and were routed by our infantry. General Garretson led the fight with the men from Illinois and Massachusetts and the enemy retreated to Yucon, leaving four dead on the field and several wounded. Nine of our men were killed and only three were slightly wounded.

The Porto Ricans are glad the American troops have landed and say they are all Americans and will join our army. The roads are good for military purposes. Our troops are healthy and General Miles says the campaign will be short and vigorous.

Miles Tells of His Victory.

The war department received the following from General Miles Thursday:

"On the 26th Garretson had a spirited engagement on skirmish line. Our casualties, four wounded, all doing well. Spanish loss three killed and thirteen wounded. Yauco occupied Friday. Henry's division there today. Last evening Commander Davis, of the Dixie, moved into the port, followed by Captain Higginson with his fleet early this morning. General Wilson with Ernst's brigade is now rapidly disembarking.

"Spanish troops are retreating from the southern part of Porto Rico. Ponce and ports have a population of 50,000 now under American flag. The people received the troops and saluted the flag with wild enthusiasm.

"The navy has several prizes, also seventy lighters. Railway station partly destroyed, but now restored. Telegraph communication also being restored. Cable instruments destroyed. Have sent to Jamaica for others. This is a prosperous and beautiful country. The army will soon be in the mountain region; weather delightful; troops in best of health and spirits. Anticipate no insurmountable obstacles in future. Results thus far have been accomplished without the loss of a single life. NELSON A. MILES,

Our loyalty and trust in the honor of America entitle us to your consideration and support. Civilization, trade and order all will be lost if Spanish authority is reestablished in any form."

PEACE VIRTUALLY REACHED

...t a Conference Held Between President McKinley and M. Cambon.

...RENCH AMBASSIOOR GIVEN FULL POWER

...o Conduct Peace Negotiations, Which Are Now Beyond Preliminary Stage. Only Ratification by Madrid Government Needed to End War.

A Sunday's special from Washington says: Events of the most momentous character occurred at the conference at the White house this afternoon between the president, Ambassador Cambon, of France, and Secretary Day, representing the peace negotiations which have now reached the point of a preliminary basis of peace between the government of Spain and the government of the United States, needing only the ratification of the Madrid cabinet. What was done today to bring the war to an end. It was accepted on the part of Spain, when Ambassador Cambon presented to the president credentials he had received from the Spanish government, appointing him envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary, with instructions as to the manner of action on the peace negotiations.

With these credentials authorizing him to speak as plenipotentiary for the government of Spain, and with full instructions on every point at issue, Ambassador Cambon, in behalf of Spain, not only received the peace conditions laid down by the cabinet earlier in the day, but thereupon entered upon the full discussion with a view to reaching a final and complete agreement. After strong argument, the president and Secretary Day consented to a modification of the American demands on one particular.

What that modification relates to is not disclosed, but it is believed not to apply to the cession of the absolute sovereignty of Cuba, the cession of Porto Rico or the granting of adequate coaling stations in the Philippines. The modification brought about practically a unanimity between the president and M. Cambon, and the latter has now transmitted the results of the conference to Madrid for approval, which, if acceptable, will end the war.

What the modification that has been agreed to is can be only conjectured, but there is reason to believe that it relates either to the time when actual hostilities will be suspended or else to the extent of our interest in the Philippines, leaving unchanged the condition that Spain shall withdraw from Cuba and Porto Rico, grant the United States coaling stations in the Pacific and make concessions in the Philippines. It is now for the Madrid government to give final approval to what has been practically accomplished today. It is even possible that this approval may be given very speedily, within a day or two, as there is no need of extended correspondence. All the facts have been published today, when M. Cambon acted as plenipotentiary. The fact that he acted under instructions from the prospect would seem to indicate Spain ratifying what

IN LIBERTY'S NAME

General Miles Issues Proclamation to the People of Porto Rico.

PORT OF PONCE, PORTO RICO—General Miles has issued the following proclamation:

"In the prosecution of war against the kingdom of Spain by the people of the United States in the cause of liberty, justice and humanity, its military forces have come to occupy the island of Porto Rico. They come bearing the banner of freedom, inspired by a noble purpose to seek the enemies of our government and of yours, and to destroy or capture all in armed resistance.

"They bring you the fostering arms of a free people, whose greatest power is justice and humanity to all living within their fold. Hence they release you from your former political relations, and it is hoped this will be followed by your cheerful adoption of the United States government.

"The chief object among our military forces will be to overthrow the armed authority of Spain and give the people of your beautiful island the largest measure of liberty consistent with this military occupation. They have not come to make war upon the people of the country, but on the contrary, they bring protection not only to yourselves, but to your property, promote your prosperity and bestow the immunities and blessing of our enlightenment and liberal institutions and government.

"It is not their purpose to interfere with the existing laws and customs which are wholesome and beneficial to the people, so long as they conform to the rules of the military administration, order and justice. This is not a war of devastation and denotation, but one to give all within the control of the military and naval forces the advantages and blessings of enlightened civilization."

TROUBLE WITH INSURGENTS.

Aguinaldo Has Declined an American Protectorate.

WASHINGTON.—Aguinaldo, the Philippine insurgent chief, has declined an American protectorate. The administration has cabled Admiral Dewey to grant no terms which do not include the absolute subjugation of Aguinaldo to the scheme of American military operations. The President and his cabinet are united on the absolute necessity of preventing Aguinaldo from capturing Manila. Humanity, civilization and common sense protest against the subjugation of a city of 200,000 white people by a mob of Malays.

Augusti's Terms of Surrender.

MANILA.—Augusti, who believed Camara was coming to his relief, is now discouraged and ready to capitulate on demand. His terms are: Spanish troops marching out with honors of war; the soldiers, the military and civil officials to be granted parole to return to Spain; protection to be assured of life and property of the Spaniards against the natives.

All foreign interests, involving immense capital, are now at a complete standstill. The foreigners are urging surrender. Even the Germans concede it is foolish to resist.

Augusti's rank and file are ready to yield. Only the intermediate officers, loafing in cafes, suffering no hardships and seeking false glory, are in favor of longer hostilities. Dewey expects to take the city without loss of life.

Aguinaldo, insurgent chief, is going to cause trouble here, and already Admiral Dewey regards him as an enemy rather than a friend. While he has kept up a friendly front he has issued secret orders to his men not to permit the Americans to secure necessary horses and other equipments.

The insurgent commander has recently been dropping his mask, and has become openly insolent.

DuBosc Expelled From Canada.

Senor DuBosc, the former Spanish charge d'affaires at Washington, has been formally requested by the Canadian government, through Sir Wilfred Laurier, to leave Canada, on the ground that he was using Canada for the purpose of belligerent operations against the United States.

Gen. Merritt Arrives at Manila.

A dispatch from Manila, via Hong Kong, says: Gen. Wesley Merritt and the transports and troops under his command arrived at Manila on the morning of July 25. All were well. Gen. Merritt will at once assume command.

ORDERED TO BOMBARD.

Italian Warships May Throw Shells Into Cartagena, Colombia.

A Colon, Colombia, dispatch says: The position of the Cerruti matter is now extremely serious. Three Italian warships are in front of Cartagena, one being here and another lying at Buena Ventura. The Italian minister at Bogota is here on board the steamer Atrato en route to Europe. The Italian admiral has received orders to bombard Cartagena. Great Britain and the United States are intervening, and the admiral having represented the situation to his government, is now awaiting final instructions.

GENERAL MERRITT REPORTS.

He Assumed Command of the American Forces Upon His Arrival.

WASHINGTON.—The following has been received at the war department:

CAVITE, July 25.—Arrived today about 12. Health of command good. Remainder of fleet about four days in the rear. All troops assigned me will probably be needed. MERRITT,
Major-General, Commanding.

A dispatch received from Admiral Dewey announces that Aguinaldo has assumed a bold attitude of defiance and that it would take a large force from this country to subdue the insurgents.

General Merritt assumed command of the American forces immediately after he had reported to Admiral Dewey. He has established headquarters at the Cavite arsenal.

The Newport was escorted to an anchorage near the cruiser Charleston by the gunboat Concord, the crews of the vessels of the American fleet giving her a rousing welcome. At the close of his official visit to the Olympia, Admiral Dewey's flagship, General Merritt was officially recognized by a salute of thirteen guns.

Until he shall have received the reports of the officers who preceded him and familiarized himself with the situation, General Merritt cannot determine as to his future course.

SPAIN WILL NOT ACCEDE

If the United States Insists on Disposition of the Philippine Islands.

WASHINGTON.—It was stated Friday night in a high diplomatic quarter, in such manner as to give some semi-official character to the expression, that if American control or supervision of the Philippines was an indispensable proposition laid down as the basis of peace negotiations, it was practically certain that the Spanish government would not accede to this condition, but would determine rather to continue the war.

As to the other peace conditions understood to have been decided upon by the cabinet, those who are best able to judge the disposition of the Spanish government feel that while these terms are hard, yet they do not present any insurmountable barrier to the speedy restoration of peace, and while there is no authority for saying Spain would accept these terms and retire from Cuba and Porto Rico, there is every indication that she would yield rather than continue a disastrous war. The future of the Philippines appears to be of as much concern to the Spanish government as it is to the American cabinet just now, and there is even greater insistence on the continuance of Spanish sovereignty over this group than there is over the more valuable islands of Cuba and Porto Rico.

PORTO RICANS VOLUNTEERING

To Serve in the United States Army With General Miles.

General Miles, in command of the Porto Rican expedition, sent the following dispatch from Ponce to Secretary Alger, which was made public at the war department Sunday night:

PONCE, PORTO RICO.—The volunteers are surrendering themselves with arms and ammunition. Four-fifths of the people are overjoyed at the arrival of the army. Two thousand from one place have volunteered to serve with it. They are bringing transportation, beef, cattle and other needed supplies. The custom house has already yielded $14,000. As soon as all the troops are disembarked they will be in readiness to move.

CURRENT EVENTS IN ALABAMA.

TROUBLE NEAR CUSSETA.

Fight in Which Several Persons Were Wounded Grew Out of Politics.

Saturday night a desperate fight, brought on by politics, nearly precipitated a race war near Cusseta. Friday the democrats held a meeting near Cusseta, and their orators divided time with the populists. Saturday night the populists held a meeting, and reports say refused to divide time with the democrats. Thereupon the democrats withdrew and started up a separate speaking, and in the midst of these movements some one shot at a Mr. Mitchell and wounded his horse. He left at once for Cusseta and swore out warrants for the parties and returned. When he again reached the scene his posse was fired into, and they returned the fire, and a desperate fight ensued.

After the fight was over it was found that the following whites were seriously wounded: W. J. Busbee, W. W. Meadows. Also the following negroes John Hull, Will Floyd, Tom Combs, Charles Morgan.

A report says that the negroes were arming and gathering for the purpose of wiping out the white race.

Forty men, armed to the teeth, left Opelika for the scene. When they got there they found white men pouring in from all the surrounding country. Lafayette furnished about seventy-five white men, and West Point sent as many more.

A number of the instigators have been arrested, but the ringleaders escaped.

INTENSE HEAT KILLS TWO MEN.

While the Lightning Took the Life of a Third One.

Alpheus Turrentine, a white farmer living in Gourdvine beat, Morgan county, dropped in his field from heat prostration and died shortly after being taken home. John Jacobs, a negro tenant on Turrentine's place, was also found at a spring, where he had gone to drink, in a dying condition. The heat spell was followed by a terrific play of sharp lightning, during which John Warrick, a crippled white man of good family, was killed. A large oak tree overhead was shattered and told the tale of the bolt which killed Warrick.

Demand Retention of the Philippines.

The Portland, Ore., chamber of commerce has adopted resolutions regarding the Philippines, declaring:

"That we believe that any other course than the retention of these islands would be construed as a surrender to the menaces of foreign powers; that we unhesitatingly demand the retention of these islands; that the commerce of the Orient may be shared in by our people without dictation from any European power whatsoever."

THE BANKRUPTCY BILL.

How the Law Recently Enacted by Congress Affects Different Interests.

Public interest has been directed to the subject of bankruptcy in view of the fact that a general bankruptcy law has been passed by congress during the last days of the session which has just closed. Lawyers, merchants and all persons interested in the collecting of debts, as well as debtors who are hopelessly insolvent, are anxious to be informed of the exact provisions of the law in detail. It has been many years since there was a bankruptcy law in force in this country, and in consequence the public generally is not informed on this now all-important subject. We present to our readers a classified statement of the general features of the law which is now in force, prepared by Mr. William M. Bethea, attorney-at-law, Birmingham, Ala., which is as follows:

There are two officers created under the law known as the referee and as the trustee. The referee is appointed by the judge of the district court of the United States and the trustee named by the creditors. The law was approved July 1 and took effect immediately on that day, but no petitions for voluntary bankruptcy could be filed under the act until thirty days after July 1, and no petition for involuntary bankruptcy can be filed until four months after the first day of July, 1898.

The district courts of the United States are, under the express terms of the act, constituted courts of bankruptcy and are vested with such jurisdiction at law and in equity as will authorize them to exercise original jurisdiction in bankruptcy proceedings.

Any person, except a corporation, may become a voluntary bankrupt. This includes a partnership. Any natural person who is insolvent may be declared an involuntary bankrupt on proper allegations and proof except a person engaged in the tillage of soil and a wage-earner (who is defined in the act to be "an individual who works for his wages, salary or hire at a rate not exceeding $1,500 per year.") Any unincorporated company and any corporation engaged principally in manufacturing, trading, printing, publishing or mercantile pursuits owing $1,000 may be declared an involuntary bankrupt. Private bankers may be declared involuntary bankrupts, but no national bank or banks incorporated under state laws can be declared bankrupt.

The acts of bankruptcy upon which a person may be declared an involuntary bankrupt are: "(1) Having conveyed, transferred, concealed, or removed, or permitted to be concealed or removed, any part of his property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, or any of them, (2) having transferred while insolvent any portion of his property to one or more of his creditors, with the intent to prefer such creditors over his other creditors, or (3) suffered or permitted while insolvent, any creditor to obtain a preference through legal proceedings, and not having at least five days before the sale or final disposition of the property affected by such preference vacated or discharged such preference, or (4) made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors, or (5) admitted in writing his inability to pay his debts and his willingness to be adjudged a bankrupt on that ground."

It will be observed that acts which under the laws of Alabama would authorize the filing of a creditors' bill, on the grounds of fraud, or would authorize an attachment for having fraudulently disposed of your property, are acts of bankruptcy. And further, that certain preferences, allowed or attempted to be allowed, which under the laws of Alabama would be a general assignment, are acts of bankruptcy.

During the existence of the bankrupt statute there are not apt to be any general assignments, as this alone is an act of bankruptcy, and hence will, in almost every instance, end in the bankruptcy court. This will be of advantage to a creditor, in that under the bankrupt law the creditors name the trustee, and will in all probability not name a person favorable to the assignor.

Under the bankruptcy law persons are allowed the same exemption as they are entitled to under the laws and constitution of the state of their domicile, but the courts of bankruptcy have the exclusive jurisdiction of passing upon and adjudicating all questions relative to the allowance of the exemptions to a person declared a bankrupt.

The court cost of a bankruptcy proceeding is as follows: Ten dollars for the referees, $5 for the trustee, $10 for the clerk, and the marshal is entitled to the usual fees, which depends on the amount of work in his department. In case any assets come into the hands of the court the referee is entitled to 1 per cent. of amount paid as dividends and commissions; trustees are allowed such fees as the court may deem proper, not to exceed 3 per cent. of the first $5,000 or less, and 2 per cent. of the second $5,000 or less, and 1 per cent. of such sums in excess of $10,000.

The effect of the law will be beneficial to the country; it will enable many who have been embarrassed by debts which they never will be able to pay, to surrender all they have except their exemptions and get a final discharge from all of their debts, except what is due to the United States, your own state, county or municipality for taxes or for judgments in actions for fraud or obtaining property under false pretenses; or from debts which have not been duly scheduled in the petition of the bankrupt, or debts which were created by fraud, embezzlement, misappropriation or defalcation while acting as an officer or in any judiciary relation. It was said by Senator Hoar that in the United States more than 250,000 would take advantage of the act during the first year of its existence.

DON'T forget to come to Clanton on Saturday, get the official returns of the election, hear an address of thanks from Probate Judge elect Adams, and generally celebrate the return of your nominees.

PEACE negotiations are in progress between the United States and Spain and it appears probable the war is about ended, although there may possibly be some fighting in Porto Rico yet before the negotiations are concluded.

ONE of the surprises of the election has been the strength of the vote cast for Mr. Arledge for Representative. Of course, it was generally conceded he could not be elected, and it was thought he would only receive a light vote. Mr. L. H. Reynolds again is victorious.

All things considered Mr. W. A. B. Falkner made a good run for Clerk of the Circuit Court, but the popularity of the Populist nominee, Mr. E. B. Deason, easily overcame the claims of the Independent candidate. Mr. Deason received the highest vote cast in the county, 1155.

OUR County Superintendent of Education elect, Mr. Judson Strock who had no opposition, polled the second highest vote in the election, 1043, and as soon as inducted into his office will continue the good work of Superintendent Moore.

ALL Populists are especially invited to attend a grand rally to be held at Clanton on Saturday next, and celebrate the victory. After the official count has been declared, Probate Judge elect, S. M. Adams, will return thanks to his supporters, and a good time generally is anticipated.

WE have taken especial pains to secure the correct figures of the election, and so far as the vote for Governor, and the different county officers is concerned we believe our figures are absolutely correct, and of course will be substantiated by the official count on Saturday. It was impracticable to procure all the figures for the other State officers, and we will therefore give the complete returns next week.

WE raise no objection to the use of a shed for a polling place, but we most earnestly protest against having to pass a whole day surrounded by filth which could have been removed in ten minutes. The reporters and clerks at Clanton had the privilege of running the risk of contracting fever or of not holding any election, and of course they took the risk and had a most uncomfortable day.

The wonderful fighting of the first three days of July around Santiago is described by expert writers in the Review of Reviews for August. Mr. Winston Churchill gives in detail the clearest account yet published of the destruction of Cervera's fleet. The story as he tells it forms one of the most thrilling chapters in the history of the American navy. This is followed by Mr. John A. Church's review of the land engagements that ended in the capitulation of Santiago July 17. Both articles are brilliantly illustrated from Hemment's photographs taken immediately after the fighting.

THE ELECTION.

THE election of '98 is now a matter of history, and so far as Chilton county is accepted by our people as entirely satisfactory. As we predicted a few weeks ago the entire Populist county ticket was elected, and S. M. Adams is our Probate Judge elect, E. B. Deason our next Circuit Clerk, L. H. Reynolds returns again to the House of Representatives, and Judson Strock will assume control of the office of Superintendent of Education. So far, good!

There are several lessons may be learned from this election, and should be taken to heart by all our people. Inasmuch as our government is one of parties this election emphasizes the necessity of thorough party organization, and not only that the party be organized but that each individual member should recognize the imperative necessity of standing by the nominees of his party, and not indulge himself in running after strange gods.

It is not our intention or desire to reflect in any manner upon any of the independent candidates, but each can surely see for himself how his position would have been greatly strengthened had he been recognized as the representative of some party, whether it was Democratic or Republican. And any man before separating himself from the the party to which he has been aligned should seriously consider the effect his action may have not only upon his own political fortunes but also upon the party to which he owes allegiance. The time has passed when any man's personality alone is sufficient to carry him into office. But when a man breaks away from his party he is almost certain to carry some following with him, and in this way for the time being he is inflicting serious injury when possibly he may not intend to do so. The time to test a man's popularity is before the primary, and not the general, election, then the party is left intact to engage the opposition. However, we have no doubt but that such Populists who refrained from voting the full Populist ticket in this election will now see the error of their ways and again resume their place in the ranks. This temporary defection is already forgotten. There is no hard feeling, the staunch and true Populists who voted straight are satisfied with the result of the election and will gladly welcome their wandering brethren back to the fold. Let by-gones be by-gones!

So far as the State election is concerned our information is not of an encouraging nature. It is true our knowledge is derived from Democratic sources, but it really seems as if the Democrats had been victorious throughout the State, and that several counties which for the last few years have been in the control of the Popalists have gone back to Democracy. Where Populists had control of a county we know the election was honest and fair, and if a majority of the voters in those counties voted in favor of Democratic candidates it undoubtedly shows a reversion of political sentiment and a return to the "home of their fathers." However much we may deplore this state of affairs it is of no use shutting our eyes to it, and we look forward, with some anxiety it must confess, to what the triumphant Democrats will do in the future.

According to this (Thursday) morning's Age-Herald Governor Johnston's majority is about 65,000. Deans carried nine counties, and in 15 counties the Populists have elected Probate Judges. Six years ago Populists elected thirty-five Probate Judges.

Political Pointers.

Peoples Party Press Bureau
St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 3, 1898

A tremendous amount of abuse is being heaped upon the "government" apropos of the new revenue stamps. It is amusing to note that the chief complainants among private citizens still claim to be loyal Republicans, being abe with the agility which voting the G. O. P. ticket seems to insure, to separate the administration from its misdeeds. Many of the great trusts and combines that contributed largely to the campaign fund of '96 are evading the tax. The government officials when the matter is referred to them decline to give any opinion and up to the present the individual has been forced to pay the tax.

Alliances between the gold Democrats and Republicans are daily being announced. Jointly they will succeed in electing many congressmen.

Angered by his dominance of the recent Illinois state convention, the enemies of ex Governor Altgeld are heaping all manner of abuse upon him. The insertion of the initiative and referendum and state control of natural utilities, has had the effect of rousing the gold wing of the Democracy to issuing calls for meetings and the distribution of leaflets warning all Democrats against the present leaders of the party in Illinois, the silver question and the Chicago platform.

James R. Sovreign, past Grand Master Workman, of the Knights of Labor has recently returned to his home in Arkansas after an extended tour throughout the North-west in the interest of the Mohawks, the new Silver organization.

A great German corporation has purchased land immediately outside of the "model" (?) town of Pullman, Illinois, and will enter the manufacture of steel with the intention of breaking down the American Steel Trust. Success to them.

Fusion between Populists (?) and Republicans is reported from many counties in Arkansas.

Trouble among the striking coal miners still goes on.

The strike at Omaha resulted in a complete victory for the working men. Every demand made by them was granted by the packing companies.

The Chicago dailies have added a cent to the price of their sheets, giving as the reason for so doing the necessity of recouping in some way their losses during the recent strike. So far no means of making good their losses by the same methods have been discovered by the strikers.

The Populists and Democrats of North Dakota have united on a joint state ticket headed by D. M. Holmes of Grand Forks as candidate for Governor. Col. H. M. Creel, of Devil's Lake was named as candidate for congressman.

The Populists of Texas have nominated their state ticket with Barnett Gibbs of Dallas as candidate for governor and E. W. Kirkpatrick of Sherman for lieutenant governor. No delegates were elected to the Cincinnati convention.

Gov. Stephens of Missouri is one of the staunchest friends of silver in the West. In a recent published article he defines his position very clearly and predicts that free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1 will be the leading issue in 1900, notwithstanding the war with Spain.

Gen. Weaver will be the candidate for congressmon from the Sixth Iowa district on the Populists and Democratic tickets.

Gov. Pingree, of Michigan, favors establishing republics in colonies captured from Spain, the United States acting as guardian. A. R.

Does Baby Thrive?

If your baby is delicate and sickly and its food does not nourish it, put fifteen or twenty drops of Scott's Emulsion in its bottle three or four times a day and you will see a marked change.

We have had abundant proof that they will thrive on this emulsion when other food fails to nourish them.

It is the same with larger children that are delicate. Scott's Emulsion seems to be the element lacking in their food. Do not fail to try it if your children do not thrive. It is as useful for them in summer as in winter.

Ask your doctor if this is not true.

CROP REPORT

The weekly Crop Bulletin says: "Nearly normal temperatures obtained during the past week but the sunshine was deficient. Daily showers were quite general, and, while they were mostly light, the rainfall was heavy in some localities, and dry weather is needed for all crops. Cotton is in a generally healthy condition and continues to fruit well, but reports of rust and shedding are more numerous, and there are several complaints of its running to weed, and a few complaints of vermin; it is opening slowly, and only in a few middle and southern counties, but dry weather will cause it to open rapidly. Corn is maturing well and still promises a good yield; fodder pulling is being retarded by wet weather. Cane, sorghum, peanuts, field peas and potatoes continue very promising, and pasturage is excellent, though the continued rains have interfered with hay-making. Peaches and grapes are rotting some, but both are making a large yield; pears will make a fairly good yield, but apples are shedding. Fall gardens are thriving, and watermelons and cantaloupes continue plentiful."

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

ELI P. BABCOCK, of Avoca, N. Y., a veteran of the 3rd N. Y. Artillery and for thirty years of the Babcock & Munsel Carriage Co., of Auburn, says: "I write to express my gratitude for the miraculous benefit received from Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I suffered for years, as result of army life, from sciatica which affected my heart in the worst form, my limbs swelled from the ankles up. I bloated until I was unable to button my clothing; had sharp pains about the heart, smothering spells and shortness of breath. For three months I was unable to lie down, and all the sleep I got was in an arm chair. I was treated by the best doctors but gradually grew worse. About a year ago I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and it saved my life as if by a miracle."

Getting Her Money's Worth.

A young woman I know went to a spiritualist seance once upon an evening, and though she strained every nerve in an effort to concentrate her mind on her dear and gone acquaintances there was no message for her. Quite late in the evening the medium announced the presence of a spirit calling himself Uncle Jimmy. The young woman immediately rose and claimed him. Uncle Jimmy said he was doing nicely, sent his love to all the family and departed. As the young woman left the hall the escort ventured to say:

"Why, I didn't know you ever had an uncle named Jimmy."

"I never did," said the young woman cheerfully, "but I wasn't going to pay 50 cents to get into that seance and not get anything at all for my money."—Washington Post.

Bright Excuses.

"Shiftless as ever, Thomas?" said the wealthy uncle. "Still making a failure of life, as you always have done?"

"I don't know that I'm such a terrible failure," sulkily answered the poor relation.

"Why, you have nobody but yourself to support, and you can't make both ends meet."

"Well, the rainbow has only itself to support, and it doesn't make both ends meet either."—Chicago Tribune.

The Power of Mystery.

"I can't afford to have people think I don't know about this particular question," said the politician, "and I haven't the time I need to read up on it."

"Well," replied his wife, "in that case I'll tell you what I'd do. I'd look wise and get some paper to announce that you decline to be interviewed."—Washington Star.

The Blind Children.

It was the general hour for recess at the great New York Asylum For Blind Children. Down the bare wooden stairs a troop of eager boys clattered with so much of the usual bustle and push that one could hardly believe were it not for now and then a pair of cautious hands extended that all those restless, bright eyes were sightless. Out through the open doors to a small, barren playground they rushed. The feet of a foremost boy felt under them the joy of ice. There was a scream of pleasure. The two or three visitors standing near smiled at one another. It was merely a tiny, contracted patch of frozen drippings from the eaves that boys who know whole rivers and ponds of winter pleasure would have passed unnoticed. But, lo, this little afflicted one, whom we had been pitying as having lost most of life's pleasures, had found the key to that most precious of all earthly possessions—contentment. He threw up his happy little arms in a transport of pleasure. "Come on, boys!" he shouted, sliding down the narrow confines. "Come on! Come on! Here's a lake of ice."—

His French.

"You know," said the man in the elevated train, "that I am studying French, and I believed, at my last lesson, that I had thought upa good way of remembering it. I was to have, among other things, the numeral adjectives. It is hard to remember them when they haven't the slightest resemblance to the other English numerals, so I tried to keep them in mind by comparison. For instance, five I was sure of—'Cinq, Sunk, Sankey.' You see how simple that is!"

"Yes," said the second man hesitatingly.

"Quite simple," the first went on. "So I set myself to remember Sankey."

"And did you do it?"

"No," answered the French student disgustedly; "of course when I came to five I said 'Moody.'"

And the woman sitting near who had overheard the conversation so far forgot herself as to laugh aloud. —New York Times.

The Yellow Fever Bugaboo.

The lessons taught by General Butler in New Orleans in 1862 may be applied in Cuba in 1898. Yellow fever is no match for energy and common sense.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

When persons are feverish and thirsty beyond what is natural—indicated by a metallic taste in the mouth or by a whitish appearance of the greater part of the tongue—one of the best "coolers" is to take a lemon, cut off the top, sprinkle over it some loaf sugar, working it down into the lemon with a spoon, and then suck it slowly.

Mountain railways attracted the attention of engineers at a comparatively early date in the history of railway traffic. Undoubtedly the Semmering railway—which was the first line to cross the Alps—holds the distinction of being the first mountain railway that was built. This line connects Vienna with the Mediterranean at Triest.

CARING FOR THE WOUNDED.

MODERN HOSPITAL SERVICE ON THE BATTLE-FIELD AND IN THE AMBULANCE SHIP.

The Government devotes much time to arrangements for the comfort and treatment of its wounded soldiers, and the medical department of the army has made so many improvements in that direction in the course of the last ten or fifteen years that some of the surgeons who saw service in the Civil War find a new state of affairs at the present time. During the Civil War the medical corps was much smaller than it is at present, and, aside from the regular medical officers and hospital stewards, there were few men in the regiments who could be utilized for field hospital work in time of need.

About ten years ago the hospital corps was organized in the United States Army, and the system has been followed by nearly all the National Guard organizations, with the result that a great hospital corps, working under identical rules and regulations, exists in the regular and citizen armies, and is so well equipped and trained that the battle-field risks have been reduced. In the United States Army there are now to every company of sixty men four who are detailed as litter-bearers. When the companies are larger there are more litter-bearers, and a full company of 100 men would be entitled to eight men. In addition to these there are stewards and acting stewards and privates who are detailed for hospital corps service, and these men receive regular instructions in first aid to the injured.

The regulations prescribe that there shall be one hospital steward at every post, and two hospital stewards if the garrison has six companies, and one for every additional six companies. At every post of two companies there is an additional acting steward, and three privates are detailed for hospital corps duty at every post, and this number is increased when the post consists of more than two companies. The stewards and acting stewards are men who have some knowledge of pharmacy; many of them have been licensed to practice as druggists, and the privates who are selected to act with them are always chosen because of their general intelligence, and even in time of peace these men, by constant practice, attain a high degree of proficiency in first aid to the injured.

"But the Government has gone still further in the matter," said Colonel Burns, the officer in charge of the medical department at Governor's Island, "and has paved the way for a more extended and complete medical field service. The War Department recently issued an order directing that all first and second lieutenants shall receive instruction in first aid to the injured from the regular medical officers, and that the lieutenants, in turn, shall devote a certain number of hours every month to instructing the non-commissioned officers and privates in first aid to the injured. By this means every man becomes an assistant to the surgeons, and a source of comfort to his wounded comrade."

Surgeons who took their first degree in the Civil War say that thousands of men might have been saved in the course of that conflict if the present system had been in vogue.

"It was not only the private," said an Army surgeon, "who failed to receive proper attention because of inadequate preparations and insufficient help. General officers shared the same fate, and died on the battle-fields from wounds which under the present arrangements would not be necessarily fatal. A notable example was General Albert Sidney Johnson, of the Confederate Army, who was shot in the thigh at the battle of Pittsburg Landing. His surgeon was about to attend to him when he heard that another officer, of whom he thought much, had been wounded. He asked the surgeon to minister to the other officer, and before the medical man returned to the place where Johnston was resting, surrounded by his staff officers, the General had bled to death. There were similar cases on every battlefield, and we should see the same distressing scenes in this war if the medical service had not been improved."

In the National Guard commanding officers may cause to be enlisted in their hospital corps or transferred to it from companies men suitable for such service to the number of twelve for a regiment, eight for a battalion or squadron and two for each signal corps, company of infantry or battery.

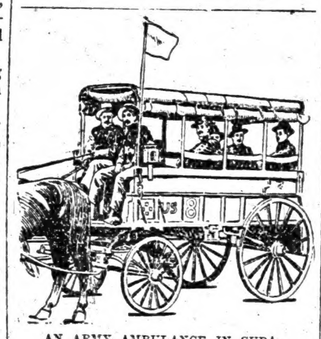
These men form a separate and distinct command. They wear a badge on the sleeve above the elbow of each arm, which is described as a lozenge of white cloth, containing in the centre a Geneva cross of red cloth.

"Drills and practice in making and handling litters may do much toward perfecting the hospital corps and fitting its members for actual service," said an army surgeon, "but it requires actual field work to bring out the true value of the organization. The first aid to the injured instruction has made it an easy matter for the litter-bearers and the members of the hospital corps to improvise litters out of muskets and straps, pieces of wood and strips of blankets, and the men all know how to make bayonets, scabbards and shoe soles take the place of splints until a permanent dressing may be applied. The men who render first aid are not supposed to dress the wounds of the men whom they pick up and carry to the rear, but their business is to bandage broken limbs so that the bones do not chafe and scarify the flesh, to make the men as comfortable as possible and in all cases to stop hemorrhages. They know the anatomy of the human body well enough to apply compress bandages at the proper places and prevent the flow of blood, and they know also when and how to administer stimulants and restoratives.

"When the man has been carried to the rear to the field hospital the work of the first aid men is over, and the patient goes into the hands of the regular medical officers. The treatment is the same as it would be in any well-regulated hospital. There are points and features about a hospital because everything is of a temporary character, but the surgeons' kits contain everything necessary for antiseptic surgery, and the temporary operating tables are kept as clean as the surroundings will permit. A field hospital may be a dismounted ambulance, a barn or a church or schoolhouse, and no surgeon can make arrangements much before he needs it for the place where he will establish his headquarters.

"The object is to have the wounded beyond the line of danger, and when the place has been selected, the senior surgeon becomes the commanding officer. The tent or building is guarded and protected by a detachment of troops detailed for that purpose, the hospital flag is hoisted, and in case of defeat and retreat the wounded are moved under cover of a guard in ambulances to a place of safety—if possible."

GREWSOME SCENES ON THE BATTLE-FIELDS AND IN THE HOSPITALS.



AN ARMY AMBULANCE IN CUBA.

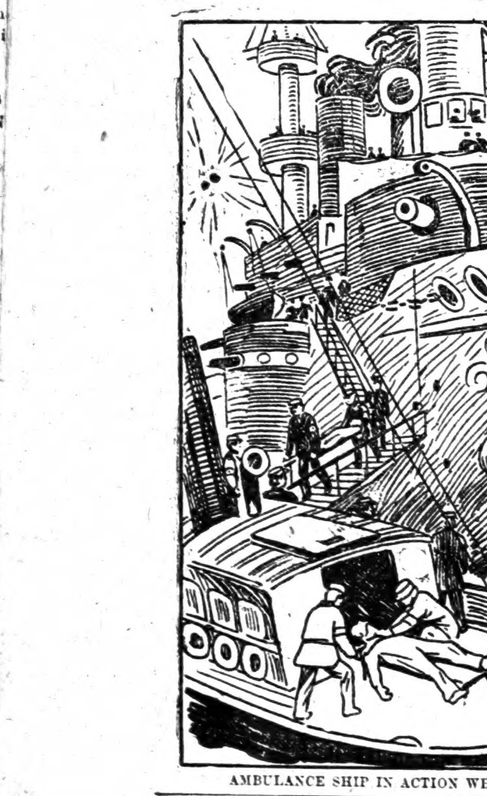
The pouches carried by the hospital corps orderlies contain crossed-bar wire for splints, four roller bandages, six gauze packages, four first-aid packages, one iodoform sprinkler, one Esmarch tourniquet for arresting hemorrhages, half an ounce of carbolized vaseline in a tube, two ounces of ammonia in a glass bottle in a leather case, two ounces of plain gauze, one ounce of lint, one irrigator, one bottle of ligatures, one pair scissors, one forceps and needle-holder, one diagnosis book, one case of pins and needles, three ounces of chloroform in a glass bottle in a leather case, half a yard of wire gauze for splints, one hypodermic syringe with tablets and a small medical case containing tablets of acetanilid, camphor and opium, quinine, cathartic compound and antiseptic.

The hospital corps pouches contain each six rolled bandages, two yards of gauze, one ounce of absorbent lint, one iodoform sprinkler, one tourniquet, one-half ounce carbolized vaseline, one spool of rubber plaster, one pair of scissors, one jackknife, two ounces of ammonia, one case of pins and needles and four first aid packages.

The regulations provide that corporals and privates of the hospital corps shall, in active service, carry a canteen of water, a knife of approved pattern and the hospital corps pouches.

The handling of wounded on ships of war is a subject which is engrossing the attention of the naval authorities of the world. The vessels utilized for this service must be swift steamers of fairly good capacity so far as room for the sick is concerned, and yet not of too large size to prevent quick turning and darting around and among a fleet of vessels. The treatment of the crew of such a craft is precisely that accorded the Red Cross Brigade. It is an unwritten law of every civilized nation that a wounded man and the man who aids him are both to be protected.

A difficulty that has been carefully considered lies in the removal of the wounded from the cruiser's decks to those of the ambulance ship. It is believed, however, that this difficulty has been surmounted by an arrangement that is as admirable as it is simple. It merely consists in placing the injured man on a mattress in a hammock, lashing him to the hammock, and then by means of safety hooks attached to the end of a stretcher-bar to the boat from the ambulance ship, which lies alongside. This action can be performed, unassisted, by two men, so far as transporting the injured man from the place where he falls to the boat's crew is concerned.



AMBULANCE SHIP IN ACTION WHEN A BATTLE IS RAGING.

HOW TO FURNISH A VERANDA.

A Pleasant Warm-Weather Room For Country Houses.

Every year the veranda is becoming more and more an integral part of the house beautiful. It is no longer merely a shelter from the elements, sparsely furnished with chairs, but is a living room and treated as such, and is furnished with the same taste and care that are bestowed upon the rest of the rooms. Of course, it goes without saying that both the textile and furniture employed must be as far as possible weather-proof, but this is no handicap nowadays, as rugs and materials that defy rain and snow are to be had in the greatest variety—except directly on the seashore, where the dampness and high winds make it impossible. An outdoor room, netted in so that the lights at night will not attract troublesome insects, prettily and comfortably furnished, should be a part of every country house. Curtains made of colored awning cloth and hung with small brass rings on a slender galvanized iron rod, so that they may easily be pushed forward and back, are both useful and pretty, although some people prefer Venetian blinds or the rattan shades, which now come for verandas of any width desired. Hammocks, of course, are the natural lounging places for a veranda room, but they are now made much more elaborately than formerly, with valances hanging on either side, and piled up with cushions of many colors.

The accompanying sketch shows one which filled a corner of the veranda of a seaside cottage last summer. The shape is an irregular elongated triangle, with two sides against the walls of the house, and consists of a frame a foot high, on which is a mattress covered with India rubber cloth. Over this is a buttoned covering of green denim, with a flounce, and the drapery consists of an old sail and a fish-net, which is held up by a pair of oars and a crab-net, all of which have been well-seasoned by wind and weather.

Fire Crackers in China.

The use of fire crackers is universal in China, and has been so as far back as history records. It is most probable that in the beginning they were used to frighten away evil spirits. Now they are most frequently an expression of good feeling or of ceremonious compliment. They are used at weddings, births and funerals; at festivals; religious, civil and military ceremonies; at New Year; to salute persons about to make a journey; and, in fact, on all occasions out of the ordinary routine.

The Youngest Captain.

Captain Smith, of Company D, One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Regiment, Indiana Volunteers, now at Camp Alger, Va., is the youngest Captain in the volunteer army. He is nineteen years of age, and a son of Captain S. M. Smith, a veteran of the Civil War.

An Expensive Tomb.

The finest tomb in Great Britain is undoubtedly that of the Duke of Hamilton, in the grounds of the Duke's seat. It cost over $1,000,000.

More than forty per cent. of the British people could not write their names when the Queen ascended the throne. The proportion in that condition has now been reduced to seven per cent.

THE REALM OF FASHION

The Latest Headgear.

Sunbonnets have taken on a new aspect this season, writes May Manton, and are the latest headgear for the maidens who play golf and tennis, or indulge in any other form of outdoor recreation. Quite fanciful and dainty they look made of sheer fabrics, such as organdie, silk, muslin, dimity or fine lawn, with lace-edged frills and ruchings of the same material. The front is made over a stiff lining of canvas, which holds it in shape away from the face and protects the complexion from freckles and tan. Picturesque bonnets in this style are made to match the gown, and are worn for morning and afternoon walks in the country, for boating and picnic parties. For more practical purposes, such as working in the garden, gingham may be used.

A FETCHING GOLF BONNET.

The pattern comprises four portions—front, crown, curtain and tiestring, the ruching, hemmed or lace-edged, and from two to three inches wide, being laid in double box pleats and stitched on in centre.

While quite as protective as the old-fashioned sunbonnet, this style has the advantage of lighter weight and coolness, the thin crown rising up from the head and the flaring front standing well out from the face.

To make this bonnet will require one and one-half yards of material thirty-six inches wide.

Yoke Effects on the Increase.

Guimpe and yoke effects are on the increase, and many new gowns are made low-cut and sleeveless, several styles of guimpes being provided to wear with them, and thus give charming variety to the toilet. Two styles are shown in the large engraving. No. 1, of white silk mousseline, made over a lining of pink taffeta, is designed to be worn with a gown of ash gray veiling. The lining is fitted with double bust darts, under-arm gores and a centre-back seam, that may end just below the bust or at the waistline, as shown. The closing is effected invisibly in centre-front by hooks and eyes. The lining is fitted, the shoulders seamed and the standing collar joined to the neck before the shirred material is applied. The mousseline is arranged in graduated puffs by gathers at funnel-shaped spacings, front and back, indicated on the pattern by perforated lines. This is applied to the lining at corresponding perforations on the collar, bust and back, as illustrated. Rows of shirring to match extend the whole length of the sleeves, that are arranged over two-seamed linings. No. 2 shows the lining cut off below the bust, the guimpe and sleeves being made of pale blue Liberty silk, decorated in the sun-ray style, with narrow ruchings of the same material that radiate from the neck. A stock of the same, with ruche-finished ends, covers the standing collar and closes in centre-back. While sheer materials are chosen for midsummer wear, guimpes in this style will be made from silk, velvet, brocade and guipure lace, over satin, as the season advances. Insertion, gimp, ruchings of net or ribbon, or rows of frilled ribbon and braid, can be used to decorate in lattice or diamond outlines.

WOMAN'S GUIMPE.

To make No. 1 for a woman of medium size will require three and one-quarter yards of material thirty-six inches wide. To make No. 2 will require two yards of the same width material with lace insertion over white. The tiny revers that roll back from the fronts are faced with white. Applique bands of white embroidered chiffon form the handsome decoration around the square-cut neck and down the edges of each front, ending at the wrist. The stylish arrangement of the waist is made over perfect-fitting linings that close in centre-front. The seamless back can either have a full yoke applied over the material, or the material can be cut away to form the fashionable guimpe effect, or the waist of one fabric if so preferred. The plastron is included in the shoulder seam, its edges being joined to the lining under right front and the left edge and shoulder seam separately, and provided with hooks to close at the shoulder and down the front. The standing collar, to match the yoke, is joined to the neck and closes at the left side. The waist is drawn well down over the waist line, and the front is arranged in the fashionable blouse effect. A fancy belt may be worn at the waist.

Stylish sleeves, very similar to those of No. 1, are arranged over fitted linings, and epaulettes with applique edges are gracefully disposed on the shoulders of mousseline. The neck and sleeve edges finish the waist. Charming combinations of color and coloring can be made by the modes, which include all qualities and kinds of material and style of trimming. To make for a woman of medium size of material forty-four inches will be required.

THE PHONOGRAPHIC CLOCK.

Evils and Benefits of an Invention Just Put on the Market in Germany.

Some modern inventions are a boon to humanity and others are not. The phonographic clock which has just been launched upon the market in Germany belongs to the latter category. One must admit the alarm clock in the theory of modern life, but a phonographic alarm clock adds insult to injury. If one must be wakened, one must; but how can one turn over and take the final luxurious forty winks when the depressing programme of a busy day has been shouted into one's ears? Things that seemed natural and practicable the night before present an appalling front in the early morning; and the breakfast hour, announced in strident tones, is much more insistent than when suggested by an impersonal metallic clang.

Some valuable possibilities the new invention does possess. The housewife needn't laboriously explain breakfast details to the servant at night, and find the next morning that all important points have been conscientiously forgotten. She sets the phonographic alarm for an early hour, talks directions into it, and the next morning the cook is wakened by a stern voice telling her exactly what is expected of her in regard to breakfast preparation.

Paterfamilias, too, can work the combination. No more will he sit up until his pretty daughter's caller goes home and resort to time-honored hints to hasten the departure. He will not slam shutters and noisily lock doors and bid the other members of the family good night at the top of his voice and drop his shoes on the bedroom floor with a force that shakes the parlor chandeliers, and call down to the daughter that she must be careful about turning off the gas and locking the door. He will never be goaded by a sense of parental duty into walking into the parlor and making a scene and reducing the daughter to a point of tears. Oh, no; he will simply set the phonographic alarm for the hour when he thinks young men should end their calls. Then he will go serenely to bed; and when the fatal hour strikes a specimen of the old gentleman's finest irony will be hurled at the offending guest. Exit young man. The maiden wrathfully weeps alone.

A Humane Engineer.

One never knows the value of an amiable deed till he knows all its consequences; and the merit of it is in not knowing them all beforehand.

An engineer of a passenger train on a Mississippi railroad was driving through a snow-storm, eagerly scanning the track as far as he could see, when, half-through a deep cut, something appeared, lying on the rails. It was a sheep with her two little lambs.

His first thought was that he could rush on regardless of them, probably without damage to his train; but the sight of the innocent family cowering in the storm touched him, and as they paid no heed to his warning whistle he pulled the air-brake and sent his fireman ahead.

In a few minutes the fireman came back with a terrified face. There had been a land-slide, and just beyond the cut the track was covered with rocks. It seemed certain that if the train had gone on at full speed, in the blinding snow, it would have been impossible to stop in time to escape disaster.

In the absolute sense the incident was providential,—as everything is,—but circumstantially the passengers on that railway train owed their safety, if not their lives, to an engineer who was too tender-hearted to kill a sheep and her lambs.

Missed Gold and Made Money.

If a man has a little information that a great many other persons must have he is likely to find that his small bit of knowledge is as good as a valuable gold mine. This has proven the case with W. L. Foster, of Astoria, Ore., who went to the Klondike to prospect for gold, but who made a small fortune piloting vessels through the dangerous White Horse rapids. All of the boats that go up the Yukon river to the best gold country must pass the rapids, and only a few men know how to safely steer a boat through the treacherous shallows. Mr. Foster failed to locate a gold mine, but he learned the rapids, and from May 22 to June 12, 1897, he piloted 217 boats, receiving as much as $200 for piloting a single vessel and making $12,000 in all. The time required to take a boat safely through the rapids was about forty minutes, so you see the pilot received pretty good pay for his information and service.—Chicago Record.

Treasures in Spanish Cathedrals.

The cathedrals and churches of Spain are richer than any in the world outside of Rome and Moscow. In 1808 the French army looted many of the churches and carried off millions of dollars' worth of relics and treasures, including the famous pulpit in the mosque at Cordova, which is said to have been worth $4,000,000, but the priests took pains to hide the greater part of their jewels and their gold and silver altar furniture, and now at Burgos, Valladolid, Salamanca, Toledo, Cordova, Valencia, Malaga, Seville and other places there are treasures that justify the expectations above cited. Doubtless the precious metals and gems on the altars of these churches would bring $250,000,000 if they could be offered to the public, and $500,000,000 would be a moderate estimate of the value of the ecclesiastical treasures of Spain.

The Coral Island of Key West.

The island of Key West is of coral formation, contains about 2000 acres and has a population of some 25,000—Americans, Cubans, Chinese and colored people.

Bootblacks in London.

The force of American demand is being once more exemplified in London by the placing at all important railroad stations of chairs in connection with the bootblack brigade. This work is undertaken by the Central Shoeblack Society. There is already such accommodation provided at Viaduct station. It appears that American gentlemen visiting London express surprise that they are expected to stand while they have their boots blacked, as they are accustomed to sit during the operation at home.

The society has sixty boys, who are lodged, taught and partially boarded on the premises of the institution, and there is an ingenious allotment of their earnings into three parts after an allowance for food required out of doors, one-third being their own, another third the society's and the remaining third going to their bank account, on which they can draw for special purposes.

Misinformation in Australia.

The following account of the proper way of reaching the Klondike is taken from an Australian newspaper: "The real starting point for the Klondike is Spokane. There the traveler takes a canoe, by which he voyages to Vancouver, B. C. At the latter point he takes a sailing vessel direct to Dawson City."

OUR VICTORY!

The American people are noted for their ingenuity. This accounts in a great measure for our easy victory in our naval battles. This same ingenuity is enabling our people to lessen their work and get greater returns from whatever they may engage in. One of the latest inventions is a portable plank fence by Young and Cable. This fence requires no posts, cannot be blown down, can be easily taken apart and put up, enabling the farmer to pasture any old corners not in cultivation. It is safe to say this invention will be worth thousands of dollars to the farmers of the South. They want progressive, practical farmers to sell the rights for using this fence. Write to J. A. CONFIDE IN A WOMAN.

Women may write about their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham and avoid the questions of a male physician.

The questions asked of a woman by a male physician are embarrassing and frequently revolting to a sensitive nature. In consequence the whole truth is not told! This makes it difficult for female troubles to be successfully treated, and is the reason so many women grow worse rather than better.

Mrs. LUCY A. LOUGHERY of New Lebanon, Ind., describes how wretched she was until she received Mrs. Pinkham's help:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I propped myself in a chair and wrote to you, and as soon as I commenced to take your Vegetable Compound I began to improve. I had suffered with severe pains in my hips, back and head. The doctor said I had bladder trouble and falling of the womb. I had spells when, if I did not sit down, I would fall. I was sleepy all the time. I was also troubled with leucorrhœa and itching piles. People thought that my end was near. Had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advice, I would have been dead and buried long ago. I hope that this letter may be the means of helping all women who suffer as I did.

Women understand women better than men can. The whole truth is freely told to Mrs. Pinkham, and women only see the letters received by her at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is freely offered.

Here is a convincing letter from a woman in Bethlehem, Pa.:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Words cannot express my gratitude for the good that your Vegetable Compound has done me. I have taken five bottles, and feel better in every respect. Menses heretofore lasted too long and were very profuse, and made me very weak. Your Compound is a miracle. Before writing to you I had tried doctor's medicine, but of no avail. I would not give up your Compound for female complaints for all the doctor's medicine in the world. My friends want to know what makes me look so well. I do not hesitate one minute in telling them what has brought about this wonderful change. I cannot sing its praises enough. I hope every one who suffers as I have will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound a trial; and I know that, if taken according to directions, it will cure.—MRS. EDWIN EHRIG, 413 Church Street, Bethlehem, Pa.

All women who suffer should secure Mrs. Pinkham's counsel. Female troubles are real troubles, and must be treated understandingly. For a quarter of a century Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have been helping women to be strong and well, more than a million women have been benefited by it.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wageworkers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively, when demonstrative action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be lasting and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a well educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editorial "Progress of the World" is succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in their contents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of importance.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the Monthly or Monthly the alertness, timeliness and energy of journalism with the sound judgment carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is how gauged by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

Death of Mr. J. H Chandler.

For several years Mr. J. H. Chandler has been one of the valued citizens of Chilton county, and his passing away on Monday morning, in the prime of life, age about 48 is greatly regretted by the entire community. He had been sick with typhoid fever the last two or three weeks, and it was hoped until the last that he would recover, but an All-wise Providence saw fit to take him away. He was a member and a deacon of the Baptist church, and an honored member of the masonic fraternity. As a citizen he will be missed, while to his family and immediate friends his loss is irreparable. A good husband and a kind father is mourned by his widow and five children, whose consolation is in the knowledge that a well-spent life has its reward above. The funeral took place on Tuesday evening at the cemetery at Clanton, the religious services being held in the Baptist church, Rev. B. D. Gray officiating. There was a large number of citizens paid their last tribute of respect to the deceased gentleman, and the masons gave their departed brother the usual masonic interment rites. In common with all our citizens we offer our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

Mr. Chandler, of Newnan, Ga., a brother of the deceased, came over to attend the funeral, but unfortunately arrived too late.

Mr. Tom Brooks, of Newnan, Ga., a brother of Mrs. Chandler, came over to the funeral.

A Chase After an Escaped Convict.

Yesterday afternoon, in the middle of the heaviest downpour of rain, City Marshal Dudley was handed a telegram telling him to look for an escaped convict who was making his way north and was supposed to be stealing a ride on freight train No. 20. Just as the marshal was reading the telegram, No. 20 pulled into the depot. Away, through the deluge, went the marshal at a 2.40 gait, and Dr. Campbell and Dick Hadley joined in the chase. Sure enough, the convict was on the train, but he saw the posse coming and blew up the track through the cut. The marshal and the doctor are both good sprinters but they were not in it with the escapee, who plunged into the swamp and was last seen up to his waist in water. Another posse is after him on horseback.

The following is a description of the convict. Yellow negro, about nineteen years old, scars on breast and right leg.

WORN-OUT WOMEN

Most women are drudges. Some are willing, some are unwilling. Some women drudge for themselves, some for their family. Their routine is endless; no matter how ill they feel they work.

Women never half take care of themselves. Early decay and wrecked lives abound, mainly through neglect. Every woman should have the book called "Health and Beauty," which the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail on request. It tells women some easy things to do to protect health, and all about the virtues of Pe-ru-na for women's peculiar ills. Miss Lizzie Peters, Mascoutah, Ill., writes:

"I am perfectly cured of female weakness by taking Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin. I have gained thirty-seven pounds since I began taking Pe-ru-na. My friends are wondering what makes me look so bright and healthy. I would like to let the world know what a wonderful medicine Pe-ru-na is."

Woman's diseases are mainly catarrh of the pelvic organs. Pe-ru-na drives out every phase of catarrh.

Mrs. Eliza Wike, No. 120 Iron Street, Akron, O., writes:

"I would be in my grave now if it had not been for your God-sent remedy, Pe-ru-na. I was a broken-down woman, now I am well."

CLANTON, - ALABAMA

The dynamite cruiser Vesuvius has proved true to her name. She breathes forth ruin and desolation at will.

The Vesuvius has a dangerous cough, but it is of a kind that worries the other fellow.

England will not have her customary naval review this year. She doubtless feels that America is presenting a somewhat more impressive exhibition in the same line.

It is barely possible that the dynamite cruiser of the Vesuvius class will supplant both the torpedo boat and the monitor in future naval armament, thinks the Chicago Times-Herald.

American lumber exports are on the increase as shown by returns for the last two years. During 1895 the value of lumber exports was $30,000,000, during 1896 33,000,000, and for 1897 there was an increase of 20 per cent., bringing the total up to $40,000,000.

Angusti, the Spanish governor of the Philippines, offered a reward of $25,000 for the head of Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader. The latter captured the governor's wife and children, whom he treated as tenderly as if they were his own. Perhaps this is an exhibition of the Philippine savagery that Madrid talks so much about.

The first railroad in Sweden was opened in 1855, and the country has now in proportion to its population, more railways than any other country in Europe. They are owned partly by the state and partly by private corporations. Sweden has the only railway in the world which passes the polar circle, i. e., the state line from Lulea to Gellivare, in the Lapland district.

The progress of English toward universal use was shown when Doctor Nansen recently addressed the Russian Geographical society on the theme of his Arctic adventures. He spoke in English, saying he knew no Russian, was not sure of German, and could not use French with any degree of ease; but not one of his audience complained of not being able to understand English.

The poverty and low state of social life and civilization of the Spaniards is indexed quite accurately by their wage rates, states Gunton's Magazine. For instance, the average weekly pay of a bricklayer in Spain (Malaga) is $3.80; in the United States $21.18; of a mason $3.30 in Spain, $21 in the United States; of a carpenter $3.90 in Spain, $14.35 in the United States; of printers $4.50 in Spain, $16.42 in the United States; of laborers, porters, etc., $2.75 in Spain, $8.88 in the United States. While rents, and possibly prices of a few native products are lower in Spain than in the United States, the difference comes nowhere near equalling the wide disparity of wages. Moreover, in a comparison of this sort the quality of the living must be considered as well as the nominal cost. Thus lower rents nearly always imply inferior accommodations, and, to the average Spaniard, most of the comforts and conveniences in ordinary use here are unattainable luxuries.

It would appear from all accounts that M. Chacot's enterprise of the manufacture of spiders'-web silk is to be pursued on a large scale, a factory in Paris having been taken for the purpose. Here the spiders will be kept and worked at regular hours, and, when one of them is used up, he will be fed and helped back to condition again, while another will take his place on the bobbin. An expert, fully acquainted with the habits of the insect, will be in control of the spider department of the factory, the care of them, feeding, housing, etc. In obtaining the requisite supply, if the latter exceeds what is necessary for the industry, experiments will be made with a view to ascertaining which of the different varieties produces the finest quality of silk, and in this way those not favored with a fine web will be weeded out. Trials will likewise be made with different diets, in order to determine whether or not it is possible to train the spider to give forth a web that is an improvement on the ordinary product—the expectation being that perseverance in this respect will result in securing a quality of silk hitherto unsurpassed.

ORDERED TO COME HOME.

General Shafter's Army Are Preparing to Move Northward.

EIGHTEEN TRANSPORTS SENT TO SANTIAGO.

Sickness in the Army Causes the War Department to Order the Removal of the Troops to Healthier Climes. Embarkation Begun.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—Major-General Shafter has received orders to move his entire army north at once. The six transports here will take the first shipments and the embarkation has begun. There is great rejoicing among the troops.

From the moment Secretary Alger's cable message was received ordering the instant removal of the army north everything has been activity and bustle at headquarters. The transports here, three in number, have been ordered to discharge their cargoes and to get ready without loss of time to take on board the first shipments for home. Other transports are expected here shortly and it is expected that eighteen transports will soon be conveying our soldier boys back to the United States.

General Shafter's orders for the movement of his command provides the following programme:

The embarkation of the Third and Sixth Regiments of Cavalry; then the First Regiment of Cavalry and First Volunteer Cavalry (Rough Riders) will be embarked. The regiments have been ordered to go on board ships not later than Saturday. For the present the Ninth and Tenth Cavalry will remain in camp. Only the private horses of the officers will be taken. The other horses will be turned over to General Wood, who remains as military governor.

All the tents will be left standing and all the extra worn clothing and bedding, which may be possibly infected, will be destroyed. All the men who are suffering from yellow fever or infectious diseases will be left here.

RUSSIA AND ENGLAND

May Soon Be Mixed Up in a Fight—Admiralty is Preparing for Emergencies.

LONDON.—That extreme diplomatic tension exists between St. Petersburg and London is generally admitted. It is hoped that the firmer stand adopted by the Marquis of Salisbury during the last few days, which seems to have already created some misgivings at St. Petersburg, will have the desired effect of arresting Russian aggressiveness. It is felt both here and on the continent that the outcome of the dispute in regard to the new Chwang railroad extension is the crucial point of the success or failure of Great Britain's policy of the "open door." As evidence of the fact that Great Britain appreciates the gravity of the situation, the Associated Press learns that the admiralty is preparing for all emergencies, and it will soon be ready to mobilize the entire fleet on the shortest notice.

SKIRMISH IN PORTO RICO.

Gen. Brooke's Advance Guard Rout a Force of 500 Spaniards.

PONCE.—General Brooke's advance guard entered Guayama after a sharp skirmish in which several on both sides were wounded. The general advance was delayed by the grounding of the transport Massachusetts. The Massachusetts floated and will proceed to Atroyo. The cavalry troops will go overland if peace is declared. The plans of the army are to cross the island, and they will probably be unmolested.

The Spanish force at Guayama, numbering 500, were driven back toward Cayay with a loss of one killed and two wounded.

Off for Hawaii.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The transport steamers Lakeme and Charles G. Nelson, bearing five companies of the First New York Volunteers and the Second United States Volunteer engineers, sailed from San Francisco for Honolulu Saturday.

Messina Shaken Up.

There was a severe earthquake shock at Messina Saturday. The inhabitants were panic-stricken, but there was no damage done.

Library for the Alabama.

Mrs. Lelia Seton Wilder, who went as Governor Bradley's invited guest to the christening of the Kentucky, has inaugurated a movement to buy a splendid library for the battleship Alabama, in addition to the usual service of silver to be contributed.

All Volunteer Troops Will See Service.

Secretary Alger says that Major-General Wade's division will go to the front in Porto Rico. The troops of all states which have not yet seen service will be given all the opportunity they want in garrison duty, and, if the war is continued, in the field around Havana.

Powerful Squadron Will Visit Europe

Admiral Sampson will take to the Mediterranean, as soon as circumstances will permit, the most powerful vessels of his squadron.

Captain Clark Ordered Home.

Capt. Charles E. Clark, commander of the battleship Oregon, now in Cuban waters, off Santiago, has been invalided home.

An American Bank at Santiago.

The North American Trust Company, of New York, has established a bank at Santiago.

ARMISTICE WILL BE DECLARED.

Will in No Way Interfere With Former Plans to Garrison Santiago.

WASHINGTON.—An armistice will be declared in all probability by Wednesday, and the proclamation promulgated. The officials of the war department say that it will in no way interfere with their plans to garrison and occupy Cuba, but that those troops ordered to Porto Rico, which are now already on their way, when the proclamation is issued will not be permitted to preceed, as there are sufficient troops there now to garrison the island. Those regiments which are partially embarked will be allowed to proceed.

It is known that Ambassador Cambon has received Spain's reply, and that it contains the full acceptance of the president's terms of peace. As soon as the armistice is declared the blockade at Havana will be partially lifted, sufficient to allow food supplies to reach the island. In all other respects it will be maintained. The question as to using the Spanish soldiers to police the island is causing some trouble, as it is feared that they could not be trusted, but will pillage the people, feeling no sense of responsibility in their work. The president is determined, if possible, to keep our troops out of Havana until the fall and will employ almost any means to do so.

MACIAS ADVISED TO SURRENDER.

The Spaniards in Reply Announced That They Were Ready to Fight.

PONCE, ISLAND OF PORT RICO.—United States Consul Hanna has received information that the foreign consuls at San Juan de Porto Rico, the capital of this island, advised the Spanish authorities to surrender the island to the American troops. The Spaniards, however, in reply, announced that they had resolved to fight. Thereupon, the consuls notified the Spanish commander, Captain-General Macias, that they would establish a neutral zone between Bayamon and Rio Piederas, in which to gather the foreign residents and their portable property in order to insure their safety in the event of a bombardment of the place by the American forces. The consuls sent a similar notification to General Miles. In spite of this brave talk, it is understood that the Spanish officers of minor rank have refused to fight or to imperil their lives in defense of San Juan.

TRIBUTE TO COURAGE.

Admiral Cervera Pays a Neat Tribute to Lieutenant Hobson.

In response to an invitation extended in the name of the people of Greensboro, Ala., to visit Lieutenant Hobson's home, Admiral Cervera writes:

"I thank you very much and also the citizens of Greensboro for the kind expressions contained in your letter, and you will allow me to say that it is I who should render thanks (which I do with the greatest pleasure) for the kind and generous treatment which I am receiving at the hands of the American people. It would be gratifying to me to accept your invitation to visit Greensboro, where was born the brave Lieut. Richmond Pearson Hobson, but it will be impossible for me to do so, for as soon as the war is ended it will be obligatory upon me to return immediately to Spain to account for my conduct, which must be judged as provided for by the law. Nevertheless, I shall not fail to carry through all my life the remembrance of such brave officers as Lieutenant Hobson, and also the flattering invitation tendered me by the city of his birth."

Force Landed to Collect Cerruti Claim.

Italy has notified the United States of her intention to land a military force somewhere in Colombia in default of a compliance with her demands in connection with the Cerruti claim. The American government replied, recognizing Italy's full right to do so, and expressing the hope of a pacific solution.

Cervera Visits His Sick.

Admiral Cervera, accompanied by his son, Lieutenant Cervera, who have been prisoners of war at the naval academy at Annapolis for several weeks, has received special permission from the navy department to visit Spanish officers who are under medical treatment at Newport News and Norfolk.

Thirty People Drowned at Sea.

The tug W. J. Keyser, which left Pensacola, Fla., Tuesday to meet a tow off Cape San Blas, encountered a storm about midnight, was thrown on her beam ends and rapidly went to pieces. Nine of the crew of thirteen escaped in a life boat and after eight hours were tossed upon the beach at St. Joseph's bay.

The Mobile tug Nimrod lost her smokestack, was badly damaged, but succeeded in reaching St. Joseph's bay. Her tow, the dredge Hernion, and two scows from Mobile, which were being carried to Dry Tortugas, foundered and every man on board, twenty-six in all, were lost.

Lost It Gambling.

The Mississippi State Board of Education has received notification that Q. D. Gibbs, superintendent of education of Yazoo county, is $2,294.25 short in his accounts. Gibbs claims to have lost the money at the gambling table.

Shafter's Report of the Sick.

The sanitary report of the army at Santiago for August 4 is as follows: Total sick, 3,354; fever cases, 2,548; new cases of fever, 504; returned to duty, 549; deaths, 15.

WELCOMED AS LIBERATORS

The Americans Are Taking Peaceful Possession of Porto Rico.

NATIVES ARE OFFERING NO RESISTANCE.

Marines Land and Capture Lighthouse at San Juan—General Macias Issues Proclamation Saying He Can Drive Off Americans.

OFF SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO.—The Americans have taken peaceful possession of the eastern portion of the island. Small parties of marines have been landed, who have lighted lamps in the lighthouse at Cape San Juan and at other lighthouses along the coast. They met with no resistance. Indeed, at Cape San Juan deputations of citizens came out to meet them.

Off San Juan the cruiser New Orleans alone maintains the blockade. The city is grim and silent, but back of her yellow walls there will be plenty of determination and fight when the Americans open fire.

Captain-General Macias has issued a proclamation, in the course of which he says: "Spain has not sued for peace, and I can drive off the American boats, as I did Sampson's attempt before."

Miles Steadily Proceeding.

PONCE, PORTO RICO.—General Miles is proceeding without regard to peace negotiations. Krag-Jorgensens are being issued. The Second and Third Wisconsin are moving up to the Sixteenth Pennsylvania. Colonel Hulings has captured 500 pounds of rice. Thus far the enemy has not molested him.

General Brooke's landing at Arroyo was successful.

The troops from the Roumanian, four batteries from the Twenty-eighth Indiana, the First Missouri, the First Pennsylvania and the Third Illinois are disembarking there. The Morgan troops of the Fifth Cavalry and the Mississippi commissaries have arrived here.

TREATY WILL BE SIGNED.

Draft of Answer to America Read Before Spanish Cabinet—Cortes Will Meet to Approve It.

A Saturday's special from Madrid says:

Duke Almodovar de Rio, minister of foreign affairs, read the draft of the answer to America tonight at a cabinet council. The peace treaty will be signed as soon as possible and the cortes convened immediately to approve it. The cabinet members declined to state officially the exact terms, but there are good reasons for believing Spain will accept all the American conditions.

Approved by the Queen.

A Madrid special says: "The queen regent has approved the reply of the Spanish government to the United Statse, accepting the conditions laid down by the latter, under which peace will be concluded."

Favored by the Cabinet.

MADRID.—The cabinet has approved the basis of the reply to the peace conditions of the United States. Duke Almodovar de Rio, the minister of foreign affairs, is charged with revising the reply, which will be read and approved at the cabinet council. It is stated on good authority that the Spanish reply will give no occasion for a further response from the United States.

Spain Objects to Paying the Cuban Debt.

Spain's answer will accept all the American terms except that regarding the Cuban debt. The government will fight this point on the ground that in all other cessions of territory by one nation to another, the ceded territory has carried with it its own debt, or the proportion belonging to the nation by which it is ceded. President McKinley will receive the answer on Monday, or at the latest on Tuesday.

Captain Hubert Dead.

Captain Edgar Hubert, Eighth Infantry, died of brain fever at Ponce, Porto Rico, last week. Captain Hubert was born in Georgia and appointed to West Point from that state.

The Prince May Visit Us.

It is reported in connection with the Anglo-American movement that strong endeavors are being made to get the Prince of Wales to visit the United States and Canada next summer, and it is added that encouragement has been given the idea in responsible quarters.

Maria Teresa Floated.

Advices received from Santiago makes it certain that the Infanta Maria Teresa is now floated and is found to be in fairly good condition as to her machinery and boilers. She will shortly start for Norfolk under her own steam.

May Remain in the State.

Orders have been received for the First North Carolina regiment, in camp at Jacksonville, Fla., and the First Alabama and Second Texas regiments, now at Miami, to communicate with General Wade at Washington and to hold themselves in readiness for early departure for Porto Rico. These orders were sent from Washington before the prospects for peace were so favorable as they are now, and it is surmised that there may be a change, and that the regiments will remain in Florida.

STATE NORMAL COLLEGE.

An Institution Well Known for Its High Standard of Scholarship.

The State Normal College, Florence, Ala., has long been known for its high standard of scholarship. It has pursued the policy of selecting its faculty from the best universities and training schools of this country. The new members of the faculty are as follows:

Chair of Languages—Prof. D. S. Burleson, who has taught in several Virginia colleges and has just completed the Ph. D. course in Latin and Greek at the University of Virginia.

Chair of Pedagogy and Methods—Miss F. M. Witter, who has been for the past ten years assistant Methods Teacher in the State Normal School at New Paltz, New York.

Assistant in Model School—Mrs. Sallie Kirkman Vaughn, who is well known in this state, and who has for the past year pursued special studies at the Peabody Normal, Nashville.

Principal of the Model School—Miss Caroline W. McNair, a graduate from the State Normal School, Geneseo, New York, and from the University of New York. Miss McNair has taught in some of the best graded schools of New York and New Jersey, and for one year taught the Training Class in the Birmingham city schools.

The prospects of the institution were never brighter. Its graduates have gone out into every county in the state, and wherever they have gone, they have demonstrated that trained teachers are the best teachers. There is a demand for these teachers. Young men and women are beginning to realize that the profession of teaching offers to competent teachers as fair remuneration as any other profession, and much greater opportunity for usefulness. The Florence Normal has proven a good investment for the state. It has trained hundreds of men and women who not only make a comfortable living for themselves, but make better schools for the state.

The fall term will begin September 12th. Already a large number of people, many of them teachers, have signified their intention of entering next session. The average expense for the year is only about $100, a remarkably small expense for so many excellent advantages.

Troy (Ala.) Normal.

President Eldridge, of Troy Normal college, recently favored Shelby county with a visit, delivering eloquent and instructive lectures at Calera, Columbiana and Shelby. Dr. Eldridge as an educator and platform speaker is among the most eminent in Alabama. He has the deepest interest in the best development of every part of our educational system. He is a vigorous and untiring opponent of those who in their unwisdom and narrowness of vision would sacrifice one part of our educational system in the supposed interest of another part. He is thoroughly posted as to the educational developments elsewhere, and is working hard to keep Alabama in line with the best progress. He knows that Alabama can not keep step with her sister states nor wisely accomplish her mission along educational lines without high ideals in respect to teacher training. The value of such a man to a state is beyond computation.

Not long since we had the special privilege of visiting every department of the college at Troy and seeing the teachers at their work. They are expert teachers in their different lines. A special note should be made of the fact that the school is in the hands of Christian men. This is a state institution where the moral and religious atmosphere is all that could be desired.—Congregational Guide, Shelby Ala., Rev. A. T. Clarke, Editor.

SPAIN WANTS WOODFORD

As One of Our Commissioners, and Requests That Final Negotiations Be Carried On in Paris.

PARIS.—At the suggestion of the Spanish ambassador here, Senor Castillo, the Spanish government has asked, through M. Cambon, that the United States send ex-Minister Woodford to Paris as peace commissioner; and also, that after the signing of the preliminary compact, the negotiations should be conducted in Paris. Senor Castillo received discretionary power several weeks ago to approach Ambassador Porter regarding peace, but he preferred to wait in hope of dealing with Woodford. Senor Castillo knows that Ambassador Porter helped to block the Spanish loan in Paris, and he is, therefore, anxious to negotiate with Woodford.

Disgruntled With Porto Rico.

The Spaniards are disgusted with the welcome the natives of Porto Rico have given the Americans, and with the news that the volunteers have thrown down their arms. The general opinion is that it is not worth while to risk the lives of soldiers and spend millions of money for the sake of territories which are worse than disloyal to the mother country. It is assumed that there will be no internal troubles over the evacuation of the West Indies. The war has cost $350,000,000.

TROOPS GOING TO SANTIAGO.

Five Thousand Are Now at Savannah—Alabama Boys in It.

Five thousand troops have arrived at Savannah to embark on ships for Santiago to relieve the troops there.

The troops, which are all immunes, are the Third Georgia regiment, from Macon, and the Third and Fifth volunteer infantry regiments, from Columbus, Miss. The latter regiment is made up of Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana men.

WAITING FOR SPAIN'S ANSWER

Believed That the Madrid Government Will Reluctantly Accept Our Terms.

A Friday's special from Washington says:

Nothing has as yet been heard from Spain. The administration is actively awaiting the reply from Ambassador Cambon, but at this hour to-night it has not come from him asking for an audience.

The best informed persons here say Monday as the time the United States government is likely to receive the formal answer, but this is simply conjectural, for there is not the slightest means of knowing the tenor of it in Madrid. There is the same unshaken belief among the officials that has existed from the first that Spain's answer will be reluctant but conclusive acceptance. At the same time, it was suggested in some quarters that there was a possibility that the discussions made by the American general at Santiago touching the serious condition of affairs might be a straw at which the Spanish cabinet would grasp.

A Double Killing.

A double killing occurred at Little Rock, Ark. A negro named Bishop was advancing with an axe on J. H. Fullighu, a guard, when the guard shot and killed him. A dispute arose over the matter between Warden Gillis Hudson and a guard Potts, another guard. The negro passed and Potts shot and killed him.

The pretty duck costumes in white or colors, in plain or fancy effects, are in greater vogue than ever this year.

A pretty patriotic belt is composed of various pennants in enamel. The buckle shows "Old Glory" mounted on an oblong square foundation.

Patriotic gowns are of blue, the seams strapped with red, with red epaulettes on the shoulders, a red cap with a visor, and, of course, brass buttons.

A noticeable feature among the bonnets is a bow of velvet ribbon spotted with white. Bunches of cherries are also worn under the brim of hats of any color.

To be in the latest fashion in millinery one should have for evening wear a bonnet turned up from the face and trimmed with lace and light blue forget-me-nots.

Stylish parasols of green and white silk, with silk and satin stripes, have handles of light wood and large knobs of rock crystal set with gems. The ebony sticks of the bright plaid silk parasols, with black satin stripes crossing the black, pink and drab check, have crystal knobs also.

The plain silk parasol has no place in fashion this season except as a sun umbrella, for whatever the material of a parasol may be, it is more or less an elaborate production of tucks, hem-stitching, ruchings, plaitings and insertions of lace. It is made of every sort of silk on the list, and of Swiss, mulle and pongee as well.

An Inventive Colored Genius.

In the southern part of Kansas City, Mo., is an old colored man named Hathman, who is a genius at thinking out labor saving devices. He put a broom attachment to a lawn mower last summer so he could sweep long sidewalks with as little effort as possible, and this year he has patented a "grass bag" to catch grass as it is cut and carry it about the yard.

The ordinary grass bag attachment to a lawn mower must be dumped every ten or fifteen minutes. This worried "old Hathman" into inventing a bag that would not require so much care, so now he has a grass catcher that he need empty only about once an hour, and he is highly pleased.

The grass bag is a big square of sheeting about six by six feet. One side of it is fastened to a wooden pole that is attached to the mower, while the other three sides are draped together and tied to the lawn mower handle. The bag has the capacity of six ordinary grass catchers, and it saves its owner much work.

Sugar Industry in Russia.

The Russian sugar industry is assuming large proportions. During the last season 245 works were in operation, as against 227 in 1896. The government encourages this industry to a large extent. The Russian beet sugar is of a good quality, and is now largely exported, especially to Finland and Asiatic countries.

BLANCO SEES THE END.

Says Spain Was Forced to Accede Peace Terms.

According to advices received from Havana by the Cuban junta, Captain-General Blanco appreciates the fact that he must soon withdraw himself and his forces from the island of Cuba. He has assumed a mildness of demeanor which compares strangely with his previous bombastic attitude and frequently expressed determination to hold out in Havana to the death, and he is treating the insurgents with great consideration.

In a recent proclamation he made known to the Spanish people of Cuba that Spain, through the intervention of foreign powers, had been forced to a disgraceful issue of suing for peace, and that there would be no more war and no further use for soldiers. He offered a pardon to all Cuban political prisoners, and more than 150 were released in Havana. Havana, he says, will be given over to the Americans, and the Cubans and Spaniards will be forced to evacuate.

He suggests that the Cubans be forgiven and no longer regarded as enemies, and that no unkind feelings be cherished.

COST OF THE WAR.

Figures Giving the Number of Killed and Wounded in the Army.

WASHINGTON.—Our war with Spain, according to figures obtained from the auditing bureau of the treasury department, will cost us about one thousand million dollars. The figures are as follows:

Expenses army and navy to date	$120,000,000
Expenses probable before mustering out	250,000,000
State expenses	12,000,000
War claims	30,000,000
Interest on war debt	90,000,000
Pensions (future)	350,000,000
Industrial losses (soldiers' labor)	75,000,000
Total	$927,000,000

In the matter of casualties the United States fared well. The losses thus far reported are: Army—Killed, 1,080; wounded, 2,300. Navy—Killed, 7; wounded, 48.

It is impossible to give exact figures of dead and wounded with Shafter's army. The general's partial reports are not concise and so complete report has been made.

Former Sheriff Owes the State.

State Examiner Purifoy has filed with Governor Johnston his report with reference to the office of former Sheriff Morrow, sheriff of Jefferson county, Ala. It brings Dr. Morrow in debt to the state $2,800.52, with interest, aggregating $3,150.77. The errors shown are all of a clerical nature, or grew out of misinterpretations of statutes relating to the office.

Major Hugh Carlisle Dead.

Major Hugh Carlisle, the wealthiest land owner in Alabama, died at his home in the mountains of Marshall county from the effects of a broken hip. Major Carlisle was a native of Scotland and was 78 years old. Decrees issued by United States courts last year awarded Major Carlisle 125,000 acres of railroad lands for which he had been contesting twenty years.

Members of Cabinet Will Resign.

It is stated in Washington that three cabinet resignations wait on the war's conclusion. Secretaries Day, Bliss and Alger's portfolios, it is said, will be turned in when the nation is again at rest. Both Bliss and Day are suggested as possibly appointees on the commission to be appointed to settle the terms of peace.

Cotton Crop Damaged.

Commissioner of Agriculture Culver has just returned from the eastern and southeastern portions of Alabama and reports that during the last ten days the cotton crop has been damaged by continuous rains, boll worms and rust. The percentage as compared with last year is from 25 to 35 per cent. short.

SPAIN'S REPLY RECEIVED.

Cambon Delivered the Answer to the President Tuesday.

DOCUMENT HAS NOT BEEN MADE PUBLIC.

Fear Is Expressed That Spain Has Incorporated in Her Answer Something About the Cuban Debt, Which Will Make Reply Unsatisfactory.

The reply of Spain was cabled to Washington Monday. Of course there are sensational rumors afloat regarding it, and some of them to the effect that the answer is unsatisfactory appears to be well founded. The fear is expressed in official circles that Spain has incorporated in her answer something concerning the Cuban debt, which will make the response unsatisfactory. A member of the cabinet said that if the reply attempted in any way to open up the discussion of the Cuban debt that Admiral Sampson would be ordered to sail instanter for the coast of Spain.

Ambassador Cambon has declined to answer any questions, and until he actually presents his paper to President McKinley the matter must continue in doubt. There is more indifference shown on the part of the administration toward the answer than one would imagine. Should Spain refuse to meet his terms in full the president will push the war until there will be nothing left for Spain to arbitrate. This is positively the last opportunity to save the Carolines, the Canaries, and even a part of the Philippines, and the indifference which the administration manifests is born of the inward desire to continue the war until some of these islands become the permanent possessions of America.

Should the reply prove satisfactory, however, it means an immediate cessation of hostilities. It would mean that the division under General Wade would not go to Porto Rico, which is of interest to Alabama, especially as her regiments are brigaded in this division.

This division would be kept intact, however, for garrison duty in Cuba. The president has determined that no troops shall be sent into Cuba, until after the yellow fever season. He made the positive statement Monday that not another man, than those necessary to hold Porto Rico, should be sent to Cuba until frost.

FIGHTING IN THE PHILIPPINES

Two Hundred Spaniards Killed—American Loss Small.

MANILA, via Hong Kong.—A heavy engagement took place on July 31st between the American and Spanish forces at Malate. The Spanish made an attack attempting to turn our right. After three hours' fighting they were repulsed. The troops engaged were the Tenth Pennsylvania, first battalion; First California battalion, Third artillery regulars and battery A, Utah. Our loss was nine killed and forty-four wounded. The Spanish loss was upward of 200 killed and 300 wounded. Our volunteers made a glorious defense against upwards of 3,000 of the attacking force.

NEW RAILROAD FOR ALABAMA.

Charter for the Aberdeen and Nashville Railroad Asked For.

Application has been filed with the secretary of state by Captain F. S. White, of Birmingham, for the charter of the Canton, Aberdeen and Nashville railroad company. The proposed route of this road is from West Point, Miss., across the border into Fayette county, Ala., thence through Lamar and Marion counties. It will touch the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham road at Winfield. Sooner or later it is proposed to run the road on to Decatur over the site of the old Decatur and Danville road, then over a partially constructed road to Fayetteville, Tenn., and then on to Nashville.

Armies Are Close Together.

General Brooke is at Ponce, Porto Rico, in conference with General Miles. His force is still at Guayama. A force of about 400 regular Spanish troops are stationed about eight miles away.

Merritt Has 15,000 Men.

The transports Scienda and Arizona are expected to sail from San Francisco for Manila the latter part of the week. There is a growing belief that they may not carry the number of men intended; that the beginning of peace negotiations will mean the mustering out of the troops remaining at Camp Merritt and Presidio. General Merritt has now 15,000 men at Manila.

CURRENT EVENTS IN ALABAMA.

SCANDAL IN U. S. COURT.

Commissioner Alexander Is Alleged to Have Falsified Accounts.

A Washington dispatch says: "The department of justice is again in trouble with the United States North Alabama officials. This time it is with Commissioner C. D. Alexander, of Attalla, an appointee of Judge John Bruce. It is said Alexander's accounts, which have for some time been suspended for apparent frauds against the government, have recently been investigated by a department of justice examiner. The report shows that Commissioner Alexander has variously falsified his accounts. One of his methods was to give witnesses before his court larger certificates for mileage and per diem than were due them, and then buy the certificates at a large discount. It is said that his practice was to buy all the witnesses' certificates for sale, and to adjourn court from day to day for the purpose of increasing the per diem of himself and other officials."

Alabama Crops.

Commissioner of Agriculture I. F. Culver has issued the report on the condition of Alabama crops at the end of July. The report shows very fine crops all over the state, except in a few localities. Frequent rains during the latter part of the month in some sections may damage the cotton. Reports of rust, shedding and running to weed in some sections. Cotton is opening slowly. The reports of the corn crop are the best in many years. Sugar cane, sorghum, field peas, peanuts, potatoes and hay are very fine.

The State's War Fund.

Collector J. H. Bingham, of the internal revenue department for the district of Alabama, has completed his reports for the month of July, showing the receipts from the war revenue law for the first thirty-one days of its operation as follows: Bankers, $18,088.11; beer, $7,964.25; spirits, $4,826.25; cigars, $1,604.46; snuff, $367.74; tobacco, $79.20; special taxes, $17,732; documentary stamps, $15,680.60; proprietary stamps, $3,753.57; total, $70,156.18.

Bankruptcy Districts.

Judge Bruce, of the federal court, has announced the formation of the following bankruptcy districts in Alabama:

Dallas and Perry—G. H. Craig, Selma, referee.

Autauga, Barbour, Bullock, Butler, Chilton, Chambers, Clay, Coffee, Coosa, Covington, Crenshaw, Dale, Elmore, Geneva, Henry, Lee, Lowndes, Montgomery, Macon, Pike, Randolph, Russell, Tallapoosa—H. Booth, referee, Montgomery.

Fort Payne Deal Closed.

Congressman M. W. Howard, of the Seventh district, who has for some time been negotiating a deal with eastern capitalists for the properties of the DeKalb company, including the site of Fort Payne, has returned from Washington and reports that the deal has been closed. He says that the new company will at once begin the work of developing its property and will place agents in the northwest to interest farmers in the advantages of Alabama.

Next Legislature.

The official count in the various counties show that the democrats have elected all the members in the next general assembly that they have claimed. The complexion of the senate will be twenty-seven democrats and six populists. The house will have eighty-four democrats, fifteen populists, and one republican.

Big Land Deal.

The deeds to the property recently purchased by the Ivy Coal and Coke Company from B. M. Long, located near Horse Creek, Walker county, between the Big and Little Warrior rivers, have been signed, and the control of 11,000 acres of land has been transferred to the Ivy Company.

Gen. Oates Ordered to Report for Duty.

Brigadier General W. C. Oates, who has been at his home in Alabama for some weeks awaiting orders, has been ordered to report to Major General M. C. Butler, commanding the Second division of the Second corps, for assignment to duty as commander of the Second brigade.

The First Bale.

The first bale of cotton for Alabama was received in Selma Saturday and sold at auction. It was raised by Clark Craig. It weighed 445 pounds, and will be raffled for the benefit of the Dallas Dragoons.

BRIEFLY NOTED.

The negro soldiers at Mobile are being rapidly mustered into service.

A special term of the supreme court has been called to assemble on August 15.

Robert Beecham lost his home at Decatur by fire. Loss, $3,000; insurance, $1,000.

The only beat carried by the prohibition candidate in the election was Lanier, in Talladega county, in which the vote stood: Deans, 21; Johnston, 50; Warner, 2; Witherspoon, 92.

The farmers of Limestone county are becoming greatly alarmed over the rains. The heaviest that section has ever witnessed has been falling almost daily now for three weeks, and unless there is a let up cotton will be seriously damaged. The crop is rapidly growing to weed, and not fruiting for want of sun.

THINGS MADE OF WOOD PULP.

A Variety of Articles Made from It. Cellulose as a Rival of Iron, Steel and Wood.

A close rival of coal tar in adaptability to unexpected purposes is wood pulp or cellulose. Since it was discovered that excellent paper could be made from this substance wood pulp has been used as a substitute for leather or otherwise for iron, steel, wood, stone, glass, ivory and innumerable kinds of animal and vegetable matter. As a material for car wheels certain manufacturers have found it superior to any kind of metal, being about nine times as durable as steel and much more elastic. When subjected to great pressure wood pulp takes on a high degree of ordinary hardness. It has been found available as a material for bricks, drain tiling, and even for electric cables.

For ivory, which is becoming scarcer every day, cellulose is a perfect substitute that has yet been found. Today it forms the material for cheaper billiard balls and has also been used successfully for the manufacture of artificial teeth. When properly treated wood pulp is practically proof against heat and moisture, hence it has been found superior to timber for telegraph poles and screws. Coffins, too, are often made of wood pulp. They are susceptible of a high polish, look as well as the finest wood, and are much cheaper.

Cannon, too, and bicycles are made out of wood pulp in Germany, and Chicago respectively, while a Frenchman has succeeded in producing a thread from the same substance which he declares can be worked up into all sorts of fabrics. Another Frenchman has produced wood pulp carpet lining, and another again wood pulp sail cloth, while a Vienna inventor declares that his wood pulp leather is superior to animal leather in fineness and durability.

For resisting the action of fire and water wood pulp appears to be a success. It is used to make waterproof paint for ships, fireproof and waterproof paper, and even stoves, which are said to be superior to iron ones. Wood pulp window panes have been in use for several years, particularly for greenhouses, and in France portable dwelling houses built of the same material have been found a success.

Among the other articles made of wood pulp are boats, canoes, cuspidors, pails, flower pots, tables, chairs, bureaus, barrels, wagons, horse shoes and imitation porcelain ware. The manufacture of silk from wood pulp is now an important industry of England and France. The raw material is really the same as that of natural silk.

It is only a case of doing by machines and chemicals what the silk worm does because it cannot help it.

The Speed of Insects.

It is the popular belief that the flight of birds is much swifter than that of insects, but a number of naturalists who have been making a study of the matter think that such is not the case. A common house fly, for example, is not very rapid in its flight, but its wings make 300 beats a second, and sends it through the air twenty-five feet, under ordinary circumstances, in that space of time. When the insect is alarmed, however, it has been found that it increases its rate of speed to over 150 feet per second. If it could continue such rapid flight for a mile in a straight line, it would cover that distance in exactly thirty-three seconds.

It is not an uncommon thing, when traveling by rail in the summer time to see a bee or wasp keeping up with the train and trying to get in at one of the windows. A swallow is considered one of the swiftest flying birds, and it was thought until a short time ago that no insect could escape it. A naturalist tells of an exciting chase he saw between a swallow and a dragon fly, which is among the swiftest of insects. The insect flew with incredible speed, and wheeled and dodged with such ease that the swallow, despite its utmost efforts, completely failed to overtake and capture it.

Freedom and the Russian Serf.

Although nearly forty years have passed since the ukase of emancipation was promulgated, it is still too early to give a definite judgment upon its results. The expectations of its framers have not been attained, in part because of the immensity of the task and diversity of conditions to be met, and in part because the immediate application of the ukase was made not by those who had thought out the scheme, but by officers who were either indifferent or even hostile to the measure. The serf has not generally become an independent landholder, nor has he gained that economic self-reliance that was so ardently desired. He is even less able than before to encounter a bad season, short crops, or a cattle plague, for he has no master who may make good his losses and help him to tide over his difficulties. On the other hand, the peasant has not secured what he believed to be his rights, and is not a little discontented that his dream of full and free possession of the land has not be fulfilled.—Appletons' Popular Science Monthly.

The Incomes of Monarchs.

The income of the emperor of Russia for one day is about $25,000; that of the sultan of Turkey, $18,000; emperor of Austria, $5,000; emperor of Germany, $8,000; king of Italy, $6,500; queen of England, $6,500; and the king of Belgium, $6,500. The president of the United States receives about $130 per day.

IT is much to be feared the continued heavy rains are inflicting great damage upon the crops, cotton especially being the greatest sufferer.

THE official count of the election was made in the Court House last Saturday, the large court room being crowded by those eager to get the news at first-hand. Sheriff Cooley opened the boxes, Circuit Clerk VanDerveer called out the returns, and Dr. Stewrrt did the figuring. The complete returns will be found on first page of this issue. Everything was found regular and there was nothing for any of the late candidates to find fault with. All's well that ends well.

THE Democratic Congressional convention of the Fourth District met at Talladega Springs on Tuesday and after casting 223 ballots, and failing to make a nomination, adjourned on Wednesday to meet again in Anniston on August 25. It is impossible to say who will eventually receive the nomination. The last ballot resulted exactly the same as the first, Merrill receiving 4 votes, Thomason 11, Plowman 15, Robbins 23. Plowman and Robbins are the two strongest candidates, but they love each other so much it is quite possible that one of the first-named gentlemen will get the nomination, as neither the supporters of Plowman or Robbins will give way to the other. It will be interesting to watch the adjourned convention.

IN the absence of any information, regarding the election, from Populist headquarters, we are compelled to accept the statements of the Democratic press as correct, and that the Democratic ticket has been elected by about 60,000 majority. What the total Populist vote we have, up to the present, not been able to learn. That it was far short of the three previous elections is certain. Various are the reasons adduced to account for this falling off, but all agree on the one fact that to a considerable extent it has gone back to the Democratic party, whether temporarily or permanently remains to be seen.

This reduction of the Populist vote does not nesessarily mean, as many of our Democratic friends persist in asserting, the extinction of the Populist party in Alabama. Far from it. We are of the opinion that the future course of Populists in this State depends very largely upon the action of the Democratic party, and any attempt upon the part of the victorious Democrats to proceed to extreme legislation will find not only a reunited Populist party but a greatly increased Populist party.

The Democratic party has now, unquestionably, a great opportunity before it to lessen the political breach between the white people of the State. If wise and conservative council prevails and the best interests of the whole people of Alabama are studied, then it is probable the Democratic party has an easy time before it. But, on the other hand, if a new constitution, containing objectionable features, is attempted to be forced on the people, then the Democratic may look for, and expect, a decided reverse at the next election. The Populist party is not dead—only sleeping.

The August number of The New Time is in keeking with the high standard set by this magazine. It is splendidly illustrated and there is not a dull paragraph from cover to cover. The frontispeice is a fine portrait of S. M. Jones, the famous reform mayor Toledo, of Ohio. The cartoon work of this magazine excels that of any publication in the country and those of the August number are specially striking. "The Last Slave" is a group showing the emancipation of the negro in 1863, the freeing of the Cuban in 1898 and the continued serfdom of the American workman, "the Last Slave." The editorials are in Mr. Adams' best vein and add to his reputation as a writer on social and industrial economics. With the August number Mr. Charles H. Kerr, the book publisher, retires from any connection with the magazine, his interest having been purchased by Mr. McBride, and The New Time will no longer be complicated with the publishing business. We congratulate The New Time on its well-deserved good fortune and pledge our best co-operation. Forward us a dollar for an annual subscription or take advantage of our club rate of $1.50 for a year's subscription to The Banner and The New Time.

THE negotiations for peace are making progress, and it seems probable the preliminary conditions may be signed the end of this week. It is thought that Spain has accepted all the demands of the United States, but the details are a profound secret known only to the President, Secretary Day and the French ambassador.

IN the Phillipines General Merritt's troops met the Spanish on July 31, August 1 and 2. The Spaniards got the worst of it, but thirteen American soldiers were killed and about fifty wounded.

IN Porto Rico there has been a general advance by Gen. Miles, and it is possible there will be no more fighting there before peace is declared. General Wilson captured the town of Coamo on Tuesday morning with a loss of seven wounded.

Now that the State election is over it will soon be necessary for the Populists of this District to hold their congressional convention.

To thrash the Spaniards is to throw their colonial estates into bankruptcy under circumstances which compel us to assume the receivership. We owe a duty not merely to the native races in the Philippines, but also to all persons of European race or extraction who own property there or have business interests of any sort, including the non-combatant Spanish population on the islands. At present there seems to be no way by which we can make over that responsibility to any other sovereign power. We may not like the task and may think ourselves ill qualified. But when we cast about for an alternative we are likely to find that the easiest and simplest solution, at least for the immediate future, is for us to exercise sovereignty where Spain has lost it in consequence of our aggressive action. In short, we are at this moment in such an attitude at Manila that we must in any case complete our conquest before we can withdraw, and we have no apologies to make for being in that attitude. When we shall have completed the conquest—presumably within a few days or a few weeks—we shall have to administer the islands until the end of the war and the conclusion of a treaty of peace with Spain. We shall conclude no treaty of peace until our victories all along the line have been so complete that we can dictate the terms.—From "The Progress of the World" in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August.

Political Pointers.

Peoples Party Press Bureau
St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10, 1898

Revived by assurances of loyalty from such high sources, Ignatius Donnelly and Thos. Watson, Wharton Barker Republican) of Philadelphia, now announces that when he gloomily declared his Cincinnati nominating convention of September, '98 off a few days ago, he was too previous. He was first resuscitated by the announcement from Georgia that Watson and his set would go to Cincinnati and nominate if no other state was represented. Tactics never before heard of on land or sea are being used to elect men to attend the remarkable meeting. In Minnesota the self elected state committee is appointing men to represent counties and congressional districts.

Dr. Benjamin Andrews, late of Brown University, having identified himself more closely with the common people by taking charge of the public schools of Chicago than acting as the president of a plutocratic university, is further adding to his good work by lecturing on the labor problem and the effects of the present war on the common people.

The Silver Republicans of Oklahoma are making a vigorous campaign.

The conventions of the three parties, Populist Silver Republican and Democratic of Nebraska, held most interesting and exciting conventions at Lincoln. Mr. Bryan's departure from the state to take an active part in the war, caused a hiatus that threatened, for a time to bring about serious confusion. Wise council prevailed, however, and arrangements satisfactory to all were perfected after lengthy sessions. Following are the nominees: W. A. Poynter, Populist, Governor; E. A. Gilbert, Silver Republican, Lieutenant Governor; John F. Cornell, Populist, Auditor; W. F. Porter, Populist, Secretary of State; C. J. Smythe, Democrat, Attorney General; Jacob Wolf, Populist Commissioner Public Lands and Buildings; W. Jackson, Populist, Superintendent of public Instruction. All excepting Poynter and Cornell are the present incumbents.

The Nebraska Populists will make a unique campaign this year. All are familiar with the campaign promise, but they will give a pleasing contrast by simply referring in detail to the past administration as an assurance of what the voters may expect in future. Every State official invites investigation and asks that his work be contrasted with that of his predecessors.

Senator Stewart is being dubbed an "Imperialist" owing to his taking the ground that the United States should hold all territory gained in the war with Spain. He also is an enthusiast over the government immediately taking steps to build and operate the Nicaraugua canal.

Friends of General James Weaver will rejoice to hear that he has been nominated by the allied parties to represent the 6th Congressional district of Iowa, with every prospect of being elected. At any rate a warm campaign is assured the Republicans when the General takes the stump.

The old whiskey trust not being sufficiently binding and extortionate and having been formed under war revenue conditions, a new trust is about to be effected.

The metropolitan press is kept busy affirming and denying the rumor that an extra session of both houses of congress is soon to be called. The power of the president to keep the troops out-side the regular army on a war footing is denied by some such high authorities that an extra session would seem to be necessary. That our standing army will be very largely increased has been an assured fact from the first.

Those who remember the floods of campaign wit sent over the country by Judge during the stirring times of '96, its numerous cartoons in which the believer in silver and greenbacks was made to figure as a more or less insane crank, will be surprised to learn that that paper has recently assigned, location one million. And this about its mid-vaunted McKinley prosperity.

CROP REPORT

The Weekly Crop Bulletin says the temperature was slightly deficient, owing to cool nights and lack of sunshine. Daily rains are quite general, and, on several dates, the rainfall was heavy to excessive in many portions of the State. Destructive wind-storms, on the 3rd, seriously damaged cotton, corn and fruit in the southeast counties, the greatest damage being done in Chambers, Lee, Macon, Russell, Barbour, Dale and Henry, and in a few north western counties corn was damaged by high winds.—The continued wet weather is causing cotton to run too much to weed; rust and shedding are now quite general and there is some complaint of lower bolls rotting; the crop will be very seriously damaged if the wet weather continues much longer; it is opening very slowly and no picking is reported as yet. Corn is maturing slowly, but it is in generally excellent condition and now promises a large yield. Fodder pulling is being seriously delayed and considerable fodder has been damaged by the wet weather, which is also preventing the saving of what would, under favorable conditions, be a large hay crop. Cane, sorghum, peanuts, field peas and potatoes continue very promising. Peaches and grapes are still abundant, but are rotting some, and the continued rains have prevented curing of fruit; apples continue to shed and pears are ripening slowly. Watermelons and cantaloupes are still plentiful and late gardens are doing well, though all crops would be decidedly benefitted by a period of dry weather. Pasturage continues excellent.

Suffered 20 Years.

MRS. MARY LEWIS, wife of a prominent farmer, and well known by all old residents near Belmont, N. Y., writes: "For twenty-seven years I had been a constant sufferer from nervous prostration, and paid large sums of money for doctors and advertised remedies without benefit. Three years ago my condition was alarming; the least noise would startle and unnerve me. I was unable to sleep, had a number of sinking spells and slowly grew worse. I began using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. At first the medicine seemed to have no effect, but after taking a few bottles I began to notice a change; I rested better at night, my appetite began to improve and I rapidly grew better, until now I am as nearly restored to health as one of my age may expect. God bless Dr. Miles' Nervine."

Cattle Utilized For Smuggling Opium.

"Some of the shrewdest tricks ever played are by the smugglers of opium," said H. A. Fanning of Seattle, Wash. "A very unique smuggling scheme was unearthed a few years ago by United States secret service officers in North Dakota. It was noticed that an unusually large number of cattle were being driven across the line to the North Dakota markets, and the secret service men planned an investigation. For some time their work was in vain, and they had about given up hope of discovering any unlawful operations when an accident revealed the fact that the nostrils of the cattle were stuffed with opium wrapped carefully in tinfoil. In this way each steer was worth twice its normal value. Hundreds upon hundreds of animals had been driven across the border with their nostrils loaded with opium, and it was estimated that the smugglers had cleaned up a profit of $25,600 before the discovery was made. But the smugglers were sly, and they escaped and were never captured.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Make the Best of It.

We may if we choose make the worst of it. Every one has his weak point; every one has his faults. We may make the worst of these. We may fix our attention constantly upon these. But we may also make the best of one another. We may forgive even as we hope to be forgiven. We may put ourselves in the place of others and ask what we should wish to be done to us and thought of us were we in their place. By loving whatever is lovable in those around us love will flow back from them to us, and life will become a pleasure instead of a pain, and earth will become like heaven, and we shall become not unworthy followers of his whose name is love.—Exchange.

The Pipe's Antiquity.

In Asia and Africa, beside America, the pipe dates from prehistoric times, and in Europe generally it has been in use since and during the Roman period, if not before. One of the most learned antiquarians—Dr. Petrie—says that smoking pipes of bronze are frequently found in Irish tumuli, or sepulchral mounds, of the most remote antiquity.

How an English Sailor Rescued Our Men In the Virginius Affair.

"The remembrance of a kindly act done to the United States by an Englishman in a former row with Spain ought to revive our interest in the ancient legend that 'blood is thicker than water,'" said Mr. Henry P. Dillon of Boston recently.

"In the Virginius affair, when the Spaniards slaughtered some of the crew of that vessel, it was an English sailor who went to Santiago de Cuba and demanded the surrender of the survivors under penalty of bombardment of the city. He rescued our men, carried them to their own shores, and then, as modest as he was gallant, refused a public reception in New York city. As it was, leading citizens called upon him informally and presented him with a brick of silver, on which were inscribed the words, 'Blood is thicker than water.' The motto still holds good, and if the combined powers of Europe were to be against America in this or any other quarrel it is safe to say that Great Britain could always be excepted. There will never come the shadow of war between the mother land and her powerful daughter."—Washington Post.

"Short, Sharp and Decisive."

Chairman Dingley's estimate that the war will cost our government $2,000,000 a day is, of course, merely an instance of rough figuring, yet it sets forth a very good reason in itself, if there were none better, for making the campaign short, sharp and decisive.—Philadelphia Record.

Blood and Brawn

Impoverished blood means loss of strength. Probably seventy-five per cent. of the diseases with which mankind is afflicted are caused by impure blood. To Scare Thieving Birds.

An easy method of frightening birds away from ripe cherries and other fruits is to hang bells so that they can be rung by pulling a string reaching into the house. Old cowbells, or a few old-fashioned sleighbells, will answer the purpose nicely. The frightened birds will return after awhile, but it is but little trouble to jerk the string now and then, and off they will go again. This is much better than to shoot them. It is true that dead birds will eat no more cherries, but neither will they destroy more insects nor sing more happy songs.

Shade For Poultry.

During July and August the fowls, both young and old, should be provided with plenty of shade. If confined in yards where there are no trees, or large weeds, shelter of some kind ought to be arranged.

An old piece of muslin spread over posts will serve the purpose, but does not in any way compare with the comfort afforded by nice branching trees.

Almost any kind of fruit trees, such as apple, cherry or plum, will give sufficient shade after two or three years.

Still, no matter how provided, fowls must have shade in the hot weather just as they must have shelter in winter, and unless they get it, disease in some form will almost certainly visit the flock. Do not, though, carry the idea to extremes, and keep the fowls where no ray of sun can reach them. They need some sun; in fact it is only during the midday that fowls suffer from the heat. It is then they will hunt the shady nooks, and there remain until evening, when they will again come out in search of food.

See to it at once that some kind of protection from the sun is provided, not only for the old fowls, but also the chicks, and at the same time remember that fowls relish cool water several times daily.

Supporting Fruit Trees in Grazed Orchards

The practice is becoming more and more prevalent of pasturing hogs and sheep in orchards. The plan is excellent. The animals thrive on the grass and fallen fruit, and they in turn enrich the orchard and destroy countless grubs and worms. With animals in an orchard, however, it is impossible to prop up heavily laden boughs, for such props will very quickly be knocked down. Fig. 1 shows a plan that can be used in almost any tree. The central branches furnish a fulcrum for the support of the poles used. One end can be placed under the branch to be supported, or tied to it, and the other end brought down under a branch on the opposite side, or tied to a branch if it is not possible to confine it under a limb. Another way is to fasten a pole to the trunk of the tree, allowing it to extend up through the top, as shown in Fig. 2. Wires extending from the top of the pole to heavily laden branches will support these in the best possible manner.—American Agriculturist.

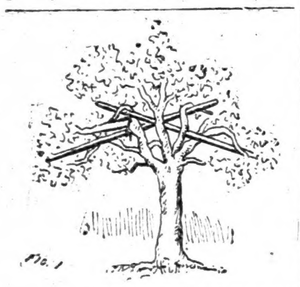

FIG. 1. SECURE SUPPORT FOR FRUIT TREES

Farm Brevities.

At mid-day feed boiled oats, while yet soft and warm.

Watch the setting hens, that their nests are not held by the enemy, vermin.

Too much corn for the chickens will bring on indigestion and liver troubles.

After the morning feed keep pans of millet seed where the chicks can run to them all day.

Young stock should not be allowed to get out on the wet grass early in the morning. Cold and dampness will cause great loss of stock.

Hens given plenty of exercise and a variety of food will produce more fertile eggs than hens that are fed corn and given but little exercise.

Chicks running with a mother hen affected with scaly legs will contract the disease. Dampen the feathers and legs of the hen with kerosene and lard mixed.

Fleas may be driven from the barn by spraying sides, floor and ground with crude carbolic acid, and keep away dogs, hogs and sheep. If they infest the residence scatter powdered borax.

The greatest trouble the poultry raisers have to contend with, especially with brooder chicks, is indigestion. Too much heat, too much cold, allowing them to become chilled on improper food, will cause bowel trouble.

For a morning meal, scald ground feed, adding the potato parings of the day before after cooking them soft. Stir well together, cool and "dishout" in long troughs made for the purpose. Watch that the weaker ones get their share.

The slant of the roof should be toward the rear to shed rain and snow water. The underpinning of the house and slope of the ground should be also such that the water will be drained away from and not back into the house.

No hen can be forced to lay eggs. Nature gives her a certain period of time during which the eggs are to be developed. It is not difficult to supply her with the needed elements for this purpose, and any surplus bestowed will only be wasted.

To secure the most profitable hens, breed as far as possible from the best layers. Most hens are from thirty to thirty-six hours in developing an egg. By careful attention it is believed a strain can be developed that will do the work in twenty-four hours. This is the aim of the up-to-date businessman.

Trout and the Weather.

If trout rise merrily in the very midst of a storm, why do they invariably sulk when the thunder is only "in the air?" The explanation is simple; but it occurred to me only the other day. Trout sulk when the storm is gathering from the cause which makes men at the club decline to look at the billiard cues during the same weather. The atmosphere lacks oxygen, and therefore all sentient life is languid. When the lightning has come the sultriness is dispelled; fish and men have something more cheering than carbonic acid gas to breathe; both are in a humor for food or play.

The same reasoning explains why, as a rule, it is necessary to have a ripple if you are to catch trout. The accepted explanation is that the ripple conceals the casting line, leaving visible to the fish the flies alone; but one has only to use one's eyes to discover that that is no explanation at all. Even in a gale, if there is sunshine, the gut is as easily visible to the human eye as it would be in a dead calm; and to what the human eye can see in the water the trout is surely not quite blind. No; trout rise in a ripple more readily than in a calm simply because the wind is oxygenating the water. Whoso doubts this is invited to make an experiment. Let him put half a dozen live trout into a pail of water. Within an hour they will be sickening; some of them will be near death and turning on their backs. A few quarts of water plunged a yard or two through the air into the pail will make all the trout revive as if by magic. The fish want oxygen just as the fellows at the club on a sultry afternoon want a thunder-storm or other stimulant.—London Saturday Review.

In the Czar's Richest Church.

"In the famous mass held on Christmas Eve in the Cathedral of Saint Isaacs was one of the most beautiful services I ever attended," writes Lilian Bell from St. Petersburg, Russia, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "In the first place, Saint Isaac's is the richest church in all Russia. It has, too, the most wonderful choir, for the Czar loves music, and whenever in all his Empire a beautiful voice is found, the boy is brought to St. Petersburg and educated by the State to enter the Emperor's choir. When we entered the church the service had been in progress for five hours. That immense church was packed to suffocation. In the Greek church every one stands, no matter how long the service, for there are no seats.

"By degrees we worked our way toward the space reserved for the Diplomatic Corps, where we were invited to enter. Our wraps were taken and chairs were given to us. We found ourselves on the platform with the priest, just back of the choir. What wonderful voices! The bass holds on to the last note, and the rumble and echo of it rolls through those vaulted domes like the tones of an organ. The long-haired priest, too, had a wonderfully resonant voice for intoning. He passed directly by us in his gorgeous cloth-of-gold vestments, as he went out."

Use of Oyster Shells in Manila.

A unique feature of nearly all homes and offices in Manila is the use of tiny square panes of translucent oyster shells instead of glass. The windows measure on the average six feet long and four feet wide and contain 260 of these oyster shell panes, which temper the fierce glare of the sun in the building. In a country where many people go blind from the constant sunshine this a precaution very necessary to be taken.

GOOD ROADS NOTES.

To Prevent "Disintegration."

A subject of importance which has not yet received the attention it requires is brought to the fore by a statement recently made to the effect that "the smooth surface of the New Jersey stone roads, so much admired by bicycle riders, is rapidly disappearing, owing to the infrequency of rains in summer, the prevalence of sweeping winds, and the absence of trees and hedges from the roadside. The disintegration of the New Jersey stone roads, especially of those over which a constant stream of heavy wagons rolls into the city markets, must sooner or later raise the question of the expediency of giving a part of the annual State appropriation to the repair of the roads on the same plan of division of cost upon which new roads are built."

Up to the present time so much attention has been given to efforts to secure hard roads, and considerations of how they should be laid, that their maintenance when put down has largely been lost sight of. Many, indeed, have supposed, and some have asserted, that when once laid, it would not be necessary to touch them for years. Such ideas are radically wrong, and, if acted upon, lead to disastrous results.

As a matter of fact, macadam roads require constant attention and care if they are to be kept in good condition, the greatest efficiency secured from them, and economy of maintenance obtained. All these things will vary largely with the character and quality of the roads, some requiring attention much more quickly and far more constantly than others, but the principle of maintenance is the same for all.

All stone roads are liable to "disintegration" under certain conditions, and will speedily be ruined if the tendency is not checked at the outset or, better still, warded off, so to speak, by constant care and attention. The smooth surface disappears, ruts form, water settles in them, and the road gradually breaks up.

The trouble with many of the New Jersey roads is not due particularly to the winds or "absence of trees and hedges from the roadside," but it is due to four principal causes, one of which is the "infrequency of rains in summer," and the others are the excessive use of clay for "binding" purposes in constructing the roads, insufficient rolling, and failure to adopt an adequate system of care and maintenance after they are constructed.

We have repeatedly pointed out the features necessary to obtain and maintain good macadam roads, and no community which builds them can afford to overlook them, viz.: thorough drainage; abundant rolling of each layer of stone as laid; little or no clay for "binding" purposes; and a complete system of care and repair, which involves the constant employment of a suitable force of men to keep the roads clean, fill up the smallest ruts as they appear, and regular sprinkling in dry weather.—Good Roads Bulletin.

Good Roads and Vacation Time.

Communities that look for income from the summer boarder cannot afford to ignore any feature of their surroundings that will add to their attractiveness. Times change and we all change with them. Nearly every family going away for the summer takes several wheels along, and the thousands who get away for a two weeks' vacation look for localities in which they can use their machines to best advantage. With all, the character of the roads is of first importance. This fact makes it possible for less alluring spots to rival their more popular competitors, by providing superior roads and advertising their excellences, and each succeeding year will make this plan increasingly effective.

Broad-Tired Street Sprinklers.

The up-to-date cities now use street sprinklers with wheel tires six inches wide, and the outside of the front tire is placed even with the inside of the rear tire, the machine thus rolling twenty-four inches of street as it moves along, and doing excellent work in keeping the streets in good condition. I am glad to see that the grand jury of Fulton County has taken this economy of broad tires for vehicles in hand. The small addition to the first cost of vehicles is easily compensated in the increased haulage and reduction of repairs. It is the grossest extravagance for our city and county to build expensive roads and then have them ruined by the cutting edge of narrow-wheeled vehicles. The city and county could easily inaugurate a saving reform in having all public carts and wagons tired as above suggested. Good roads mean low taxation and cheap traction.—Atlanta Constitution.

Notes of the Crusade.

Narrow tires form ruts; ruts retain moisture; moisture ruins roads.

Next to good schools, upon good roads depend the future welfare and prosperity of our country towns.

The asphalt streets of St. Paul are cleaned by flushing them with fire hose at night three times a week.

A citizen of Denver has obtained a verdict of $4200 damages for injuries received by falling over a piece of iron pipe which a city employe had left protruding six inches above the sidewalk.

Water in the wrong place is the road's greatest enemy. A little moisture in the shape of light sprinkling is needed to keep the surface firm; but, beyond this, or beneath the surface, water plays havoc with a road-bed.

In Amador County, California, they are building a stretch of macadam road by day labor, and figure the cost to be $2777 per mile instead of over $5000 as asked for in the bids received. The members of the Bureau of Highways give their services.

Reports from south New Jersey say that some of the stone roads are in bad condition. The freeholders, who have them in charge, are farmers, and will not look after them while busy with farm work, nor employ a supervisor to care for them. This will prove an expensive policy, as a thorough system of care and repair is essential to maintain stone roads in condition and secure the greatest efficiency for them.

USE OF MOUNTAIN BATTERIES.

France and Italy Employ Them on the Frontier in the Alps.

The mission of a mountain battery is to seek out and destroy, at close range and piecemeal, an enemy whose forte is a protracted and unceasing system of guerrilla warfare that is extremely harassing and discouraging to troops accustomed to a "fair field and no favor," even though they be seasoned and well-tried veterans. In British India this type of artillery has been brought to a high standard of perfection, and its effectiveness in the continually recurring conflicts with the hill tribes has demonstrated that the mountain gun is the only weapon that can successfully cope with the guerrilla style of warfare practiced by the natives of the Himalayas.

It is but little known to the outside world that both France and Italy have adopted the mountain battery as an integral part of the home defenses. When, in 1887, it became uncertain that Italy had joined the Triple Alliance, the then Minister of War in France determined that something must be done to defend the Alpine boundary from even the possibility of invasion in the event of hostilities by the new coalition. For that purpose he organized a perfect system of mountain artillery on the model of the British Indian force, and manned it with specially selected mountaineers. Italy, in turn, was compelled to provide a similar corps for the defense of her side of the range, and soon the two regiments, begotten in haste, began to fraternize and banquet one another. The same amicable relations have existed ever since, and the batteries have established a friendly rivalry that animates both parade and carousal.

The United States Army for the first time made use of this arm in active warfare in the Mexican War of 1845–48. The light and portable nature of the guns made them extremely valuable in the irregular skirmishes that took place, but their most important use was found in clearing the streets from a point of vantage on the roofs of the flat-topped houses of the City of Mexico. The ease with which the guns could be carried or slung to the roofs rendered them invaluable in repelling the street attacks, which were of daily occurrence after General Scott and his heroes had taken the capital.

The guns of the Astor battery are very different from the smoothbore muzzle loaders of the Mexican War. In fact they are in advance of the armament of the most perfect mountain batteries that India boasts to-day. The standard type that has done such good work against the Afridis and their sangars, or stone wall intrenchments, is a rifled muzzle-loading piece of ordnance, the barrel and breech sections of which are separate and screw together just behind the trunnions. As will be seen, this weapon is rather out of date, the improvements which have been made during the last twenty years along the entire line of artillery not seeming to have affected or reached the lonely depots of the Himalayas. The guns of the Astor battery are wholly different. They are Hotchkiss rapid fire guns of special construction and remarkable rapidity of fire, issued to the company of volunteers through the patriotic generosity of Colonel Astor.—New York Sun.

Corns and Bunions.

These would never occur if none but soft, well-fitting boots, shoes or stockings were worn. Treatment: The hard corns on children's feet may be picked or scraped off with the finger nail or a blunt knife, directly after soaking them in warm water, or by covering them all, and every night, with common soap spread thickly on rag, and repeating the scraping each morning, as long as necessary. Soft corns or warts between the toes should be touched with lunar caustic, or covered with a pinch of finely powdered chalk or prepared (or French) chalk over night, then scraped or picked out with the finger nail next morning. The chalk thus used in the morning, after washing, will also prevent chafing, as will zinc ointment so used at bedtime. Bunions should be painted every second or third day with tincture of iodine. If much inflamed, they should be first leeched and poulticed. —New York Ledger.

A Museum of Scientific Relics.

The Emperor William of Germany has ordered that the Saalburg, near Bad-Homburg, which is to be restored at his expense, shall then be called "The Limes Museum of the Empire," and shall contain all scientifically valuable relics dug up in future in and near the sites of the Roman frontier (limes) fortifications and colonies, the old museum at Wiesbaden being full. The Saalburg is said to have been built by Drusus about the year 11 B. C. and renovated by Germanicus twenty-six years later. It was the scene of many a fight till 1243, when a part of the excellent material of which it was built was used for the construction of highways.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

"Silence in Heaven," the Subject—The Mighty Import of the Cessation Described in Revelations—Half Hours Which Have Determined Destinies.

TEXT: "There was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour."—Revelations, viii, 1.

"Take this watch and keep it," said a dying Christian as he picked it up from the stand at his pillow. "I have no more need of it. I am going where time shall be no longer." But it seems from my text that heaven was at least once measured by an earthly time-piece.

The busiest place in the universe is heaven. It is the center from which all good influences start; it is the goal at which all good results arrive. The Bible represents it as active, with wheels and wings and orchestras and processions, mounted or charioted. But my text describes a space when the wheels ceased to roll and the trumpets to sound and the voices to chant. The riders on the white horses reined in their chargers. The doxologies were hushed and the processions halted. The hand of arrest was put upon all the splendors. "Stop, Heaven!" cried an omnipotent voice, and it stopped. For thirty minutes everything celestial stood still. "There was silence in heaven for the space of half an hour."

From all we can learn it is the only time heaven ever stopped. It does not stop, as other cities, for the night, for there is no night there. It does not stop for a plague, for the inhabitant never says, "I am sick." It does not stop for bankruptcies, for its inhabitants never fail. It does not stop for impassable streets, for there are no fallen snows or sweeping freshets. What, then, stopped it for thirty minutes? Grotius and Professor Stuart think it was at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem. Mr. Lord thinks it was in the year 311, near the close of the Diocletian persecution and the beginning of the wars by which Constantine gained the throne. But that was all a guess, though a learned and brilliant guess. I do not know when it was, and I do not care when it was, but of the fact that such an interregnum of sound took place I am certain. "There was silence in heaven for the space of half an hour."

And, first of all, we may learn that God and all heaven then honored silence. The full power of silence many of us have yet to learn. We are told that when Christ was arraigned "He answered not a word." That silence was louder than any thunder that ever shook the world. Ofttimes, when we are assailed and misrepresented, the mightiest thing to say is to say nothing, and the mightiest thing to do is to do nothing. Those people who are always rushing into print to get themselves set right, accomplish nothing but their own chagrin. Silence! Do right and leave the results with God. Among the grandest lessons the world has ever learned are the lessons of patience taught by those who endured uncomplainingly personal or domestic or political injustice. Oh, the power of patient silence! Eschylus, the immortal poet, was condemned to death for writing something that offended the people. All the pleas in his behalf were of no avail, until his brother uncovered the arm of the prisoner and showed that his wrist had been sacrificed for his country at the battle of Salamis. That silent plea liberated him. The loudest thing on earth is silence if it be of the right kind and at the right time. There was a quaint old hymn, spelled in the old style, once sung in the churches:

> The race is not forever get
> By him who fastest runs,
> Nor the Battel by those peopell
> That shoot with the longest gun.

My friends, the tossing sea of Galilee seemed more to offend Christ by the amount of noise it made, for He said to it: "Be still!" Heaven has been drowning Kings and Queens unto God for many centuries, yet heaven never stopped a moment for any such occurrence, but it stopped thirty minutes for the coronation of Silence. "There was silence in heaven for the space of half an hour."

Learn also from my text that heaven must be an eventful and active place, from the fact that it could afford only thirty minutes of recess. There have been events on earth and in heaven that seemed to demand a whole day or whole week or whole year for celestial consideration. If Grotius was right and this silence occurred at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, that scene was so awful and so prolonged that the inhabitants of heaven could not have done justice to it in many weeks. After fearful besiegement of the two fortresses of Jerusalem—Antonio and Hippicus—had been going on for a long while, a Roman soldier mounted on the shoulder of another soldier hurled into the window of the temple a firebrand, and the temple was all aflame, and after covering many sacrifices to the holiness of God, the building itself became a sacrifice to the rage of man. The hunger of the people in that city during the besiegement was so great that as some outlaws were passing a doorway and inhaled the odors of food they burst open the door, threatening the mother of the household with death unless she gave them some food, and she took them aside and showed them that it was her own child she was cooking for the ghastly repast. Six hundred priests were destroyed on Mount Zion because the temple being gone, there was nothing for them to do. Six thousand people in one cloister were consumed. There were 1,100,000 dead, according to Josephus. Grotius thinks that this was the cause of silence in heaven for half an hour. If Mr. Lord was right, and this silence was during the Diocletian persecutions, by which 844,000 Christians suffered death from sword and fire, and banishment and exposure, why did not heaven listen throughout at least one of those awful years? No! Thirty minutes! The fact is that the celestial programme is so crowded with spectacle that it can afford only one recess in all eternity, and that for a short space. While there are great choruses in which all heaven can join, each soul there has a story of divine mercy peculiar to itself, and it must be a solo. How can heaven get through with all its solos, as well as all its recitatives, with all its cantatas, with all its grand marches, with all its victories? Eternity is too short to utter all the praises.

Not only are all the triumphs of the past to be commemorated, but all the triumphs to come. Not only what we now know of God, but what we will know of Him after everlasting study of the Deific. If my text had said there was silence in heaven for thirty days, I would not have been startled at the announcement, but it indicates thirty minutes. Why, there will be so many friends to hunt up; so many of the greatly good and useful that we will want to see; so many of the unscrutable things of earth we will need explained; so many exciting earthly experiences we will want to talk over, and all the other spirits and the ages will want the same, that there will be no opportunity for cessation. How busy we will be kept in having pointed out to us the heroes and heroines that the world never fully appreciated—the yellow fever and cholera doctors, who died not flying from their posts; the female nurses who faced pestilence in the lazarettoes; the railroad engineers who stayed at their places in order to save the train, though they themselves perished and went down through the open drawbridge.

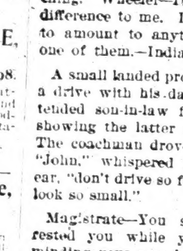
What Mrs. Nell Hurst has to Say About It.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—When I wrote to you I had not been well for five years; had doctored all the time but got no better. I had womb trouble very bad. My womb pressed backward, causing piles. I was in such misery I could scarcely walk across the floor. Menstruation was irregular and too profuse, was also troubled with leucorrhœa. I had given up all hopes of getting well; everybody thought I had consumption.



After taking five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I felt very much better and was able to do nearly all my own work. I continued the use of your medicine, and feel that I owe my recovery to you. I cannot thank you enough for your advice and your wonderful medicine. Any one doubting my statement may write to me and I will gladly answer all inquiries.—Mrs. NELL HURST, Deep water, Mo.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUGUST 14.

Lesson Text: "The Shunammite's Son"—II Kings iv., 25-37—Golden Text: Ps. lv., 22—Commentary on the Lesson by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

25. "So she went and came unto the man of God to Mount Carmel." In the town of Shunem there was a great woman who, with the consent of her husband, prepared a chamber for Elisha and furnished it with a bed, table, stool and candlestick and constrained him to turn in thither whenever he passed that way (verses 8-10). They had no children, and Elisha in gratitude for their kindness to him asked God, and He gave them a son. One day when the lad was grown he was in the field with the reapers and his father. He was suddenly taken with pain in his head, was carried home and in a very short time died on his mother's knees. She laid him on the bed of the man of God, shut the door, called for a servant and an ass and hastened to Carmel to Elisha.

26. "Run now, I pray thee, to meet her and say unto her, Is it well with thee? Is it well with thy husband? Is it well with the child? And she answered, It is well. Even though our grief be very great and our heart be breaking, with confidence in God we can say, "It is well." We can say with Eli, "It is the Lord; let Him do what seemeth Him good" (I Sam. iii., 18), or with Job, "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord" (Job i., 21).

27. "And the man of God said, Let her alone, for her soul is vexed within her, and the Lord hath hid it from me and hath not told me. Gehazi would have driven her away, as the disciples would have sent away the mothers with the children, and perhaps in something of the same spirit in which they also found fault with Mary of Bethany when she with the precious ointment anointed our Lord and to their fault finding He said, "Let her alone." There are still those who find fault with others for clinging too closely to our Lord, but happy are all whom He approves.

28. "Then she said, Did I desire a son of my Lord? Did I not say, Do not deceive me?" I suppose she thought it better never to have had such a gift than to have received him and then when he had taken hold of her heart thus to lose him; but she did not know all God's plan for her. We must not judge of God's ways till we have seen the end (Jas. v., 11; Ezek. xiv., 23).

29. "Then he said to Gehazi, Gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thine hand, and go thy way, and lay my staff upon the face of the child." This seems a little perplexing; it looks like making light of the case on the part of the prophet, though we do not so judge. Better to have at once done as Elijah did (I Kings xvii., 21), and as he afterward did. When Joshua made light of Ai and sent only a few men to take it, they were defeated. Contrast Joshua vii., 3, 4 and viii., 1.

30. "As the Lord liveth and as thy soul liveth I will not leave thee." She did not see God in Gehazi, nor in Elisha's staff, but she had recognized God in Elisha. It is our Lord's desire that He should be so seen in us that people may be drawn to Him through us (Gal. i., 16, 24). Take the cases of Ruth, Ittai and Elisha himself as parallels in clinging (Ruth i., 16; II Sam. xv., 21; II Kings ii., 2).

31. "And Gehazi passed on before them and laid the staff upon the face of the child, but there was neither voice nor hearing." One has said, "Deliver us from Gehazis who only carry a staff." Those who would lead others to life must have life themselves. The truth we use must be a part of us, not something we hold as a staff in our hand.

32. "And when Elisha was come into the house behold the child was dead and laid upon his bed." When the woman prepared the bed for the prophet, she little dreamed that she would ever use it for such a purpose. In doing good to others we are often making a resting place for our own sorrows and also a place of deliverance from them. In dealing with the children for their souls' salvation we must remember that they are dead in sin (Eph. ii., 4, 5) and must be placed in the warmest sympathies of our hearts.

33. "He went in therefore and shut the door upon them twain, and prayed unto the Lord." He now does as Elijah did. It is good to take the children one by one alone with God. It is well sometimes to have those with us in prayer who are in sympathy, as when Jesus took Peter, James and John, and the father and mother of the little girl whom He would restore to life. It is at other times wiser to be alone with God.

34. "And he went up and lay upon the child." The verses go on to tell just how he did it, mouth to mouth, eyes to eyes, hands to hands. The late C. H. Spurgeon, to whom I am indebted for many thoughts on this lesson, said that to stretch oneself down to a child was the hardest kind of stretching, but unless we can find grace to put ourselves as far as possible in the place of the children whom we seek to reach, seeing and thinking as they do, we may not hope to reach them.

35. "Then he returned and walked in the house to and fro and went up and stretched himself upon him, and the child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes." First the flesh waxed warm, then followed the sneezing and then the opened eyes. The boy might have revived at once, as in the case of the little girl or the widow's son or Eutychus, but our Lord does not often do the same work in the same exact way any more than He makes two leaves or two faces exactly alike.

36. "And he called Gehazi and said, Call this Shunamite. So he called her. And when she was come in unto him he said, Take up thy son." Now she received him alive from the dead, more to her than ever before, yet doubtless held henceforth with very different feelings from formerly. In the first place, he was, like Isaac, a supernatural child (verse 14), and now he was a child actually given back from the dead, so that this great woman of Shunem was made to see the great power of the God of Israel in a twofold way.

37. "Then she went in and fell at his feet and bowed herself to the ground, and took up her son and went out." Let some mother who has lost an only son describe this mother's joy at such a time and under such circumstances. We may imagine her bowing before God with him and saying like Hannah, "He shall be given to the Lord as long as he lives." Let all our hearts turn more fully to the Only Begotten Son of God whom God spared not, but delivered Him up for us all, and let us remember that with Him He has freely given us all things (Rom. viii., 32). May no one and no thing come between our hearts and Him.—Lesson Helper.

PISTOLS IN NEW YORK CITY.

Less than 800 People Have Legal Permits to Carry "Guns."

There are less than 800 persons in this city with permits to carry pistols. Not one of this number is a woman, and the great majority of them are business men who have the handling of large sums of money. In fact, there is not one of them who has not a first-class reason for going about armed, although there are a great many applicants for the privilege who are not entitled to it, and who consequently do not get it.

Many of the negroes of the Tenderloin precinct have a great longing to carry pistols, but very few succeed in getting permits. Quite frequently some colored "sport" of the precinct calls at the Tenderloin station and announces that he would like permission to carry a pistol. The other day a young man in a suit of brown and white checks, a striped red-white-and-blue shirt front and collar, and with an enormous paste diamond in his scarf, asked to see the captain.

"What's the trouble?" asked the sergeant at the desk.

"No trouble, sah," said the young man, "not a bit of it, sah, but ah jus' wanter get endowed with authority toe carry a gun, sah."

"Why?" asked the sergeant.

"Well, sah, ahm quite a spoht, an' ah plays poker once'n a while, an' I doan relish de 'sperience ob losin' de pot against a pair of deuces an' a razor, when I has three queens, sah. Ah come to de conclusion dat a pusson in a game ob dat sort's got to have somefin' to back up his han', sah."

He was one of the many whose applications have been unsuccessful.

The number of permits issued has increased but very little in the last few years. It was at the time of the numerous hold-ups of brewery collectors that the demand for them was at its height, and from that time until this almost every brewery collector has had a permit, and has carried a revolver.—New York Times.

One of the First Symptoms of Failing Health in a Woman is NERVOUSNESS

Did you ever think that there is always a cause for this malady? In women Nervousness is generally the forerunner of some form of female disease, such as Whites, Painful, Profuse or Irregular Menses, etc., either of which will produce Nervousness in all of its distressing intensity. If you use you will very soon be cured of Nervousness and all other female troubles as well. If costive, move the bowels with mild doses of St. Joseph's Liver Regulator.

Gerstle's Female Panacea

TRADE (G.F.P.) MARK.

I HAVE SUFFERED FOR YEARS

With painful menses, attended with sour stomach, rushing of blood to the head, bad, I cannot rest. I have used various female remedies for a long time but found no relief until about two months ago, when I commenced using your Gerstle's Female Panacea and St. Joseph's Liver Regulator, and they are doing me more good than all others. I shall continue their use.

Glenmore, Ga. MRS. SARAH JENKINS.

If your case is complicated, write us and we will give you full information regarding the use of this medicine. Get it from your druggist. If he does not keep it send us $1 and we will send a bottle, all charges paid. L. GERSTLE & CO., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Liquid Pistol PRICE, 50 CENTS

PROTECTION OR FUN.

Shoots Ammonia, Water, Cologne and Other Liquid.

It is a weapon which protects bicyclists against vicious dogs and foot-pads; travelers against robbers and tongks; horses against thieves and tramps, and is adapted to many other situations.

It does not kill or injure; it is perfectly safe to handle; makes no noise or smoke; breaks no law and creates no lasting regrets, as does the bullet pistol. It simply and amply protects, by compelling the foe to give undivided attention to himself for a while instead of to the intended victim.

It is the only real weapon which prevents and also makes fun, laughter and lots of it; it shoots, but once, but many times without reloading; and will protect by its appearance in time of danger, although loaded only with Liquid. It does not get out of order; is durable, handsome, and nickel plated.

Sent boxed and post paid by mail with full directions how to use for 50c. in In. Postage Stamps, Post-office Money Order, or Express Money Order.

As to our reliability, refer to R. G. Dun's or Bradstreet's mercantile agencies.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet the perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, and realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It has secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor, honestly and respectably either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such it gives its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the interest of the month, of the political, economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor of "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in the world; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the men of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of timely or serious import.

"We know of no review published, in this country or in Europe, which compares so successfully as the American in point of [illegible] timeliness and energy of [illegible] with wise and sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen illustrations of the passing literary panorama."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" interests is best proved by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of and for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Kincheon, Aug. 15, 1898
Editor BANNER—I saw in your issue of August 4 someone, who signed himself Billy, writing from Billingsley, in reference to working roads by taxation. It seems to me he has some very peculiar ideas. He says that they have worse roads in Autauga county than they have had in ten years.

Now, Mr. Editor, don't we all know that if the said road law is properly enforced we are bound to have better roads than we now have? And doesn't anyone know that where public roads are worked by taxation that the more property a man owns the more he uses the roads and the more tax he pays, and the contractor who works the roads gives bond for the faithful performance of his duty, thereby insuring us good roads.

I think Billy had better look again. I say let us have the public roads worked by taxation. I generally work the roads about three days a year. Let us say that my time is worth 50 cents per day, that is $1.50 a year, and if I was taxed for that purpose the tax would not be over 15 or 20 cents per year.

But, says one, the men who are 45 years of age, who are now free from that duty, would be brought in again under that law. Let me ask where is the man who would not rather pay a few cents per annum and have good roads, than to be road free and have such roads as we have under the present laws?

Again, let us have the road law, and let there be a dog law also, there is a lot of bread consumed by worthless dogs that children ought to have.

THUS.

Death of Mrs W. M. Wilson

Early on Friday morning last the angel of death carried away the immortal spirit of Allie, the beloved wife of Mr. W. M. Wilson. The news came upon our town like a thunder-clap from an unclouded sky—it was so unexpected. Only the day previous Mrs. Wilson had been out on the streets in, apparently, her usual health, but "the Lord giveth, and the Lord taketh away."

Mrs. Wilson was born near Maplesville thirty-eight years ago, and spent the happy days of her girlhood there until thirteen years since when she was married to Mr. W. M. Wilson, and has since that event lived in Clanton beloved and respected by all who knew her.

For the last twenty years of her life she was a faithful member of the Methodist church, and was always eager and willing to assist her neighbors when in grief or distress. A good woman has gone, leaving a host of grieving friends and relatives, an inconsolable husband and three little motherless children to mourn for her.

The funeral took place Saturday morning, and seldom has a larger congregation gathered at the cemetery, testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased lady was held. Rev. W. B. Dennis read the burial service in his most impressive manner, and many tears were dropped for the dearly loved sister who is now at rest.

Mr. W. M. Wilson desires to return his heartfelt thanks to kind neighbors and friends for their assistance and sympathy in his bereavement.

Maplesville.

Deep groans are yet coming from farmers of too much rain, all outdoor work is done between showers, cotton is remarkably heavily fruited here, is shedding some owing to too much rain.

Last Thursday at Verbena, Sidney, the loveable and gifted son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Beale of Montgomery, after a short but severe illness, breathed his last, surrounded by the deeply bereaved family. Sidney was nearly 14 years of age, his twin brother, Jesse, surviving him. His was an exceptionally sweet and sympathetic disposition. He was the idol of his parents and their innumerable friends. The latter deeply feel the great and irreparable loss sustained of the fond and distressed parents, and all have the undivided sympathy of the whole community. All who knew him predicted a bright and useful future for Sidney Beale.

About one month ago my child, which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief, we sent for a physician and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having about twenty-five operations of the bowels every twelve hours, and we were convinced that no relief would be obtained of it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. Boggs, Stumptown, Gilmer Co., W. Va. For sale by J. S. WORN-OUT WOMEN

Most women are drudges. Some are willing, some are unwilling. Some women drudge for themselves, some for their family. Their routine is endless; no matter how ill they feel they work.

Women never half take care of themselves. Early decay and wrecked lives abound, mainly through neglect. Every woman should have the book called "Health and Beauty," which the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., will mail on request. It tells women some easy things to do to protect health, and all about the virtues of Pe-ru-na for women's peculiar ills. Miss Lizzie Peters, Muscontah, Ill., writes:

"I am perfectly cured of female weakness by taking Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin. I have gained thirty-seven pounds since I began taking Pe-ru-na. My friends are wondering what makes me look so bright and healthy. I would like to let the world know what a wonderful medicine Pe-ru-na is."

Woman's diseases are mainly catarrh of the pelvic organs. Pe-ru-na drives out every phase of catarrh.

Mrs. Eliza Wike, No. 150 Iron Street, Akron, O., writes:

"I would be in my grave now if it had not been for your God-sent remedy, Pe-ru-na. I was a broken-down woman, now I am well."

Only nineteen per cent. of those who applied for service in the regular army passed the severe physical tests applied by the government.

The masses in Spain are not proper subjects of sympathy in the present crisis. Any governmental change is likely to mean a betterment of their condition.

A prominent bacteriologist states that scarcely one dog in 10,000 supposed to be mad in the sense that his bite will communicate hydrophobia is really so. A knowledge of this fact will cause a comparative feeling of security, but then a close lookout should be kept against the one dog.

The Hawaiians are more akin to the Papuan than to the Malay race. They are a family of the brown Polynesian race, which inhabits the Tonga, the Society, Friendly and Samoan islands. The New Zealander and the Hawaiian, although 5000 miles apart, can understand each other, so similar is the language. The original Hawaiians are olive in color, with black, wavy, glossy hair, large eyes, full lips and a nose inclined to be flat. They are peaceful, gentle, imitative and yielding.

The Berlin (Germany) sewer system transports annually from sixty million to seventy million tons of sewage for distribution over an area of twenty thousand acres lying from seven to fifteen miles beyond the limits of the city. Although the cost of the drainage is about $25,000,000 a year, the enormously increased fertility of the land makes it a paying operation. Besides that, it is the most sanitary and scientific mode of disposing of the city's sewage.

The regular troops of the United States army have done so exactly what was confidently expected of them that their splendid performances before Santiago excited less comment than did the equally heroic deeds of the volunteers. We all accepted as a matter of course that the regulars and their West Point officers would act up to the highest standard fixed by the history of their organization. But matters of course should not pass without recognition. All but three regiments of the army which accompanied Shafter are regulars, well trained, perfectly disciplined, hardy, intelligent American soldiers, officered by men whose superiors are not found in the armies of the world. The work of the regulars has proved this.

Spain's red and yellow banner has been kissed by the suns and fanned by the breezes of every clime. Each of the races of the earth has paid gold into her treasure vaults—the red man of our own forest primeval, the Malay of the Southern seas, the Mongolian Islanders, the natives of Africa—all of these have spent the sweat of their brows and the blood of their hearts to the profit and glory of the kingdom of Spain. By the daring of her navigators and the force of her arms Spain placed her flag at the four quarters of the earth, muses the New York World. The lust of conquest lay at the Spaniard's feet. Then came a period in which over-confidence and government prostitutions worked hand in hand. One by one the colonies proclaimed red-eyed revolution. One by one the nation lost her neglected own. It has taken four centuries to do this—three of them slow, unprogressive centuries—but time has done his work well.

The famous English statistician, Mr. Mulhall, has made estimates of the wealth of the leading nations of the world at the end of the year 1895. His figures are as follows: United States, $81,750,000,000; Great Britain, $59,030,000,000; France, $47,950,000,000; Germany, $40,260,000,000; Russia, $32,125,000,000; Austria, $22,560,000,000; Italy, $15,800,000,000; Spain, $11,900,000,000. The comparative figures for annual earnings are as follows: United States, $15,580,000,000; Great Britain, $7,115,000,000; Germany, $6,402,000,000; France, $5,995,000,000; Russia, $5,020,000,000; Austria, $3,535,000,000; Italy, $2,180,000,000; Spain, $1,365,000,000. It will be seen that the United States leads all the other nations in wealth and still further in annual earnings. Compared with Spain, we have nearly seven times as much property, while our annual earnings are twelve times as much. The difference in the average intelligence of the two nations is even greater.

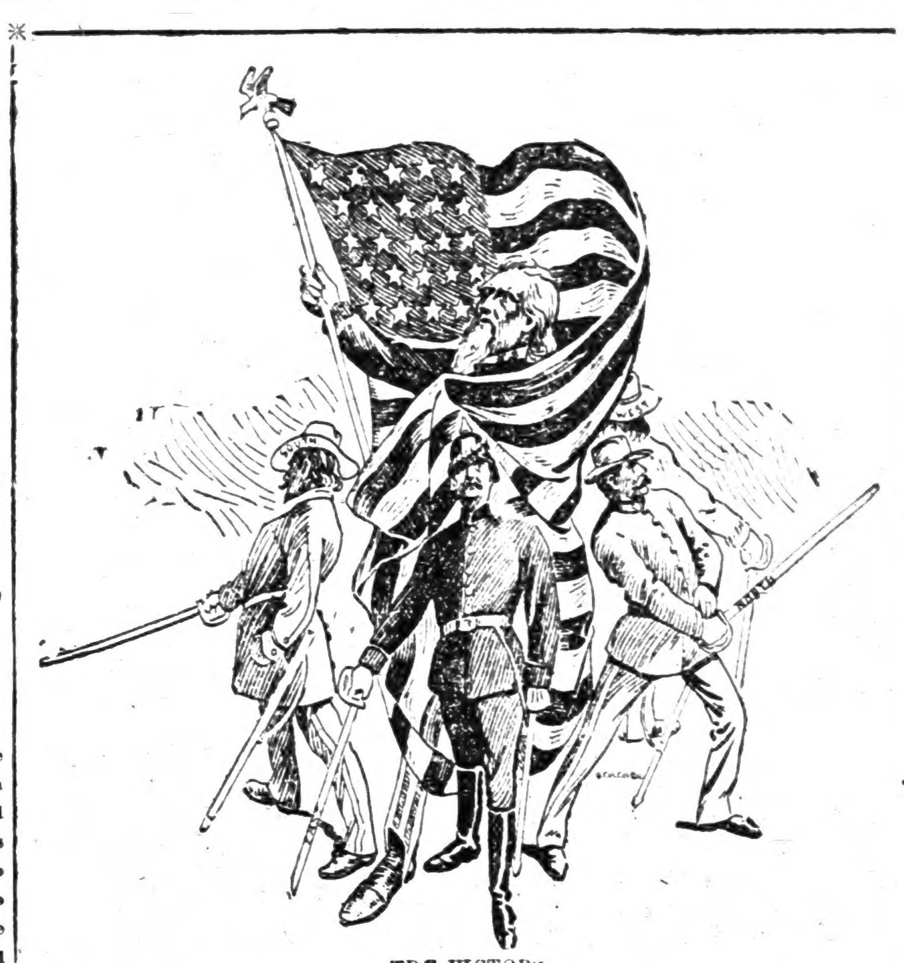
END OF THE WAR WITH SPAIN.

Peace Protocol Signed by Secretary Day and Ambassador Cambon in the Presence of President McKinley.

HISTORIC SCENE IN THE WHITE HOUSE.

Imperative Orders Cabled to Cuba, Porto Rico and Manila to Stop Bloodshed.

Spain Yields to Our Ultimatum—Peace Commissioners Appointed Forthwith to Make a Treaty, Which Madrid Thinks Will Be Ratified by the Cortes Without Difficulty—Spanish Troops to Evacuate Forts, American Forces to Occupy Them—Porto Rico Ours—The Blockade of Cuba, Porto Rico and Manila Raised—Orders Immediately Issued to United States Naval and Military Commanders to Cease Hostilities—Work on the Treaty—Not More Than Five Commissioners on Each Side, to Meet in Paris by Oct. 1.



THE VICTORS.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—The war between the United States and Spain, which was formally declared to exist by Congress at 3 o'clock on the morning of April 21 last, was practically ended at 4.23 o'clock Friday afternoon, when Secretary Day and M. Cambon, French Ambassador representing Spain, affixed their signatures to duplicate copies of a protocol establishing a basis upon which the two countries, acting through their respective commissioners could negotiate terms of peace. Immediately following the execution of the protocol President McKinley signed a proclamation declaring the existence of an armistice, and, pursuant to a provision of the protocol, orders were transmitted at once to General Miles in Porto Rico, to General Shafter in Cuba, and to General Merritt in the Philippines, and to Admiral Dewey at Manila and Admirals Sampson and Watson at Guantanamo, to cease hostilities; and to Admiral Howell at Key West, in command of the blockading fleet, to raise the blockade of Cuban and Porto Rican ports. The orders also include the liberating of the port of Manila from the blockade that has been maintained there by Admiral Dewey since May 1. Copies of the proclamation were sent to our Ambassadors and Ministers in South America, and notification of the signing of the protocol was sent to all other diplomatic representatives of the United States.

SECRETARY OF STATE DAY.

(Who signed the protocol in behalf of the United States.)

The full text of the protocol was not made public. It is a document of about 1200 words, and some of the provisions withheld, it is believed, relate to matters concerning which it is deemed expedient for the present to maintain in reserve.

The Protocol.

The protocol provides:

1. That Spain will relinquish all claim of sovereignty over and title to Cuba.

2. That Porto Rico and other Spanish islands in the West Indies and an island in the Ladrones, to be selected by the United States, shall be ceded to the latter.

3. That the United States will occupy and hold the city, bay and harbor of Manila, pending the conclusion of a treaty of peace which shall determine the control, disposition and government of the Philippines.

4. That Cuba, Porto Rico and other Spanish islands in the West Indies shall be immediately evacuated, and that commissioners, to be appointed within ten days, shall, within thirty days from the signing of the protocol, meet at Havana and San Juan, respectively, to arrange and execute the details of the evacuation.

5. That the United States and Spain will each appoint not more than five commissioners to negotiate and conclude a treaty of peace. The commissioners are to meet at Paris not later than October 1.

6. On the signing of the protocol, hostilities will be suspended and notice to that effect will be given as soon as possible by each Government to the commanders of its military and naval forces.

The President Declares an Armistice.

The proclamation declaring the existence of an armistice reads:

"By the President of the United States of America:

"A PROCLAMATION.

"Whereas, By a protocol concluded and signed August 12, 1898, by William R. Day, Secretary of State of the United States, and his Excellency Jules Cambon, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Republic of France at Washington, respectively representing for this purpose the Government of the United States and the Government of Spain, the United States and Spain have formally agreed upon the terms on which negotiations for the establishment of peace between the two countries shall be undertaken; and,

"Whereas. It is in said protocol agreed that upon its conclusion and signature hostilities between the two countries shall be suspended, and that notice to that effect shall be given as soon as possible by each Government to the commanders of its military and naval forces:

"Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, President of the United States, do, in accordance with the stipulations of the protocol, declare and proclaim on the part of the United States a suspension of hostilities, and do hereby command that orders be immediately given through the proper channels to the commanders of the military and naval forces of the United States to abstain from all acts inconsistent with this proclamation.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, this 12th day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-third. WILLIAM MCKINLEY.

"By the President. WILLIAM R. DAY, Secretary of State."

Suspension of Hostilities Ordered.

The armistice proclamation was followed at once by orders from the War Department to the several commanding Generals in the field directing that all military operations be suspended. Practically identical cablegrams were sent to Major-General Miles in Porto Rico, Major-General Shafter in Santiago and Major-General Merritt in the Philippines. This is the text of the message to General Miles:

"ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, August 12, 1898.

"Major-General Miles, Ponce, Porto Rico:

"The President directs that all military operations against the enemy be suspended. Peace negotiations are nearing completion, a protocol having been signed by representatives of the two countries. You will inform the commander of the Spanish forces in Porto Rico of these instructions. Further orders will follow. Acknowledge receipt.

"By order Secretary of War.

"H. C. CORBIN, Adjutant-General."

SIGNING THE PROTOCOL.

Simplicity of the Formalities at the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—With simplicity in keeping with democratic institutions, the war which has raged between

M. JULES CAMBON.

(French Ambassador who signed the protocol as the Representative of Spain.)

Spain and the United States for a period of three months and twenty days was quietly terminated at 4.23 o'clock Friday afternoon, when Secretary Day, for the United States, and M. Cambon, for Spain, in the presence of President McKinley, signed a protocol which will form the basis of a definite treaty of peace.

The protocols were signed at the request of the President in the Cabinet room at the Executive Mansion. There were present the President, William R. Day, Secretary of State; John B. Moore, Assistant Secretary of State; A. A. Adee, Second Assistant Secretary of State, and Thomas W. Cridler, Third Assistant Secretary of State. At four o'clock the French Ambassador, M. Jules Cambon, was announced. He was accompanied by his secretary, M. Eugene Thiebaut.

They were conducted to the library, where they had conducted the negotiations with the President and Secretary Day, and here they were met by Judge Day and escorted to the Cabinet room, where they were welcomed by the President.

There was no delay in proceeding with the work at hand. As soon as the gentlemen had greeted one another, Messrs Cridler and Thiebaut compared the copies of the protocol that has been prepared, and, finding them satisfactorily engrossed, they were placed on the table preparatory to being signed. The document had been prepared in duplicate; the text ran in parallel columns, one being English, the other French. In one copy the English version occupied the first column; in the other the French came first. The latter was first signed, "M. Jules Cambon" appearing on the upper line and "William R. Day" on the lower. The signatures to the other copy were reversed, that of Secretary Day coming first and that of M. Cambon last. This copy will go into the archives of the State Department; the other M. Cambon carried away to transmit to Paris, whence it will reach Madrid, its final resting place.

The writing was done upon the table around which the members of the Cabinet sit during their sessions, at the place allotted to Secretary Long, whose chair was occupied in turn by M. Cambon and Secretary Day. The act of signing was witnessed by the President, who rose from his seat at the other end of the table as M. Cambon sat down.

The President, as soon as the protocol had been signed expressed his great satisfaction at the completion of the ceremony. To M. Cambon and to M. Thiebaut he extended his thanks in an earnest, impressive way for their active and sympathetic co-operation in bringing so speedily and successfully to their present stage the efforts looking to a resumption of peace between the two countries. M. Cambon returned his thanks for the warmth and evident sincerity of the President's greeting, and expressed his own pleasure at being able to participate in such an auspicious event.

Congratulations were exchanged among all those present, and after President McKinley had signed the proclamation announcing the existence of an armistice, which he did within two minutes after the protocol had been signed, a short period of relaxation and refreshment followed. Souvenirs of the event were secured by several members of the party, Assistant Secretary Moore getting the pen used by the signatories to the protocol.

The pen to be used in signing the proclamation directing a suspension of hostilities was handed to the President by M. Thiebaut, who remarked that he desired to retain it as a momento of the occasion, and the President received it, expressing pleasure at the part played by M. Thiebaut in the peace negotiations.

Before the party dispersed the Secretary of War, General Alger, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen and Adjutant-General Corbin, who had been invited to be present, called and joined in the felicitations.

SPAIN'S VIEW OF PEACE.

Government Preparing to Meet Any Uprising That May Arise.

MADRID, Spain (By Cable).—The protocol having been signed, the Government is now considering the domestic situation for the best means of allaying the excitement and propagating the idea that Spain's surrender is not so complete as indicated.

In order to allay public feeling Spain has caused the publication of a semi-official note expressing the hope that the Philippines will remain under Spanish sovereignty, and that the armies in Cuba and Porto Rico will be permitted to depart honorably.

The Liberal, one of the most influential papers in Spain, however, admits that Spain's mission in the New World is completely ended.

Nebraska Republicans in Session.

The Nebraska Republican State convention at Lincoln nominated Judge M. L. Haywood for Governor, at the head of a full State ticket, and adopted the platform advocated by the Conservatives as to the proper policy of the Nation toward conquered territory, and containing the following financial plank: "We reaffirm unswerving allegiance to the principles enumerated in the Republican National platform of 1896. We are in favor of the maintenance of the present gold standard and unalterably opposed to the free and unlimited coinage of silver."

The Oldest Person in America Dead.

Mrs. Margaret Fallon, who has just died at King's Ferry, Cayuga County, N. Y., at the age of one hundred and seventeen, is believed to have been the oldest person in America. It has been found from the records that she was born in Lusfuth Parish, Kings County, Ireland, in 1781. She has been a widow fifty years and is survived by four sons and five daughters. The oldest daughter is eighty and the oldest son seventy-five.

Licensed Fertilizers.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has licensed over a thousand brands of fertilizers.

Wyoming Republican Convention.

The Wyoming Republicans met in State Convention at Douglas, Wyoming, and nominated by acclamation De Forest Richards for Governor. F. W. Mondell was nominated by Congress. The platform indorses the "twin measures of the Republican party, protection and prosperity;" approves the Dingley tariff law, supports the Administration in its vigorous prosecution of the war against Spain, praises the country's heroes, approves Hawaiian annexation, and favors the construction of the Nicaraguan Canal, and favors the retention of all the territory which American arms have conquered.

REV. DR. TALMAGE.

DISCOURSE BY THE EMINENT DIVINE LAST SUNDAY.

"Writing in Dust" the Subject—A Denunciation of Hypocrisy—The Injustice of Condemning in Woman Sins That Are Overlooked in Man.

T[illegible] stooped down [illegible] with his fingers wrote on the ground [illegible] viii, 6.

You must take [illegible] on the especial [illegible] door if you would [illegible] mosque, which stands [illegible] where once stood Herod's temple [illegible] my text. Solomon's temple had [illegible] Nebuchadnezzar had [illegible] Zerubbabel's temple [illegible] there, but had been prostrated. Now we have our places in a temple [illegible] Herod built because he was fond of great architecture, and he wanted the preceding temples to seem insignificant. Put [illegible] ten modern cathedrals together, and [illegible] would not equal that structure. It covered nineteen acres. There were marble pillars supporting roofs of cedar, and silver tables on which stood golden cups, and there were carvings exquisite, and inscriptions resplendent, glittering balustrades and ornamented gateways.

In that stupendous pile of pomp and magnificence sat Christ, and a listening throng stood about Him when a wild disturbance took place. A group of men are pulling and pushing along a woman who had committed a crime against society. When they have brought her in front of Christ, they ask that He sentence her to death by stoning. They are a critical, merciless, disingenuous crowd. They want to get Christ into controversy and public reprehension. If He say "Let her die," they will charge Him with cruelty. If He let her go they will charge Him with being in complicity with wickedness. Whichever way He does, they would howl at Him.

Then occurs a scene which has not been sufficiently regarded. He leaves the lounge or bench on which He was sitting, and goes down on one knee, or both knees, and with the forefinger of His right hand He begins to write in the dust of the floor, word after word. But they were not to be diverted or hindered. They kept on demanding that He settle this case of transgression, until He looked up and told them they might themselves begin the woman's assassination, if the complainant who had never done anything wrong himself would open the fire. "Go ahead, but be sure that the man who flings the first missile is immaculate." Then He resumed writing with His finger nail in the dust of the floor, word after word. Instead of looking over His shoulder to see what He had written, the scoundrels skulked away. Finally, the whole place is clear of pursuers, antagonists and plaintiffs, and when Christ has finished this strange chirography in the dust He looks up and finds the woman all alone.

The prisoner is the only one of the courtroom left, the judges, the police, the prosecuting attorney having cleared out. Christ is victor, and He says to the woman: "Where are the persecutors in this case? are they all gone? Then I discharge you; go and sin no more." I have wondered what Christ wrote on the ground. For do you realize that this is the only time that He ever wrote at all? I know that Eusebius says that Christ once wrote a letter to Abgarus, the King of Edessa, but there is no good evidence of such a correspondence. The wisest Being the world ever saw, and the One who had more to say than anyone who ever lived, never writing a book or a chapter or a paragraph or a word on parchment. Nothing but the literature of the dust, and one sweep of a brush or one breath of a wind obliterated it forever.

Among all the rolls of the volumes of the first library founded at Thebes there was not one scroll of Christ. Among the books of the Alexandrian Library, which, by the infamous decree of Caliph Omar, were used as fuel to heat the baths of the city, not one sentence had Christ penned. Among all the infinitude of volumes now standing in the libraries of Edinburgh, the British Museum, or Berlin, or Vienna, or the learned repositories of all nations, not one word written directly by the finger of Christ. All that He ever wrote He wrote in dust, uncertain, shifting dust.

My text says He stooped down and wrote on the ground. Standing straight up a man might write on the ground with a staff, but if with His fingers He would write in the dust He must bend clear over. Aye, He must get at least on one knee, or He cannot write on the ground. Be not surprised that He stooped down. His whole life was a stooping down. Stooping down from castle to barn. Stooping down from celestial homage to monocratic jeer. From residence above the stars to where a star had to fall to designate His landing-place. From Heaven's front door to the world's back gate. From writing in round and silvered letters of constellation and galaxy on the blue scroll of Heaven to writing on the ground in the dust which the feet in the crowd had left in Herod's temple.

Christ came down from the highest Heaven to the broiling of fish for His own breakfast, on the banks of the lake. From emblazoned chariots of eternity to the saddle of a mule's back. From the homage cherubic, seraphic, archangelic, to the paying of sixty-two and a half cents of tax to Cæsar. From the deathless country to a tomb built to hide human dissolution. The uplifted wave of Galilee was high, but He had to come down before, with His feet, He could touch it, and the whirlwind that arose above the billow was higher yet, but He had to come down before with His lip He could kiss it into quiet. Bethlehem a stooping down. Nazareth a stooping down. Death between two burglars a stooping down. Yes, it was in consonance with humiliations that went before and self-abnegations that came after, when on that memorable day in Herod's temple He stooped down and wrote on the ground.

Whether the words He was writing were in Greek or Latin or Hebrew, I cannot say, for He knew all those languages. But He is still stooping down, and with His finger writing on the ground; in the winter in letters of crystals, in the spring in letters of flowers, in summer in golden letters of harvest, in autumn in letters of fire or fallen leaves. How it would sweeten up and enrich and emblazon this world, could we see Christ's caligraphy all over it. This world was not flung out into space thousands of years ago, and then left to look out for itself. It is still under the Divine care. Christ never for a half second takes His hand off of it, or it would soon be a shipwrecked world, a defunct world, an obsolete world, an abandoned world, a dead world. "Let there be light," was said at the beginning. And Christ stands under the wintry skies and says, let there be snowflakes to enrich the earth; and under the clouds of spring and says, come ye blossoms and make redolent the orchards; and in September, dips the branches in the vat of beautiful colors, and swings them into the hazy air. No whim of mine is this. "Without Him was not anything made that was made." Christ writing on the ground.

If you could see His hand in all the passing seasons, how it would illumine the world! All verdure and foliage would be allegoric, and again we would hear Him say, as of old, "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow;" and we would not hear the whistle of a quail or the cawing of a raven or the roundelay of a brown-thresher, without saying, "Behold the fowls of the air, they gather not in barns, yet your Heavenly Father feedeth them;" and a Dominic hen of the barnyard could not cluck for her brood, but we would hear Christ saying, as of old, "How often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings;" and through the redolent hedges we would hear Christ saying, "I am the rose of Sharon;" we could not dip the seasoning from the salt-cellar without think-

[illegible]

Yes, I think [illegible] the ground [illegible] Christ was the [illegible] What pretension [illegible] of those hypocrites [illegible] fox begins to pray [illegible] ens. One of the [illegible] times was going [illegible] of the martyrs and [illegible] torn "In the name [illegible] "stop!" says the martyr, [illegible] name of God!" Yet how [illegible] are practiced under the g[illegible] and sanctity! When in s[illegible] ferences, ministers of the [illegible] to say something un[illegible] kind about a member, they [illegible] begin by being ostentatious [illegible] venom of their assault [illegible] the heavenly flavor of the [illegible] to devour a reputation the[illegible] before meat.

But I am sure there was [illegible] in that dust. From her en[illegible] am sure that arraigned w[illegible] pentant. She made no apo[illegible] in nowise belittled her sin [illegible] plicatory behavior and [illegible] Him, and when He stooped [illegible] on the ground He wrote tha[illegible] imperial word, forgiveness.

When on Sinai God wrote [illegible] wrote it with finger of lightning [illegible] of stone, each word cut as [illegible] the hard granite surface [illegible] writes the offence of this w[illegible] it in dust so that it can be [illegible] out, and when she repente[illegible] was a merciful Christ! I [illegible] legend that is told in the [illegible] Him. He was walking thro[illegible] of a city and He saw a crowd [illegible] dog. And one man said [illegible] some object is that dog!" [illegible] other, "his ears are ma[illegible]" "Yes," said another, "even [illegible] not be of any use to the [illegible]" said another, "the odor of [illegible] dreadful." Then Christ [illegible] said: "But pearls cannot [illegible] ness of his teeth." Then the[illegible] by the idea that anyone [illegible] thing pleasant concerning [illegible] said: "Why, this must be [illegible] reth!" Reproved and convi[illegible] away.

But while I speak of Christ [illegible] His stooping down writing [illegible] not think I underrate the [illegible] dust. It is the most tre[illegible] literature. It is the grandest [illegible] ries. When Layard exhumed [illegible] was only opening the doo[illegible] dust. The excavations [illegible] only been the unclasping of [illegible] nation's dust.

Oh! this mighty literature [illegible] Where are the remains of [illegible] Attila and Epaminondas a[illegible] and Trajan and Philip of [illegible] Julius Cæsar? Dust! W[illegible] guests who danced the floors [illegible] lora or the Persian palace [illegible] Dust! Where are the [illegible] played, or the orators who [illegible] sculptors who chiseled, and [illegible] who built, in all the centu[illegible] own? Dust! Where are [illegible] books that once entranced [illegible] Dust! Pliny wrote twenty [illegible] tory; all lost. The most [illegible] writings lost. Of one hund[illegible] comedies of Plautus, all gone [illegible] Euripides wrote a hundred [illegible] gone but nineteen. Aeschylus [illegible] dred dramas, all gone but [illegible] tilian wrote his favorite bo[illegible] ruption of eloquence, a[illegible] books of Tacitus lost. [illegible] eighty books, only twenty [illegible] sius's history all lost. [illegible] living book there are a [illegible] books.

Oh! this mighty literature [illegible] is not so wonderful; after a[illegible] chose, instead of an ins[illegible] sionable sand on the floor [illegible] temple, and instead of a [illegible] forth His forefinger, with [illegible] nerve and muscle and [illegible] that which makes up [illegible] and wrote the awful [illegible] and full and complete [illegible] pentant sinners, even the [illegible] about the ocean of Christ [illegible] four ships upon that ocean [illegible] sail out in opposite dir[illegible] sand years, and see if [illegible] shore of the ocean of the [illegible] them sail to the north a[illegible] the east and the west [illegible] thousand years of voyage [illegible] back and they will re[illegible] shore to the ocean of [illegible]

And now I can believe [illegible] how that a mother kep[illegible] in the window every nigh[illegible] and one night, very late [illegible] street entered. The aged [illegible] her, "Sit down by the fire [illegible] said. "Why do you keep [illegible] window?" The aged w[illegible] to light my wayward [illegible] returns. Since she went [illegible] ago, my hair has turned [illegible] blame me for worrying a[illegible] see I am her mother and [illegible] dozen times a night, I op[illegible] look out into the darkness [illegible] zie! 'Lizzie!' But I must [illegible] more about my trouble, for [illegible] the way you cry, you have [illegible] of your own. Why, how [illegible] seem! Oh, my! can it be [illegible] Lizzie, my own lost child [illegible] you are home again!" A[illegible] rejoicing there was in [illegible] night. And Christ aga[illegible] and in the ashes of that [illegible] up, not more by the great [illegible] by the joy of a reunited [illegible] the same liberating wo[illegible] written more than eigh[illegible] ago in the dust of the [illegible] Forgiveness! A word [illegible] high enough to let pass [illegible] armies of Heaven, a m[illegible] white horses, nostril to [illegible] flank.

THE MORRO'S LAST GUN.

Without Warning the Old Castle Opens Fire on the Flagship San Francisco.

KEY WEST, FLA.—The flagship San Francisco, the monitor Miantonomah and the auxiliary yacht Sylvia were fired upon by the Havana batteries shortly before 5 o'clock Friday morning. One 14 or 12-inch shell struck the San Francisco's stern as she turned to get out of range and tore a hole about a foot in diameter, completely wrecking Commodore Howell's quarters and smashing his book case to fragments. Nobody was injured and being under orders not to attack the batteries the ships retreated as fast as their engines would carry them. The flagship and the Sylvia lay parallel to each other not more than a mile from Morro castle and separated from each other by a distance between three-eighths and one quarter of a mile. The Miantonomah lay about three-quarters of a mile to the rear of the others. All were within range of the Spanish batteries and the temptation was too strong to be resisted.

The one-sided engagement had scarcely ended when the men of the Sylvia were treated to another surprise. The little yacht gunboat which is manned by the New York naval militia, reached the blockading station only two weeks ago and this was her first war experience. She had barely recovered from the tingle of it when the flagship called the vessel over and Captain Bellers was given a packet of private documents which he was ordered to take into Havana under a flag of truce. Without wasting words the white flag was ordered hoisted over the Sylvia and she steamed toward the guns which had just given her such noisy greeting. Her men are very proud of their first, and doubtless last, war experience.

GREAT COST OF THE WAR.

The Expense in Money Over a Million Dollars Daily.

WASHINGTON.—Although the war with Spain lasted only 113 days, it is estimated that it has cost the government so far $150,000,000, of which $98,000,000 has been actually paid out of the treasury. Beginning with March 1, when the first increases in the expenditures in anticipation of war became apparent in the daily expenditure of the treasury the actual disbursements on this account have been approximately as follows:

March—Army, $600,000; navy, $2,400,000. Total, $3,000,000.

April—Army, $1,200,000; navy, $9,800,000. Total, $11,000,000.

May—Army, $12,000,000; navy, $7,900,000. Total, $19,000,000.

June—Army, $16,500,000; navy, $6,500,000. Total, $23,000,000.

July—Army, $29,500,000; navy, $5,500,000. Total, $35,000,000.

To August 13—Army, $5,500,000; navy, $1,500,000. Total, $7,000,000.

Total charged to war department, $65,300,000; total charged to navy department, $32,700,000. Grand total, $98,000,000.

The appropriations made by congress on account of the war aggregate about $360,000,000, and cover the time to January 1, 1899.

TWENTY LIVES LOST

In a Cloudburst Near Rogersville, Tenn. Great Destruction of Property.

A terrible cloudburst, in which at least twenty lives are known to have been lost, was Saturday visited upon the community of Beach Creek, near Rogersville, Tenn. The torrent of water fell in the vicinity of the home of William Figan, a well-to-do farmer, and his entire family—wife and five children—was drowned and washed away in the flood. Figan, however, escaped. The deluge of water carried with it every human being within its reach, and the only names of the lost reported, in addition to the Figan family, are John Arnold and Samuel Henry and wife. The cloudburst destroyed several thousand dollars' worth of property.

SULLEN HOSTILITY TOWARD AMERICANS

Shown by a Certain Class of Cubans to An American Protectorate.

THE BETTER CLASS FAVOR ANNEXATION.

Wild Rumor That Cuban Army Will Attack Santiago as Soon as the American Garrison is Weakened and Capture It, to Glory of Insurgent Arms.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—Tronble with the Cubans is breeding. Their attitude is one of sullen hostilities toward Americans. The better class in Cuba favor the annexation of the island to the United States and a majority of the masses are ready and anxious to work and accept the shelter and protection afforded by an American protectorate, but they are influenced by a certain class of rabid orators and breeders of sedition and rebellion against anything smacking of law and order. This inflammatory class demands and urges the recognition of Cuba for Cubans and spurns all offers or suggestions tending to prosperity under an American protectorate and excite popular discontent.

Their advice to the Cubans is to repudiate all offers of peace or cessation of hostilities and to look upon an armistice as an agreement between the United States and Spain on their own account and not binding upon the free and independent state of Cuba, whose liberating army not only repudiates pacification, but will ignore the armistice to the point of continuing to wage war and shooting every Spaniard in the field.

A wild rumor is afloat to the effect that the Cuban army will attack Santiago and capture it to the glory of the Cuban arms as soon as the American garrison is weakened. This is directly traceable to the same source.

RIOTING IN HAVANA.

The Disorder Began Over the Posting of the Protocol.

News has reached the war department that Spanish regulars and volunteers in Havana were rioting and fighting Sunday. The rioting began over the posting of the protocol. The news of its signing reached General Blanco Saturday night, at the time Sagasta's orders to suspend hostilities were conveyed through General Greeley. The terms of the protocol were posted in Havana on Sunday. The volunteers resented the compliance of Blanco as a part of a conspiracy against the local government, and rioting began. The regulars were required to restore peace. The war department has no details of casualties.

Sending Spanish Prisoners Home.

The Spanish steamer Isle de Luzon sailed Sunday from Santiago for Spain, having on board 2,136 Spanish soldiers. The embarkation of the prisoners is being pushed with great activity. This is rendered imperative by their horrible condition. The mortality is so great in the Spanish camp, where disease is rampant that no longer are the dead buried. A funeral pile of ten or twelve bodies is made, saturated with kerosene and set fire to, cremating the bodies in the open air.

Tornado Kills Seven People.

THE LAST BATTLE OF THE WAR

It Falls to the Lot of the Navy at Manzanillo.

Acting Secretary Allen of the navy department has received a dispatch notifying him that a naval force sent by Admiral Sampson had appeared in the harbor at Manzanillo and demanded its surrender.

The commandant of the city declined to comply with the demand and an engagement took place, which is said to have resulted victoriously for the Americans.

The fight at Manzanillo was begun at 4 o'clock, twenty-three minutes before the protocol was signed, by a bombardment from the fleet. It was reported that marines had been landed, but the dispatch received by Gen. Greeley from the signal officer at Playa del Este made no such statement.

At the navy department it is said that the only vessels at Manzanillo are some small blockading ships which could not have conducted the operations described in the message received.

It is said that Admiral Sampson is at Guantanamo, and that Capt. Goodrich, with the Newark, Scorpion and Suwanee, is in the vicinity of the Isle of Pines, and that, therefore, neither of those officers could have had anything to do with the engagement.

In view of the signing of the protocol and the suspension of hostilities every effort was made by the authorities to stop the fight at Manzanillo. A dispatch was sent by Adjt.-Gen. Corbin to Santiago directing Gen. Shafter to get into communication with Manzanillo as soon as possible and inform the naval commanders there that hostilities were over.

Philippinos Desire Annexation.

HONG KONG—The Philippine junta called publicly on Consul General Wildman and declared that their country desires annexation.

They protested against ths reports that Aguinaldo had declined to aid the Americans in the battle of July 31; that he had deserted the trenches and failed to warn the Americans of the Spanish attack. The junta alleges that Aguinaldo retired his forces from the trenches below Malate at the request of General Merritt, the same as they retired from Cavite at the request of General Anderson.

The junta says Aguinaldo has kept every promise made since he left Hong Kong, and that his life and the lives of his men are always at the command of General Merritt and Admiral Dewey.

DISPOSITION OF PHILIPPINES.

Larger Share Will Go to Spain, Says the Madrid Liberal.

The Madrid Liberal, commenting on the gravity of the situation as regards the Philippine Islands, says it appears certain that the peace commission will accord to Spain sovereiguty over almost the whole of the archipelago, but that Spain will lose more than she will gain if Aguinaldo's insurgents do not make submission.

The Tiempo urges the government to hasten in every way possible the completion of peace negotiations.

DARK SPOTS HAVE DISAPPEARED.

The New York Journal has received dispatches from the heads of commercial and manufacturing associations in all parts of the country, and in every case the report is enthusiastic. There is no dark spot anywhere in the picture. From Massachusetts, from Montana, from Pennsylvania, from Illinois and from Texas come the forecasts of the approaching boom. The southern reports are particularly glowing in their promises of forthcoming increase of commercial activity.

English Papers Pleased.

The London morning papers are unanimous in expressing gratification that the American-Hispano war is ended. The comment mainly turns on the fact that the protocol leaves untouched the hardest problems now facing America. The Times believes it will be a real peace, adding:

"We trust it is no violation of neutrality to express the satisfaction of the great majority of Englishmen in America's success, and we venture the prediction that Cuba, twenty years hence, will be a prosperous and tranquil island."

THE JUNTA SATISFIED

With the Protocol and Orders the Cubans to Cease Hostilities.

Senor Palma, the head of the Cuban junta, has sent the following cable, by way of Santiago, to Bartolomo Masso, president Cuban republic:

"I have, this 13th day of August, 1898, accepted, in the name of the Cuban provisional government, the armistice proclaimed by the United States. You should give immediate orders to the army throughout Cuba suspending all hostilities. Preliminary terms of peace, signed by representatives of Spain and the United States, provide that Spain will relinquish all claim over and title to Cuba."

Death From a Poisoned Melon.

Mrs. Dora Pugh, who lived near Cotton Hill, St. Clair county, went into the watermelon patch of a neighbor, Tom Bowlin, and pulled a melon and ate some of it. She became very sick, and in a short while died in great agony.

It is stated that work will soon commence on another important industry at Ensley, an offspring from the new million-dollar steel plant, now under construction. The new plant, an iron foundry, will be the largest in the district. It will cost about $150,000.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Commissioner Culver Reports Rains as Damaging the Cotton.

Commissioner of Agriculture I. F. Culver has just completed a trip through East and Southeast Alabama. He reports the cotton crop, which ten days ago was very fine, the prospect better than for years past, is being cut off very rapidly by the continuous rains, boll worm and the rust. There is no telling to what extent the damages will be, if the rains continue, as August is the cotton-making month. A fine crop of corn is made, and the pea crop is very promising.

State Normal College.

We are informed that this college has the finest prospects for the next session that have ever been, and though the annual enrollment has been greater than any other white college in Alabama, yet it is believed there will be a considerable increase, still, the next session over previous years. This phenomenal growth is due to the following things, viz

1. The large and excellent faculty, each a specialist in his department. There are above twenty professors and teachers, all told.

2. The best of facilities that are afforded, at the very low expense rates, and the way this college keeps down extra personal expenses to the minimum.

3. The scholarships, granted on the nominations of senators and representatives of the Alabama legislature.

4. The plan of giving students in the junior, senior and post-senior classes opportunities to teach in the College Model and Practice School, by which these become skilled for work in the best schools after graduation. Such teachers are in great demand by wide-awake, up-to-date school boards, and the president, Dr. E. B. Eldridge, has many calls for such teachers, and the college influence is constantly exerted to locate such teachers.

5. Troy, Ala., the seat of this college, is 598 feet above sea level, and yellow fever never goes that high, and, besides, it is a city of churches and intelligence and virtue, to an unusual degree, a most proper home for a teachers' college.

We can assure our readers that this college is ready to answer all interrogatories of parties seeking a good college for general or special education. —State Normal Exponent, Troy, Ala.

Probable Peace Commissioners.

WASHINGTON.—Secretary Day, Senator Allison and Senator Gorman in all probability will be three of the commission, and either Joseph Choate or Elihu Root, of New York, will be appointed. Senator Davis, of Minnesota, will be offered a place on the commission, but it is expected he will decline, and that a fifth man, not a United States senator, will be selected.

A Blue Jacket Killed.

One more name has been added to the small list of the navy's war victims. Emanuel Kourtouris, a coal passer on the gunboat Bancroft, was shot and instantly killed during a sharp engagement with Spanish riflemen at a point of land jutting in Cortis bay, on the south coast of the province Pinar del Rio. It is not known how many Spaniard's lives paid for his, but the Spanish loss was undoubtedly severe.

Sampson and Schley Promoted.

The administration has made the following promotions: Commodore Wm. T. Sampson, advanced eight numbers and appointed a rear admiral for eminent and conspicuous conduct in battle; takes rank next after Rear Admiral John A. Howell. Commodore Winfield S. Schley, advanced six numbers and appointed a rear admiral for same reasons; takes rank next after Rear Admiral Wm. T. Sampson.

Soldier Courtmartialed and Shot.

Word has been received from Ponce, Porto Rico, that Private Laduke, of the Second Wisconsin, who shot and killed Private Stafford, of the regular army, during a quarrel in a saloon at Ponce, was courtmartialed August 3, found guilty, and shot on the morning of August 4.

Cuban Armistice.

Jack York, of Pennsylvania, who has been serving with Garcia, has just arrived at Santiago. He reports that Garcia has suspended operations for thirty days and given his men permission to go home, with instructions to report to him at the end of that period.

Cholera in India.

The cholera is epidemic at Madras, India. Between Monday morning and Friday night there were fifty-five deaths from the disease, and the fatalities prior to the day first mentioned were 117.

Earthquake Shocks.

Two slight shocks of earthquake were felt at Seattle, Wash. The vibrations were from east to west and about four seconds in duration.

Sampson and Schley Going North.

Admirals Sampson and Schley will go to New York on their respective flagships, which have been ordered to that point.

Small Output of the Klondike.

F. A. Leach, superintendent of the United States mint in San Francisco, estimates that the gold output of the Klondike this year has been about $5,000,000.

Parliament Prorogued.

The English house of commons met Friday.

The Alabama and Georgia Long Distance Telephone Company has opened up several new offices in St. Clair county, as follows: Pell City, Coal City, Riverside, Easonville and Cropwell.

Disbandment of Volunteer Army.

Thus far the question of the disbandment of the volunteer army has not been given serious consideration by the war officials. A considerable force necessarily will have to be maintained for several months, perhaps a year. In the opinion of the war department officials the force will be about 125,000 men. It will be kept in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines principally, although a few troops will be stationed at the various forts in this country.

THE bonds of the newly elected county officers are all in good shape and, we understand, have been accepted by Probate Judge Honeycutt.

In the Seventh Congressional District yesterday the Populist convention nominated O. D. Street, a son of the Probate Judge of Marshall county, for Congress, to succeed M. W. Howard, who declined to be a candidate.

THE BANNER is desirous of getting a full discussion among the people of Chilton as to the desirability of the State of Alabama adopting a new constitution. As we have previously remarked, there is no doubt but that the Democratic party intend if possible at the next session of the Legislature to provide for a constitutional convention. Let our people go to work and strengthen the hands of our Representative, by an expression of their views on this important question.

THE Supreme Court on Monday rendered a decision that will be generally endorsed by the people of the State. The coal oil inspection law was declared unconstitutional, as being in conflict with Art. IV, Section 38 of the State constitution which says:

"No state office shall be continued or created for the inspection or measuring of any merchandise, manufacture or commodity; but any county or municipality may appoint such officers when authorized by law."

The effect of the decision is to displace all inspectors appointed under the act. Now, if the "Expert" examiners of accounts are put to work and will find how much in fees the oil inspectors have illegally received they of course, will at once refund the amount.

A portion of the volunteers are to be mustered out of the service at once and others are to follow until the volunteer force of the country is narrowed down to merely a sufficient number to garrison Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines. As soon as congress meets it will be asked to raise the standing army so that the entire volunteer force can be disbanded and all garrison work done by regulars.

Secretary Alger has practically scrapped out his plan. It is to ask permission of congress for authority to increase the standing army to 70,000 men to take the place of the volunteers who can be returned to their homes. If he cannot get this number, he will ask for 75,000. The authorities in the war department believe that within six months after congress convenes, the authority will be given to raise a sufficient number of regulars so that every volunteer will be allowed to return to his home.

The Weekly Crop Bulletin reports: The last three days were ... very comparatively warm ... favorable for all crops. Cotton ... has been greatly damaged by ... long, wet period, which decidedly lowered the prospective yield; in the northern counties, the damage is not so great, but over the entire southern half of the state the crop has made very rank growth, and rust, rot and shedding are very general; boll-worms are also doing considerable damage. Cotton is opening slowly and picking is just beginning; the first bale of this season's crop was marketed at Montgomery on the 11th instant, and "first bales" have also been marketed at a few other places in the state. Corn continues in generally excellent condition, and, while there are a few complaints of smut and sprouting, it will make a very large yield.

The American Cotton Growers' Protective Association is no more, a new one having been perfected, which those who led in the work believe will result in success. The name of the new organization is the National Cotton Growers' Union, and it will be conducted upon entirely different lines from those which have marked the career of the old association. Individual ideas have been eliminated. The purpose of the new organization is to further the general interests of the planter. Two meetings were held to-day under the new organization, the old one having gone out of existence Tuesday night and at both of them the delegates were engaged in canvassing the report of the committees appointed for the purpose of preparing the constitution and by-laws. It was in that report that the scheme for the new organization was unfolded.

The meetings to-day were in executive session, for the reason that a portion of the scheme which is now in effect is secret.

DIRECT LEGISLATION

Education will intensify the good effects of Direct Legislation. A well-trained and educated community will make more rapid progress under it than an ill-trained one, but it will be good for both. The ignorant community will not have as good laws as the other nor make as rapid propress, but Direct Legislation will educate it and the individual in it. It will make more mistakes, but a burnt child dreads the fire, and its mistakes are the most effective education a community can have. There is no need of waiting for some ideal time in the future when the people are fitted for Direct Legislation; they are fitted for it now, and they need it to fit them for a finer state in the future. But one trouble now is, not that our laws are too far in advance of the people, but that the mass of the people are in advance of the laws. The good that is in the people cannot voice itself and exercise leadership. Our law-makers are not chosen because they have special fitness for making laws, but because they are able politicians and because their want is money, power or influence. Under Direct Legislation there would be no use in going to the Legislature, because if a job was lobbied through, the people would veto it. Gradually, the capable, high-minded men would take place as leaders. Our laws would be suggested, drafted, criticised by the best of the people who would be true leaders, because they would be the best servers or servants of the people. Thus our laws would be ahead of the people all the time, leading and educating, but not so far ahead as to be beyond comprehension. Should a group of ardent reformers urge a law which the people were not ready for, they would defeat it and there would be some disgruntled reformers who would have to start at educating again. Thus would the education in this great national university proceed, and the best of it would be that it would be continually developing, training and educating individuals into "thinking and self-sustaining citizens" by throwing responsibility and power into their individual lives. It would develop individuality. It would bring out strong personalities. It would raise the state to a higher pre-eminence than ever before by improving the individuals, of which it is composed. On the other hand, by the communion and responsibility of voting it would develop a solidarity or feeling and a social conscience, uniting with a higher patriotism, a nobler and more vital social organism than the world has ever known. The argument of education for Direct Legislation is one of the strongest of its many strong arguments.—Ellwood Pomeroy in The New Time.

The Rev. W. B. Costley, of Stockbridge, Ga., while attending to his pastoral duties at Ellenwood that state, was attacked by cholera morbus. He says: "By chance I happened to get hold of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and I think it was the means of saving my life. It relieved me at once." For sale by J. S. Population Conditions in Hawaii

The Sandwich Islands have been the home of a considerable number of American families for a long time. The grandchildren of the American missionaries who transformed the islands are now mature men and women. They send their children to an excellent American college at Honolulu that has been in existence for many years, although it is the custom for young Hawaiin-Americans to obtain at least a part of their educational training in this country. Our race exhibits no sign of deterioration in those islands. The men of the second generation have shown great ability, and the young men of the third generation are worthy of their American ancestry. It is true, of course, that the native Hawaiians and the Chinese and Japanese agricultural laboress constitute the bulk of the population. But the influences that have shaped institutions and given type to the progress and civilization of the islands have been distinctively American. There are by far more people of the negro blood than of white in South Carolina; but to say that South Carolina is not an Anglo-Saxon community in the strickest sense is to play with mere verbal fallacies. The welfare of all races in the Sandwich Islands requires that they should be under white control. It is sheer nonsense to talk of obtaining the consent of the entire population to annexation, if one means to include the great body of coolie, yellow-skinned laborers who are there not as domiciled families, but as indentured visitors, working on the five-year-contract plan, with the prospect of either voluntary or involuntary return to their own homes at the end of the labor period. These laborers have been much better off under President Dole's government than in their own countries. If they have not been allowed to participate in the administration of Hawaii, where they are sojourners, it is enough to reply that they do not, in fact, participate when at home in the governments of China or Japan. As to the Hawaiian natives, they are—under the present Hawaiian constitution—accorded as much political privilege as they are capable of exercising. Their rights will be far better assured under American oversight than they could possibly be under the government of corrupt and half-barbarous monarchs of their own race, easily swayed by scheming adventurers. Moreover, the race is dying off.

A perfectly direct line drawn from San Francisco to Manila passes through the Ladrone group. Honolulu lies some distance south of that line. Nevertheless, a direct line from Honolulu to Manila also passes through the Ladrone group. The Ladrones extend from north to south in a row 400 or 500 miles long, and are usually said to comprise about twenty islands. They lie directly north of the Caroline group, which it will also be our duty to claim and protect, and they are perhaps 1,500 miles from Manila and 3,500 from Honolulu. They have a population of only 8,000 or 10,000, the natives being akin to those of the Philippines. They are small islands, but by no means insignificant; for their total area is usually set down as about 1,250 square miles. They are of considerable commercial importance. They have a varied topography, with mountains and valleys and abundant rainfall, and they are extremely productive. Under improved methods of government and agriculture, such as the United States would easily introduce, the already important exports of the Ladrones would be very rapidly increased. They are exceedingly salubrious, and would yield large supplies of products, both of the temperate zone and of the tropics, under American exploitation. A direct cable line to Manila would naturally find a halting at San Ignacio de Agana, which is the capital of the islands and is situated on the largest of the group, Guajan, which is of a rounded contour and 50 or 60 miles long.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August.

SOME persons say it is natural for them to lose flesh during summer. But losing flesh is losing ground. Can you afford to approach another winter in this weakened condition?

Coughs and colds, weak throats and lungs, come quickest to those who are thin in flesh, to those easily chilled, to those who have poor circulation and feeble digestion.

Scott's Emulsion

of cod liver oil with hypophosphites does just as much good in summer as in winter. It makes flesh in August as well as April. You certainly need as strong nerves in July as in January. And your weak throat and lungs should be healed and strengthened without delay.

A Clever Trick

It certainly looks like it, but there is really no trick about it. Anybody can try it who has Lame Back and Weak Kidneys, Malaria or nervous troubles. We mean he can cure himself right away by taking Electric Bitters. This medicine tones up the whole system, acts as a stimulant to the Liver and Kidneys, is a blood purifier and nerve tonic. It cures Constipation, Headache, Fainting Spells, Sleeplessness and Melancholy. It is purely vegetable, a mild laxative, and restores the system to its natural vigor. Try Electric Bitters and be convinced that they are a miracle worker. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50c a bottle at all Drug Stores.

The conditions of peace must be made by the treaty-making power, which consists of the President and the Senate. Treaties must be submitted by the President to the Senate, and ratified by two-thirds of those present and voting. No less power than this can make peace in time of war. The President has not proposed any terms of peace to Spain. He has only proposed certain conditions under which he would be willing to open negotiations for a treaty of peace to be submitted to the Senate. More than this he could not do under his oath of office to support the constitution. The President, as commander-in-chief of the army and navy, has prosecuted the war declared by Congress. Dewey in the Philippines, Shaster and Schley at Santiago, and Miles at Porto Rico, have, under his command, made havoc with the naval fleet of Spain, and have taken possession of her colonies in both hemispheres.

In the consideration of the terms of a treaty of peace the President can act in the first instance through any agents he may choose to select; but he can give these agents no power whatever. They will discuss the terms under his directions, and will listen for him to the terms proposed by the Spanish commissioners.

If President McKinley has postponed the Philippine question to bridge over the congressional campaign it is a shrewd manœuver. In such a case there will be an armistice during negotiations, some delay over the selection of commissioners, and a prolongation of their work beyond November. This would put off the final responsibility of the President to the American people. But after all a treaty must be negotiated, and the treaty will be Mr. McKinley's, subject to the approval of the Senate. It will not be the treaty of the commissioners. He alone can submit a treaty to the Senate, and he alone can frame one. He may wreck himself and his party by that treaty and he will do both if he disappoints the reasonable hope and expectation os the people that what we have forcibly wrested from the bloody claws of the Spanish tiger in a just war shall remain under the flag and sovereignty of the United States.—Silver Knight.

Her Health Restored

THE misery of sleeplessness can only be realized by those who have experienced it. Nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches, neuralgia and that miserable feeling of unrest, can surely be cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. So certain is Dr. Miles of this fact that all druggists are authorized to refund price paid for the first bottle tried, providing it does not benefit.

Mrs. Henry Bruns, wife of the well known blacksmith at Grand Junction, Iowa, says: "I was troubled with sleeplessness, nervousness, headache and irregular menstruation; suffering untold misery for years. I used various advertised remedies for female complaints besides being under the care of local physicians, without help. I noticed in Dr. Miles' advertisement the testimonial of a lady cured of ailments similar to mine, and I shall never cease to thank that lady. Her testimonial induced me to use Dr. Miles' Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills, which restored me to health. I cannot say enough for Dr. Miles' Remedies."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address, DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Ate the Card In a Ham Sandwich.

On Sunday evening a party of poker experts were seated in a prominent up town hotel lobby, and some good stories were the outcome. One of the veterans at thumbing the pasteboards related an incident in his own career where he had been dealt six cards.

"It was at a critical stage of the game," said the old sport, "and when I looked at the cards they were of the most needful variety."

"What did you do with the sixth card?" queried an attentive listener.

"I ordered a ham sandwich," was the reply, "and, concealing the card between the bread and meat, ate the whole outfit."

When the laugh over this story was ended, another member of the party told of a jack pot which was opened on a pair of nines. In the draw the holder of this pair took in another nine spot and cleaned up the table pretty thoroughly with three nines. When it came to a show down, the query was made, "What did you open with?"

Innocently enough the holder of the big hand acknowledged a pair of nines. His hand was claimed to be a foul one, and the pot was divided among the players according to their bets. This procedure did not suit the jack pot opener, and he left the table, denouncing all present as sharpers and swindlers.—New York Dispatch.

Think Success.

The oftener one gives exercise to any faculty—uses, not abuses, it—the stronger and more flexible it becomes. A Frenchman said once on a time that whenever he wanted a book on a certain subject and could not find it he wrote one.

There is a tremendous lesson in that; it means that each one of us can find out as much about anything we wish to be informed upon as any other human being in the world if we will only determine to do so. We can achieve and conquer anything another can if we make up our minds to the performance of it and make the determination the law of our life. Success has its laws, the basic principle of which is, "Give your best to get the best." A writer on mental forces says, "Think success and you win success."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Erudition on the Force.

A big gray coated police officer walked into the sergeant's room at the arsenal the other day and placed on the desk a woolly toy lamb that he had picked up in the park.

"What on earth is that?" asked the sergeant.

"The effigy of a sheep, sir," said the gray coated one seriously.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

One of the latest inventions is an ingenious voting machine. It consists of a turnstile, the central spindle of which is connected with the counting machine by means of a nest of bevelled wheels. The voter enters the turnstile and finds before him a number of handles, above which the names of the candidates are printed in large letters. Having pulled the handle, a cross comes into view beneath the name to show that he has properly set the mechanism in motion. As the elector leaves the turnstile, the machine prints his vote on a continuous roll of paper. The figure barrels are similar in construction to those used for numbering cheques or bank-notes, and all that requires to be done when the poll is closed is look at the last figure recorded to see how many votes have been polled for any candidate.

THE WAR TAX

On proprietary medicines is now in effect and it is so great that we have been forced to raise the price on all patent medicines. The druggists pay more war tax than any business or profession in the United States.

We regret this exceedingly, but feel sure that our friends and customers will appreciate our position and not feel agrieved at us endeavoring to protect ourselves against loss. We have always protected our customers and given them the lowest possible prices and we want them to feel assured that we will continue to do so as long as they give us their support. Our prices will always be as low as the lowest.

OUR PRISONERS OF WAR.

Humane Treatment That Has Opened the Eyes of the Captured Spaniards.

ADMIRAL CERVERA'S BILLET.

Civilization while you wait would be an appropriate motto for the prison stockade at Camp Long. The camp is on Seavey's Island, part of the Navy Yard, which on the map appears in Kittery, Me., and on official documents at Portsmouth, in New Hampshire.

Two days before the St. Louis steamed into the harbor with 692 Spanish prisoners of war on board the camp ground was not much better than a desert. This end of the island is bound with rocks which stick up through the blueberry bushes and scrubby grass on knolls and hillsides.

Within thirty-six hours from the arrival of the St. Louis in the lower harbor the village had been equipped with all the creature comforts demanded by a free born American citizen.

The landing of the Spaniards was without ceremony or display. Two black, flatiron shaped barges were brought up, one after the other, from the big liner, about a mile away, and made fast to Lieutenant Greely's landing place, at the foot of old Fort Sullivan, now used as a reservoir. There were a few workmen and a few ladies and children from the post on the shore, and a cordon of pleasure boats on the water, but no official demonstration of any sort. There was not an officer, nor even a marine, in sight, and no indications that the island was garrisoned.

On the first barge Lieutenant Catlin, a survivor of the Maine disaster, brought with him Captain Moreu, of the Cristobal Colon, to act as interpreter, and about a dozen American marines to take care of a bootload of four hundred Spanish prisoners of war. Lieutenant Catlin had a navy revolver in his belt instead of a sword, but went at his work without any fuss or feathers. When six marines had scrambled ashore and were strung along the bank, the gangway was opened to the prisoners, who went off the barge in an irregular straggling.

They were defeated and shipwrecked sailors, and they showed it. Bareheaded and barefooted, with straggly beards, and only a couple of dirty garments in most cases covering legs and bodies, they passively obeyed the orders of Captain Moreu, and were gathered in ship's companies by the calling of the roll. Hardly had a hundred men been landed before the sick began to drop groaning upon the dusty roadside.

After the mustering was over the first shipload of prisoners was surrounded by marines from the garrison and marched into the stockage, the barefooted ones being chiefly anxious to avoid the nettles that lurked in some of the grassy places.

After one day in camp these same hungry looking prisoners could hardly be recognized. The day's rations of beef, bread, coffee and pickles were devoured at one meal, each man eating more than a pound of meat. They found hammocks, comfortable hair mattresses and government blankets provided for them, and after a few puffs from borrowed cigarettes the well Spaniards slept long and soundly. More meals followed with surprising abundance and regularity, and great wagon loads of clothes were hauled over from the Navy Yard and dumped at the feet of the prisoners.

The few industrious spirits volunteered for camp work, and their working made a pleasing spectacle for those who were not industrious. With warm, new clothes and a comfortable fulness under one's belt, it is agreeable to sit in the sun, or at least out of the rain, and discuss why it was that Admiral Cervera did not utterly destroy the American fleet. To be sure there are sentries and deep water in front, and sentries with a high board fence, backed by barb wire and Gattling guns, in the rear. What would you? Shall sane men run away from good food, good clothes and a good company to lose themselves in a strange country and starve?

The landing of the prisoners and the establishment of the camp was accomplished without the slightest hostile demonstration on the part of the Spaniards. Some of the men passively object to being clean, but they can put up with cleanliness if only they get plenty of tobacco.

Colonel Forney has in the barracks at the Navy Yard and on duty at the stockade about two hundred men, but Surgeon Parsons says that if the Spaniards only understood that they were to have their three square meals a day a marine guard would be required, not to keep them on the island but to drive them away from it.

Two Spanish chaplains, two surgeons, an apothecary's steward and five junior lieutenants have had a building built for their special accommodation, and have been fitted out with sailor's clothes from the navy yard storehouses. Their wardroom is fitted out with bunks and abundant furniture.

The civilizing influence of a short piece of rope is still to be seen in Camp Long. In the olden times the rope was used to cow starved and ill treated prisoners. To-day it serves a different purpose. The members of the officer's mess hardly got new clothes before they began devising amusements, and jumping rope has become very popular. Two of the more sedate officers swing the rope while the others take turns jumping.

The horrors of war already seem far away, and the most important things in the world seem to be the delights of good living. Admiral Carpenter, who is in temporary command of the Navy Yard, has closed the island to curious visitors, who are not annoying when they get long range views from the New Castle and Kittery shores.

The scene on shore of the prison front on Seavey's Island on a recent afternoon between five and six o'clock presented a most novel and interesting picture. The prisoners had just finished their afternoon meal and had swarmed to the water's edge to wash their bowls, plates and spoons. The clatter of the dishes and the laughter and animated conversation of the prisoners made such a babel of noises that they could plainly be heard on the Newcastle shore on the other side of the Piscataqua River.

Hundreds of boats gathered in front of the Spaniards on the beach and watched them at their work and enjoyed the animated scene, for the "Dons" seemed happy as larks and evidently greatly pleased at the attention shown them. Many ladies in the boats had provided themselves with kodaks, and hundreds of pictures were taken of the prisoners that will prove valuable souvenirs of the American-Spanish war as time goes by. The Spaniards enjoyed having their pictures taken, and many of them gathered in groups and posed in picturesque attitudes and waited their turns for the camera.

A colored prisoner, black as Erebus, waded out into the water up to his knees, and, striking his bowl and plate together to attract attention, placed his hands by his side, rolled the whites of his eyes heavenward, and stood expectant. Scores of kodaks snapped, and the colored sailor triumphantly rejoined his comrades on the shore. A lady in one of the boats threw a bunch of flowers into the water near the shore, and instantly twenty or more of the prisoners struggled for the possession of the trophy. The Spaniard who captured the bouquet was generous, however, and divided the flowers among his comrades, who proudly held aloft the mementos, bowing and smiling to the lady who threw them into the water.

After the dishes had been washed many sat in groups on the bank, some of them singing the songs of their native land, some playing cards, others writing letters home, and all of them apparently pleased with the situation. It was a scene never before witnessed in the Harbor of Portsmouth, but its repetition is likely to happen every pleasant day in the weeks to follow.

So much for the humbler prisoners. Those of higher rank, Admiral Cervera and his captured officers, are held at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

Admiral Cervera would be taken for an English merchant by ninety-nine out of a hundred persons who didn't know who he was. He is prosperous-looking, well-made, and wears a gray beard. His son, Lieutenant Angel Cervera, is tall and handsome, and wears a coal-black beard. Altogether, the Spaniards are quite a distinguished-looking group, and when they are fitted out in appropriate garments will doubtless make much social progress in Annapolis, as nearly all of them have given orders for visiting cards.

The parole signed by all the prisoners except Admiral Cervera, who waved it aside when presented, with the remark that his sword of honor was sufficient, and Captain Eulate, of the Vizcaya, who declined to sign it because he declared the other officers should be permitted to give their word as well as the Admiral, is as follows:

"I do pledge my word of honor that during the period of my retention at the United States Naval Academy as a prisoner of war I will not go beyond such limits as may be prescribed by the Superintendent of the Naval Academy, and freely agree to abide by such regulations as said Superintendent may from time to time establish.

"The limits now established will be the grounds of the Naval Academy and the city of Annapolis from 8 o'clock until sundown."

Admiral Cervera's house, which is known as No. 17 Buchanan row, is an old brick painted a dark drab, with brown outside shutters, and its front windows overlook the oak-shaded grounds of the academy. The commandant's house is two doors distant at the corner, and diagonally across the lawn to the left is the superintendent's office. A fine marine view is obtained from the rear windows, with the parade grounds in the foreground.

The whole house except the hall, which is approached by a flight of stairs from the road below, is heavily carpeted. The parlor is supplied with comfortable furniture. Opening into the parlor by broad doors is the dining room, which is carpeted like the parlor and contains an oak dining set. The passage chamber, which communicates with the bed room, is the Admiral's private office. It is provided with a desk, chairs, good lights and writing material. All the mail matter sent and received by the prisoners goes through the office of the superintendent, and is censored.

The Spanish officers are not being pampered with luxuries. They are receiving the same food that is given to the naval cadets.

Admiral Cervera has a house which is occupied by three or four others besides himself and his son. The cook and the steward of the Santee have been placed at his disposal, and a servant to attend to his personal wants. The last occupant of the house was Lieutenant Gove. The other prisoners occupy the old cadets' quarters on Stribling row.

COOKING FOR SOLDIERS.

German Army Inventors Pay Much Attention to the Subject.

The interest shown by all classes of people at present in the matters of military manœuvring and equipments is so great that a recent exposition of army and camp furnishings was a gigantic success, as demonstrated by the throngs of people which flocked to the place day after day. Evidently the German inventor has been working on the theory that a full stomach is the best equipment for a fighter, and cooking implements were displayed in the greatest variety. A clever cooking outfit is shown herewith. The stove for a battalion is designed for use in the open. It is formed of several iron chests arranged in the shape of a cross, with a chimney in the middle. A smaller one is built to accommodate a squad of about thirty men, and for use where there are no general cooking provisions made for the men, each one looking after the preparation of his own rations.

It is gratifying to note that the subject of caring for the dead and wounded has received a great deal of attention at the hands of army and navy inventors. A large variety of devices was shown, having for their object the care and comfort of the wounded warrior.

People Who Live in Trees.

Of all the islands of the South Seas New Guinea is in some respects the most peculiar. With its towns built on the water, its native castles in the trees and its strange native inhabitants, who have been steadily dying out since the advent of the white man, it is an intensely interesting bit of the world. The natives are gifted with such remarkable powers that they can see into distances far beyond the vision of the white man; they can track the wild beast by signs that the white man cannot learn; they can find food and drink in deserts where white men would perish of thirst and starvation.

The accompany picture represents one of the tree houses built by natives of the island. Among the savage tribes are warriors who are known as the "head hunters." The aerial houses are built as refuges from the head hunters. When the cry is raised that the head hunters are coming the feeble and the women flee to the tree huts and the able men arm for the fight.

A Natural Sun Dial.

An immense sun dial, certainly the largest in the world, is at Hayon Horoo, a large promontory extending 3000 feet above the Aegean Sea. As the sun swings around the shadow of this mountain it touches, one by one, a circle of islands, which act as hour marks.

Magnanimous.

Jimmy (the terrible scrapper)—"Say, me young friend, I could chew yer up an' neber know dat I had fed, but I'll refrain! An' now go home an' tell yer beautiful sister dat I spared yer fer love of her."

Sharp Tools.

There is little danger that either the scythe or cradle would be left dull while these operations had to be done by hand. But we have often seen mower knives dulled by contact with stones, or gummed up by the juices of grass so that it required far greater force to run the machine, besides frequent failures to cut all the grass. In such times an hour's work at the grindstone, sharpening the mower knives, will be work that well pays.

Protecting Newly Set Grafts.

It often happens that a graft requires several weeks to effect a union with the stock, and until this is done it is liable to be moved by winds, thus loosening its hold and making union impossible. To prevent this evil, it is always best to fit closely over the graft a small, conical paper cap, which is extended downward far enough to be secured there. This will keep drying winds from browning the leaves, and thus destroying the life of the graft before the union is effected. The cap should be removed as soon as it is known that the union of scion and stock has certainly been effected.

Water in Farm Crops.

Those crops always pay best which have most water in them, as nature furnishes the water without charge. The farmer who sells potatoes or roots of any kind or fruits sells what is four-fifths water, while most of the solid part of the fruit or root is taken by the leaves from the air. In growing such crops cultivation so as to retain moisture in the soil is more important than manures. Whatever deepens the soil enables it to hold more moisture and to grow better those crops which depend on abundant supplies of water for success. It may seem paradoxical, but it is true that soil made deep by thorough underdraining will be the moistest in time of drought.

Potato Cultivation.

Planting a field of potatoes involves considerable expense for labor and seed, and puts the farmer under obligations to give the crop good and prompt care. With this crop promptness is more important than with almost any other. A single day's neglect may cause a loss of several dollars an acre. The weeds and the beetles are ever at work. Both size and quality of potatoes depend upon the foliage. It is through the leaves that the crop gets the carbon which in the juices of the potato turns to starch. Beetles and their larvæ may be attended to next week, but after the foliage has been half eaten up the crop cannot be expected to amount to very much. They must ever eat some of the leaves to get poison enough to kill them. The most careful cultivators prefer hand picking from the beginning of the season.—Farm News.

Smoothing Rough Fields.

On thousands of farms are fields having "runs" or "gullies," the bottoms usually being wet and producing poor hay. Such "runs" can often be greatly improved by building a stone wall across the lower end and then plowing down the sides. The two accompanying cuts show the beneficial changes thus made. The hay in the first must always be harvested by hand with great effort, and the land cannot be top dressed nor cultivated. When in the shape shown in Fig. 2 the work can be done by machinery and the hay will be of the first quality, for the land can be cultivated. Where water flows through the run a stone drain can first be laid and then the banks worked down. This is a practical method of improving a farm.

Keeping Fowls Out of Mischief.

In all the years while we were farming, we never found it necessary to confine fowls all the time. We tried it once, but the egg product fell off so much that we concluded that letting the hens out two or three hours toward night, and keeping them near the henhouse by good feeding, would answer every purpose. Something more, however, than feed is necessary to keep fowls from running to the garden or the newly planted corn field, and scratching among the dirt. Hens do this, less to secure the grain than to rid themselves of vermin by thoroughly dusting themselves. If a place close by the henhouse is kept plowed, and is strewn twice a week with grain and harrowed, fowls will rarely leave it for anything. Fowls are not naturally half so fond of strawberries, or grapes as they are of grain that is partially swelled in the ground. If the place near the henhouse is plowed and cultivated regularly, no other place will have [illegible] their fr[illegible]

NO WOMAN IS EXEMPT.

Regularity is a matter of importance in every woman's life. Much pain is, however, endured in the belief that it is necessary and not alarming, when in truth it is all wrong and indicates derangement that may cause serious trouble.

Excessive monthly pain itself will unsettle the nerves and make women old before their time.

The foundation of woman's health is a perfectly normal and regular performance of nature's function. The statement we print from Miss GERTRUDE SIKES, of Eldred, Pa., is echoed in every city, town and hamlet in this country. Read what she says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel like a new person since following your advice, and think it is my duty to let the public know the good your remedies have done me. My troubles were painful menstruation and leucorrhœa. I was nervous and had spells of being confused. Before using your remedies I never had any faith in patent medicines. I now wish to say that I never had anything do me so much good for painful menstruation as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, also would say that your Sanative Wash has cured me of leucorrhœa. I hope these few words may help suffering women."

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

All suffering women are invited to write freely to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice about their health.

ABOUT HAY FEVER.

Season Is Approaching When Lots of People Will Suffer.

"The season is approaching," said a prominent physician to the writer recently, "when a great many people will suffer from what is known as hay fever, and as but few who are susceptible to the complaint know how to avoid, much less to cure, it, a few remarks about the nature and treatment of the ailment may not be uninteresting.

"Hay fever is a nervous affection usually, most prevalent during the spring and early summer, from which the poorer classes and more especially those living in populous towns rarely, if ever, suffer. It is known only to the educated, whose nervous systems are highly developed, and, though not in any sense dangerous, it is at all times very irritating and troublesome. The smell of hay, grass, the pollen of flowers, the odor of fruit, dust or draught will generate the complaint or excite an attack in persons subject to it, but rain or damp weather invariably brings relief. At one time it was generally supposed that the odor of hay when being mown or carried could alone induce the affection, which is closely analogous to asthma, but recent observation shows that its prevalence is entirely independent of the existence of hay fields and is really a nervous derangement.

"A visit to the seaside, a trip to sea or residence in a populous town will, however, remove the asthmatic tendency, but one of the best remedies is tobacco smoke, retained in the mouth as long as possible and then ejected through the nostrils. The inhalation of the steam of ten drops of creosote in a pint of hot water is also good, or twenty drops of spirits of camphor to the same quantity of water makes a very effective inhalation. But the affection being a nervous one, tonics and nourishing diet are more essential than any of these palliatives, which merely afford temporary relief."—Washington Star.

WARNING TO YOUNG MEN.

The Pipe Face Results from Long Continuance of Pipe-Smoking Habit.

The bicycle face is old. The bargain-counter face, the quick-lunch face and the war-bulletin face are more recent.

THE PIPE FACE.

The newest discovery in this line is the pipe face, which is grown by men who smoke pipes. The staid old Medical Record saw it first and said this of it:

"The habit of smoking the pipe has a perceptible effect upon the face. The pressure of the lips to hold the pipe in position increases the curvature of the lips round the stem, and the muscles become more rigid here than in other parts. Thus the lips at a certain point become stronger and the pipe is unconsciously held in the same habitual position. After long continuation of the habit small circular wrinkles form parallel with the curvature of the lips around the stem. These are crossed by finer lines caused by the pressure of the lips to retain the pipe in position. In the case of old men who have smoked a pipe for years the effect upon the lips is very marked."

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUGUST 21.

Lesson Text: "Naaman Healed," II Kings v., 1-14—Golden Text: Jer. xvii., 14—Commentary on the Day's Lesson by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

1. "Now Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master and honorable." The verse goes on to tell why, but closes with the sad statement that he was a leper. The Word of God from beginning to end reveals God to us working in and through and, for His people and for all who are willing to receive His mercy. Even by those who do not know Him He sometimes works as in this case, delivering Syria by Naaman. All the great and honorable men of Scripture, such as Boaz, the mighty man of wealth (Ruth ii., 1); Mordecai, who was great among the Jews (Est. x., 3), and others lead the believer to say with heartfelt gratitude, "I know a greater and more honorable than all others, and He can heal even lepers."

2. "Brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid, and she waited on Naaman's wife." Thus did the Syrians with God's permission, but what about the little maid's father and mother, and what about her own poor little heart? It is very evident that God does not always seek the comfort of His people, but He does always seek the highest good, and the greatest eternal glory of each one. Consider Joseph and Daniel, etc.

3. "Would God my lord were with the prophet that is in Samaria! For he would recover him of his leprosy." But for the love of God manifested through the little maid we might never have had the story of Naaman. The faithfulness of the little boy Samuel and of this little girl are great lessons for all boys and girls. Jesus at the age of twelve was about His Father's business, and it is the business of all who know Him to make Him known to others.

4. "Thus and thus said the maid that is of the land of Israel." So said one to the king, and thus the message of the little maid is passed on to headquarters, even the words of a little boy or girl are worth being passed on and will accomplish God's pleasure if they concern Him or His servants who live unto Him. He will use any vessel that is willing to be used by Him that He may be glorified.

5. "And the king of Syria said, Go to, go and I will send a letter unto the king of Israel." So Naaman departed, taking as a present ten talents of silver, 6000 pieces of gold and ten changes of raiment. God gave His Son freely and with Him freely all things (Rom. iii., 24; viii., 32). Those do not know Him who think to buy His gifts, neither do those know Him as they should who bring Him no thank offering.

6. "Now, when this letter is come unto thee, behold I have therewith sent Naaman my servant, to thee, that thou mayest recover him of his leprosy." Our messages for God often get twisted and perverted by those who hear them, but God will somehow accomplish His pleasure. It is not for us to worry if we have acted according to Jer. xxiii., 28. The little girl had said that the prophet, not the king, would do it.

7. "Am I God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to recover a man of his leprosy?" Thus said the king of Israel when he had read the letter and imagined that the king of Syria sought to quarrel with him. True, he was not able either to kill or make alive, but he should have known the God of Israel and His servants, the prophets, and have been able to point people to the one only living and true God.

8. "Wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes? Let him now come to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel." Thus sent Elisha to the king when he heard that the king had rent his clothes. Here is a man conscious of the fact that he is on earth for God and that God is with Him. He has seen the power of God in the dividing of the waters, the healing of the waters and in the miraculous supply of water, in the increase of the oil, the raising of the Shunamite's son and the healing of the pottage. He knows God and feels free to expect whatever will glorify Him.

9. "So Naaman came with his horses and with his chariot and stood at the door of the house of Elisha." A wonderful sight truly to be seen at a poor man's door! It makes us think of the time when all kings shall fall down before Him whom Elisha served, when every high thing shall be brought down and the Lord alone shall be exalted in that day (Ps. lxxii., 11; Isa. ii., 11).

10. "Go and wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean." Thus said the messenger whom Elisha sent to the door, for Elisha thought it not necessary to go himself. He stood like Elijah before God and considered no greatness that was not of God.

11. "But Naaman was wroth and went away and said, Behold, I thought he will surely come out to me." Naaman had it all planned in his own mind just how it ought to be done, for was not he a great and honorable man and did he not deserve to be honored before his soldiers and by this darkskinned? Was he not prepared to pay well for all he got and was this any kind of a way to treat such as he? His pride would not stand it, and he went away in a rage.

12. "Are not Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel?" The water might be as good or possibly better for some purposes, but they were not God's way for His cleansing. Cain's fruits were probably much more attractive than Abel's bloody lamb, but they were not God's way. Good works and a good moral character are very beautiful and all right in their place, but they are not God's way of cleansing the leprosy of sin, and therefore of no avail.

13. "How much rather then when he saith to thee, Wash and be clean?" His servants, wiser than he, thus reasoned with him that he would gladly do some great thing, and why not this simple thing? There are many who would give much money and do many so called good works if thus they could be saved, but simply to receive Christ and depend wholly upon Him and to have all their righteousness count for nothing is too humiliating for some people, and they will not submit (Rom. x., 3).

14. "Then went he down and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God, and his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and he was clean." He certainly was not worthy, but he was obedient, and he was cleaned. There is no other way but God's way (Acts iv., 12), and all, without exception, who accept the way (John xiv., 6) are made clean (John xiii., 10; Rev. i., 5, 6; I Cor. vi., 11; Isa. i., 18).—Lesson Helper.

GEN. LEE'S CORPS

Will Be Distributed Throughout Cuba for Garrison Duty.

Gen. Alger said Saturday that it was the intention of the department to garrison Cuba and Porto Rico both with regulars and volunteers until the final proclamation. The Seventh army corps, under Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, is to be distributed in Cuba, and the corps will be strengthened as occasion permits for this purpose. The eighteen regiments under Gen. Wade, which were intended for Porto Rico, and which are still under orders for that island, will be distributed for garrison duty in Porto Rico.

Economy in Housekeeping.

In good housekeeping, as in nature nothing need be wasted. One might suppose that an old chair had a legitimate ending when the seat was quite gone and the four legs falling apart. Yet see—the four legs will support a square board, and when the whole is stained and varnished there is a most useful little table for the porch, or painted white, it may become a stand to keep close by the sewing chair and hold the work basket. A second table may be evolved by using the longest spokes of the chair back as legs, only in this case the shape of the table's top had best be triangular and for it three legs will be sufficient. This will make a very small table, and need not be stained or painted if a bright cover is thrown over it; but its most convenient use will be to hold a light tea kettle at 4 o'clock. All these handicraft trifles should be handed over to our amateur carpenters—boys and girls—for it is the right of every family of children to possess a tool chest and a work bench set in the garret. A tool chest is an excellent investment in a household.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Head Claquer.

Jacob Schontag, for forty years head of the claque at the Vienna Opera House, is dead. He knew all the operas of the repertory by heart, knew the strong and weak points of all the artists, and held a rehearsal of his subordinates in the afternoon before the production of an opera, when he drilled them on the parts of a production where their work was to be put in. He watched them during the performance from a seat that commanded a view of the whole house, but never applauded himself, save in desperate cases.

Little Tommy and his younger sister were going to bed without a light. They had just reached the bottom of the stairs, when Tommy, after endeavoring to pierce the darkness, turned round and asked: "Mother, is it polite for a gentleman to go before a lady when they have to walk in single file?" "No, my son; the lady should always take the lead," replied the mother. "I thought so," said Tommy; "go ahead, Ethel."

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

1 is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

2 is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

3 secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

4 is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a properly educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

5 is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

6 its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

EPIDEMIC AMONG CATTLE.

Mr. R. C. Calen, one of Dallas county's most prominent farmers and stock dealers, residing at Summerfield, reports an epidemic among his cattle which in three days carried off three of his valuable heifers in succession, which were in fine condition. Mr. Calen, talking to an Age-Herald representative, said: "This disease in this section is evidently an epidemic. I have lost three fine heifers to die on my farm in three days, with the same symptoms and while they were in good condition, and I learn that similar deaths have occurred on other plantations. The symptoms are that the animal is suddenly seized with violent pains and dies quickly. I made an examination of one of my cows that died with the disease and found bloody matter in the bladder of the animal and the intestine spotted with black marks. The papers a few days since called attention to a fatal epidemic now raging among the cattle around Louisville, Ky., which the veterinary surgeons call 'anthrax.' Perhaps that may be the disease here in Dallas. In this connection the Farmer-Journal in its last issue gives the following item:

Early yesterday morning, Mount ..., died of blood poisoning at his home on Union and ... streets, New Albany.

Jemison, August 23, '98

At the home of Mr. Lum Langston, at 4 a.m. 14 inst. the happy spirit of Mrs. Huldy Edwards, escorted by angels, rose to the higher life. After suffering many weeks with consumption. She was about 85 years old, had been a faithful member of the Baptist church over fifty years. Over a half century on Christ's roll call. Her quite gentle life will be cherished by her many friends. Mr. Lum Langston, soninlaw of the deceased, will have the sweet pleasure of a good conscience in administering personal aid, and calling medical attention even to the last night. Sleep on dear old friend we will ere long, join you over the river.

We have not seen the death of Mr. Zac Langston announced, which occured on the 13th of June, after but a hours illness. He left a wife and many children to mourn his loss. O how they will miss him. He was a good husband and father, a good neighbor, and a useful man in his community. A member of the Baptist church in which fellowship was his delight. He was a steady worker in the Subbath-school. Thus we see his absence is deplorable. To the family and many friends we say mourn not. Deceased in the blissful home will be waiting and watching for you as you go on up one by one.

Mrs. I. CAMPBELL.

About one month ago my child, which is fifteen months old, had an attack of diarrhoea accompanied by vomiting. I gave it such remedies as are usually given in such cases, but as nothing gave relief, we sent for a physician and it was under his care for a week. At this time the child had been sick for about ten days and was having about twenty-five operations of the bowels every twelve hours, and we were convinced that unless it soon obtained relief it would not live. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was recommended, and I decided to try it. I soon noticed a change for the better; by its continued use a complete cure was brought about and it is now perfectly healthy.—C. L. BOGGS, Stumptown, Gilmer Co., W. Va. For sale by J. S. An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Brown's Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Brown's Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

THE ARMY AND NAVY DISCUSSED BY A PRIVATE

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 22, 1898

Editor BANNER—At last the war has come to an end and "Old Glory" floats again triumphant over an increased nation. And besides it there waves another almost as fair and towards which many eyes have been turned while the life lustre fled away. The flag of Spain is torn and dragged in the blood of its many victims; it is soiled with the infamous treachery and the barbarous cruelty it has permitted to be done under its folds.

The navy of the United States has again proven its superiority, has shown to the assembled nations that its ancient prowess remains the same as in its infancy and that the spirit of Hull, Perry, Preble, Farragut, Semmes and all the men who brought fame to our navy still lives in Dewey, Sampson, Schley and their captains. The men, too of the navy, have proven themselves to be the same sturdy, valiant fighters loving their country's honor as they do their life. We revere and mourn the few dead heroes killed at their posts of duty. I say few for from Ensign Bagley to the coal passer killed off Guantanmo, the number does not exceed a score.

While the navy has done a great part of the work in winning the victory, yet the army should receive its due amount of praise for services rendered on the field of battle. Although the battles may considered three—the siege of Santiago which resulted in the capitulation of the city and was really the only fighting done, the invasion of Porto Rico, an ovation rather than a conquest and the seizure of Manila city, described by one of the participants as a "walk to breakfast" yet in at least one a magnificent exhibition of our American courage, courage and dogged resolution that won the fight instead of superior generalship. The training of the regulars and the valor of the volunteers was too much for the Spaniard, and it stands us in good stead even against the countless bayonets of Russia or Germany. The flag waves as proudly over the land and sea, and the eagle screams as fearlessly as ever.

There is still another army whose heroism, although not fire-tested, has been as great and whose power although not expressed by bullets, has been as forcible as the armies across the seas. This is the great waiting army, the army that helped to convince Spain that resistance would be useless. This army, although it welcomes peace and cessation from further bloodshed, yet it would have gladly received and obeyed orders to go to the front and to defend their country's glory.

Now that peace has been declared and the battles have ceased, some of the men who enlisted solely for the defence of their country and who ardently desired to meet death in battle now wish to lay down their arms and return to their homes; some who enlisted for the picnic of the thing, are trying their level best to get out, as has been their endeavor ever since they struck the first hard spot in camp life. The reasons that the latter class give, while they mostly pose as business matters etc. are among the most ridiculous possible. For instance they say we will have to clean up the streets of Havana and to undergo horrors worse than those endured in Miami. The most of the army has thoughtfully seen the necessity of an army of occupation and are willing to serve as such.

I could go on at greater length concerning the situation of the United States, but I know the value of space in any newspaper.

Aristo Armstrong, who has been seriously ill in the hospital, is now convalescent and will be ready for duty in a few days.

Charlie Willis has been in the hospital for the last few days with a touch of Flagler's miasma. He says he has disposed of it and is enjoying the more salubrious breezes of Jacksonville.

The Montgomery Greys will long remember Miami but will speak no good of the place. The company has just lost two of its best comrades, Sir...mons and O'Neil.

General Lee has just returned from Washington and favored our regiment with a visit this afternoon; he was cheered to the echo. He promises to hold a review of the whole seventh corps, 35,000 strong, sometime next week.

SUMMER CATARRH

Catarrh of the bowels, because it is most prevalent in the summer months, is called summer catarrh.

It surprises many that bowel trouble is catarrhal. Dr. Hartman's books make this plain. Write to the Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for them. They tell all about catarrh and how Pe-ru-na cures it wherever located.

"I had chronic diarrhoea for fifteen years," writes Mr. T. E. Miller, Grand Prairie, Tex. "I tried many medicines and doctors in vain. At last Pe-ru-na was recommended, and it relieved and cured me at once."

Mr. John Harting, 633 Main St., Cincinnati, O., writes: "My wife and myself took your Pe-ru-na for chronic diarrhoea and it cured us. No doctor or medicine we tried before helped us."

Mr. Edward Wormack, Lothotter, Tex., writes: "Pe-ru-na for bowel troubles is unequalled by anything in my experience. I owe my life to Pe-ru-na, and shall always recommend it to those suffering as I was."

Mr. John Edgarton, 1030 Third Ave., Altoona, Pa., says: "I suffered from dysentery for three years. I took Pe-ru-na and am now well."

What would "Ben" Franklin, our first postmaster-general, think if he were to see how our postal service is making a war record nowadays? With special offices in every army camp, one at Manila, six or eight thousand miles away, and another with the army in Santiago de Cuba, all postal records bid fair to be broken.

The war campaigns are likely to prove to be extensive schools of cookery. Every private soldier is supposed to learn the rudiments of cookery. Of course, the style is hardly that of a Delmonico, nor is it practicable for the campaigner to carry a library of cook books in his knapsack. One effect of the war will probably be to train the men at the front to eat almost anything. And when they come back, there may be as a result less criticism of the wife's cooking in favor of the mother's. There is nothing like a season of adversity or hardship for knocking the critical nonsense out of a man.

What is it to be business-like? As the American world stands today it means, very often, to be shrewd and cunning, says Scribner's Magazine. What is the business man? He is, in many men's minds, the wide-awake fellow who has discovered a way of getting much more than he earns. What is business? As very often understood among us, it is the art of juggling money out of your neighbor's pocket into your own. There is a world in which to earn your bread by honest and continuous labor is not to be "in business." In that world, to take advantage of opportunities, to conceal what you may have learned, and to trade upon your knowledge is business. Misleading even, if secrecy cannot otherwise be obtained; that is business. In short, in that world to be business-like is to be unscrupulous. A lover of fine art may continue to hope that its devotees will not too rapidly become business men in that sense.

"The Rough Riders' battle," says a despatch from the front, "is the only occasion in which untried volunteers ever fought as well as regulars." In the first place, it would be hard to find an "untried volunteer" in these United States, comments the New York World. We are in business as a nation chiefly to teach men to think and act intelligently and courageously, and to be in all circumstances self-reliant and self-respecting. And when the circumstances are war and battle, results of coolness and courage are as natural as leaves on a tree. In the second place, it is one of the commonplaces of our history that our raw recruits—which is a truer phrase than "untried volunteers"—behave like regulars. As far back as Braddock's campaign, when Washington with Virginia recruits covered the route of British regulars, or as the Revolutionary days, when the "embattled farmers" whipped and chased British regulars, or as the battle of New Orleans, when Jackson's militia and woodsmen did the same trick, or as late as the fight in the brush near Sevilla, the American citizen has again and again proved that a democratic training makes as good soldiers as citizens—that is to say, makes men!

During the next year the postage stamps will be printed at the bureau of engraving and printing of the treasury department instead of by private contractors. The contract will amount to over $62,500,000 even at the extraordinarily low price charged. The ordinary postage stamps will be furnished at five cents a thousand, postage-due stamps at 11.4 cents a thousand, newspaper and periodical stamps at 6.05 cents a thousand and special delivery stamps at 11.4 cents a thousand. The contract contemplates a total of 3,053,633,885 ordinary stamps, 4,346,330 special delivery stamps, 5,544,229 newspaper stamps and 19,573,160 postage-due stamps. The largest number of any one denomination to be printed will be the two-cent stamps, the total being 2,726,769,525; of the one-cent stamps 1,344,526,650 will be printed. The smallest number of any one variety will be 4420 $50 stamps, which are used for postage upon newspapers mailed in bulk. The number of $100 stamps to be printed will be 12,915. There has been an enormous increase in the stamp business. Ten years ago, in 1888, the total value of stamps issued was $38,208,741; today it is $62,530,201. Twenty years ago, in 1878, the total was only $21,189,557.90.

Reports of Murders, Homicides and Various Tragedies Daily Occurring.

PORTO RICAN NATIVES WILL RETALIATE.

Will Try to Exterminate Spanish Soldiery. Gold Reserve Greater Than in Many Years—Third Alabama Will Be Kept Under Arms for a While.

The carnival of crime inaugurated in Arkansas several weeks ago continues without abatement.

Saturday an assassination somewhat similar to the killing of John T. Orr, which resulted in the lynching of four negroes and the suicide of Mrs. Orr, at Clarendon, occurred at Paragould, when Henry L. Bramlet was shot and killed by an unknown assassin. Bramlet was asleep alone in his bed when the assassin crept up to his window and shot him, killing him instantly.

A terrible cutting affray, in which two prominent farmers figured, is reported from Macarool county. A. C. Massey and a neighbor named Phillips fought with knives, and the latter was fatally stabbed.

The decomposed body of a man was found near Blackville, in Conway county. The head was entirely severed from the body, and a bloody axe near by told the story of a fearful crime.

Alvin Smith, a young farmer, was found near Mt. Pleasant suffering from a fractured skull. He died without regaining consciousness.

At Harrisburg two negroes fought. One negro is dead and the other is in jail.

PEACE WITHOUT FRUITS.

Madrid El Liberal Complains of the Press Censorship.

The Madrid El Liberal, in an article headed "Peace Without Fruits," says:

"The government is beginning to be frightened by its own handiwork, and it has gained nothing by imposing silence upon the press. Parliament and the public ought to be informed fully as to the progress of events, so that the Spanish people will not be driven to accept the wild rumors that come from abroad.

"We are now entering a period most difficult and perilous, and it may have in store for Spain fresh disasters greater than those of the past."

The government has accepted the resignation of the governor-general of the Canaries, Gen. Manzano. His successor has not yet been appointed.

PORTO RICANS WILL RETALIATE.

Will Try to Exterminate the Spanish Soldiery.

PONCE, PORTO RICO.—A war of retaliation against the Spanish residents of the island within the American lines is threatened—retaliation for the horrible outrages committed by the Spanish troops at Ciales, where over eighty persons are said to have been macheted by the soldiers. The revolting details of the butchery of men and women have stirred a cry for vengeance.

The natives have burned the town of Cola, seven miles from here. The Spanish residents fled for their lives. Throughout the surrounding country the Spaniards are terror-stricken, and are appealing to the Americans for protection.

THE GOLD RESERVE.

Goes Beyond the Two Hundred Million Mark.

For the first time in ten years, the gold reserve in the treasury exceeds $200,000,000. The treasury statement shows it to be $201,139,672.49. The available cash balance in the treasury, including the gold reserve, is $273,771,011.41. The war-revenue law is very satisfactory, and with some modifications which will be made at the next session of congress, is likely to stand on the statute books for some time. It is believed that the sources of income will be maintained for the purpose of the building up the navy for which elaborate plans will be submitted to congress.

Third Alabama Wins.

The Third Alabama regiment will not be mustered out of service at present and will in all likelihood be kept under arms the full term of the enlistment. Colonel R. S. Bullard, with Captain C. H. Scott and Major J. A. Sheffield, are in Washington for the purpose of protesting against their regiment being mustered out, as it was scheduled to be. General Corbin said that instead of being mustered out, the Third being made up of colored men, mostly immunes, would most likely be sent to Cuba and possibly to Santiago at once.

Mexico's Congratulations.

United States Minister Clayton, of Mexico City, has notified the foreign relations department of the conclusions of peace preliminaries with Spain and Minister Mariscal formally replied, congratulating the United States government that peace is now assured.

Large Assignment.

The Black Diamond Coal company, operating mines in the Jellico, Tenn., coal district, was thrown into the hands of a receiver upon application of local creditors.

CURRENT EVENTS IN ALABAMA.

Dead in the Woods.

Saturday night Urial Smith was found dead in the woods near Blocton. His body was found between the forks of a tree, and it is supposed he suffered an accidental death.

Steel Mill at Gate City.

It is reported that the Alabama Rolling Mill company, which operates a large rolling mill at Gate City, will at an early date erect a steel mill in connection with its plant at a cost of $150,000.

Better Health in First Alabama.

Lieut. P. Searcy Dement, Company F, First Alabama, is off on a ten-days' furlough. He says the men of the First are enjoying much better health since they were removed from Miami to Jacksonville, and have no desire to be mustered out of the service just at present.

Col. John T. Milner Dead.

Col. John T. Milner, the wealthiest man in Jefferson county and one of the state's most prominent citizens, died suddenly at his home in Newcastle as the result of a stroke of paralysis. Col. Milner was 72 years old. He was president of the Milner Coal and Railroad Company, one of the largest mining companies in the Birmingham district.

Wire and Rod Mill.

It is learned that a deal has been closed for the erection at Ensley City of a half-million-dollar wire and rod mill, as a result of a recent visit here of Chicago steel manufacturers. The Illinois Steel Company and American Wire and Rod Trust are understood to be behind the enterprise. Steel will be obtained from the new million-dollar plant now being erected at Ensley City.

Two Fatal Accidents.

J. S. Brannon, a well-known locomotive engineer, and formerly a captain of the Birmingham police, was run over and fatally hurt Saturday while attempting to board an East Lake electric car.

Ed King, an employe of the Gate City Rolling mill, was fatally hurt by a pulley dropping on his head while at work.

To Jail Without Bail.

At Birmingham Commissioner Wilson has bound over without bond the alleged murderers of W. A. Thompson, a government witness. The men thus held are Chess Motes, Robert Taylor, Dodge Blankenship, John Littlejohn, Walter Motes and Jasper Robertson. After the action of Taylor, one of the accused, in turning state's evidence and implicating all of those named in the murder, the defense offered no evidence, but submitted the case.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

Major John W. Westmoreland, of Athens, is dead.

Terrell Robertson died at his home near Evergreen. He was 98 years of age.

Mr. A. Jacobs, an old citizen of Goodwater, suicided last Saturday by taking rough on rats.

Near Pleasant Hill, some fifteen or sixteen young men gave Alex Walker, colored, a severe whipping, from the effects of which he died.

R. J. Scott is under arrest at Bridgeport. He is charged with killing his wife and brother-in-law at Somerville.

Sam Morgan, who was struck on the head with a rock by Leu Phillips, at Iron City, some time since, has died from his injuries.

Willie Knowles, who lived at Shady Grove, Pike county, was bitten by a mad dog six months ago. A mad stone was finally applied and seemed very effective, but only a few days ago he was taken down and on Tuesday died of hydrophobia.

The Tennessee river has been higher during the week at Florence than for forty years. For the first time in years St. Louis boats have come to Florence in August.

Limestone county is to have a roller flouring mill. It will be built at or near Cartwright, seven miles west of Athens, by Messrs. Lakin Hightower and R. N. Cartwright. The mill is to have a thirty-barrel capacity.

Gen. Wm. C. Oates, of Alabama, will be detailed to the command of the Second brigade, First division, to succeed Gen. Gordon, who has been placed on the Cuban commission.

William and John Mattox, farmers of the Chulafinee neighborhood, were killed by gas while digging a well.

The committee of arrangements for labor day celebration in Birmingham has invited Gen. Joseph Wheeler to be orator of the day.

The Pioneer Mining and Manufacturing Company has blown in its No. 2 furnace at Thomas, after a long idleness.

Anniston is making a strong effort to have a few thousand of the soldiers of Uncle Sam's volunteer army to pitch tents there.

Judge Oliver Street has been nominated by the populists of the Seventh district for congress.

SPAIN WILL INSIST

That the Surrender of Manila Shall Have No Unfavorable Effect on Settlement.

The Madrid government has resolved to insist that the capitulation of Manila after the signing of the protocol shall have no effect in the peace negotiations unfavorable to Spain. In any event the government holds that the capitulation, having been signed by the commander of the town, does not entail the surrender of the whole of the Philippines.

THE PHILIPPINES WERE CAPTURED.

Not Only Manila But Entire Group in Our Grasp.

TEXT OF THE TERMS OF CAPITULATION.

Merritt's Official Report Upon the Surrender of Manila—Commission Appointed to Determine the Details Have Made Their Report.

WASHINGTON (Special).—Official announcement of the terms of capitulation agreed on at Manila reached the war department Saturday in a dispatch from Major-General Merritt. It was the first notification officially of the stipulations, and embraced the complete terms in six articles. There is considerable difference of opinion as to the exact significance of the terms of capitulation, but the best opinion obtainable construed the language to embrace all Spanish possessions in the Philippines, and not Manila alone. Following are the terms as made by the commission appointed to determine the details of capitulation:

1. The Spanish troops, European and native, capitulate with the city and defenses, with all the honors of war, depositing their arms in the places designated by the authorities of the United States, and remaining in the quarters designated and under the orders of their officers and subject to control of the aforesaid United States authorities, until the conclusion of a treaty of peace between the two belligerent nations. All persons included in the capitulation shall remain at liberty, the officers remaining in their respective homes, which shall be respected so long as they observe the regulations prescribed for their government and the laws in force.

2. Officers shall retain their sidearms, horses and private property. All public horses and public property of all kinds shall be turned over to the staff officers designated by the United States.

3. Complete returns in duplicate of men by organizations and full lists of public property and stores shall be rendered to the United States within ten days from this date.

4. All questions relating to the repatriation of officers and men of the Spanish forces and of their families and of the expenses which said repatriation may occasion shall be referred to the government of the United States at Washington. Spanish families may leave Manila at any time convenient to them. The return of the arms surrendered by the Spanish forces shall take place when they evacuate the city or when the American army evacuates.

5. Officers and men included in the capitulation shall be supplied by the United States according to their rank with rations and necessary aid, as though they were prisoners of war, until the conclusion of a treaty of peace between the United States and Spain. All the funds in the Spanish treasury and all other public funds shall be turned over to the authorities of the United States.

6. This city, its inhabitants, its churches and religious worship, its educational establishments, and its private property of all descriptions are placed under the special safeguard of the faith and honor of the American army.

ROASTED TO DEATH.

Fire at Hot Springs, Ark., Burned Three Persons and Injured Many Others.

A fire which resulted in the loss of two hotels, a livery stable and several private residences, and costs at least three human lives, visited Hot Springs, Ark., Saturday. The identified dead are: Abe Matthews, Greenville, Miss.; W. H. Wills, Randolph county, Arkansas; Mr. Hughes, Tulsa, I. T. A dozen or more were more or less injured, and it is believed by some of the guests and employes of the hotel that more lives were lost. The property destroyed was the National hotel, a three-story structure, and two cottages immediately adjoining, the Kentucky livery stable and the Windsor hotel. The loss was $50,000; insurance, $15,000.

SICK SPANIARDS

Leaving for Home—Their General Appearance Most Pitiful.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—The First Infantry left Friday by the Miller. There are seven Spanish transports now in harbor awaiting the embarkation of the Spanish troops. The general appearance of the men is pitiful. There has been much sickness among them and within the last two days over 100 bodies have been buried. The death rate in the city is about seventy per day. The heavy rains increase the fever among the soldiers and the inhabitants alike.

Cervera Will Stay Here Awhile.

Admiral Cervera will not return to Spain for the present. The admiral has made no application to leave, and it is the belief that he will be the last of the Spanish prisoners to go home, as he has shown a fatherly regard for all the other officers and men, and appears desirous of seeing them on their way homeward before he leaves.

Wheeler Commands the Camp.

General Joe Wheeler Friday formerly assumed command of Camp Wykoff at Montauk Point, N. Y.

SAGASTA ON CUBAN SITUATION.

Spain Will Lay Claim to Property in Porto Rico and Cuba.

MADRID.—During the cabinet discussion of the instructions to the Spanish peace commissioners Senor Sagasta said Friday: "The question is a very complicated one. Spain renounces her sovereignty over Cuba and Porto Rico, but will lay claim to the property there, such as national buildings, barracks, prisons, lands belonging to the state, ports, machinery, arsenals and all similar property. It is also a question what to do with the present inmates of prisons, and criminal and civil proceedings now pending in the courts. But these may be settled by the Cuban military commission. Another great problem is the Cuban debt.

"Regarding Manila, I consider its surrender null and void and against the law, since it was made after the signing of the protocol. The Paris conference will settle this and also arrange commercial treaties by which Spanish goods may obtain tariff advantages in Cuba and Porto Rico in exchange for similar advantages given to the Americans in the Philippines."

It is hinted that Spain may ask indemnity for cession of property and railroads in Cuba and Porto Rico.

KLONDIKE OVERDONE.

Cannot Support One-Third of the Men Already There.

Four hundred thousand dollars in bright yellow dust and 111 ragged and hungry miners from the Klondike gold fields arrived at Port Townsend, Wash., on the steam schooler Rival, which left July 26. The $400,000 is about equally distributed among the miners, but all express the opinion that the country is greatly overdone and cannot support one-third of the men already there, to say nothing of large numbers daily arriving, and already many are beginning to feel the pangs of hunger. Wages, which heretofore have been from $1.50 to $2 an hour, have dropped to 70 cents, and there is not employment for more than one out of ten.

Of all the strikes reported since June, 1897, not one has proved of value, and many claims have been listed at the mining exchange at Dawson City and can be bought for one ounce of dust and upward.

A new town has been founded at the mouth of American creek, and has been christened Eagle City. It has a population of several hundred and may become a formidable rival to Dawson. It is entirely in United States territory.

OCCUPATION OF PHILIPPINES.

Circumstances May Compel the United States to Permanent Sovereignty.

The London Times says editorially that it foresees circumstances which may compel the United States to a permanent occupation of Cuba, and adds:

"If America is prepared to undertake the responsibility of the government of the whole Philippine group it is hard to see how any other power could legitimately interfere. If the United States repudiates such responsibility a very perilous state of things might ensue, because it would not be easy to dispute the right of other powers to terminate the state of anarchy. Therefore, many difficulties may be avoided by American annexation. In any case no European power may rely upon finding the United States as easy to coerce as Japan."

American Money for Don Carlos.

Count Urbain DeMaille, chief representative of Don Carlos in Paris, says: "Certain American gentlemen have approached me with an offer of twelve million francs for the Carlist cause, with the understanding that they be reimbursed double that amount when Don Carlos is seated on the throne of Spain."

DeMaille felt in honor bound not to reveal their names. The count declined, owing to the existing anti-American sentiment in Spain, the responsibility of accepting the offer before consulting his chief.

Mail Service Resumed.

Postmaster General Emory Smith has suspended his order issued at the beginning of the war that during hostilities all mail communication with Spain and her colonies was to be discontinued.

No More Troops for Cuba.

General Shafter has informed the war department that after consulting with General Lawton, commanding the department of Santiago, it had been concluded that it will not be necessary to send any more troops to Santiago for the preservation of peace and good order. This statement is made with the understanding that the present military force will shortly be re-inforced by the arrival of the Fifth regular Infantry and the Twenty-third Kansas Vols.

Agreed to Cuban Commission.

MADRID.—The cabinet council has agreed to the Cuban commission suggested by Blanco, consisting of Gen. Parrado, Capt. Landero and Marquis Montoro. The appointment of Porto Rican commissioners has been postponed, although Macias wired his choice. Members of the Spanish peace commission have not yet been appointed.

The Pope in Danger.

ROME.—Rumors are in circulation that the pope has suffered a further relapse. Dr. Laponi, his holinesses' physician, denies the report, but anxiety prevails.

Goes Beyond the Two Hundred Million Mark.

For the first time in ten years, the gold reserve in the treasury exceeds $200,000,000. The treasury statement shows it to be $201,139,672.49. The available cash balance in the treasury, including the gold reserve, is $273,771,011.41. The war-revenue law is very satisfactory, and with some modifications which will be made at the next session of congress, is likely to stand on the statute books for some time. It is believed that the source of income will be maintained for the purpose of the building up the navy, for which elaborate plans will be submitted to congress.

Third Alabama Wins.

The Third Alabama regiment will not be mustered out of service at present and will in all likelihood be kept under arms the full term of the enlistment. Colonel R. S. Bullard, with Captain C. H. Scott and Major J. A. Sheffield, are in Washington for the purpose of protesting against their regiment being mustered out, as it was scheduled to be. General Corbin said that instead of being mustered out, the Third being made up of colored men, mostly immunes, would most likely be sent to Cuba and possibly to Santiago at once.

SPAIN WILL INSIST

That the Surrender of Manila Shall Have No Unfavorable Effect on Settlement.

The Madrid government has resolved to insist that the capitulation of Manila after the signing of the protocol shall have no effect in the peace negotiations unfavorable to Spain. In any event the government holds that the capitulation, having been signed by the commander of the town, does not entail the surrender of the whole of the Philippines.

THE PHILIPPINES WERE CAPTURED.

Not Only Manila But Entire Group in Our Grasp.

TEXT OF THE TERMS OF CAPITULATION.

Merritt's Official Report Upon the Surrender of Manila—Commission Appointed to Determine the Details Have Made Their Report.

WASHINGTON (Special).—Official announcement of the terms of capitulation agreed on at Manila reached the war department Saturday in a dispatch from Major-General Merritt. It was the first notification officially of the stipulations, and embraced the complete terms in six articles. There is considerable difference of opinion as to the exact significance of the terms of capitulation, but the best opinion obtainable construed the language to embrace all Spanish possessions in the Philippines, and not Manila alone. Following are the terms as made by the commission appointed to determine the details of capitulation:

1. The Spanish troops, European and native, capitulate with the city and defenses, with all the honors of war, depositing their arms in the places designated by the authorities of the United States, and remaining in the quarters designated and under the orders of their officers and subject to control of the aforesaid United States authorities, until the conclusion of a treaty of peace between the two belligerent nations. All persons included in the capitulation shall remain at liberty, the officers remaining in their respective homes, which shall be respected so long as they observe the regulations prescribed for their government and the laws in force.

2. Officers shall retain their side-arms, horses and private property. All public horses and public property of all kinds shall be turned over to the staff officers designated by the United States.

3. Complete returns in duplicate of men by organizations and full lists of public property and stores shall be rendered to the United States within ten days from this date.

4. All questions relating to the repatriation of officers and men of the Spanish forces and of their families and of the expenses which said repatriation may occasion shall be referred to the government of the United States at Washington. Spanish families may leave Manila at any time convenient to them. The return of the arms surrendered by the Spanish forces shall take place when they evacuate the city or when the American army evacuates.

5. Officers and men included in the capitulation shall be supplied by the United States according to their rank with rations and necessary aid, as though they were prisoners of war, until the conclusion of a treaty of peace between the United States and Spain. All the funds in the Spanish treasury and all other public funds shall be turned over to the authorities of the United States.

6. This city, its inhabitants, its churches and religious worship, its educational establishments, and its private property of all descriptions are placed under the special safeguard of the faith and honor of the American army.

ROASTED TO DEATH.

Fire at Hot Springs, Ark., Burned Three Persons and Injured Many Others.

A fire which resulted in the loss of two hotels, a livery stable and several private residences, and costs at least three human lives, visited Hot Springs, Ark., Saturday. The identified dead are: Abe Matthews, Greenville, Miss.; W. H. Wills, Randolph county, Arkansas; Mr. Hughes, Tulsa, I. T. A dozen or more were more or less injured, and it is believed by some of the guests and employes of the hotel that more lives were lost. The property destroyed was the National hotel, a three-story structure, and two cottages immediately adjoining, the Kentucky livery stable and the Windsor hotel. The loss was $50,000; insurance, $15,000.

SICK SPANIARDS

Leaving for Home—Their General Appearance Most Pitiful.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—The First Infantry left Friday by the Miller. There are seven Spanish transports now in harbor awaiting the embarkation of the Spanish troops. The general appearance of the men is pitiful. There has been much sickness among them and within the last two days over 100 bodies have been buried. The death rate in the city is about seventy per day. The heavy rains increase the fever among the soldiers and the inhabitants alike.

Cervera Will Stay Here Awhile.

Admiral Cervera will not return to Spain for the present. The admiral has made no application to leave, and it is the belief that he will be the last of the Spanish prisoners to go home, as he has shown a fatherly regard for all the other officers and men, and appears desirous of seeing them on their way homeward before he leaves.

Wheeler Commands the Camp.

General Joe Wheeler Friday formerly assumed command of Camp Wykoff at Montauk Point, N. Y.

SAGASTA ON CUBAN SITUATION.

Spain Will Lay Claim to Property in Porto Rico and Cuba.

MADRID.—During the cabinet discussion of the instructions to the Spanish peace commissioners Senor Sagasta said Friday: "The question is a very complicated one. Spain renounces her sovereignty over Cuba and Porto Rico, but will lay claim to the property there, such as national buildings, barracks, prisons, lands belonging to the state, ports, machinery, arsenals and all similar property. It is also a question what to do with the present inmates of prisons, and criminal and civil proceedings now pending in the courts. But these may be settled by the Cuban military commission. Another great problem is the Cuban debt.

"Regarding Manila, I consider its surrender null and void and against the law, since it was made after the signing of the protocol. The Paris conference will settle this and also arrange commercial treaties by which Spanish goods may obtain tariff advantages in Cuba and Porto Rico in exchange for similar advantages given to the Americans in the Philippines."

It is hinted that Spain may ask indemnity for cession of property and railroads in Cuba and Porto Rico.

KLONDIKE OVERDONE.

Cannot Support One-Third of the Men Already There.

Four hundred thousand dollars in bright yellow dust and 111 ragged and hungry miners from the Klondike gold fields arrived at Port Townsend, Wash., on the steam schooler Rival, which left July 26. The $400,000 is about equally distributed among the miners, but all express the opinion that the country is greatly overdone and cannot support one-third of the men already there, to say nothing of large numbers daily arriving, and already many are beginning to feel the pangs of hunger. Wages, which heretofore have been from $1.50 to $2 an hour, have dropped to 70 cents, and there is not employment for more than one out of ten.

Of all the strikes reported since June, 1897, not one has proved of value, and many claims have been listed at the mining exchange at Dawson City and can be bought for one ounce of dust and upward.

A new town has been founded at the mouth of American creek, and has been christened Eagle City. It has a population of several hundred and may become a formidable rival to Dawson. It is entirely in United States territory.

OCCUPATION OF PHILIPPINES.

Circumstances May Compel the United States to Permanent Sovereignty.

The London Times says editorially that it foresees circumstances which may compel the United States to a permanent occupation of Cuba, and adds:

"If America is prepared to undertake the responsibility of the government of the whole Philippine group it is hard to see how any other power could legitimately interfere. If the United States repudiates such responsibility a very perilous state of things might ensue, because it would not be easy to dispute the right of other powers to terminate the state of anarchy. Therefore, many difficulties may be avoided by American annexation. In any case no European power may rely upon finding the United States as easy to coerce as Japan."

American Money for Don Carlos.

Count Urbain DeMaille, chief representative of Don Carlos in Paris, says: "Certain American gentlemen have approached me with an offer of twelve million francs for the Carlist cause, with the understanding that they be reimbursed double that amount when Don Carlos is seated on the throne of Spain."

DeMalle felt in honor bound not to reveal their names. The count declined, owing to the existing anti-American sentiment in Spain, the responsibility of accepting the offer before consulting his chief.

Mail Service Resumed.

Postmaster General Emory Smith has suspended his order issued at the beginning of the war that during hostilities all mail communication with Spain and her colonies was to be discontinued.

No More Troops for Cuba.

General Shafter has informed the war department that after consulting with General Lawton, commanding the department of Santiago, it had been concluded that it will not be necessary to send any more troops to Santiago for the preservation of peace and good order. This statement is made with the understanding that the present military force will shortly be re-inforced by the arrival of the Fifth regular Infantry and the Twenty-third Kansas Vols.

Agreed to Cuban Commission.

MADRID.—The cabinet council has agreed to the Cuban commission suggested by Blanco, consisting of Gen. Parrado, Capt. Landero and Marquis Montoro. The appointment of Porto Rican commissioners has been postponed, although Macias wired his choice. Members of the Spanish peace commission have not yet been appointed.

The Pope in Danger.

ROME.—Rumors are in circulation that the pope has suffered a further relapse. Dr. Laponi, his holinesses' physician, denies the report, but anxiety prevails.

the capital, is also a convict settlement. It is beautifully clean, and possesses good government officials, a hospital, schools and a church. The Spanish residents have usually numbered about twenty, and the regular soldiery about 200, all quartered here. The militia, comprising about all the male population, is commanded by native officers. The civil government is similar to that of the Philippines. Postal communication has been quarterly.

When first discovered the Ladrones had a population of about 60,000. Not one of the original race survives, and the islands are peopled chiefly by Tagals and Bisayans from the Philippines, mixed descendants of South American Indians, a colony of Caroline Islanders who founded Garapan in the Island of Saipan, and numerous Chamorro-Spanish half-breeds. The census of 1888 reports a population of 6476 in Agana, and a total of 10,172 in all the islands, 5034 being males 5138 females. There are eighteen schools in the Island of Guam. Only ten per cent. of the Ladrone Islanders are unable to read and write. Spanish is the recognized language; but many of the natives speak a little English. The climate is good and equable; seventy degrees to eighty degrees Fahrenheit is the range of the thermometer.

The present population are described as "wanting in energy, of indifferent moral character, and miserably poor." They are descended in part from the original inhabitants, called Chamonos, and from the Mestizos, a mixed race formed by the union of Spaniards with these natives.

On the island called Saypan a colony from the Caroline Islands, which lie to the south of the Ladrones, was established some years ago. These people are the most active and enterprising inhabitants of the Ladrones.

Spain has derived no revenue from these islands, and has done little to civilize the people. At one time a few small schools were started, but they were soon abandoned.

In 1856 an epidemic destroyed one-third of the population.

August and September are the hottest months, and the rain-fall in the summer months is very heavy.

Agana, the capital, is well built of timber, and many of the houses have tiled roofs. There are twenty small villages on the islands.

So little has been done to civilize the people that they live in about the same primitive fashion as characterized them when Europeans first visited them.

In one thing the people of the Ladrones excel all the natives of the Polynesian islands—this is their faculty for building and sailing a wonderful water craft with a lateen sail. Sailors of all nations for over 300 years have admired their skill with these vessels.

They are built entirely without metal and the largest of them will carry about seven men.

The boat has an outrigger which is carried on the lee side to prevent upsetting. It is said that these boats make wonderful speed, and that they can lie closer to the wind than any other sailing craft known.

Customs, superstitions, dress, religion, etc., prove that the people of the Ladrones have a common origin with the other races of Polynesia, but they have lived so long by themselves that they have a distinct language. Some writers have argued that the race is of American origin, while others hold that they are an offshoot of the Japanese.

NATIVES AND HUT IN THE LADRONES.

Gobien, the French writer, who studies the people on the spot, says of them:

"The natives are not so dark as those of the Philippines, and are larger of body than the average European. They lived on roots, fish and fruits, and were extremely active and quick. Many of them lived over 100 years."

Another French writer says that he saw them dive and swim so well that they caught fish in their hands under water.

In character the Ladrones are gay and amiable, loving pleasure, and spending much of their time in outdoor amusements.

The women are usually lighter in color than the men, and many of them are extremely beautiful, with luxuriant hair reaching almost to the ground.

The Carolines are like the Ladrones, only more extensive in number and area, and densely populated. The islands are widely scattered into three great groups, the eastern, western and central. Spain originally claimed all the groups, but Germany recently took the Marshall Islands. The central or main group, now belonging to Spain, comprises forty-eight smaller groups, making a total of four or five hundred islands.

Among the products of the country are rice, corn, wheat, sugar, cotton, tobacco, indigo, bread fruit, castor oil and kindred necessaries of life. Among the curious natural features are the palm trees, that produce vegetable ivory; banyan trees that grow downward, the seeds being planted by birds high up in other trees, deposited in bark and crevices, sending down rootlets to gather sustenance and moisture from the soil.

Another tree bears a fruit so offensive in odor that no man not in practice can endure it, but once in a month the fruit tastes so delicious'y that he cannot stop eating until it is devoured.

The women of the Carolines are neat and attractive at home or among their cocoanut trees. The men are industrious—everywhere displaying ingenuity and gentle thrift.

The Caroline Archipelago consists of thirty-six minor groups, of which the nine following are the principal: The Palaos or Pelews, Yap, Uluthi, Ulean, Namonuito, Hogolen or Ruk, the East and West Mortlocks, Bonabe or Ponape, and Kusaie, otherwise called Ualan or Strong's Island.

The Pelew group contains some 200 islands and islets. The principal island is Bad-el-Thaob, which in area is equal to all the rest put together. The most important of the others are Korror, Uruk, Tapel, Malk, Peleleu and Angaur. The population of the Pelews is estimated at some 3000, but is probably much more. The language is a very peculiar and bizarre Malayan dialect, somewhat akin to that of Sulu Archipelago. The prin[illegible] are turtle shell, copra, [illegible]mer (Holothuria), whi[illegible]ese markets brings as[illegible] gold per ton.

The First Round Bale.

The first "round" bale of cotton has been on exhibition on the floor of the Cotton Exchange for the past few days, and while its neat appearance is often spoken of, there seems little praise of more substantial character. Capt. Thomas Young, a recognized authority on cotton exporting, said yesterday that the bale would not do for the Trans-Atlantic trade. The bale shown is from the press of Col. Mike Brown, Barnwell, and contains 556 pounds of cotton. It is covered with heavy jute cloth, the top bottom and sides being sewn with hemp cord. But, according to Capt. Young, it would occupy more space in a ship's hold than a square compressed bale weighing 500 pounds. Attention was also called by several cotton men to the fact that it was almost impossible to get satisfactory samples from the round bale. An end sample was not desired, and to slit the bagging would mean the bursting of the bale, as it carries no hoops of any kind. It is said that the round bale would occupy more room in freight cars and would be more troublesome to handle than an ordinarily put up bale, for the reason that hooks could not be used with any safety upon cotton simply confined in cloth without bands.—From the Sunday News, Charleston, S. C., Aug. 14, 1898.

Discovered by a Woman.

Another great discovery has been made, and that too, by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly, and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz." Thus writes W. G. Hamnick & Co., of Shelby, N. Y. Trial bottles free at Clanton Drug co. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed.

In the little town of Nasso, in Sweden, the firemen happen to be women, however paradoxical that sounds. The place is only a little village, and four enormous tubs constitute the "waterworks." One hundred and fifty women make up the fire department, and one of their duties consists in always keeping the tubs filled with water. The women are fine workers, it is said, and know how to handle a fire with as little confusion as possible.

"No, sir!" exclaimed the irate father, "my daughter can never be yours!" "I don't want her to be my daughter," calmly replied the young man, "I want her to be my wife."

MR. C. C. SHULTS, of Winterset, Iowa, inventor and manufacturer of Shults' Safety Whiffletree Coupling, writes of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. "Two years ago an attack of LaGrippe left me with a weak heart. I had run down in flesh to mere skin and bone. I could not sleep lying down for smothering spells; frequent sharp darting pains and palpitation caused a constant fear of sudden death, nothing could induce me to remain away from home over night. My local physician prescribed Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and in a few days I was able to sleep well and the pains gradually lessened, and finally ceased. HUMOR OF THE HOUR.

A small Washington girl is very ingenious and shares the aversion peculiar to her years to being made presentable for the afternoon. She had, with great reluctance, relinquished her play and gone with her nurse from the room. In a few minutes her voice was heard outside the door begging the nurse to return for and accompany her back to her mother's presence.

"It won't take a minute," she said, "and I know my mother won't be angry, because it is something you ought to know about."

"What is wanted?" inquired the mother, opening the door.

"If you please," said the nurse, "she wouldn't have it any other way than that I should come back and see you."

"What for?"

"To have you tell me a story."

"I don't understand."

"I didn't want her to take my word for it," interrupted the little girl. "I want you to tell her the story father read out of the paper about an intoxicated gentleman who wouldn't listen to the advice of his friends and who was finally drowned in his bathtub. Nurse won't believe that there is any danger in my being washed and dressed so much."—Washington Star.

The Law of Blockade.

There are complexities in the law of blockade, but its essentials are simple enough.

A blockade must be proclaimed so that ships of all nationalities may be notified of its existence.

Ships already at sea when proclamation is made must upon arrest be notified and permitted to depart for some other than the blockaded port. Until such notice the ship is not liable to capture.

Ships so notified and all ships sailing after proclamation of blockade has been made are liable to capture upon attempting to pass the blockade.

In case of capture they and their cargoes are confiscate, but neither their officers nor seamen, if the ship carries a neutral flag, are subject to any other penalty. They are guilty of no crime.

No neutral nation is bound to respect any blockade till it has been made effective. If it is not so, neutrals resent and resist the seizure of their ships attempting to trade with "paper" blockaded ports.

Ships of the enemy are subject to capture anywhere at sea, without reference to the ports from or to which they are going. Neutral ships are subject to capture only when trying to break the blockade.

This for information.—New York World.

A Philosophical Vicar.

A dishonest gardener of the Rev. S. C. Malan had received notice of discharge, and after an unsuccessful attempt to vindicate his character by plausible platitudes said mournfully to the vicar:

"Ah, sir, you will miss me before I be gone half an hour!"

"I shan't mind that," answered Mr. Malan cheerfully, "if I don't miss anything else."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

STARS AND STRIPES WAVE OVER HONOLULU.

While the "Star Spangled Banner" Was Played Old Glory Was Unfurled.

THE CEREMONY WAS MOST IMPRESSIVE.

When the National Salute of Twenty-One Guns Was Fired, Hawaii's National Ensign Came Slowly Down, Never to Go Up Again.

HONOLULU.—Precisely at 8 minutes to 12 o'clock Monday, August 22, the Hawaiian flag descended from the flag staffs on all the government buildings and at exactly five minutes to the same hour, the stars and stripes floated on the tropical breeze from every official flag staff. The ceremony was a most impressive one. To hear the strains of "Hawaii Ponol" for the last time as a national anthem; to hear the bugle blow taps as the Hawaiian ensign sank from its position and to notice the emotion of many who have been born under it and had lived their lives under it, was solemn. But then came the bright call for the raising "Old Glory," and the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" broke forth as that banner was unfurled to the breeze. Then the cheers broke forth and eyes that had been dim for a few minutes, became bright and lighted up when the stars and stripes floated out. The picture presented in and around the executive building was most striking. In the grounds and around all the approaches were crowds of on-lookers of every section of varied nationality. Notably remarkable was the number of Hawaiians.

Within the grounds the military and naval display was fine. Hawaiian troops, United States marines, the mounted patrol, the police and the citizens' guard presented a splendid appearance, while the platform for the exercises and the verandas of the executive building, were gay with brilliant summer dresses, dancing, feathers and ribbons and the brightest faces that Honolulu possesses.

The ceremonies opened with prayer by Rev. H. T. Peterson, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city.

United States Minister Sewall then arose and, addressing President Dole, who had arisen, presented him with a certified copy of the joint resolution of congress annexing the Hawaiian islands to the United States.

President Dole answered, acknowledging the making of a treaty of political union and formally yielding to Minister Sewall as the representative of the government of the United States the sovereignty and public property of the Hawaiian islands.

Mr. Sewall replied:

"Mr. President: In the name of the United States I accept the transfer of the sovereignty and property of the Hawaiian government. The admiral commanding the United States naval forces in these waters will proceed to perform the duty entrusted to him."

The Hawaiian band played "Hawaii Ponoi," the national anthem. Col. Fisher gave the order to the national guard battery, stationed on the executive grounds, to fire the national salute of twenty-one guns, which was also repeated by the Philadelphia. As the echo of the last gun reverberated in the hills, a bugle sounded, and the national ensign of Hawaii came slowly down, never to go up again.

A Floating Charnel House.

The transport Mobile, when she came into port at Montauk Point, was a regular floating charnel house. The Mobile left Santiago on August 13 with over 1,600 men packed like sardines into her inadequate deck and cargo space. Gen. Ludlow was in command of the troops aboard, which included 800 men of the Second Massachusetts volunteers and 700 men of the Eighth and Twenty-second regular infantry regiments of Gen. Lawton's brigade. Ten men died aboard the ship on the voyage and were buried at sea.

Dr. J. B. Dabney, of Birmingham, has been appointed surgeon in the army, and will go to Santiago immediately.

Gen. Miles Coming Home.

Gen. Miles and his staff left Ponce, Porto Rico, for home on the steamer Aransas Monday night. Senor Lopez, editor of the San Juan Correspondencia, reports that Governor-General Macias is pushing preparations for the evacuation of the island. The obstacles in the harbor of San Juan are being cleared away.

Negroes to Take Place of Strikers.

About 200 negro laborers were sent out of the Birmingham district Monday for Pana, Ill., where they will work in the coal mines of the Illinois Steel company. The negroes are to take the place of white miners who are on a strike.

A tremendous explosion at the plant of the Chattanooga Powder Company at Ooltewah station, Tenn., killed two white men, Lucius B. Eakin and Harmon Mortchke, and wounded seriously, if not fatally, six others. After the explosion the plant was destroyed by fire.

The secretary of the treasury has decided that under existing conditions there are no reasons why Spanish vessels should not enter, load and clear at ports in the United States. Collectors of customs will be instructed to this effect.

FAREWELL ADDRESS

Written by Spanish Soldiers to Gen. Shafter, Thanking Him for Kind Treatment.

A document entirely unique in the annals of warfare was cabled to the war department by General Shafter. It is in the form of a congratulatory farewell address issued to the soldiers of the American army by Pedro Lopez de Castillo, a private Spanish soldier on behalf of the 11,000 Spanish soldiers. No similar document, perhaps, was ever before issued to a victorious army by a vanquished enemy. Following is the text of the address as cabled by General Shafter:

"Major-General Shafter, Commanding the American Army in Cuba:

"Sir—The Spanish soldiers who capitulated in this place on the 16th of July last, recognizing your high and just position, pray that through you all the courageous and noble soldiers under your command may receive our good wishes and farewell, which we send them on embarking for our beloved Spain. For this favor, which we have no doubt you will grant, you will gain the everlasting gratitude and consideration of 11,000 Spanish soldiers who are your most humble servants.

"PEDRO LOPEZ DE CASTILLO."

CUBANS ROBBING AMERICANS.

Confiscated All the Tents, Stores, Arms and Personal Effects of the Soldiers.

SANTIAGO.—On the breaking up of Gen. Wheeler's camp on the Caney road on Friday the tents and general equipment of the division headquarters were left in charge of the quartermasters.

During the night the Cubans stealthily confiscated all the tents, stores, arms and personal effects of the soldiers. There is no clue to the robbers.

Gen. Kent's brigade, stationed three miles from Santiago, also lost their tents, and the soldiers marched into town barefooted, their shoes and everything portable having been stolen. The Cubans equipped themselves with the arms, tents and provisions of the Americans. They are continually stalking about the camps, and constant vigilance is necessary.

COL. HIGDON ASKED TO RESIGN.

Result of Ill-Feeling Among the Officers Brought About the Trouble.

Through private channels the news comes from Jacksonville that Colonel E. L. Higdon, of the First Alabama regiment, United States Volunteers, will be asked to resign his commission. As to why and by whom the resignation was requested is not clear. It is said that ill-feeling sprung up among the officers of the command. The story runs that they divided in factions and that the anti-Higdon faction is prepared to demand his resignation. According to Colonel Higdon, the officers desire to go to Havana to do garrison duty, while the men are bitterly opposed to this. They volunteered to fight, and when this was over they desired to return to their homes. Surgeon Lewis Morris has also resigned. His resignation has been sent in through regular military channels.

Spain Appoints Commission.

President McKinley Monday afternoon received a call from M. Thiebaut, in charge of the French embassy, in the absence of Ambassador Cambon, who bore a notification from the Spanish government of the appointment of the military commissioners for Cuba and Porto Rico. It was as follows:

For Cuba—Major Jose Gonzales Parrado, Rear Admiral Pastor y Landero Marquis Montoro.

For Porto Rico—Major-General Ortega y Diaz, Commodore of First Rank Vallarino y Carrasco, Judge Advocate Sanchel del Aguilay Leod.

Insurgents Committing Outrages in Cuba.

The civil governor of Havana has received a telegram from the mayor of Neuva Paz, stating that the Diario de la Mariana had published a letter from a correspondent in which it was asserted that the insurgents had committed outrages of various kinds. This, the mayor declared to be absolutely false. The Diario de la Mariana sent a special correspondent to investigate the matter and he confirms the story of the outrages, and reports many crimes committed by the insurgents.

Killed by a Train.

L. O. Brooks, a section foreman on the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad, was run over and killed Monday, near Birmingham, by a coal train on the Pratt City road of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company. Brooks was working a section gang on the Kansas City tracks and did not hear the approach of the train.

Shot His Employer.

Walter D. Clark, railroad agent at Albertville, Ala., was shot and fatally wounded by Albert Teague, a telegraph operator in his employ. A dispute arose over a telegram, causing the difficulty.

Eighty Men Drowned.

A dispatch from Buda Pest to a London News Agency says that while a regiment was crossing a pontoon bridge over the river Maros, near Hoad, the bridge collapsed. Three hundred men were immersed, and it is feared that eighty were drowned.

The Louisville and Nashville road will build a new depot and warehouse at Huntsville.

General Wheeler will visit Huntsville soon, and will be given a rousing reception.

...ORY OF DEMOCRACY

WHAT THE PARTY ALWAYS STANDS FOR.

There Can Be No Serious Menace to Liberty While It Lives, In Power or Out of Power—Now Preparing to Receive the Man on Horseback.

The principles for which the Democratic party contends make it immortal. As long as it is true to them it cannot lack a reason for being. At this time many of the principles dear to the American are in jeopardy, due to rapid and great changes in the economic and political phases of our national life. Our institutions are about to be put to the test of insiduous assaults by powerful enemies. There is a spirit abroad in the land that thinks the people are not capable of self-government. Its strongholds are the great cities, but it is sporadically present in all of our towns and villages. The people so believing justify themselves in circumventing the common people in any way they can. It is the province of Democratic party to resist this spirit. Already the Democracy has become such an uncomfortable habitation for the spirit named that it has changed its hiding place and seems to have permanently attached itself to the Republican party. Its surroundings now being congenial, we may expect to see it thrive and grow in vigor. It thus becomes the peculiar task of the Democratic party to perpetuate the principle and fact of government by the people.

A centralized government is not very dangerous when it is in the hands of the whole people, but becomes a menace to the people when it passes into the hands of the few. Who can doubt that in recent years our national government has been passing into the hands of the few? Who contributed the immense campaign fund that created the present president and cabinet, the many or the few? We all know that it was the few rich ones, the personnel of the committee that supplied the money for the Republican campaign representing more than $700,000,000 in their own names. Is it to be supposed that these men have been forgotten by the men they elevated to power? Is it to be believed that they have no influence in the shaping of legislation and the making of treaties and the creation of tariffs? The Democratic party is opposed to this concentration of governmental power in the hands of the few, and its battle line is set against it.

The glory of the Democratic party is to represent the interests of the people. Those interests require that commerce should be made as free as possible, both internally and externally. The exchange of goods with foreign countries should be made easy, that more goods may be sent out and brought in. To this extent the Democratic party is one of the great civilizing influences of the world. It is an established fact that civilization walks in the steps of commerce. To impede commerce is to impede the enlightenment of the world. To encourage commerce is to benefit the people of all the nations concerned in the exchange. To impede it is to benefit a few in each nation at the expense of the many. The Democratic party, being the party of the people, naturally takes the side of the greater number benefited.

Not the least good work of this party is to be on guard against the "Man on Horseback." This is a favorite term of Joseph Cook. It refers to the fact that Caesar (the man on horseback) crossed the Rubicon to overthrow the liberties of his country. In one of his Boston lectures the abovementioned lecturer predicted that the time might come in this country when the people would overthrow many of our existing ideas as to government and that this would make a way for the entrance of the "Man on Horseback"—a dictator. For himself he said he would in such a case prefer the rule of the "Man on Horseback." Well, in that event it will be the glory of the Democratic party to annihilate the "Man on Horseback."

H. F. THURSTON.

TRUSTS ARE CANCERS.

(By Senator Marion F. Butler.)

Trusts are cancers—industrial cancers—on the body politic. They are eating cancers; they are spreading cancers; they are fatal to the prosperity and life of the republic.

Everybody admits this; everybody is opposed to trusts; yet trusts continue to thrive and prosper and to multiply each day. Why is this? Because the voters have been deceived and misled about the causes that produce trusts and the true remedy to root them up and crush them out.

The last Republican legislature of New York appointed a committee to investigate trusts and report a bill to cure the evil. After many months of pretended investigation the now famous Lexow anti-trust committee made a long report denouncing trusts and declaring that they were the overshadowing evils of the age, yet closed by reporting that in the opinion of the committee the legislature was powerless to correct the evil, and that the only remedy lay in congress.

In December, 1896, President Cleveland, in his last annual message to congress, went out of his way to discuss the question of trusts. He warned the people against this growing menace to our industries and to our government, but closed by saying that congress was powerless to remove the evil, and that the remedy lay with the legislatures of the several states.

A few months later William McKinley was inaugurated president of the United States. In his inaugural address he arraigned and denounced trusts more severely even than his predecessor. He said that the life of the republic demanded that this monster—this insidious and blighting curse—should be plucked from our industrial system.

Yet he offered no remedy. He simply denounced the evil, nothing more.

One would judge from the language of Cleveland and McKinley that they were both honestly opposed to trusts; yet neither of them is opposed to the causes that produce trusts; both of them are the apologists, supporters and defenders of the fundamentally evil agencies and conditions that inevitably produce and foster trusts. Indeed, it is well known that they were both nominated by the trusts, elected by the trusts, owned by the trusts, and therefore must serve the trusts.

A few years ago the Republicans passed an anti-trust law, which they said would remedy the evil. It did not. The Democratic party denounced the Republican anti-trust law as a sham and a fraud, and charged that the Republicans never intended to pass a law that would be effective. The Democratic party, under the Cleveland regime, came into power.

The Cleveland Democrats proceeded to pass an anti-trust law of their own, which they claimed would remove and eradicate the evil. It has not done so. Today the Republican anti-trust law and the so-called Democratic anti-trust law are both on the statute book, side by side, and in full force.

Yet trusts continue to grow and prosper and multiply in numbers as never before. What is the matter? The truth is that neither of these so-called anti-trust laws contains the true remedy. Neither of them is directed at the causes that produce trusts.

PROSPERITY NOTES.

The Motorman and Conductor, of Detroit, says: "An exchange informs us that lady conductors are now employed on the street cars in Chillicothe, Ohio, and that they are receiving about one-half the wages paid the men who were discharged from these positions."

War prices: Sixty-five cents for dollar wheat.

Female labor is being introduced into some of the brass foundries of the west. Cheaper production is wanted to gain new markets.

The present prices of farm products do not allow an average of fifty cents per day to each worker on the farm.

The tendency of capital to concentrate in larger and larger corporate concerns continues at an increasing pace. According to the Journal of Commerce, 200 organizations of trust order now exist in the United States. They jointly possess capital stock and bonds amounting to $3,662,000,000, which is equal to more than 50 per cent of the aggregate capital invested in the United States in 1890.

Sixty-five cent wheat in Chicago means about fifty cents on the average to the farmers of the country.

"As a matter of economy," the management of the Vincennes, Ind., Street Railway company are about to employ women instead of men as conductors. More than fifty women answered the company's advertisement; they are forthwith to be installed, and men are to be displaced, indeed, a thrilling illustration of the way the family is promoted and protected.

Always Sordid.

From the Chicago Dispatch: When this nation was thrown into a condition of righteous indignation over the treacherous destruction of the Maine and was demanding war on Spain, Mark Hanna and his brand of Republicans howled for peace because of the cost of war.

It is characteristic of Republicans to take a purely money view of all things. Their honor is for sale, their principles are always on the bargain counter, they favor the gold standard because it would make the rich still richer.

It is worthy of note that this sordid view of all the affairs of life has so permeated the Republican party that the newspapers advocating the doctrines of that party cannot discuss international affairs from any view except that of money.

England and Russia are facing each other in China. There is danger of war between the two nations, and an esteemed Republican contemporary raises its solemn voice of warning as follows:

"Is China or the Chinese trade worth the cost of such a war as this would be? That is the question for the British people to decide. A more solemn and earnest question was never submitted to any people."

Observe the lofty patriotism of this suggestion. Is China worth the cost of war? That's all there is in the question from a Republican point of view.

That was the point of view chosen when Spain insulted the United States. But Democratic statesmen thought that patriotism was more important than money, and forced the Republican administration to fight Spain, regardless of the cost.

It is the function of religion to prompt men to make needed sacrifice, as well as to give correct views of what is really beneficial alike to the individual and to society.—Dr. R. T. Ely, Collegiate, Madison, Wis.

POPULIST POINTS

ON HIGH AUTHORITY.

GREAT LIES TOLD AGAIN AND AGAIN.

Great Exports Do Not Necessarily Mean Prosperity and Protective Tariffs Do Not Necessarily Mean Good Times As History Records It.

What an ass a man must be to assert that protection always makes good times and free trade bad times, says Holt. What did we have from 1815 to 1861? Free trade. Read protectionist Kennedy's census report for 1860. He is astonished at our wonderful prosperity from 1850 to 1860. He can't understand it, and wonders what would have happened if we had had protection. Over eighteen thousand new factories started. See also Blaine's "Twenty Years in Congress." Blaine says it must have been caused by California gold. Then came along 1870 up to 1880, when we had the greatest protective tariff ever before known. Over fifty thousand factories went down in the great smash of 1873; and with double protection and wealth we increased our factories but seventeen hundred, as against eighteen thousand from 1850 to 1860.

What kind of times have we now?

What kind of a tariff?

There is another bold, flagrant lie repeated over and over. For example, a late Scientific American states that our exports the past few months have exceeded our imports several hundred millions. This, says the Scientific American, with proud complacency, shows that Europe owes us several hundred millions on our exports that she must yet pay us! This means, of course, a repetition of that poor old blunder of economists of centuries past. If your imports are more than your exports you are growing poorer, and vice versa. That is, if you get more than you gave, you are running behind. If you get less, you are growing rich. This was as firmly believed in with as strong faith as the savage African believes in his fetisches, or as we held to the righteousness of slavery up to 1863, or as the goldites hold to gold as money today. Seventy years ago McCulloch, a great London merchant, declared it was a ridiculous lie, and predicted, in his work on commerce, that if England should ever adopt free trade her imports would constantly exceed her exports, and that she would grow constantly richer for that very reason. In 1848 she began her free trade policy. What has been the result? From that time on till now, some fifty years, without one single exception, her imports have exceeded exports by from three to five, and as high as eight hundred millions per year! Yet her population is but little over half ours. Little Belgium, and Holland, too, have pursued the same course, with the same result—imports enormously exceeding exports every year. And yet our politicians, our big authorities, our scientists and Scientific Americans continue to repeat that old exploded fallacy—the less you get for your exports, the more you have.

We can tell the Scientific American that when it gets out of the patent business into politics or potatoes it is not infallible. We can also suggest why our imports for last year's exports are so few. About half our exports went to settle balances due on bonds, stocks and to pay traveling expenses of our touring millionaires and their toady followers.

Political Reform a Religious Movement.

All of the greatest human movements have been religious. Some one has called the early anti-slavery agitation a new religious movement. It is becoming clearer every day that the crusade for a peoples' currency has a far deeper meaning. There are other far-reaching developments—so many, indeed, and of such a nature that they have a peculiar significance. The object of it all is to make men free. The sons of toil must cease to be slaves. They are nature's noblemen. They stand face to face with nature, with its hard facts and problems, and out of nature they make the wealth of the world. Money creates nothing. It has become the tool of the tyrant.

There are indications that the movement for freedom is a religious movement, unidenominational and non-sectarian. First, there is the spirit of the opposition. It is intolerant. It has ceased to argue. It uses slurs, acts with the spirit of lordly superiority, indulges in the language of the bully and bluffer; it carries in its bosom the spirit of hate; it acts exactly as all the tyrannies of the world have hitherto acted.

Again, the spirit of the advocates of reform. It is bold, asks only an open field and a fair fight and is serious. This seriousness is growing. I have attended meetings, where people wept—where all were solemnly convinced of the need of the hour. If we may interpret the humanitarian sentiments that are desiring better conditions—as prayer—(and what is prayer but our hearts' desire), then the movement surely is religious. The conscience is being extended into this political field—and this is peculiarly religious—for religion has always had to do with conscience in conduct.

The highest sense of ethics must be carried into the arena of life.

These facts will demand a new order of statesmanship, viz., that which will wisely consider all the interests of the people. A good teacher treats with due respect all the wishes and questions of

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR AUGUST 28.

Lesson Text: "Elisha at Dothan." II Kings vi., 8-18—Golden Text: Psalms xxxiv., 7—Commentary on the Lesson by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

8. "Then the king of Syria warred against Israel and took counsels with his servants, saying, In such and such a place shall be my camp." From the story of Cain and Abel onward all the characters in the Bible are for God or are against Him and are seen either leaning upon His wisdom or upon their own. But the borrowed ax at the bottom of the river tells the condition of all men apart from God. All are lost and helpless to recover themselves, and how can such think to do aught for or effectually against God? The stick that caused the iron to swim and be recovered is, like the tree cast into the waters of Mara, suggestive of Him who is the Tree of Life, who only can recover lost souls or make bitter waters sweet.

9. "And the man of God sent unto the king of Israel, saying, Beware that thou pass not such a place, for thither the Syrians are come down." Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but He revealeth His secret unto His servants, the prophets (Amos iii., 7). As He told Samuel about Saul whom He would send to him to be anointed king, and also told him what would happen to him the day he left him, adding, "Do as occasion serve thee, for God is with thee," so He sees the end from the beginning of every day for each of us, and if we leave our ways with Him He will bring it to pass and order our steps to His glory and our highest good.

10. "And the king of Israel sent to the place which the man of God told him and warned him of and saved himself there, not once nor twice." Thus illustrating II Chron. xx., 20, "Believe in the Lord, your God, so shall ye be established; believe His prophets, so shall ye prosper." There is nothing on earth so sure as the Word of God, for it is forever settled in heaven (Ps. cxix., 89), and, though all else may fade and fail, the Word of our God shall stand forever (Isa. xl., 8).

11. "Therefore the heart of the king of Syria was sore troubled for this thing, and he called his servants and said unto them, Will ye not shew me which of us is for the king of Israel?" For unless there was a traitor among his men, how else could his plans be made known to his enemy? Thus reasoned the king of Syria, for he knew naught but human wisdom, and yet he knew that the incurable disease of leprosy had been healed in Israel, and was it not possible that one who had connection with such power might also be able to reveal secrets?

12. "And one of his servants said, None, my lord, O king, but Elisha, the prophet, that is in Israel, telleth the king of Israel the words that thou speakest in thy bedchamber." Can any hide himself in secret places that I shall not see him? saith the Lord. Do not I fill heaven and earth? said the Lord (Jer. xxiii., 24). Thou compassest my path and my lying down and art acquainted with all my ways, for there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O Lord, Thou knowest it altogether. Yea, the darkness hideth not from Thee, but the night shineth as the day; the darkness and the light are both alike to Thee (Ps. cxxxix., 3, 4, 12). It was one of the servants who told the king about Elisha, and it was the servants who persuaded Naaman to wash and be cleansed.

13. "And he said, Go and spy where he is, that I may send and fetch him. And it was told him, saying, Behold, he is in Dothan." How blind and stupid people are who know not God! Even the devil himself seems at times to act like a perfect fool. Might not the king of Syria have said, "Well, if this man somehow knows my secret plans and tells his king, there is no use in my trying to get him, for he will know that I am coming and can hide himself from me." But he is blinded by his master, the devil, and goes heedlessly on, bent on his own purposes.

14. "Therefore sent he thither horses and chariots and a great host, and they came by night and compassed the city about." He must have felt that Elisha was more than an ordinary man or he would not have thought it necessary to send such a host to take one man. So he does the best he knows how to get his man, and to be more sure of taking him he does it secretly by night, so that no human eyes can see what he is doing, for he knows nothing of Him to whom the darkness and the light are alike.

15. "And when the servant of the man of God was risen early and gone forth, behold, an host compassed the city both with horses and chariots. And his servant said unto him, Alas, my master, how shall we do?" In two cases we have seen servants wiser than their masters, but this servant does not seem to have profited as he might by having such a master. Even our Lord had to say to one of His disciples, "Have I been so long time with you and yet hast thou not known me, Philip?" (John xiv., 9).

16. "And he answered, Fear not, for they that be with us are more than they that be with them." Here is faith seeing the unseen. Moses endured as seeing Him who is invisible. The things seen are temporal, but the things unseen are eternal. Happy are those who have learned to see the things that are invisible to ordinary eyes, who, like Stephen, look up steadfastly into heaven and see the glory of God and Jesus and find comfort in His words, "Because I live, ye shall live also" (John xiv., 19). God would have His people without fear, and a prayerful study of the "fear nots" from the first one in Gen. xv., 1, onward would greatly tend to this happy state of mind which would be very much to God's glory.

17. "And Elisha prayed and said, Lord, I pray Thee, open his eyes that he may see. And the Lord opened the eyes of the young man, and he saw, and, behold, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha." We read in Rev. v., 11, that the angels are 10,000 times 10,000 and thousands of thousands, and a few of these would be sufficient to take care of Elisha. Our Lord said that His Father would give Him twelve legions of them if He asked for them, and we are told that they are ministering spirits, ministering unto the heirs of salvation (Heb. i., 14).

18. "And when they came down to him, Elisha prayed unto the Lord and said, Smite this people, I pray Thee, with blindness. And He smote them with blindness, according to the word of Elisha." Notice also Elisha's third prayer and answer in this incident in verse 20, and if you earnestly covet such intimate fellowship with God, make John xiv., 13, 14, a very prayerful study, understanding that "in His Name" means at least "on His business," as asking such things as He Himself would ask. We must not imagine Elisha speaking anything but truth in verse 19, for the man whom the King of Syria wanted was really the king of Israel.—Lesson Helper.

There will probably be an important meeting of the citizens of Selma held within the next few days to draw up a proposition to be presented to the Louisville and Nashville railroad authorities relative to the completion of the Brewton gap on the Pensacola road. As now mapped out, the extension of the road to Blocton will leave Selma nine miles off the line and inducements will likely be offered for the road to go through Selma.

THE WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Remarkable Expansion Has Followed Conclusion of the War.

NEW YORK.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, in part says: A war which wrought no shrinkage of business while it lasted has brought with its ending a quite remarkable expansion. Orders and purchases have increased in nearly all branches, few as yet being of such nature that they can be attributed to the material enlargement of trade with the lately acquired Spanish islands, which must come a little later.

The iron industry, while reporting declines in product, shows more surprising gain in business than any other. The demand for finished products expands remarkably considering the enormous orders prior to July, which crowd some of the biggest works until December.

Tin plate works, which require 40,000 tons per month, have been buying 160,000 tons; bars and steel works at Pittsburg have bought 125,000 tons of pig, raising the price to $10 40. Gray forge also advanced and eastern anthracite and southern pig at Chicago have advanced 25 cents. There is a general advance in the minor metals, copper to 12 cents for lake, lead to 4.07½, and while tin plates are unchanged, both are stronger.

Wheat has further declined 2 cents in spite of general holding of better grades by farmers, which renders receipts low and the visible supply low beyond precedent. At 76 cents now, Atlantic exports have been 3,095,380 bushels (flour included), against 3,705,287 bushels last year, and Pacific exports 175,400 bushels against 384,846 last year, making for three weeks 10,115,246 bushels against 10,453,832 last year. Corn exports are gradually declining and prices are 2 cents lower, rather larger and estimates of yield now being credited.

MERRITT'S PROCLAMATION

Provides a Scheme of Government for Manila and Surrounding Territory.

MANILA, via Hong Kong.—General Merritt has prepared a proclamation to the natives, which provides a scheme of government for Manila and surrounding territory and other islands and places in our possession, the chief points of which are:

Rigid protection to all in person and in religion.

Municipal laws, tribunals and local institutions for punishment of crime to remain until further notice (except where incompatible with military rule), subject to supervision of the American general.

Provost marshals and sub-provosts to be appointed, with power to arrest civil as well as military offenders.

Open trade for neutral nations.

Public property to be rigorously protected.

No interference with the people so long as they preserve the peace.

General Merritt occupies the governor's palace.

Two Privates Killed at Chickamauga.

Private Otto Hoffer, of the Ninth New York, stationed at Chickamauga, during a thunder storm was struck by lightning, while standing against the pole of his tent, and instantly killed. D. Fontaine, Company A, First Mississippi, was sandbagged and robbed in the Southern railroad yard. His skull was crushed, and he died from the wound. He was the son of the famous confederate scout.

Warships Assembling at Ft. Monroe.

One of the largest fleets of warships ever assembled in an American port will be brought together in the next few days at Ft. Monroe. Already fifty-seven warships are under orders to rendezvous there, and the orders still to be issued will raise the tota to the neighborhood of seventy.

An English Opinion.

The Spectator, in its issne this week, prophesies that America will retain all the Spanish possessions she has captured, and thinks pressure from the Cuban loyalists will force the commission to stipulate that Cuba shall be governed by the United States for twenty years.

Andre's Balloon Sighted.

Professor Andre's balloon has been sighted by Esquimaux, according to report from the north. The report itself is very meagre, no details being given.

The Slaughter Continues.

The Hong Kong correspondent of the London Times says: "The slaughter in southern China continues. Corpses float past Wu Chau daily. Two hundred rebels who had entered Tai Wong Kong were defeated by Gen. Mawho, who killed 100 of the rebels and took 60 of them prisoners. The gentry in the districts of Paklan and Wu Gun daily send to the magistrates between ten and twenty rebels for execution."

Men who are always in a hurry, and most men are, want a soap for the toilet that will lather quickly and freely in hot or cold water. Other soaps than Ivory may have this quality, but will likely contain alkali, which is injurious to the skin. Ivory Soap is made of pure vegetable oils, no alkali; produces a white, foamy lather, that cleanses thoroughly and rinses easily and quickly. Money cannot buy a better soap for the toilet.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

Is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a well-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is a Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it promises its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the months, of the political, economic, and literary tendencies which are of value to thinking men and women. The "Progress of the World" is directly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazine contents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any questions of serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or Europe which compares in success with the American in point of view, promptness, and energy of execution with the whole field most carefully weighed, in exact proportion to the well-known English of the purely literary periodicals."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly number the information needed by intelligent people of "live" interests is best shown by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Jemison, Aug. 28, 1899

Editor BANNER.—Please allow me through the columns of your paper to make some suggestions to the people of our county.

I would like the people to express themselves on the Public Road system. Some want the law changed; others want it to stand as it is. Now, unless there is a free expression on this subject I will not know what course to pursue.

Again, several have asked me to try and get a bull law through the Legislature, prohibiting bulls from running at large in our county. It is suggested to me that it would be a great benefit to our farmers to have the privilege of breeding their cows at the season of the year that suits them, and, especially to the breed of cattle they want. Now, we all know that as the law is we have no say-so in the time or the kind of cattle we breed to. If we had such a law as spoken of, we could take the cows and breed one at a time, and keep one giving milk all the time.

I hope the people will speak out on these two ideas and on any others they may think of. You see it is only about two months until the Legislature meets, and I want to be prepared to represent the will of the majority. While it is a sacrifice on my part to go to the Legislature, I certainly want to advocate the will of the people of my county.

I want to thank the thousand and fifty men who supported me, and I hope my actions will be such that will never cause them to regret having voted for me; and while I feel under especial obligations to those who supported me, I want to those who worked against me to feel free to ask for any legislation they may want, and to rest assured that I shall do what I conceive to be to the best interests of all—regardless of any political faction.

I tried to get such laws passed before as the people asked for. The only way I can know what the people want is for them to express themselves. So I hope that any legislation that is needed for the county you will let it be known through the BANNER—then both sides will have a chance to give their views.

There are two things in Alabama very much needing improvement—the public road system and the public school system, and I hope to see the day when we will have good roads, for nothing better advertises a county or a community than good roads. I think the whole county is proud of the improvement in the public roads around Clanton.

May our school system be so improved that there will be a good school in every community in Alabama, and may God speed the time when every child in Alabama, rich or poor, shall have an opportunity of a good school.

Thanking you in advance for publishing this, I remain.

L. H. REYNOLDS.

Clinton, Aug. 30, 1898

Editor BANNER.—The war is all over, and politics too, but five cent cotton is here again and likely to remain unless some means can be devised to drive it up higher. I wish again to call attention to the subject of cotton factories, and endeavor to bring about a discussion of the matter, and if there is anything in it let us have them by all means, for without something of the kind we may expect to grow five cent cotton for years to come.

Let us consider the advantages to the producer. In the first place, he could sell his cotton here and save freight, drayage and sampling, bagging, ties and ginning, and that amount would be left here in circulation. It would afford a market for his products to the operatives; the wages earned by them would be kept here; our people could find employment in the factory.

In the next place, the bale of cotton manufactured would be worth nearly double the price of raw cotton, and after paying liberal wages to employes would leave a good margin for dividends.

As an illustration I will here give a statement taken from the Charleston News and Courier, pertaining to the methods adopted in South Carolina for securing the full advantages of the cotton crop. It cites a town in Marlborough county, S. C., that thirteen years ago did not contain a house, now it is a larger town than the county seat itself. It is the result of building a cotton mill. The people of the neighborhood got together $32,000 and built a mill. It has earned dividends, and a portion of these dividends have been expended in extensions, and to-day, after only thirteen years existenc, it has a mill property valued at $250,000. During the last twelve months that mill cleared $9 on every bale of cotton it used. One of the stockholders recently said he feared an audience would not believe him if he should tell how much the factory cleared in the last two quarters. Not only is there nothing in the county that pays half so well, but it has created a town larger and more prosperous than the county-seat; and the county seat, in pure self-defense, is preparing to build a cotton mill itself upon the same plan. It is a good plan to build only what can be paid for, no matter if it be small. Spin, if you cannot weave. Let a portion of all dividends go to extensions. That is the best plan. There is scarcely a town in Alabama to-day as prosperous and contented, stable and sound as the little town of McColl. A cotton mill did it, for there was not a house in the place when the mill company was organized.

We do not want to start with one or two large mills in this State, but enough small mills to utilize the production of our neighborhoods and county. There is no reason why Chilton county should not have one or more small mills, and build up our county, and have them in full operation in time to utilize next year's crop, if we would go at them now. I wish we were organized like we were in Alliance days that we might discuss this matter, for I do not propose to sell you twelve pounds of coffee for a dollar without telling you where you can get the dollar. I can tell you how a mill can be built and paid for, if any of our people think enough of the matter to want to know.

I will close, hoping to hear from someone on the line of the above.

ALEX. G. DAKE.

A CRITICAL TIME

During the Battle of Santiago

SICK OR WELL, A RUSH NIGHT AND DAY

The Packers at the Battle of Santiago de Cuba were all Heroes. Their Hero e Efforts in Getting Ammunition and Ra- tions to the Front Saved the Day.

L. E. BUTLER, of pack train No. 3 writing from Santiago, De Cuba, on July 23d, says: "We all had diarrhoea in more or less violent form, and when we landed we had no time to see a doctor, for it was a cause of rush and rush night and day to keep the troops supplied with ammunition and rations, but thanks to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, we were able to keep at work and keep our health; in fact, I sincerely believe that at one critical time this medicine was the indirect saviour of our army, for if the packers had been unable to work there would have been no way of getting supplies to the front. There were no roads that a wagon train could use. My comrade and myself had the good fortune to lay in a supply of this medicine for our pack-train before we left Tampa and I know in four cases it absolutely saved life."

The above letter was written to the manufacturers of this medicine, the Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by Dr. J. S. Johnston.

Of 8700 American war pensioners residing in foreign countries at the time of the last report, ten only resided in Spain.

"Billingsgate," to describe bad language, is no longer a correct term, the vocabulary of London's great fish market having been improved by the exertions of the London City Mission.

It is said that a patient in a Delaware hospital had thirty-one epileptic fits in two days and "apparently experienced no unpleasant effects from them." This seems to be a clear case of the survival of the fittest.

The London Saturday Review says: "The lesson of all our conflicts with America was that the American soldiers and sailors shot markedly better than our own and won astonishing victories. It looks as if the old lesson holds good to-day."

With the single exception of little Newfoundland the United States have by far the highest average of savings bank accounts, namely $378.31. Canada follows, with an average of $327.97; Austro-Hungary, $180; Denmark, $165.95; Prussia, $150.23; Switzerland, $149.42; Great Britain, $102.35 France, $92.33, and Italy, $80.07.

No higher tribute could be paid to a warship's crew than that paid by Captain Evans to the men of the Iowa: "So long as the enemy showed his flag they fought like American seamen, but when the flag came down they were as gentle and tender as American women." In that pregnant sentence is the whole philosophy of military heroism.

Japan apparently believes in the doctrine "in time of peace prepare for war." She has ordered from Fiume a new and exceptionally powerful type of torpedo, which is to be twenty-four inches in diameter, with a speed of thirty-five knots and a range of 6000 feet, or 720 feet more than a mile. It is to be fitted with the gyroscope, to obtain the utmost precision. If all anticipations are fulfilled the gun will have a very formidable rival.

The recent establishment of a whale-oil manufactory on Notre Dame Bay calls attention to the fact that whaling is now a paying venture off the coast of Newfoundland. Recently seven whales, worth nearly $1000 each, were captured by a company of Norwegian whalers. A company has been formed to carry on the industry. This ought to make the old fishermen around Amagansett prick up their ears. Possibly the old shipyard of Cold Spring Harbor, which fitted out the whalers of the last century, may resume business.

The Philadelphia Commercial Museum says that Porto Rico is well adapted by soil and climate not only for the growing of cotton, but for the manufacture of cotton fabrics as well, though for the growth of the plant it will be necessary to engage native labor or to secure help from Cuba. Of the more than one thousand streams upon the island sixty are navigable, and many of them could be utilized to furnish power, which is an important consideration, since all the coal used must be brought from this country; and all the chief towns are connected by railway, though communication with the interior is only possible by ox teams.

In speaking of the recent popular war loan the Baltimore American says: Not since the wonderful alacrity with which, in July, 1871, the French peasants and the working people of Paris went down into their stockings and subscribed in a day $400,000,000 to meet the first installments of the big war indemnity with which the German invader was bought out of France, has there been so impressive a demonstration of the latent resources of a great nation, or of its patriotic confidence in its Government. It will be to European Governments as significant a proof of the enormous reserved strength of the American people as all our military and naval successes put together, brilliant though they are. The wealth of a nation and its ability to raise money within its own territory on moderate terms is a main element in its fighting capacity.

THE PHILIPPINE SITUATION.

The Military Government is Working Efficiently in All Departments.

CLASH BETWEEN AMERICANS AND NATIVES.

Trouble Arose Over a Soldier Firing a Pistol in Fun—List of Prisoners and Arms Taken in the Surrender of Manila—Insurgent Activity.

The Manila correspondent of the London Times telegraphing Friday says:

The military government is working efficiently in all departments. The business is being actively resumed, the water works is in operation and the Paris river is open.

Stringent measures have been taken to insure the sanitation of the citadel, which is crowded with prisoners. The abominably filthy condition of the Spanish barracks is a menace to the general health, which at present, however, is excellent. Among the American troops there have been only seventeen deaths from illness since landing. Twenty-three thousand stands of arms, 10,000,000 cartridges and an immense quantity of large amunition have been surrendered, with nearly 15,000 prisoners.

The insurgents recently dispatched an armed steamer with 500 soldiers on board for an unknown destination. Consequently coastwise steamers manned by Spanish sailors were afraid to venture out until assured of the protection of the American fleet.

It is impossible to obtain information from the interior except along the railroads, where everything is quiet. Rumors concerning insurgent activity in the southern part of the island are credited here.

Six hundred priests, including 110 prisoners among the insurgents, will depart for Hong Kong in charge of the Belgian consul as soon as the transport can be procured. There is undoubtedly practical unanimity among merchants, irrespective of nationality, in favor of the permanent occupation of the archipelago by the Americans. Nobody conceives the re-establishment of Spanish sovereignty possible.

FATAL RIOT AT CAVITE.

One Killed and Several Wounded in a Clash Between Our Soldiers and Insurgents.

MANILA.—On Wednesday a corporal and two troopers of Battery B, of the Utah artillery, after disembarking at Cavite, were sent on an errand. While passing through the streets Trooper Hudson discharged his revolver. It was all mere fun, but the natives in the immediate locality were much alarmed for the time. The natives immediately began firing and dismounted cavalry were sent to quell the disturbance, but the natives misunderstood the movement and the firing became general. Trooper Hudson was killed and Corporal Anderson mortally wounded. Troopers Layden, Nachber, Connoley and Doyle, of the Fourth cavalry, were wounded. Four natives were killed and several wounded. General Aguinaldo promises to punish the offending natives.

MUST DISBAND CUBANS.

They Threaten the Future Prosperity of Santiago and Other Cities.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—The merchants here are anxious for the Cuban army to be disbanded at once. It is a menace to business they say. They are anxious to resume, but find it impossible to do so because their property is threatened by ill-disciplined levies of Garcia's command. Cultivators have refused to return to their plantations, where they will be subject to contributions for the support of Cuban soldiers who are still in the field. If the province is to return to a self-supporting basis and trade to begin again, the Cuban army, it is generally admitted, must be disbanded. The Spanish merchants view the situation from a most gloomy standpoint and are prepared to cease all connection with Cuba, if the question of dominion is settled any other way than that the United States shall be in possession.

Remarkable Record.

The official statement of our losses in the war with Spain is not yet made up, but the approximate figures, compiled from reports to the war and navy departments, give this remarkable showing:

Killed in the army	260
Killed in the navy	12
Killed in the marines	7
Wounded in the army	1,400
Wounded in the navy	10
Wounded in the marines	13

Here is a total of 279 killed and 1,428 wounded in a war which resulted in the destruction of the Spanish navy, in the freeing of Cuba, the cession of Porto Rico and the capture of Manila.

United States of Central America.

The members of the convention which has been engaged at Magaua, Nicaragua, in formulating a constitution for the United States of Central America, embracing Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua, have signed the constitution. Senors Angel, Ugarte, Salvador, Golligos, Manuel, Coronel and Matez have been appointed commissioners and empowered to act as a federal government until the election in December next of a federal president and congressmen, to be installed in March 1, 1899.

FRICTION EXISTS AT MANILA

Between the Americans and Filipinos. Trying to Avoid Total Alienation.

A dispatch from Manila to a London newspaper agency says:

"The friction between the Americans and natives requires exceptional ability to avoid total alienation. Several high American officials of mediocre education are utterly unacquainted with Oriental ideas and unable to understand the primitive races. Most of the Americans are deficient in patience and numerous trifling misunderstandings intensify the friction.

It is believed the Americans intend to be harsh. The American censor absolutely prohibits the sending of a single word about the Cavite incident, and he threatens to expel any correspondent who mentions it.

The affair began in a drunken American shooting and the native sentries attempting to arrest him. General Merritt returned the arms to the company of natives who fired upon the Americans, presumably inadvertently. The natives assert that Aguinaldo forced General Merritt to liberate them. The same correspondent cables that the Americans are only partly patrolling the town."

CZAR WANTS PEACE.

Proposes Holding a Conference of All Nations to Secure This End.

By order of Emperor Nicholas of Russia, Count Muravieff, the foreign minister, on the 24th inst. handed to the foreign diplomats at St. Petersburg a note declaring that the maintenance of peace and the reduction of the excessive armaments now crushing all nations is the ideal for which governments ought to strive. The czar considers the present moment favorable for the inauguration of a movement looking to this end, and invites the powers to take part in an international conference as a means of thus insuring real and lasting peace and terminating the progressive increase of armament.

WANTS TO COME HOME.

The First Alabama Writing Letters to Governor Johnston.

Governor Johnston is besieged with letters from privates of the First Alabama, praying that the regiment be mustered out. These letters have been written in large numbers running from forty to fifty and sixty and as high as eighty in several companies. The privates have been informed that President McKinley desired their expression through the governor of their home state and they hastened to comply. It is believed that Governor Johnston has been notified that only one Alabama regiment would be kept in the service. It is understood that the Second will be mustered out, and now the decision has narrowed down between the First and the Third negro regiments.

MERRITT UNDECIDED.

Cavite Offenders Convicted by Court Martial.

Major-General Merritt, the commander of the American troops at Manila, in conversation has avoided a declaration of his policy and gave the impression that he is undecided about the possibility of arranging to retain the Philippines, although personally he seemed to favor that policy.

General Aguinaldo has court-martialed the offenders in the Cavite affair and they have been sentenced to death, but it is reported that they were afterward reprieved at the request of General Anderson.

Yukon Gold Output.

Major J. M. Walsh, ex-commissioner of the Yukon district, who has arrived at Seattle, Wash., from Dawson en route to Ottawa, Canada, to make his official report, estimates this season's gold output at $11,000,000, while the clean up for next year will undoubtedly aggregate $20,000,000. He predicts that further developments in the Yukon will go beyond the expectations of everybody.

The Southern Will Build a Branch.

It is stated that the Southern Railway company will build another mineral extention to its system in the Birmingham district before the end of the present year. It will be about 40 miles in length and will run to all the mines of the Ivy Coal and Coke Co. in Walker county.

Woman Appointed.

Monday, for the first time in the history of the American army, a woman was appointed a member of the medical staff. Dr. Anita McGee was sworn in as active assistant surgeon.

Ex-Governor Claude Matthews, of Indiana, died at his home in Windgate Sunday morning, the result of a stroke of paralysis.

THE TROOPS ARE IMPATIENT

Slow Movement From Camp Thomas Causing Much Complaint.

DONS MAKE CHARGES AGAINST AMERICANS.

Relations Between England and China Growing Very Acute—Diplomatic Relations May Be Severed—English Warships Mobilizing.

The movement from Camp Thomas at Chickamauga Park is progressing much more slowly than General Breckinridge and his officers anticipated, and much complaint is expressed on all sides. The regiments are ready to move, but they are unable to secure transportation. The roads seem unable to handle more than two commands a day, while the army officials desire to send at least six out daily.

Gen. R. T. Frank, commanding the First division, Third corps has issued an address to his men in which he urges the men not to weakly yield to present depressing influences or to waste time complaining over the poor prospects of being given active service or being mustered out. He expresses confidence that the command will soon do garrison duty in Cuba, a work which, he declares, is as honorable and of as great importance as any yet done. There is much dissatisfaction in all the regiments at the poor prospects of being mustered out.

The statement of General Terry that 200 sick men of that regiment are without the proper hospital facilities is causing much apprehension.

SPANIARDS STARVED.

Serious Charges Made as to Treatment After the Surrender.

The Madrid correspondent of the London Daily Mail says: The officers and soldiers who have returned from Santiago de Cuba bitterly accuse the Americans of unfulfilled promises made at the time of the capitulation of Santiago. The Americans, they say, forced the Spanish troops to encamp on a spot where hundreds of corpses of the Spanish defenders of El Caney were buried. The rains almost unearthed the bodies, the stench from which produced an epidemic. The Americans, the Spaniards assert, kept the latter without food and the officers received only canned sardines. Most of them returned seriously ill from the effects of prolonged hunger. Several die daily.

THE SITUATION ACUTE.

The Relations Between Great Britian and China are Strained.

The Pekin correspondent of the London Daily News says:

The situation has suddenly become acute. The relations between the tsung li pamin and Sir Claude Macdonald, the British minister, are strained to the point of rupture. Sir Charles Macdonald has intimated that any failure by China to observe Great Britain's wishes will be accepted as a casus belli. In support of Sir Claude Macdonald, the fleet has been concentrated at Wei Hai Wei and Han Kow, and all the warships under 5,000 tons have been mobilized in the Yang Ste river. The naval demonstration is solely directed against China, as it is semi-officially stated that the existing relations with Russia are cordial.

Anglo-Egyptian Advance.

WADY HAMED.—The Anglo-Egyptian forces have begun to advance, moving in five parallel columns at deploying distance. They were led by Jaalin guides and by bands of pipers, who were playing. It was an imposing spectacle.

Mustering Out Troops.

Orders have been issued to muster out the following: Fourth Pennsylvania Infantry, Sixth Illinois Infantry, Second Wisconsin Infantry, Three Louisiana Light Batteries, two Rhode Island Light Batteries, two Iowa Light Batteries, two Oregon Light Batteries, twoo troops Kentucky Cavalry, Light Battery A, Missouri, Twenty-seventh Indiana Light Artillery, Light Batteries A, B and C, Pennsylvania Light Artillery.

FAVOR ANNEXATION.

Jamaica Natives Anxious to Become Part of the United States.

A special from Kingston, Jamaica, says: The American annexation movement commenced at Manchester is rapidly spreading and finding general acceptance as the only visible alternative to ruin. The promoters of the movement are pushing it vigorously, being desirous of strengthening the hands of Jamaica's representatives at the Barbadoes conference, thus encouraging inter-colonial co-operation. The sole obstacle encountered is the color question.

Five Killed.

Five persons were killed Saturday at Whiting's Crossing, Mass., on the Boston and Maine railroad by a collision between a train and a wagon containing a pleasure party of eleven persons.

A Conductor Killed.

A special from Dupont, Ga., says that Conductor Cason, of the Plant system, was shot and killed at that place Saturday by Mike Graham, a negro.

Glaze, Martin & Co. got the first bale at Decatur. It weighed 520 pounds.

MUCH SICKNESS AT SANTIAGO.

Immunes Don't Stand the Climate Any Better Than Other Men.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—The death rate among citizens and troops is increasing. The deaths in the city number about eighty daily. The mortality among the soldiers is small, however. Patients who are convalescent after an attack of dysentery and yellow fever gain strength slowly, owing to the enervating effect of the climate. Two hundred immunes are now in the hospital.

The steamer Panther left Saturday with 108 sick soldiers of all regiments, and the Romana left Sunday with 425 sick from all regiments, leaving 500 for the Olivette, which is expected on Wednesday to take all the sick save the critical cases.

The transports San Augustine, Leonora and San Francisco will go for 6,000 Spaniards at Guantanamo bay.

The Cheeribon, a hospital ship, left Saturday with 1,000 sick Spaniards. The condition of all the Spanish soldiers who have left or are able to leave is pitiful. Physicians say that 20 per cent of them will die before reaching Spain.

CLOSING PREPARATIONS.

War Department Busy Making Arrangements to Muster Out Volunteers.

WASHINGTON.—Every bureau of the war department is busy with matters connected with the close of the war. The pay department has a big task before it in settling with the troops and officers in the final muster out. There must be an accounting of all government property, and each roll must be complete and satisfactory to the officers of the government before there can be a final settlement.

The clothing and purchases by the soldiers will have to be looked up and balanced by the pay officers before final payment is made. All officers who have charge of government property of any kind must account for it before they can receive final discharge.

The ordnance officers are busy preparing for the reception and disposal of the arms of the soldiers and blanks and papers are being made ready. Officers from each branch of the service will be detailed to go to the state camps, where the final mustering out occurs, to receive the government property, make final payment and give the soldiers their discharge.

SPEEDY DEPARTURE.

Cuban and Porto Rican Commissions Will Sail September 3.

WASHINGTON.—Arrangements have been made for the speedy departure of the commissions charged with the supervision of the evacuation of the Spanish forces from Cuba and Porto Rico. The Cuban commission, consisting of General Wade, Admiral Sampson and General Butler, will sail September 3 on the auxiliary cruiser Resolute, now on her way from Montauk Point to Portsmouth, Va. The Porto Rican commission consists of General Brooke, Admiral Schley and General Gordon. General Brooke is now in Porto Rico in command of the military forces there. Admiral Schley is now in this city. General Gordon telegraphed that he would be here Monday.

The army transport ship Seneca will be utilized in taking the members of the commission now in this country to Porto Rico.

HOBSON'S PROMOTION.

Will Be Made Full Naval Constructor Without Explanation.

Assistant Naval Constructor Hobson was to have been examined for promotion last week, but owing to his duties he could not go before the board. It was ordered that his record be examined to see if that would entitle him to higher rank. The board says:

"The board joins with all the world in admiring the skill, courage and gallant conduct of Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond Pearson Hobson in connection with the Merrimac, as set forth in the letter of the commanding officer of the North American station."

The report then refers to the various papers submitted in connection with Hobson's record, and closes with a recommendation that he be promoted to naval constructor.

50,000 PERISHED.

This Is Spain's Loss in Life During the Three Years of Cuban War.

The Madrid correspondent of the London Standard says:

Nothing can better illustrate the country's weariness and disillusion than the small excitement caused by the return of the repatriated troops. Of the 225,000 who have left Spain for the Antilles since March, 1895, 50,000 have perished in Cuba, 78,000 have been sent home invalided, and the remainder are returning to be disbanded after receiving a portion of their nine-months' arrears of pay.

The True Hero of Santiago.

Rear Admiral Schley left Washington Saturday for Westport, Conn., by way of Baltimore and New York. Wherever the admiral appeared on the streets during his stay in Washington he has been the recipient of most marked attention. Enthusiastic cheers greeted him at every point.

Gadsden's first bale of cotton was marketed Friday. It was made by W. F. Black, of Slackland, classed strictly A middling, weighed 405 pounds, and was sold at 12½ cents.

his last report to the state department, quoted wages and prices of necessaries as follows:

Wages on the plantations, including house and firewood, or room and board, range from $125 to $175 per month for engineers and sugar boilers, $30 to $100 per month for blacksmiths and carpenters, $40 to $75 per month for bookkeepers, and $30 to $40 per month for teamsters. In Honolulu the rates are $5 to $6 per day for bricklayers and masons, $2.50 to $5 per day for carpenters and painters, and $3 to $5 per day for machinists. Cooks receive from $3 to $6 per week; nurses, house servants and gardeners, $8 to $12 per month. Retail prices of provisions are as follows: Ham, 16 to 18 cents per pound; bacon, 16 to 20 cents; flour, $2.50 to $5 per 100 pounds; rice, $3.20 to $5 per 100 pounds; eggs, 20 to 50 cents per doz; butter, 25 to 50 cents per pound, and ice 1½ cents per pound.

Notes.

In Dundee, Ireland weavers are paid $1.65 a week and many of them have families.

Forty thousand working women in New York city are receiving wages so low that they are compelled to accept charity or do worse.

The municipalization of telephones, gas and water has already been accomplished in Amsterdam, the chief city of Holland, and the municipal council is now considering the question of the municipalization of the street railways.

In Spain women work. About 2,500 are employed in mines; the state tobacco factories give work to about 25,000, and lace making engages 6,000. They may even be found engaged in the manufacture of dynamite and gunpowder.

In one factory of Detroit, Mich., is a machine on which a boy not over 15 or 16 years old is doing the work which, until recently, required six men, working by hand. The boy gets $4 per week. The six men, who were of necessity capable mechanics, could not be had for less than $1.50 a day, or $9 a week each.

A decision was rendered by the United States supreme court recently affirming the validity of the South Carolina dispensary system in its essential features. Three judges dissented, but a substantial majority of the court accepts the view that a state has a right to conduct the liquor traffic on its own account as an exclusive state monopoly, subject only to the qualification that a citizen may import liquors from beyond the state for his individual use without interference from the state. The decision is of importance as establishing the right of a state to set up and conduct, not only a public liquor monopoly, but any industrial monopoly.

Harper's Weekly says: "The strike of the engineers in England is over, and the men have been defeated. In their defeat is involved that of trade unionism, for the employers insisted on the right to manage their own business in their own way, and, after a most extraordinary struggle lasting six months the men have practically surrendered. One thing the English capitalists, and all capitalists everywhere, should bear in mind. The inevitable tendency of a strike like this is to strengthen the socialist movement. The workingmen will reason that if they cannot bring their employers to terms by negotiations, or even by striking, they will try to accomplish their object by legislation.

Paternal.

Commuters on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad are inclined to challenge a new regulation which has just been enforced on the ground that it smacks of paternalism. As each brakeman calls a station, as for instance, Hackensack, he does it in this fashion: "Hackensack! Don't f-o-r-g-e-t your b-u-n-d-l-e-s." Occasional passengers on this road find these calls amusing, and as each station is announced they grin at the brakeman, who doesn't enjoy the new regulation, and then look around to see the commuters pick up their bundles. Undoubtedly this new regulation was suggested by the number of bundles which commuters left behind them in the cars, and then bothered the railroad company to look up for them. "I object to this regulation," said one of the commuters yesterday. "If the railroads are going into this business, the first thing we will know the brakeman will call out: 'Hackensack! Have you forgotten to mail your wife's letters?' or perhaps it will be 'Monclair! Remember to stop at the butcher's.' I invited a friend to come out and spend the night with me two days ago, and he began to laugh when the first station was announced. As station after station was reached and the brakeman sang out monotonously at each: 'Don't forget your bundles,' his merriment increased. He would talk about nothing else at dinner, and when he said good night to us he added: 'Don't forget your bundles.' It's kind of the railroad, of course, but I don't like it."—New York Sun.

Useless Forbodings.

What a vast proportion of our lives is spent in anxious and useless forebodings concerning the future—either our own or that of our dear ones! Present joys, present blessings slip by, and we miss half their sweet flavor for want of faith in Him who provides for the tiniest insect in the sunbeam. Oh, when will we learn the sweet trust in God that our children teach us—we, who are so mutable, and He, who is so watchful, so pitiful, so loving, so forgiving? Why cannot we, slipping our hand into His each day, walk trustingly over that day's appointed path, thorny or flowery, crooked or straight, knowing that evening will bring us sleep, peace and home?

MONEY IN PARABLE.

THE FINANCIAL QUESTION MADE EASY.

Wheat and Corn Used as a Text—If Corn Were Denied Admission to Mills Its Price Would Fall and People Would Starve.

Parable of Pound-Cake and Ash-Cake.

And this is the parable of the staff of life:

In Felicia the Lord had provided two grains for bread; and one of these was called wheat, and the other was called corn, or maize. And the King had opened mills for the grinding of these grains, where both were ground equally, without price and without limit. The land was fertile, yielding both wheat and corn; but the greater yield commonly was of corn, and wheat sold at a higher price among the people because it was scarcer and made finer and whiter loaves. Yet the two grains gave abundance and happiness. If the wheat lacked, the corn supplied the deficiency; if the corn was scarce, the wheat came in answer to the call for bread, so that no man suffered from hunger in Felicia. And the corn was every man's crop. They who could not grow wheat, grew corn, and they who ate no wheat were satisfied with the corn ground freely at the King's mills. Both in quantity and price the two grains thus co-operated together to feed the people, without possibility of monopoly and extortion. But Mammon, who distributed the grains and the flour and the meal thereof to the people, saw how he could control the situation and make a mighty deal in wheat (the scarcer grain and the more to be desired), if he could persuade the King to close the mills against corn. And so he sent his professors and his bankers and his scribes and his lawyers to the King, and they said: "Oh, King! wheat is the only thing fit for thy people. It abounds, it is healthful, beautiful and sweet; it is more desired of all men and nations; corn is food only for swine; Therefore close thy mills against corn, and allow wheat only to be ground therein. So will Felicia grow greater and greater among the nations; and with wheat as the sole and single staff of life, our people will live longer, grow richer and richer, and become the happier as the delicious biscuit shall on every table take the place of the course and unsavory ash-cake." So it seemed wise to the King, and forthwith he issued his edict that thenceforward no corn should be ground in any of the mills of Felicia, which should remain open only to the free and unlimited grinding of golden wheat. For a time all things seemed to work well, notwithstanding the edict. But soon the people who had eaten cornbread found that they could not turn their corn into meal, as the mills were closed to everything but wheat. They had to eat wheat, or starve. And, lo! by reason of discrimination against it, corn became almost worthless in exchange for wheat, as everything else had also become by reason of the mill edict. And they who had eaten wheat only found it had risen enormously in price, not simply because it had been made the sole staff of life, but because Mammon and his men had cornered the wheat product, which had now become easy, as this product was much less than that of corn, and as corn had been excluded from the mills and the bread market and could no longer come to the rescue of wheat and its consumers. Thus it came to pass that even the King's baker was sorely put to it to furnish the accustomed loaves for the royal table. All the King's household and retainers, who had formerly been served with corn-pone, had now to be fed on flour. So that with the royal garners bursting with corn, there was scant bread on the royal table. But Mammon & Co. had store of wheat, and for a while they cheerfully took the King's orders (or bonds) in exchange for wheat; but the people's orders or bonds were disdained, Mammon & Co. doublelocking their wheat bins against all popular demands, insomuch that the people starved, while the King feasted and still kept a reserve or surplus of wheat by a liberal issue of royal orders or bonds warranted to produce wheat and nothing but wheat. At length, when the people had been driven to the last extremity and a famine prevailed in the land, even the King's bonds were refused for wheat by Mammon & Co., unless he would also put in pawn his crown, his scepter and his throne. And then the eyes and ears of the king were opened to his prostrate people crying for the opening of the mills to corn. "We do not care for pound-cake!" shrieked the people. "Give us corn bread, lest we perish in the midst of our abundance!" But the sleek Mammon, with his portly professors, his bloated bankers, his greasy scribes, and his lusty lawyers, talked day and night to the King. "These ignorant and half-educated people do not know what ails them, nor what they need," said Mammon & Co. "Besides, they are hired to starve themselves and make all this outcry by these fellows who raise such enormous crops of corn. The corn producers alone will be benefited by opening the mills to corn. Just think what an enormous pile of money they will make if corn again be allowed as a breadstuff. We, on the contrary, know all about grain and bread, and from our position are utterly disinterested. We neither grow nor grind anything." "Except the people and the King!" interjected the King's fool. Scorning the unseemly interjection, Mammon & Co. went on: "The people foolishly say they do not want pound-cake, and clamor for corn-bread, but we who know, O King! declare to you that corn-bread is injurious to the digestion fit only for hogs, and that pound-cake as our experience proves, is far better for human food. It is true that the people say they can get no pound cake; that it is beyond their means is scarce, etc. Yet, as we can testify conclusively, there is plenty of pound cake, for we have got it. Yes, we have abundance of pound-cake, and it is only a popular delusion which inspires the cry for ash-cake and corn-pone; for it they can't buy our pound-cake how can they buy corn-bread?" Quoth the King's fool:

"The more grist the mills grind,
The more mouths it will find."

"Besides," continued Mammon & Co. still scorning the fool, "how can your majesty find it in your heart to deprive us of our monopoly for the benefit of a dirty rabble?" "That to be sure," said the King, "would be conclusive but for the consideration that if the body perishes, what will become of the head? I am the head of Felicia; the people are the body of the state. Already I find it almost impossible to supply myself with the necessary wheat; already I am in bonds to you, masters of wheat; and now you tell me I must pawn my sovereignty to get further supplies. "Will you thus force me to feel that I and my people are one; to remember that the public mills do not belong to me alone, nor to you, but the people? And I at once reopen the mills to corn, believing that it will be much better to live even on ash-cake than to starve myself or people in an effort to make pound-cake the sole staff of life." Mammon & Co. retired discomfited, venting dire threats of ruin and revenge; but even they could not reverse the laws of trade, of supply and demand. And soon it come to pass that bread so abounded that even the poor did not lack for wheat, it being found that the best assurance for pound-cake is in the free and unlimited supply of corn-meal for ash-cake. He that hath ears to hear let him hear.

The Battle Ground of '98.

The Republican press, seeing the union of the Democratic and Populistic forces on the old anti-monopolistic battle ground in California, immediately shift their position and prepare to intrench themselves behind the words "Greater America," hoping thereby to dig a pit in front of their intrenchments and compel these united forces to oppose them, there, and fall therein. Why should Democrats and Populists oppose Greater America? All the territories of the United States, except Alaska, were acquired under Democratic administrations; therefore Greater America, from the creation of the Republic to the present time was and is good Democratic doctrine.

If we must keep the islands of the seas, let us keep them for their people. Let their lands be held in trust for the people of the territory by the government for all time, that no one man may claim to own the birthright of the others. Let the government own public utilities, and when built, let the government manage them for the people's benefit, at actual cost, as our postal department is now conducted. Let the cities own their own water and gas works, and all public utilities. Is not this good Democratic and Populistic doctrine? And if it is then will not the newly acquired territory prove a blessing to its Spanish-ridden people, as well as to the emigrants attracted there by Old Glory? Let the Democrats and Populists united, fight to abolish all special privileges from the newly acquired territories, and let them fight harder to keep the swinish proclivities of the Huntingtons, Goulds, Rockefellers and their class, from entering therein. Greater as well as lesser America can be made a blessing to the human family when human hogs are deprived of special privileges, and not till then. The tide of human events bears upon its bosom the inevitable Greater America. A wave of modern Democracy is sweeping over the world. Wouldn't it be laughable to see the anti-monopolists of America trying to stop it? Rather go with this tide and help shape its course in and around the islands of the seas than waste human energy trying to oppose its flow.—R. U. Collins.

Too Much Revenue.

From the Boston Post: There is a large margin of unexpended war money remaining in the hands of the government to cover expenses of winding up the affair. There is an element of danger in this situation. On a peace basis congress invariably spends more than the national income. What must be expected unless the brakes are put on, with all this extra money on hand? The first thing the people should demand is strict economy on the part of congress and the administration. The temptation will be great to rush into wasteful jobs. This must be checked. We should at once, or as quickly as practicable, get back to a reasonable scale of expenditure, and lighten some of the burdens which the people have cheerfully borne through patriotism.

Little Show for Spoilsmen.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer: The policy of expansion is expected in some quarters to place a great deal of additional patronage in the hands of President McKinley. This may not though, result in more offices for the politicians of the United States. The local affairs of Cuba and Porto Rico will be continued to be administered by those now in charge of them, under United States supervision. The people of those islands who freely accept the new conditions will be permitted to stay, and there will be that which Spain has so long refused to give in earnest, local government.

TROUBLE IN THE LADRONES.

Situation Said to Be Extremely Critical on the Islands.

WANT FRIARS EXPELLED FROM PHILIPPINES

President McKinley is Urged to "Aid the Philipinos to Suppress the Immorality of the Diabolical Institutions Fostered by the Monks."

MADRID.—Negotiotions have been opened with Washington to obtain permission for the Spaniards on the Ladrone islands to go to Manila, as the situation on the islands is most critical, and it is regarded as likely that the Spanish residents are in serious danger. The nature of the trouble will not be given out by the officials here, although it is intimated that the trouble is of a serious nature, probably an uprising of the natives.

WASHINGTON.—While acting Secretary of State Moore said that the state department was without information from the Ladrone islands, it is learned that the war department has received advices confirming the Associated Press dispatch from Madrid. Nothing can be learned, the officials refusing to discuss the dispatch or reveal the nature of the trouble.

EXPULSION OF FRIARS

Necessary to the Moral Sanitation of the Philippine Islands.

LONDON.—The Philippine islands committee in Europe has addressed a letter to President McKinley regarding the appeals made to him by high Roman Catholic ecclesiastics in America to protect the religious orders in the island. The expulsion of the friars, the committee contends, is "a necessary antecedent to moral sanitation." The letter names particularly the archbishop of Manila and the bishops of Nueva Samovia and Nueva Caseras, "whose acts of hostility against both natives and Americans and against the Jesuits and other respected religious institutions are condemned by everyone."

The committee urges President McKinley to "aid the Philipinos to suppress the immorality of the diabolical institutions fostered by these monks."

BETTER METHODS.

New and Improved Systems Introduced in Cuba.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—The American postal system is soon to be introduced here and house to house deliveries and letter boxes are to be established. The merchants are much pleased and the desire is general for the establishment of American buiness systems.

The modification of the administration of the provincial civil governments by Generals Lawton and Wood meets with the approbation of intelligent citizens and co-operation in the movement is increasing. The schools will open on September 1. English will be taught in all the grades for the purpose of its Americanizing effect. The employes of the civil government are now paid with checks only owing to the scarcity of small change.

SPANIARDS AND REBELS

Still Fighting in Philippines, Cuba and Porto Rico.

The Madrid government has received a cipher dispatch from Manila giving full details of the capitulation and of the condition of the island. The contents of the dispatch have not been made public. General Rios, governor of the Vizcayas islands, reports fighting between the rebels and Spanish troops at Cebua and Iloilo. A flotilla has been organized to protect these islands from invasion by the rebels sent from Luzon by Aguinaldo. General Rios has armed several battalions of militia. Telegrams from Cuba report continuous fighting in the provinces of Puerto Principe and Sante Clara between the Spaniards and rebels.

Pugilist Killed.

Alexander Scott, the pugilist, died Friday of uraemic convulsions brought on by his exertions in his fight with Tommy Butler, at Brooklyn, N. Y.

At Florence, Alex Weakley, colored, was killed by his team running away.

The Avondale cotton mills at Birmingham turned out their first cloth Thursday, and from now on more and more looms will be put in operation until the whole plant is working at its full capacity.

A waterspout did much damage to the Alabama Great Southern tracks near Hull, Tuskaloosa county. It caused washouts, one of which was the cause of a big wreck, in which a heavy train was ditched. James Brown, colored, was killed and considerable damage done to property.

Talladega cotton mill directors decided to double the capacity of the plant. A new warehouse to hold 1,200 bales of cotton will be erected also.

The general assembly of Alabama will meet this year on November 15, and not on November 8, as has been stated by a number of newspapers of the state.

At Decatur a large steam pipe burst in the works of the American Oak Extract company, and George Conley was scalded to death. He was standing by the pipe when it bursted.

A STAIN WIPED OUT.

BRAVERY BEFORE SANTIAGO CLEARS AN AMERICAN OFFICER'S RECORD.

The Marvelous Intrepidity of Captain Leonard Lovering in the Charge up the Heights of El Caney.

Just a year ago Captain Leonard A. Lovering of the 4th United States Infantry, Fort Sheridan, near Chicago was in serious trouble. He was forced to submit to a courtmartial on the charge of brutality to an enlisted man. He was convicted and sentenced to a reprimand in orders. July 1 and 2 of this year he did much to redeem himself from the cloud on his reputation, which chafed unpleasingly from the morning the "Hammond affair" became public property.

One morning the news was spread abroad that Captain Lovering, while acting as officer of the day, had been guilty of extreme cruelty to Private Hammond, a prisoner from another command. Columns were printed concerning the affair, and General Brooke caused a rigid investigation. This was followed by a court martial and the publication of the officer in orders. Nothing could be more galling to a high strung man than this same publishing in orders.

The captain was punished enough by this, and besides he was not big enough in rank to cause anybody to "camp on his trail," so after orders had been published he was restored to duty and proceeded to Cuba with his regiment.

Lovering is a brave man. Nobody ever charged him with being anything else. But he had more than mere military ambition to satisfy in that longer before Santiago. He had to redeem himself in the eyes of the world and the men of his regiment. Rightfully or wrongfully, the verdict of the people was against him; among the men of the Fourth, it is said, he was known as Weyler, because of his harshness to the men. He must remove this blot. It must be admitted he did much to restore himself to the public favor at El Caney.

The fighting Fourth got its stomach full of fighting when the heights of El Caney were stormed. The regiment formed a portion of the column sent against that position. Its reputation for fierce bravery and skill in fighting was fully sustained. The hero of El Caney, according to the reports which have reached this country, was Captain Lovering. Lovering commands Company C of the Fourth. His company and regiment were in the hottest of the fiercest fight of the war so far. Mr. Bernard was killed in the fight and Mr. Neary was badly hurt. Both were men of much less stature than Lovering, who is one of the biggest men, physically, in the army. He was not touched by bullet or shell, though he seemed to court death.

Lovering spared neither himself nor his company in that wild charge. In fact it has been said that if he had cared to he might have sheltered his men in a ravine while advancing to the firing line, but that he led them impetuously across the open under a terrible fire, instead. He had sixty men in line when the advance was ordered. When the fight ended he had three dead and eighteen wounded. This loss exceeded that of any primary organization in the fight. It had been said that Private Hosfield of his company had sworn to kill the captain in their first action. If so, the man never had the chance, as he was killed in the first break from cover.

Lovering led his men from their position in the regimental line. He went straight to the front, regardless of topography, rifle shots or cannon shells. He moved on the firing line with all speed and then performed an act of bravery which proved he was and is a brave soldier, whatever else may be said of him. He lost nearly one-third of his command in the first rush, but he looked after the remnant like a careful officer when the line was reached.

In the charge up the hill of Siboney the captain was overcome by the heat and forced to drop out. Orders were imperative and his men swept on and left him there. There he lay for a time, but with returning strength he forced himself forward and regained his company, now on the firing line and fighting hard to hold their position. Here is where the disgraced officer showed his mettle as a fighter; at least, and did somuch to win the good wishes of his men. He tried to protect them under fire himself.

Lovering saw that his men were exposed to the merciless fire of the enemy. He is of gigantic stature and physically, at least, an ideal soldier. But he seized a camp cooking outfit which can be used as a shovel, and in a rain of bullets coolly dug trenches with it, ordering his men to take position therein and thus be sheltered. He himself was all this time exposed to the galling fire of the Spanish concealed behind their intrenchments. He was not touched. He plunged into trenches and rescued wounded men, although Red Cross men were hit on all sides. He fought all day and fought as hotly as any man, but in spite of his enormous stature he came out without a mark, while much smaller men were killed or maimed.

Shakespeare in French.

A story is told of three French boys who were studying a volume of Shakespeare in their own tongue, their task being to render portions of it into English. When they came to Hamlet's famous soliloquy, "To be or not to be," their respective translations were as follows:

1. "To was or not to am."
2. "To were or is to not."
3. "To should or not to will."

A GRAND review of the troops was held by Gen. Fitzhugh Lee at Jacksonville yesterday. Thirty thousand men were in line, and Col. William J. Bryan received an ovation.

IN Coosa county R. S. Nolen has filed his contest against J. A. Crawford for Judge of Probate. Nolen was declared to be defeated by 29 votes, and claims that Crawford bought votes and by so doing defeated him illegally.

THE Populists of Alabama have lost a devoted and talented adherent in the person of Col. J. M. Whitehead who died at his home in Greenville, Butler county, on Tuesday. Col. Whitehead, our late nominee for Attorney-General, was looking aged and feeble when the State convention nominated him, and while it is a matter of regret his death can hardly be a surprise to those intimately acquainted with him.

ON our first page will be found a call by the chairman of the Fourth Congressional District for a convention to be held at Talladega on Wednesday, September 14, to nominate a representative for Congress. No doubt but that our county chairman will call a mass meeting or county convention the latter end of next week for the purpose of electing delegates to the convention. We hope this matter will receive careful attention and that the delegates selected will be pledged to attend the convention. Proxies are always undesirable substitutes for delegates.

AFTER a hot time in the Democratic congressional convention Hon. Gaston A. Robbins, of Selma, finally managed to secure the coveted nomination. Mr. Robbins is a pleasant and affable gentleman but he must surely know he cannot possibly be elected in this district, and that he is doomed to the same fate he met with four years ago. Even if all our Democratic friends in the district were unanimously for Mr. Robbins they could not roll up a legitimate majority, and any other than a legitimate majority only means an ignominous return from Washington in a very short time.

We understand it is the generally expressed wish of the Populists of this district to again return our sitting member, Hon. W. F. Aldrich, to Congress. Mr. Aldrich has already been nominated by the Republicans of this district, and it is to be presumed the plan adopted by the Populist convention two years ago will again be followed, and Mr. Aldrich be nominated. With the combined vote of the Populists and Republicans he will have an easy victory and no matter what the official returns may be it can be depended upon that Mr. Aldrich will be in a position to vindicate the right of the voters to a fair vote and honest count.

WE desire especially to call the attention of our readers to the communication in our correspondence columns from Hon. L. H Reynolds. Mr. Reynolds is putting into practice the principle of the initiative when he requests his constituents to make him acquainted with their legislative needs. This is the true and only way to fairly and honestly represent all the people. Whatever you wish in the way of legislation let your representative know. If there is opposition also let him know that, and how strong it is. And whatever law you may desire, don't try and run it over your neighbors heads without letting them know what you are doing. If a majority of the citizens want a stock law, a dog law, or any other law, by all means let them have it, but first let the entire community know what is proposed.

IT seems to be a harder matter to muster out the volunteer army than it was to muster it in. It is true the trouble is more with the officers than with the rank and file. The volunteer private has generally made up his mind as to whether he wishes to remain in the army or to return to civil life. The orders have gone forth for a reduction of the army. Some regiments have to go, and some will be retained. If a system of exchange among the private soldiers was established, it would be a comparatively easy matter to determine which should go and which should stay. For instance, it is reported that the Second Alabama is to be mustered out and the First Alabama to remain. Let the privates in the Second who wish to remain in the army exchange with those in the First who desire to return to their homes. By this means, in all probability, there would in a few days be a regiment of volunteers whose sole ambition is to remain in the army, and another lot of soldiers, always ready and willing to serve their country in time of need, who appreciate the readiness with which they can leave the army when their services can be dispensed with. As to the officers, they could exchange in the same way, and the superfluous ones would have to retire.

SOME of our good Populist friends in Kentucky have let their admiration for Richmond P. Hobson over-run their discretion. We yield to none in our respect and admiration for the hero of Santiago, but it is useless to endorse or nominate him for President of the United States for some years to come, as he is constitutionally debarred from accepting any such endorsement or nomination he, at this time, being only about 28 years of age, and the constitutional limit is 35. Therefore Lieut. Hobson could not be elected President before 1908, and to nominate him now is going Wharton Barker et als one better. Mr. Barker only wants to be nominated now for 1900—and much as he desires the nomination now it is doubtful if even he would accept it for 1908.

ONE of the most remarkable documents ever issued is that of the Czar of Russia calling a conference of the leading nations of the earth to take some steps to do away with the immense armaments and consequent expenditure which nearly all nations are groaning under. Coming, as it does, from the head of the largest standing army in the world, it is sure to receive careful consideration, but, unfortunately, the millenium is not yet at hand, and the prospects of a general disarmament are at present very remote. But still this is a hopeful sign.

A hive of 5,000 bees should produce 50 pounds of honey every year and multiply tenfold in five years.

More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in it's merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, scalds, sores, in the shortest space of time. Stanfield & Matthews.

Political Pointers.

Peoples Party Press Bureau
St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 31, 1898

Moreton Frewen, the noted British bimetallist, expresses the hope that the party in this country favoring currency expansion will also favor territorial expansion. In regard to the policy of closing the mints in India, Mr. Frewen says: "The monetary commission now sitting in that country, is unable to secure any evidence which they dare print favorable to the gold standard." He also says China will absorb a large amount of silver, if the trade of those myraids shall be unlocked to modern conditions of transportation.

The Republican congressional committee have just issued their campaign hand book, in which they relegate the silver questions to the rear, and make their main fight on the President's war record and the return of prosperity. It is asserted, in the face of low wages and falling prices, that the farmers and laborers are prosperous and have no desire for more money.

There is strong probability of an official inquiry being made into the conduct of the war with Spain. Secretary Alger and General Shafter are being generally charged with mismanagement and it is believed the administration will order an investigation very soon.

The recent Republican state convention of Missouri, adopted resolutions endorsing the gold standard and condemning the Populistic tendencies of the Democratic administration of the state.

Many leading Republicans of Illinois are deserting the party on account of the recent rotten record of the Tanner administration. Among the notable converts to the cause of free silver and financial reform, is Stephen A. Douglass, Jr., son of Lincoln's opponent for the Presidency in 1860.

The middle-of-the-road Populist papers of the country are engaging in a furious quarrel over the convention called by the re organizers, to meet at Cincinnati, Ohio, on Sept 5. They have been harping on the fusion string for nearly four years, to the exclusion of political issues, and even a slight variation in the monotony will be most welcome to a long suffering people.

The Peoples Party of Utah will hold a State convention at Salt Lake City, Sept. 15, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for congress and for judge of the supreme court.

Report comes from Tarrytown, N. Y., that the tax assessors are making life miserable for John D. Rockefeller, of Standard oil fame, and that he contemplates moving back to Cleveland, Ohio. Poor John! He might endow a university at Tarrytown and get off easy.

The striking coal miners at Pana Ill., are stil out and their prospects for winning a victory are growing brighter. On August 25, the operators imported 150 negroes from Alabama under false pretenses and when the negroes arrived upon the scene and learned the truth regarding the situation, they refused to go to work in the mines, notwithstanding they were guarded by 100 deputy sheriffs.

The Ohio state Democratic convention which convened at Dayton on August 24, was a turbulent affair, but the free silverites were in control from start to finish. Resolutions were adopted endorsing the Chicago platform, with particular stress upon the currency plank. The income tax was also endorsed and Hannaism was roundly scored. A full state ticket was nominated.

Congressman Babcock of Michigan, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, concedes that his party will lose many members of the next congress. He says there will be much disaffection over the disposition of public patronage and the situation is anything but cheerful.

The social Democracy, Debs' new political organization, recently placed a ticket in the field at Terre Haute, Ind.

Henry Watterson, the goldbug editor of the Louisville Courier Journal is a pronounced expansionist. He favors the retention of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines and would not haul down a single American flag, that has been raised during the war. Expansion of territory means expansion of currency and trade. The next thing Mr. Watterson will be climbing into the free silver band wagon.

Mrs. Lease, the well known Populist Lecturer, has brought against the inter-state Chautauqua Association for $450, for three lectures delivered at Carthage, Mo., during July, 1897.

The war with Spain has revived the interest in the Nicaragua canal. The different political parties in nearly all the states are declaring in favor of the project; also that it be constructed, owned and operated by the United States government. No more "credit Mobilliers" are wanted. A. R.

Dr. Miles' Nervine
A REMEDY FOR THE Effects of Tobacco.

THE excessive use of tobacco, especially by young men is always injurious and undoubtedly shortens life materially. Mr. Ed. C. Ebsen, compositor on the Contra-Costa News, Martinez, Cal., writes; "I have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and received much benefit from it. I was troubled with nervousness, dizzy spells and sleeplessness, caused by the use of tobacco and stimulants. I took Dr. Miles' Nervine with marvelously good results, allaying the dizziness, quieting the nerves, and enabling me to sleep and rest, proving in my case a very beneficial remedy." Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is especially adapted to restoring the nervous system to its normal condition under such circumstances. It soothes, heals and strengthens.

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

VALUABLE SOLUTION.

By Which Frederick Moss Believes He Can Make Wood Impenetrable.

Frederick R. Moss of Binghamton believes he has discovered a process that will practically supplant iron sheathing for war vessels. He is the possessor of a secret solution that will after a few hours' treatment turn timber as hard as a piece of iron—in fact, those who have witnessed tests say it will stand more than the best tempered steel. A piece of 2 by 4 pine, 3 feet long, soaked in the solution for six days, presents a grayish brown color and weighs 78 pounds to the foot. A board treated in this manner withstood the penetrating powers of a rifle bullet fired at a distance of six feet, the bullet leaving only a scratchlike mark.

Mr. Moss says the discovery was an accident, and that the solution can be cheaply made, pine proving the best wood to work with, but hemlock, cedar or any lumber with an absorbent grain can be used. Mr. Moss believes his discovery will revolutionize the construction of battleships, as impenetrable armor plate can be made at an almost trifling cost. He has submitted samples to the navy department and expects to give a test before a board in a short time. He is reticent regarding the composition of his solution, but his friends believe he has found a fortune.—New York Press.

MODERN BATTLESHIP.

Electrician Dahlman Says It Is a Regular Bundle of Electric Nerves.

"The modern battleship," said Mr. W. E. Dahlman, a well known New York electrician, in Washington the other day, "is a regular bundle of electric nerves, through which circulates the current performing various offices for the comfort, safety and convenience of the crew. It lights the ship in every part; it brings up ammunition from the magazines; it helps to load the guns, and when they are loaded it fires them. It aids in steering the ship; by its agency the officer on the bridge directs the engineers and the man at the wheel; it sends torpedoes on their deadly errands, and it furnishes the power for the great searchlights by which signals are sent at night and by which the sea is patrolled.

"Our war with Spain will be largely a war of electrical machinery, and one of our great advantages lies in the fact that we are a nation of machinists, our specialty being in the domain of electricity. In that we ex... he rest of the world, and our mastery of the subtle force will be one of the greatest factors in the struggle that will end in the humiliating defeat of the Spanish nation."—Washington Post.

A bundle of old letters was found not long ago in England which turned out to be valuable because the letters were written by Charles Lamb. Very few of you children are too young to enjoy this great author's essay on "Roast Pig," with his funny account of the way the delicious dish was discovered. When you are a few years older, it is to be hoped that you will not be satisfied until you have read every essay he wrote. Indeed a taste for Charles Lamb is considered a sort of touchstone—that is, if a person likes to read his works, he is considered by that alone to be cultivated ...

PORTO RICO, OUR NEWEST JEWEL

The True "Pearl of the Antilles"—Striking Features of This Rich Possession.

Some of the interesting things about Porto Rico are not generally known. In size it ranks only as the fourth of the Greater Antilles, but in point of density of population and general prosperity it takes the first place. It is one of the few countries in tropical America where the whites outnumber the other races. The best harbor in the island is Guanica, the most western port on the south coast. Yellow fever never scourges Porto Rico as it does parts of Cuba, and although most of it is low-lying, and may be said to be very hilly rather than mountainous, it is one of the most healthful of tropical islands.

Though the harbor of Guanica, where our troops landed, is the best in the island, it is not visited by much shipping. The district immediately around it is low and swampy, and, unless improvements have been made within the past two or three years, the roads are not equal in quality to the main roads marked on the map. Guanica is the outlet for the produce of San German, Sabana Grade, and to some extent of Yauco, which is on the railroad. Porto Rican "rebels" have been particularly numerous in the western and southwestern districts, and many thousands of people there welcomed the day of General Miles's coming as the greatest in their lives.

The largest city and the commercial capital of the island is Ponce, which lies three miles north of the port of Ponce, on a rich plain surrounded by gardens and plantations. There are hot springs in the neighborhood, which are highly appreciated by invalids. Along the playa or beach in front of the port are extensive depots, in which the produce of the interior, forwarded through Ponce, the trading centre, is stored for shipment. At the last enumeration Ponce had a population of 37,545, while San Juan, the capital on the north coast, had only 23,414 inhabitants. Ponce has a number of fine buildings, among which are the Town Hall, the theatre, two churches, the Charity and the Women's Asylums, the barracks, the Cuban House, and the market. The road between the city and the seaside is a beautiful promenade.

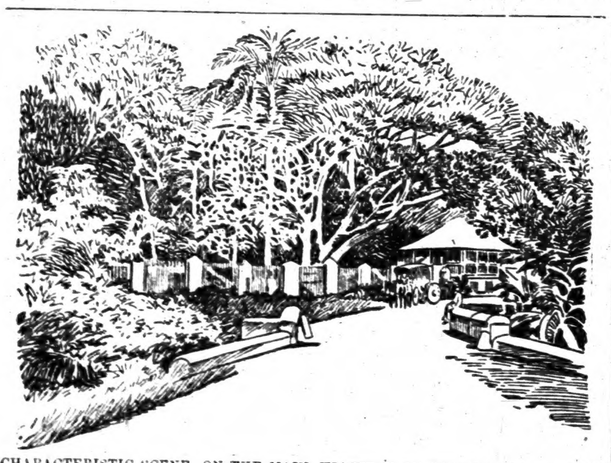
The main highway of central Porto Rico runs from Ponce to San Juan in a northeasterly course through Juana Diaz, Coamo and Aibonito, where it goes almost eastward to Cayey, there to take a winding course to the north as far as Caguas, where it turns west to Aguas Buenas, and then goes decidedly north to San Juan through Guaynabo and Rio Piedras, making in all a distance of eighty-five miles. The distance from Ponce to San Juan in a straight line is only forty-five miles.

The eastern part of the island is less densely peopled than the western, and as the east coast is on the windward side and offers less protection for shipping it is not so conveniently situated for trade. Here all the larger towns of the east lie inland, or at least some distance from the coast. These towns are in the hilly region amid rich coffee and extensive grazing lands.

The harbor of San Juan, the capital, is deep enough to admit large vessels, but its channel communicating with the sea is winding and difficult and can be navigated safely only with the aid of a pilot.

One of the leading seaports of the island is Aguadilla on the west coast, which has the advantage of a spacious bay sheltered from the trade winds. Here are shipped the sugar and coffee of the northwest part of the island. There are seven or eight ports of lesser importance.



CHARACTERISTIC SCENE ON THE MAIN HIGHWAY OF CENTRAL PORTO RICO WHICH RUNS FROM PONCE TO SAN JUAN.

Over 800,000 people live in Porto Rico, and about two-thirds of them are white. Cuba is thirteen times larger than Porto Rico, and its population was not double that of the smaller island even before Weyler exterminated a third of the native Cubans. Besides Ponce and San Juan, the largest towns on the island are Arecibo (30,000 inhabitants), Utuado (31,000), Mayaguez (28,000), San German (20,000), Yauco (25,000), Juana Diaz (21,000), and there are about ten other towns with a population of 15,000 or over.

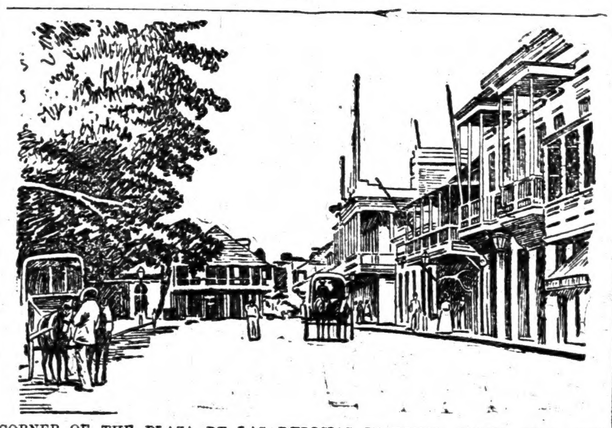
In the past fifty years about half the population has gravitated to and around the towns, particularly those of the seaboard. They live in comfortable houses and many of them have the means to purchase all the wares of the civilized world. Porto Rico abounds in sugar, coffee, tobacco, honey and wax, which have enriched the island, and many of the people are well-to-do. A very large part of the island's trade has been carried on with the United States, whose corn, flour, salt meat, fish and lumber are imported in return for sugar, molasses and coffee. The natives have little taste for sea faring and most of their foreign trade is carried in foreign bottoms.

Porto Rico is rich in natural blessings, and for a tropical region is very healthful. For some inscrutable reason Spain has given the inhabitants far better treatment than she has the natives of Cuba. She has dealt with the island as though it were a Spanish province instead of merely a colony to be bled by Spanish officials for the enrichment of themselves and the mother country. In fact, the island has been politically a province of Spain for over twenty years. Spain has had little to do directly with internal improvements in the island, but she has so far kept her heavy hand off the people that there was an opportunity for the spirit of enterprise to develop. The result is that Porto Rico has about 150 miles of railroad, and as much more under construction; and a system of wagon roads leading to all the important trading centres that surpass anything of the sort seen in most parts of Spain herself. The stretches of railroad parallel with the coast are long links in the line that is to make the entire circuit of the island, with short branches to all the seaports and the inland markets.

The mode of life is very similar to that of the European countries except for some slight differences due to the hot climate. Fashions for men and women alike are introduced from Spain, and especially from Paris and London. The well to do in the principal towns dress just like people in European countries, men wearing woolen clothes all the year round. The young women dress very elaborately, and all wear hats, the Spanish mantilla being worn only by elderly women. In the small towns men dress after the fashion of the cities, but wear linen fabrics, as woolen clothes are very uncomfortable, are considered a luxury, and are worn on holy days and Sundays only. Laborers and farm hands do not wear coats or shoes. They do not care to do so, and, if they did, they could not afford to, as their wages are very small.

Life at San Juan and the other principal towns is very monotonous, the only amusements being retreta or concert by the military bands twice a week and theatrical performances three or four evenings a week, matinees being given very seldom. The theatres are owned by the cities and rented to European companies travelling through the island at so much an evening.

San Juan, built on a small island connected with the mainland by the San Antonio bridge, is quite a beautiful city, with straight but narrow streets and many fine buildings. It has several public institutions and colleges, several churches and seven small parks, among them the Plaznela de Santiago, with a very good statue of Columbus. The city is lighted by gas supplied by an English company and by electricity supplied by a local corporation. There are eleven newspapers of all kinds, the principal one being La Correspondencia, a daily political paper, with a circulation of about 7000 copies, which is equal to that of the other papers combined. There is a local telephone company, but no water except that of the cisterns. A reservoir was projected and the plan was approved by the Government some fifty years ago, but owing to the mañana system it has not been finished yet.



CORNER OF THE PLAZA DE LAS DELICIAS, IN PONCE, PORTO RICO, THE HEADQUARTERS OF GENERAL MILES'S ARMY.

The history of the Spanish administration in the island is one of cruelty and corruption. The Spaniards began by exterminating the native Indian population, which some historians place as large as 500,000, in less than a century. Every branch of the administration of the island has been conducted under a system of corruption, the law was constantly violated by the Spaniards and the natives were deprived of their rights. At elections the Spanish or Conservative party always won, notwithstanding the fact that it was in a large minority.

A PORTO RICAN DAMSEL.

The liberty of the press was unknown. Articles printed in the Madrid or other Spanish papers attacking the Government could not be reproduced by any Porto Rican paper without the editors being punished, even if the article in question had not been considered ground for prosecution by the authorities in Spain.

No more than nineteen persons were allowed to meet in any place on the island without special permission of the Government, and a representative of the Mayor of the town had to attend meetings to see that nothing was done or said against "the integrity of the nation."

Licenses were required for everything, even for a dancing party.

These are some of the things which caused the people at Ponce to cheer the Americans who took possession of the town.

Chief among the staple products is coffee. The average yearly export from 1892 to 1896 was 49,229,000 pounds, valued at $10,872,000. The area of production can be doubled. It grows almost without care.

Next to coffee comes sugar. Molasses, too, has been exported in large quantities and the product could be increased.

Cotton has been almost at a standstill for the same reasons as in Cuba—because of the heavy taxes imposed by Spain. Besides, coffee is more profitable and demands less care. The tobacco yield is large. Between 1892 and 1896 the average yearly exports were 3,534,000 pounds, with a value of $642,000. Annatto, mace, cocoa, ginger, rice and oranges are also cultivated.

Under the Spanish rule the vast forests were never turned to profit. Hardwood is abundant. Fancy cabinet woods and beautiful grained woods resembling marble are among the products almost entirely Porto Rico's own. Like Cuba, the island has extensive mines and quarries. The principal deposits are iron, gold, copper, zinc, coal and salt. Salt is the only one worked to any extent.

Again, as in Cuba, there are scarcely any railways, and the few are short and disconnected. The wagon ways are good, outside the cities as well as in them. Water works are needed everywhere, and the drainage in all the cities except Ponce is bad. In Ponce only are there underground sewers. These flow into the harbor, whose outlet should be widened, not only to allow the escape of the drainage, but to afford easier and less perilous access.

GERMANY'S "WOMAN BISMARCK."

Countess Waldersee, an American Girl, Has a Remarkable Influence With Emperor William.

As a little girl Mary Esther Lea played among the flour barrels and currant boxes of her father's grocery store on Front street in New York City. But that was many years ago. Now the little girl is a white haired and regal lady, with the title of princess. More than that, she it is who is the power behind the German throne, who is known as the "female Bismarck" and who, it is believed, brought about the Kaiser's marriage. Her title is Princess von Noer, and she is a powerful influence in the great palace at Berlin.

Her history is most interesting and unusual. Her father left Connecticut in 1810 and began a small grocery business in New York City. Though he was financially successful, when he died, in 1853, he left but a very small fortune to his family. Mrs. Lea, unable to afford the expensive living in New York, bundled up her little family and went to Stutgart. Here the eldest daughter married Baron von Waechter. He soon became Ambassador from Wurtenberg to Paris, and in due course of time Mrs. Lea and her other daughters found themselves in the social set of the great French capital. Other important marriages came about. Mary Esther, the youngest girl, found a fast and affectionate friend in Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein. Through her she formed the acquaintance of the father of the princess, an old widower, who immediately fell desperately in love with the beautiful and bright little American girl. To compensate for marrying the daughter of a grocer the Prince gave up his title and accepted the simpler designation of Count von Noer, which was given to him by the Austrian Emperor. The groom was sixty-four years old, the bride twenty-four. Six months later the venerable husband died and his rich and youthful widow settled down in Vienna. There she won the esteem of the Austrian Emperor, and he created her Princess of Noer in her own right.

A few years after being made a princess the one time daughter of a grocer met Count von Waldersee. A marriage between them took place in 1866. These two brilliant and tactful people went to Berlin, and in a few months the countess was a social power.

Her particular ambition was to marry her grand niece by her first marriage, Princess Augusta Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, to Prince William of Prussia, the present Emperor of Germany. The mother of the prince raised great objections, but the Princess von Noer was persistent and tactful and planning, and the wedding was celebrated. Prince William and his bride were both devoted to the one who helped along the rough way of their courtship, and their gratitude has been unceasing. When Princess Augusta Victoria became Empress she was more than ever under the sway of her American aunt. Princess von Noer's present desire is to bring about the most cordial relationship between the country of her birth and her adopted land. Her influence over the Kaiser is as strong as in the days when she made opportunities for him to meet his pretty little German sweetheart.

Trials of Field Marshals.

The London Naval and Military Record says that a new rule was recently framed for the guidance of field marshals. It was, with other regulations, put into type, and appeared in proof as follows:

"1972 Field Marshals—Field Marshals will wear buckskin pantaloons, jack boots and gilt spurs only, at drawing-rooms, and on all such occasions."

It is almost unnecessary to add that as soon as attention was called to the fact that in such a meagre costume field marshals would create some sensation at a drawing-room the order was varied.

OUR PEACE COMMISSION.

The Men Who Will Arrange Terms With Spain.

LEANINGS OF THE MEMBERS.

A Majority, Composed of Senators Davis and Frye and Whitelaw Reid, Are Believed to Be Annexationists—Views of Justice White Not Known—Judge Day's Conservatism.

WASHINGTON, D. C., (Special)—The Cabinet is devoting a large share of the time to matters which will come before the Peace Commission. At the adjournment of the last meeting Secretary Day announced that four members of the commission had been selected—Secretary Day, Supreme Court Justice White, Senators Davis and Frye and Whitelaw Reid.

There was some doubt about the acceptance by Justice White of a place on the commission, as he feared that his duties on the bench would force him to decline the President's offer.

Secretary Day finally announced that Justice White of the Supreme Court had accepted a Commissionership; that all now have accepted, and that the Peace Commission stands completed, as follows:

William R. Day, of Ohio, Secretary of State.

Cushman K. Davis, of Minnesota, United States Senator.

William P. Frye, of Maine, United States Senator.

Whitelaw Reid, of New York.

Edward D. White, of Louisiana, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Three of the members of the Commission, Senator Davis, Senator Frye and Mr. Reid are strongly in favor of holding all of the Philippines. Secretary of State Day holds to the view that Manila City, bay and harbor are enough for the United States to take. It is said, though, that he is open to conviction and will be guided in his conclusions by what may appear best for the country.

The views of Justice White on the Philippine question are not definitely known. It is said by some of his friends that he will favor holding all territory over which the flag floats. He will be a valuable member of the Commission, since he speaks Spanish fluently, and is familiar with Spanish laws which govern in the islands.

THE PEACE COMMISSIONERS.

Careers of the Men Appointed to Settle the Details of a Peace Treaty With Spain.

William R. Day had had no prominent part in the country's history previous to his appointment as Secretary Sherman's first assistant on April 23, 1897. Since then, however, he has been one of the President's strongest advisers and has cared for the diplomatic phase of this country's history almost entirely alone. He was born at Ravenna, Ohio, April 17, 1849, and comes from a distinguished line of judges. He entered into the practice of law in 1872. In 1886 he was elected to the bench of the Common Pleas Court in Canton by both political parties, and in 1889 was appointed by President Harrison Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio, but failing health compelled him to retire before entering on his duties. After being appointed Secretary of State to succeed John Sherman, who resigned on April 26 last, he conducted the important and delicate negotiations that were intrusted to him with an ability that elicited the approval of the country.

Whitelaw Reid.

Whitelaw Reid has been prominent as an orator, politician, statesman, and journalist since the first nomination of Abraham Lincoln for the Presidency. Descended from early settlers in the Western country, he was born in Xenia, Ohio, October 27, 1837. He was prepared for college by an uncle, and graduated from Miami University. After his graduation he became principal of a school at South Charleston, Ohio, and in one year had saved enough money

CURRENT NEWS IN ALABAMA.

FIRST ALABAMA.

Efforts Being Made to Have It Mustered Out.

The people of the state are almost unanimous in their opinion that the First Alabama should be mustered out. W. P. Lay, of Gadsden, has gone to Montgomery for the purpose of inducing Governor Johnson to request the war department to muster the regiment out. If the governor does not act, Lay states that he will go on to Jacksonville and get the expression of every man in the regiment, either by a signed petition or by getting each man to write him a letter. He considers it safe to predict that eighty per cent of the enlisted men will request the muster out, and he will then carry the matter before President McKinley, if Governor Johnson does not act.

Entire Fourth Corps to Go to Huntsville.

General Coppinger has received orders from the war department at Washington to remove all the troops of his command from Fernandina to Huntsville immediately. Orders for the removal of the entire Fourth corps has been suspended from time to time at the pleasure of the Florida politicians, but it is now the intention of the department to get all the men out of the pest holes as soon as possible. The 69th New York will follow the 3d Pennsylvania as soon as transportation can be secured.

A New Railroad.

The declaration of incorporation of the Mobile and Bay Shore Railway company has been filed in the office of the secretary of state at Montgomery, and authority has been issued by that official for the opening of books of subscription to the capital stock of said company. The new corporation will build a railroad twenty-seven miles is length extending from Mertz station, on the Duncan branch, down to or near Portersville and Alabama Port.

To Impeach Assessor Hudson.

The governor has instructed the solicitor of the Third circuit to institute impeachment proceedings against Mr. John D. Hudson, tax assessor of Crenshaw county, based on the reports of the state examiner of public accounts last year and this concerning the assessor's official acts, which tend to prove incompetency in the office.

Florence Wants Soldiers.

Florence wants 50,000 soldiers and the wires are being kept hot in an united effort to get them. The Southern Female University building, capacity 500, is offered free as a hospital or headquarters. Water supply sufficient for 200,000; high, elevated shady camp grounds and absolute freedom from malaria are some of the inducements.

Coke Ovens at Work.

Thirty coke ovens of the Semet-Solvay by-product plant at Ensley City are now in blast and just as soon as others are completed they will be started up. Over one hundred and fifty tons of coal per day is being used right now, but before long the plant will be consuming something near a thousand tons per day.

Site Selected at Anniston for the Camp.

The Third army corps has been ordered to Anniston from Chickamauga. The site chosen for the camp is a series of small hills, well wooded, just northwest of the city, containing thousands of acres and in reach of two large water mains.

Young Women at the University.

President Powers, of the University of Alabama, has taken an important step in the line of co-education. With the approval of the executive committee he has established the Women's Annex to the University, naming the same in honor of Miss Futwiler, who has all along been a strong advocate of the admission of young women to this institution. The object is to enable mature young women who desire the advantage of higher education to enter any course in the University, and to enjoy the same facilities as the young men. The annex will accommodate a limited number of pupils at reasonable rates for board, who, under a competent matron, will do light housekeeping. This step places the University abreast of the leading institutions of the country.

Told by the Sergeant.

From The Democrat, Grand Rapids, Mich.

At the Michigan Soldiers' Home, in Grand Rapids, lives Sergeant Richard Dunn, hale and hearty, although he carries the scars of several wounds sustained in some of the battles of the Civil War. In recounting his experience to a reporter, Mr. Dunn said:

"About a year and a half ago I began to have trouble with my stomach. My suffering was so intense that I tried different medicines and doctored with several physicians, but without permanent relief.

A Wounded Soldier.

"I read an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People having cured a case much like mine, and I decided to give them a trial, which I did.

"After taking five boxes I was cured. I never felt better than I do now, even in my younger days. I am naturally a robust man, but that stomach trouble, together with rheumatism, which afterward set in, were making fast inroads upon my health and I am satisfied that it would have been but a short time before my comrades would have been conducting the regulation funeral ceremonies over my remains, had I not chanced to read of and taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"There are several others in the home who are taking these pills and are receiving great benefit."

RICHARD DUNN.

Samuel Edgar Francis, a waiter in a Boston hotel, has by his own unaided efforts mastered nine languages, and that without help.

Spanish at the University of Alabama.

Mr. Editor: Please announce that Spanish may be elected as one of the two modern languages required for any degree, or by any "special" or irregular student, without extra charge. It will be taught, by Dr. Geo. G. Brownell, Instructor in Romance Languages, who is represented by one of his endorsers as "perhaps knowing more of the Spanish language and literature than any man of his age (28) in America." After taking in succession the degrees of Bachelor and Master of Arts at Syracuse University, he spent a year of study each in Spain and Italy, and later three years at the Johns Hopkins University, all the time preparing for just such a chair (Romance Languages) with Spanish as his "major" or leading subject. He speaks fluently French, Spanish and Italian.

Courses in Italian will be offered on the same terms as Spanish, if desired.

JAMES K. POWERS.

President's office, Aug. 22, 1898.

The professional wheelman likes a long and narrow road, but the new beginner prefers a short and wide one.

The Austrian Emperor.

The Emperor of Austria is said to be one of the most hard-working of sovereigns. He is up every morning of his life by 6 o'clock, and may be seen at his writing table often as early as 4 trying to cope with an overwhelming mass of correspondence. On days given up to chamois hunting he begins work all the earlier in order that he may have longer hours to devote to the sport he loves.

If you have a new bad habit, investigation will reveal that you acquired it in trying to quit an old one.

Just as He Put It.

Modest people should have a care. If carried to an extreme, modesty is liable to become ridiculous, as in a case reported by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Years ago a member of the Indiana Legislature, in a brand-new suit of broadcloth and a silk hat, goldheaded cane and white lawn tie, wandered up into the sanctum of the Courier-Journal, stood around in a listless way, looked over the papers, went down-stairs and came back several times. He was asked to take a seat, which he declined elaborately, and ended by drawing his chair in a confidential way up to the "Roundabout" man's desk.

"Couldn't you," he said, "put in the paper that I am at the Galt House with my bride, and just fling in something about my being a prominent Indianian? I don't care anything about this sort of thing myself, but you know how the women are. I want fifty copies of the paper sent to this address." He laid down two dollars and a half, grinned, got red in the face, said "Good morning," and vanished.

Next morning he read that "Mr. John Huckleberry requests us to say that he is at the Galt House with his bride; that he is a prominent member of the Indiana Legislature and that he himself, personally, cares nothing for newspaper notoriety, but that a society note would be very gratifying to Mrs. Huckleberry. He added that he wanted fifty copies of the paper for distribution to his constituents."

Few and Simple.

The wants of most persons are many and complex. Their needs are much fewer and often very simple. If one wishes for peace of mind and any great measure of success in this world, he must learn to reduce his wants as nearly as possible to necessary things. It is not at all essential that a person be rich, but many people wish to be and make haste to be. The result is anxiety and oftentimes loss of integrity, and failure to reach the real needs of one's being; for happiness never lies in satisfaction of our wants, because these ever become greater as we try to satisfy them.

SYRUP OF FIGS

NEVER IMITATED IN QUALITY.

THE EXCELLENCE OF SYRUP OF FIGS is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The high standing of the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakening them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. In order to get its beneficial effects, please remember the name of the Company—

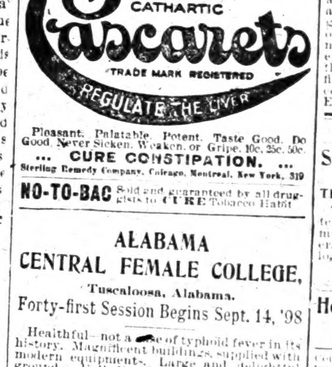
From Girlhood to Womanhood.



DON'T LET YOUR DAUGHTER have a wrong morning into womanhood. The greatest crisis in every girl's life is at this stage when the menstrual functions are being established, and she should have every provision obtainable for establishing this period properly, without which she can never become a perfect woman. When there is any costiveness, move the bowels gently with moderate doses of ST. JOSEPH'S LIVER REGULATOR.

My daughter was suffering from a severe bilious attack, together with great "bearing down" pains and back-ache during her monthly periods. She had violent nervous spells which produced a peculiar quivering and jerking sensation. I bought a bottle of GERSTLE'S FEMALE PANACEA (G. F. P.) and some ST. JOSEPH'S LIVER REGULATOR and commenced treating her. All pains and biliousness were removed and the jerking was stopped. It is the best I ever saw for young girls. MARY ELIZA BENES, Beulah, Ala.

PROTECTION OR FUN.

Shoots Ammonia, Water, Cologne and Other Liquids.

It is a weapon which protects bicyclists against vicious dogs and foot-pads; travelers against robbers and toughs; horses against thieves and tramps, and is adapted to many other situations.

It does not kill or injure; it is perfectly safe to handle; makes no noise or smoke; breaks no law and creates no lasting regrets, as does the bullet pistol. It simply and amply protects, by compelling the foe to give undivided attention to himself for a while, instead of to the intended victim.

It is the only real weapon which protects and also makes fun, laughter and lots of it; it shoots, not once, but many times without reloading; and will protect by its appearance in time of danger, although loaded only with liquid. It does not get out of order; is durable, handsome, and nickel plated.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

1 is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

2 is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

3 secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

4 is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, knowing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

5 is a secret organization only so far as seems necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

6 its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Jemison, Sept. 5, '98.
Editor BANNER—To our worthy correspondent in regard to cotton factories in Chilton, will say please do not let this agitation cool down until the people are aroused to, not individual interest, but, to the whole people of Chilton. This indespensible industry is the only hope on which we can cast anchorage. We have already let slip golden months and years until our people can only drift along in poverty, work hard as they may.

Let each one answer. All speak at once, explaining the profits they gain. Here are some things in a nutshell. 5 cent cotton after working twelve or thirteen months, making, picking, ginning and shipping, to partially pay off the mortgage for supplies and guano, while the wife and tender daugters, if they get time out of the cotton field, are raising a few chickens and cabbage to get a little coffee, pins, soda and leaving dry goods off. The dear women, men and boys never get a rest or recreation from one January to the next.

It is discouraging also, to contemplate the shortage in educational facilities for those boys and girls who raise the 5 cent cotton. They only have a few weeks in the heat of summer. Here they go pell mell to attend a crowded school; too many to breathe good in their little school rooms. Thus we see them mentally dwarfed. These are to be our future citizens. Now let intelligent people look up something better, if for nothing but to develop the minds of those who will soon take up the burden of all the affairs in their surroundings.

Now, brother, let us have your plan for building and paying for our cotton mills. Let Clanton and Jemison compete for the location, or if they please, let each place have spindles, then race to see who can have the best organized work in a specified time. Let the people over the county respond to Mr. Dake's proposition. No time to lose.

MRS. IRA CAMPBELL.

Collins Chapel, Sept. 5, 1898.
Editor BANNER—I saw in last week's issue where Mr. Reynolds was asking the people to express themselves on the road law. In regard to working them by taxation I think I can speak for our community. I think they are not wanting that law. I can speak for myself. (I do) although I know it would not cost me much, because I am not worth much, there are other reasons. I don't want want it because it would leave out all of the young men and negroes, and therefore all of the men nearly that have worked their time would have to foot the bill. Some may claim that we would have the advantage of the rich man, but we would not, the reason why is because they are all doctors merchants or other public men. Then they would run up on us and we would still have it to pay.

He also spoke of the bull law. We are in favor of that. We want that because it would be best for the people. It would soon improve their cattle until they all would be good and no sorry ones. Then we could milk a cow as long as we wanted to and breed her when we wanted to and to what we want to. The two cows will be a plenty for any family; milk one one year, and the other the next. Now we have to keep from three to six and then without milk all the time because they are no good; and it makes no difference how good, if they are treated well they will bring a calf every year.

I think we should have a boar law the same as the bull.

More than twenty million free samples of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve have been distributed by the manufacturers. What better proof of their confidence in it's merits do you want? It cures piles, burns, scalds, sores, in the shortest space of time. Stanfield & Matthews.

Kincheon, Sept. 5, 1898.
Editor BANNER. In your last issue I saw an article from our representative asking the people to express themselves openly as to their wishes in regard to working the roads by taxation. As for myself, I can say that I am in favor of something like the following: Let the public roads, like bridges, be let out to the lowest bidder by beats or districts, or otherwise, and let the contractor give bond for the faithful performance of the duty enjoined upon him by said contract. This will insure us good roads all over the county with very little expense.

As to the bull law, I am in favor of either of these plans: 1st. Let each neighborhood buy them a bull and keep him in the bounds of same and keep him confined so that his owners may know where to find him at any time. 2nd. Let some one buy a bull and breed him at reasonable figures. I think either of these plans will be better than the present one.

As to schools, let some one suggest a school law that will prove to be a better one than we now have; a law whereby rich and poor may all alike be able to educate their children, for we all know that when we bring our children up in ignorance we are bringing them up to fill the hard places in life, for the educated get the easy places and the uneducated the hard places in life. Isn't it an awful thought when we look in the sweet innocent eyes of our little ones to think that they will be slaves for some more educated person in the future. Now let every one think this. I will, by the help of God, educate my children so that they will fill an honorable position in life, so that when we are gone they will rise up and call us blessed.

Your committee to whom was referred the duty of preparing and presenting a memorial of our late Brother, Joseph H. Chandler, submit the following:

That while we have great cause to be profoundly thankful that so many of us have been spared during the past year, yet time with his scythe has not been idle, he has entered our mystic circle and cut the brittle thread of life of one of the purest and best loved of our order, and called from labor below to refreshment above, Brother Joseph H. Chandler, who was born on the 18th day of Feb. 1850, married Dec 7th 1871, and died Aug. the 8th 1898.

Therefore, Resolved, That in the death of Brother Chandler Masonry has lost a zealous earnest advocate, the church an exemplary consistent member, his wife a thoughtful affectionate husband, his children a kind and loving father, and society an upright worthy and useful citizen.

Resolved 2nd. That we tender to the sorrowing family our heart felt sympathy in this hour of their sad bereavement, and point them for comfort and consolation to Him who doeth all things well.

Mr. O A Duke Killed

Cut off in the prime of life and the vigor of his manhood. The news of the killing of Mr. O. A. Duke on Monday evening came as a shock to the people of Clanton, who had known and loved him for many years. He had an altercation with an employe named Norton at Mr. Merritt's mill at Perkinston, Miss., on Monday and was stabbed to the heart, death being instantaneous. Mr. Duke was a pioneer of Chilton county in the lumber business, and his many good qualities endeared him to a large circle of friends.

He was an ardent Mason and did much for that fraternity in Chilton, who, in sadness, laid him to rest with Masonic honors. The remains was brought to Clanton on Wednesday morning and were enterred in the family lot in the cemetery.

In 1892 Mr. Duke was the nominee of a portion of the Democratic party for Judge of Probate. He was a man of courage and conviction, energetic, and always alive to the best interests of the people with whom he was identified.

Mrs. Duke and her daughters, Mrs. Croswell and Miss Mary, Mr. Ned Duke and Mr. Croswell, Mr. and Mrs. Lamar and many others from different parts of the State, attended the funeral, the services of which were conducted by Rev. Dr. Taylor of Verbena.

STEWART'S GIN.

At this season of the year, when cotton picking is in full swing, the gin house becomes the centre of attraction. A good deal depends upon the proper ginning of cotton, more especially when the price is low. If cotton is properly ginned and baled it often makes a point or two more in the market. A walk to Stewart's gin will well repay any of our readers. Everything is in apple-pie order, clean and up to date. Mr. Stewart has this season throughly gone over his machinery—newly put last year, and has also put in another extra gin, giving him a capacity of 25 per day, or he can gin a bale in less than thirty minutes. As this is the only gin in operation this season at Clanton Mr. Stewart will have a busy time, but his energetic nature can be relied upon to meet all demands.

In addition to the ginnery Mr. Stewart also operates a grist mill, and during the ginning season he will grind your corn for you at any time—not keep you waiting a minute. It is his intention this winter to put in a wheat mill—roller process, of the latest pattern, and you will be able to have your wheat as well as your corn ground at home. Take a walk to Stewart's gin and see how nicely everything is arranged.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow. Eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides. No appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying "Electric Bitters" and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

A CRITICAL TIME

SICK OR WELL, A RUSH NIGHT AND DAY

The Packers at the Battle of Santiago de Cuba were all Heroes. Their Heroic Efforts in Getting Ammunition and Rations to the Front Saved the Day.

P. E. BUTLER, of pack train No. 3 writing from Santiago, De Cuba, on July 23d, says: "We all had diarrhoea in more or less violent form, and when we landed we had no time to see a doctor, for it was a case of rush and rush night and day to keep the troops supplied with ammunition and rations, but thanks to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, we were able to keep at work and keep our health; in fact, I sincerely believe that at one critical time this medicine was the indirect saviour of our army, for if the packers had been unable to work there would have been no way of getting supplies to the front. There were no roads that a wagon train could use. My comrade and myself had the good fortune to lay in a supply of this medicine for our pack-train before we left Tampa and I know it four cases it absolutely saved life."

The above letter was written to the manufacturers of this medicine, the Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by Dr. J. S. Johnson.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

CLANTON, - ALABAMA

The London Saturday Review says: "The lesson of all our conflicts with America was that the American soldiers and sailors shot markedly better than our own and won astonishing victories. It looks as if the old lesson holds good to-day."

No higher tribute could be paid to a warship's crew than that paid by Captain Evans to the men of the Iowa: "So long as the enemy showed his flag they fought like American seamen, but when the flag came down they were as gentle and tender as American women." In that pregnant sentence is the whole philosophy of military heroism.

The recent establishment of a whale-oil manufactory on Notre Dame Bay calls attention to the fact that whaling is now a paying venture off the coast of Newfoundland. Recently seven whales, worth nearly $1000 each, were captured by a company of Norwegian whalers. A company has been formed to carry on the industry. This ought to make the old fishermen around Amagansett prick up their ears. Possibly the old shipyard of Cold Spring Harbor, which fitted out the whalers of the last century, may resume business.

The Philadelphia Commercial Museum says that Porto Rico is well adapted by soil and climate not only for the growing of cotton, but for the manufacture of cotton fabrics as well, though for the growth of the plant it will be necessary to engage native labor or to secure help from Cuba. Of the more than one thousand streams upon the island sixty are navigable, and many of them could be utilized to furnish power, which is an important consideration, since all the coal used must be brought from this country; and all the chief towns are connected by railway, though communication with the interior is only possible by ox teams.

In speaking of the recent popular war loan the Baltimore American says: Not since the wonderful alacrity with which, in July, 1871, the French peasants and the working people of Paris went down into their stockings and subscribed in a day $400,000,000 to meet the first installments of the big war indemnity with which the German invader was bought out of France, has there been so impressive a demonstration of the latent resources of a great nation, or of its patriotic confidence in its Government. It will be to European Governments as significant a proof of the enormous reserved strength of the American people as all our military and naval successes put together, brilliant though they are. The wealth of a nation and its ability to raise money within its own territory on moderate terms is a main element in its fighting capacity.

More and more is the machine encroaching upon the fields where formerly the handworker held full sway, says the Dry Goods Economist. This not entirely new observation is suggested by our latest advices from Paris as to fall and winter styles. It seems that trimmings of all kinds will be profusely used in costume and garment decorations, and that this style has been brought about largely by the dressmakers in an endeavor to bring into popularity something that could not be produced by machines. Judging from present reports, however, they reckoned without their host; for the modern mechanical devices are capable of reproducing even the finest and most delicate designs wrought by the cunning hand of the seamstress or maker of embroidery. Of course, there are some applications and figures that cannot be made on machines; but nevertheless such a high state of perfection has been attained in this direction that there is but precious little in his line that the machine cannot reproduce with a fidelity to handwork that is startling, and so close is the imitation in many instances that only the expert eye can detect the difference.

To Invite the President to Birmingham.

A delegation composed of some of Birmingham's leading citizens left that city Sunday for Washington to invite President McKinley and others to be present at the peace jubilee to be held in Birmingham in October.

Cuban Debt to Be Settled at Paris.

The Spanish cabinet council again considered the question of the Cuban debt Saturday. It is believed that a loan will be issued later to meet the debt of 1886, but a definite settlement of the matter has been left to the Paris commission.

EAGER FOR ANNEXATION.

A Delegation of Prominent Filipinos Visit Consul Wildman.

WILL NEVER SUBMIT TO SPANISH RULE.

Do Not Want Independence—Warlike Mountaineers as Well as Those Engaged in Business Pursuits Would Welcome Stars and Stripes.

MANILA.—A Hong Kong deputation, representing the Southern Philippines and consisting of the best and richest natives of Pana, Mindora, Cebu, and Mindanao, visited United States Consul Williams Friday, and urged that every possible effort be made for the annexation of the whole of the Philippine Islands. The deputation declared that all classes, the warlike mountaineers as well as those engaged in mercantile pursuits, would welcome the Stars and Stripes, and had resolved never to submit to Spanish rule. They also said that there were 4,000 men, many of them armed with rifles, near Iloilo, ready to support the Americans. They refuse to join the clamor for independence, which they consider a mistake and impracticable. They only wish for annexation to the United States.

Aguinaldo remains at Bakoor. He recently wrote an impertinent letter to General Otis, which resulted in his receiving a sharp snub. The insurgent leader will probably render himself amenable to the American authorities.

SANTIAGO SHAKEN.

Earthquake Caused the Frightened People to Rush Into the Streets.

Two earthquakes of unusual severity were felt at Santiago de Cuba Saturday, shocking every house in the city. The frightened people ran out into the streets.

The Saratoga has sailed for Montauk Point with 100 sick and a quantity of Mauser rifles and ammunition.

The sailing of the Missouri has been delayed owing to the difficulty of obtaining a sufficient supply of water. The reports of General Wood's corps of physicians showed a marked improvement in the general health of the city. The death rate this week is from 50 to 75 cents lower than it was two weeks ago.

Gen. Pando on His Way to His Native Home With 12,000,000 Francs.

A dispatch from Havana says: Having successfully done everything in his power to convey the impression that he was sailing to Spain via New York on the steamship Philadelphia Thursday, General Pando secretly started direct for his native land about ten hours later on the French steamer Notre Dame de Salut, it is said with 12,000,000 francs, supposed to be war funds. The secret was so effectively kept that very few persons here have any knowledge of it, and all the Havana papers announce Pando's departure on the Philadelphia. The question that is now being asked is when and how did Pando get the 12,000,000 francs.

CLOUDBURST IN TENNESSEE.

A General Flood in Knox County Washing Away Railway Tracks.

Heavy rainfalls and a cloudburst in the lower part of Knox county, Tennessee, occasioned a general flood. The tracks of the Southern railway at Concord, ten miles from Knoxville, were washed away, thereby stopping all travel toward the south. The Southern tracks on the Asheville division suffered the same fate, and at a station near Harrison an embankment was washed away, cutting off communication with Cincinnati and Louisville. A cloudburst at Concord washed away several houses, and an entire family was rescued from the roof of their floating home. No lives were lost. Damages resulting from high water will be many thousand dollars.

President McKinley spent five hours in Camp Wikoff, Montauk Point, N. Y., Saturday, bare-headed most of the time, visiting the sick in the hospitals and inspecting the well in their cantonments. He made a speech to the assembled infantry, reviewed the cavalrymen, expressed his opinion of the camp to the reporters and issued an order directing the regulars to return to their stations east of the Mississippi.

BUSINESS IS ENORMOUS.

Dun's Commercial Report Says the Volume of Business is Larger Than Has Ever Been Known Before.

R. G. Dun G Co.'s weekly review says:

The smallest number of failures ever recorded in any month for five years were those of August. The clearings have been the largest ever known in August, and 23 per cent larger than in 1892.

The enormous volume of business in a month usually one of the most inactive of the year demands attention. Postponement during the months of war of some contracts and of purchases which have now come forward explain part of the increase, and the strong absence of securities explains but half of it, but there has also been a decline in prices for all commodities, so that it takes a much larger volume of business in tons or bushels than make up transactions amounting to a million or more than in 1892. It is therefore strictly true that business is larger than in the very best of all past years, and yet there is every prospect of much further increase.

There is no room to doubt that the wheat crop will prove the largest ever harvested, and although Beerbohm estimates Europe's crop at 232,000,000 bushels more than the last, that will be only about an average yield, while other evidence is less favorable. Foreign buying has been strong, but receipts at the west are increasing, and the price has dropped 5 cents for spot, though the September option is seven-eighths lower for the week. Corn has fallen a fraction, later reports indicating a less satisfactory yield, and probably not more than should be consumed at home in enlarging the stock of animals.

The woolen mills have rather better orders this week, but not enough as yet to warrant running nearly full force. In cotton manufacture there is better demand, with a sixteenth raise in print cloths, though brown sheetings are a shade lower, the demand for other goods being still fairly strong.

SITUATION IN HAVANA.

Prices of Some of the Necessaries of Life Higher Than During the Blockade.

HAVANA.—Although not a day has passed since the blockade was raised without two or three vessels arriving here with provisions, the prices of the necessaries of life are not only excessive, but in some cases higher than they were during the blockade. As the Red Cross society's supplies on the Clinton were not landed this condition of affairs seriously affects the poor. Rice is selling at 6½ cents a pound, retail; lard at 20 cents and meat at 60 cents a pound, retail. The retailers are taking advantage of the situation, and wish to raise the prices still further, regardless of the distress of the poor, who, as they cannot afford to pay even the present prices, must continue to suffer.

GEORGIA STORM.

Waters in the Flooded District Rising Rapidly—More Wrecks Off the Coast.

SAVANNAH, GA.—Two more wrecks were reported Saturday off the entrance to Calabogue sound. Both were dismasted schooners. There were no signs of life on either vessel. The coast is being patrolled in the hope of rescuing the crews of some of the wrecked vessels, but except the crew of the bark Noe none are known to have been saved.

In the storm-swept section of the coast the loss of property is increasing. The miles of water on the lowlands are being added too by the floods in the rivers and the waters everywhere in the flooded district are rising. The Savannah and Ogeechee rivers are rising rapidly and are likely to cause heavy damage when the flood reaches the low country.

Primary Ordered.

The democratic executive committee of Morgan county, Alabama, met and ordered a primary election to be held in that county on September 17 to select a candidate for congress for the Eighth district to be elected in November.

Reorganizing the Populist Party.

The middle-of-the-road populists are holding a national convention in Cincinnati this week. It will continue indefinitely until the work of reorganization of the party is completed.

General Frank at Anniston.

Gen. Royal T. Frank, commanding the Third army corps, which consists now of only the First division, arrived at Anniston Saturday from Chickamauga accompanied by his staff, division corps, ambulance company, signal corps and Company C, Fourteenth New York. General Frank has established headquarters in the city.

Seizure by Canada.

The United States revenue cutter Algonquin has been seized at Montreal, Quebec, on behalf of J. Wade, who claims wages due him as a detective in Chinese smuggling cases. A question of international law is involved.

Will Inspect Banks' Papers.

Secretary Gage has given instruction to bank examiners to make such inspection of papers held by the banks as will enable the examiners to report whether the war revenue act is being or has been complied with.

Private McHugh Drowned.

A telegram from Jackson, Fla., brings the information that Private William McHugh, of the Selma company, while walking near the edge of the wharf fell over into the water and was drowned. He was 26 years old.

MUSTERING OUT THE ARMY

Orders Issued Affecting Seventy Thousand Men of the Volunteer Service.

FIRST AND SECOND ALABAMA INCLUDED.

Will Require Some Time for the Alabama Troops to Be Mustered Out—List of Organizations Included in Friday's Orders.

A statement prepared at the war department shows that including Friday's list eighty-three of the organizations in the volunteer army have received orders looking to their being mustered out of the service. This number probably represents almost one-third of the approximately 220,000 men called for by the president in the two proclamations issued by him.

The following troops were ordered to be mustered out of service Friday:

First Pennsylvania, Knoxville to Philadelphia.

Second Pennsylvania, Montichanin to Philadelphia.

Third Pennsylvania, Huntsville to Philadelphia.

Eighteenth Pennsylvania, Camp Meade to Pittsburg.

Fourth Wisconsin, Camp Douglass, Wis.

Seventy-first New York, Montauk to Camp Black.

First New Jersey, Camp Alger to Seagirt.

Thirty-second Michigan, Chickamanga to Camp Eaton, Mich.

First Ohio, Jacksonville to armory, Cincinnati.

Eighth Ohio, Montauk to Columbus, O.

One Hundred and Fifty-eighth Indiana, Knoxville to Indianapolis.

Third Ohio, Huntsville to Columbus.

Second North Carolina, St. Simons Island, Ga., to Raleigh.

First and Second Alabama, Jacksonville to Mobile.

Third United States Volunteer Cavalry, Chickamauga to Old Fort Omaha.

Second Massachusetts, Montauk to South Framingham.

First South Carolina, Jacksonville to Columbia, S. C., and Second Squadron of Ohio Cavalry, Huntsville to Columbus.

It will require some time for the Alabama troops to be mustered out. It will probably be several days before they start for Mobile, and it will take a week or so or longer, after they arrive at Mobile, before the necessary formalities can be complied with. However, the chances are that they will be back home by the middle of September. Even with the mustering out of these two regiments Alabama will still have 1,700 men in the service, viz.: the negro regiment at Mobile and half the Fifth Volunteer Immunes at Santiago.

COMMISSIONER EVANS' REPORT.

Recommends a Revision of the Pension Regulations.

WASHINGTON.—The annual report of Hon. H. Clay Evans, commissioner of pensions, was made public Saturday. It shows that the amount paid out at the several agencies for the year on account of pensions under the general laws were $75,275,385, and on account of pensions under the act of June 27, 1890, $66,255,670.

Pension claims pending June 30, 1898, numbered 635,059. The commissioner is confident that there are not over 75,000 of these (invalids and widows) that are genuine original claims. The others are cases where the claimants are already pensioned.

Commissioner Evans recommends that a commission be appointed on the revision of laws, rules and regulations governing the issuance of pensions. A special division has been established to adjudicate claims growing out of the Spanish war. These will be paid under the general laws. Only about 100 claims of this class have been filed up to the close of the fiscal year and none have been adjudicated.

Gold Reserve Highest in History.

The gold reserve in the United States treasury reached the highest point in its history Friday, with a total reserve of $210,320,372. The highest previous amount was $218,000,000, which was recorded in March, 1888.

BROOKE COMMANDS

Since Miles Has Left Porto Rico—Has Started Toward San Juan.

GUAYAMO, PORTO RICO—Upon General Miles' departure General Brooke issued an order assuming command of the troops in this island.

The bridges along the military road are being repaired, and General Brooke started northward Saturday. The march to San Juan probably will consume four days. The General expects to establish his headquarters at Piedras, outside the city, owing to the crowded condition of San Juan, which is filled with Spanish troops on this side of the island.

ISLANDS SEIZED.

Philippine Insurgents are Grabbing all They Can.

MANILA—Several ship loads of insurgents troops have invaded the southern islands with the view of seizing everything possible, prior to the settlement of the peace conditions. Gen. Bios, the Spanish commander, with a flotilla of gunboats, is acting energetically, but the insurgents have captured the outlying islands of Romblon and Pelawan, where they found treasure to the amount of $42,000.

HESTER'S COTTON CROP REPORT.

An Increase of 2,242,030 Bales Over Last Year's Yield.

He puts the cotton crop of 1897-98 at 11,199,994 bales, an increase of 2,242,030 bales over 1896-97, and says that of this increase 877,000 was in Texas, including Indian Territory; 943,000 in the group of other gulf states, consisting of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Missouri, and 472,000 in the group of Atlantic states, consisting of Alabama, Georgia, Florida and North and South Carolina, Kentucky and Virginia.

Mr. Hester puts the average commercial value of the crop at $28.62 per bale, against $36.26 last year, $41.09 the year before, and $30.00 in 1894-95, and the total value of the crop at $320,553,000 against $321,925,000 last year; $294,095,000 year before last and $297,038,000 in 1894-95.

He puts the total spindles in the south at 4,052,224, an increase over last year of 205,253. These include 241,000 new, not completed, most of which may be brought into play this fall and early next spring. The net gain in the number of southern mills last year has been nine, making the total new 491.

Of this year's American cotton crop Mr. Hester says that 2,212,000 bales were taken by American mills north and 1,232,000 bales by American mills south; 119,000 bales by Canadian mills; 37,000 by Mexican mills; 227,000 by Chinese and Japanese mills and 6,747,000 bales by the mills of Europe, making the total takings by the spinners on both sides of the Atlantic of American cotto 10,564,000 bales.

ENGLAND WITH THE CZAR.

Will Co-Operate With Him in His Peace Scheme.

The Westminster Gazette announces that although owing to the absence of the Marquis of Salisbury, Great Britain has not yet formerly responded to the Czar's peace note. The British ambassador at St. Petersburg has already communicated in cordial terms the hearty sympathy with which the rescript was read by the acting minister for foreign affairs, Mr. Balfour, the first ford of the treasury. When the Marquis of Salisbury replies to the note, the Westminster Gazette continues, he will hail with satisfaction and delight the czar's initiative assuring him of the determination of her majesty's advisers to co-operate heartily in promoting his great aim.

QUEBEC CONFERENCE.

Adjournment Until September 20 Taken. Difficult Problem to Solve.

QUEBEC.—The joint high commission of the United States, Canada, Newfoundland and Great Britain, after ten days' hard work, adjourned Friday to meet again in this city September 20. What the commissioners accomplished up to this point or what they are likely to accomplish in the future can only be inferred from outward indications. Absolutely nothing has been revealed from within the meeting rooms of the commission. From the first session until the adjournment the commissioners on both sides have repeatedly stated that the most friendly relations existed on both side.

MINISTER OF WAR RESIGNS.

Another Chapter in the Dreyfus Case—The Populace Inflamed.

PARIS.—M. Cavaignac, minister of war, has resigned. The resignation of M. Cavaignac is due to a disagreement with his colleagues, who desire a revision of the Dreyfus case; thus a revision of the case seem assured.

M. Cavaignac sent the following letter of resignation to M. Brisson, premier and president of the council:

"I have the honor to send you, and beg you to transmit to the president of the republic, my resignation as minister of war. There exists a disagreement between us which being prolonged would paralyze the government at a time when it most needs full unity of decision. I remain convinced of the guilt of Dreyfus, and as determined as heretofore to combat a revision of the case. I do not intend to shirk responsibilities of the situation, but I cannot assume them without being in accord with the chief of the government to which I have the honor to belong."

The Dreyfus agitation is not resting. The populace is again inflamed by posters printed by the Socialists, with which the town has been plastered.

Carnegie's Annexation Scheme.

KINGSTON, (Jamaica.—The Gleaner publishes a symposium of the views of the leading merchants and other public men on the question of advancing the annexation movement by exchanging the British West Indies for the Philippine Islands, according to the proposal of Mr. Andrew Carnegie. Opinions on the subject are almost balanced with an adverse majority. The Gleaner further suggests that Mr. Carnegie solve the problem by purchasing Jamaica, and thus practically illustrate his "triumphant democracy."

ENGLAND AND GERMANY

Believed to Have Formed a Treaty of Alliance.

NEWS OF AGREEMENT STARTLES EUROPE.

It Is Positively Stated That the Treaty Has Been Signed Which Embraces an Offensive and Defensive Alliance in Certain Eventualities.

LONDON, The Pall Mall Gazette says it has received from a source in which it has every confidence, information that an Anglo-German agreement was signed this week by Mr. Balfour and the German Ambassador in behalf of the respective powers.

Continuing, the Pall Mall Gazette says that while the agreement is restricted, it embraces an offensive and defensive alliance in certain eventualities.

The Pall Mall Gazette adds: "This new and momentous departure in our foreign policy comes as a natural development of the European situation."

The Pall Mall Gazette then quotes the speech of Mr. Chamberlain, made in Birmingham on May 13 last bidding for a German alliance, and continues: "Latterly it has been evident from the tone of the semi-official German press, that the two Governments have been drawing closer, and finally there were prolonged conferences between Count Hatzfeldt and Mr. Balfour. The departure of Count Hatzfeldt proves that the object of the consultations has been achieved. Besides, Mr. Chamberlain has gone to America, Lord Salisbury is prolonging his absence, and Mr. Balfour leaves for his holidays on Saturday. Evidently the ministers do not expect to deal with crucial questions of foreign policy."

It is said that as a quid pro quo for Germany's support in Egypt, Great Britain will recognize Germany's claims to utilize Syria as an outlet for her surplus population.

THE REALM OF FASHION.

Skirt of Figured Foulard.

Figured foulard in sage green and white is here shown with a pretty simple foot trimming, composed of three narrow frills of sage green satin ribbon.

Having a straight back breadth with each bias edge of gores joined to the straight edges, this skirt will not sag and is, therefore, especially adapted to sheer fabrics, such as organdy, lace net, silk tissue and other light textures, while for washable fabrics it is more than desirable. The front gore is of moderate but fashionable width and separate two narrow gores on each side, which fit smoothly over the hips and form pretty folds with the fashionable flare at the foot.

The lower edge measures about three and one-half yards in the medium size.

Bias of braid, ribbon or insertion, with or without ruffles, ruching or other applied trimming can be used to decorate the skirt in any preferred style.

To make this skirt for a lady of medium size five and three-eighth yards of material thirty-six inches wide will be required.

Dress For a Growing Girl.

Whatever number of more elaborate and delicate gowns the growing girl's wardrobe may include, one of sturdy style, simply made, is essential to her comfort and well-being. The model shown in the large illustration is of fine wool serge in royal blue and is trimmed with fancy black braid. But covert cloth and all the new spring suitings, as well as cashmere, are equally suitable.

The foundation for the waist is a fitted lining that closes at the centre-front. On it are arranged the full body portions and the yoke, which is extended and divided to form slashed epaulettes. The straight strip shown at the front is lined with crinoline, and applied to the waist proper, covering the edges of full fronts. The sleeves are two-seamed and fit snugly, except for the slight puffs at the shoulders, which are universally worn by children and young girls. The pointed wrists are finished with frills of lace, and at the throat is a high standing collar.

The skirt is four-gored and fits smoothly across the front and over the hips, the fulness at the back being laid in backward-turning plaits. It is lined throughout, but unstiffened, and is trimmed with two rows of fancy braid.

To make this costume for a girl of eight years will require two and one-half yards of forty-four-inch material.

A Cure For Bad Complexions.

Bad complexions have sent more women to the grave than epidemics. Nothing frets a woman like a rough, muddy skin. A cure-all for blemishes is certainly simple enough. It is this: Wash the face in very salty sweet milk every night and let it dry without wiping. A mixture made of one small tablespoonful of milk and a teaspoonful of salt applied to the most obstinate blemish of the skin will cure it almost like magic. This is the remedy prescribed by one of the best skin authorities in England, and it is said that the use of milk and salt is half the secret of the English woman's smooth, beautiful skin.

Fancy Braids For Millinery.

To some extent fancy braids have reappeared in the autumn millinery, and may be used a little, although the Paris model hats shown in the wholesale houses scarcely use that material. The braid has been popular, and it is likely to take a long time in "dying out."

Striking Fall Costume.

The popularity of the skirt made from taffeta, either black, gray or beige color, seems to increase as the season advances, and it bids fair to take first place for wear with waists of various sorts. The model shown is in a soft shade of gray and is worn with a fancy waist of figured silk, showing bits of pale corn color in conjunction with mousseline de soie of the same tender yellow. The foundation skirt is circular and fits snugly about the hips. The frills, which are five inches in width, are each cut bias and edged with velvet ribbon stitched on.

GIRL'S COSTUME.

The fancy waist is made over a fitted lining which closes at the centre-front, but is itself fitted by shoulder seams and smooth underarm gores, and closes below the left side, the basque being separate and seamed to the waist proper. The full mousseline is faced to yoke depth at the back and stitched to the right-front, but hooks over into place at the left shoulder and beneath the left rever. At the neck is a soft collar of the same, supplemented by a frill. The revers are each faced with gray, and are trimmed with tiny ribbon frills, which match the mousseline in shade. The sleeves are not seamed, and show only slight fulness at the shoulders. At the waist is worn a belt of straw-colored velvet, with an oblong buckle of rhinestones.

A POPULAR MODEL.

To make this waist for a woman of medium size five yards of material, twenty-two inches wide, will be required.

BRYAN AND THE WAR.

THE ATTACK IN THE REAR HAS FAILED.

The Missouri State Democratic Convention an Utter Rout for the Plotters Who Have Attempted to Pull Down the People's Choice, W. J. Bryan.

The endorsement of the Chicago platform and of William J. Bryan given by Missouri Democrats under Mr. Bland's leadership at Springfield is an expression of honest American sentiment which ought to be intelligible to Mr. William C. Whitney and Mr. Richard Croker, says the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture. Their plan to assassinate Mr. Bryan by striking him from the rear in Missouri has not succeeded.

The qualities which most endear Mr. Bryan to the people are courage and candor. He is not a coward in conception, nor a sneak in execution. He goes straightforward whether he is right or wrong.

This is a quality so valuable that all other qualities are sure to become valueless without it. And it is by virtue of this quality of manliness that Mr. Bryan will defeat the conspiracy to turn the machinery of the Democratic party over to the same interests which now control the Republican party so completely.

When Mr. Bryan volunteered for the Spanish war, many of his stanchest friends were surprised and perhaps pained. The Democratic instincts is to avoid the military hero and to oppose the military idea in government. But it is likely to appear shortly, if it does not already, that in offering himself to the McKinley administration to be shot at by the Spaniards, Mr. Bryan was more farsighted than the rest of us. He severed thus a Gordian knot which might not have been unloosed otherwise.

It is hardly necessary to say that the whole force of plutocracy is being used to retire Mr. Bryan from Democratic leadership. Six months ago, immediately after Croker's return from exile in Europe and the Tammany victory in New York City, it was believed that through alliances made by him with politicians in Missouri and the southwest, other issues would be substituted for those of the Chicago platform. Aware of this design and familiar with the records and methods of some of those who were a party to it, the Journal has worked with all its energies to prevent the issues of the Chicago platform from being obscured. With the help of journalists on weekly papers whose honesty, intelligence and incorruptibility are the hope of the country, the effort has met with such success that the men in Missouri who were in secret league with Croker and the trusts and national banks which control him, against the Chicago platform, have been compelled to be loudest in their protestations of devotion to it. That they mean to betray it at the first opportunity is certain. In the meantime they have not yet had the opportunity, and it is entirely possible, if not probable, that they will have to go out of the Democratic party to get it.

Seeing themselves unable to carry out their plans under conditions then existing, this element determined to take advantage of the blowing up of the Maine to give the Republican administration the war power as a means of forcing a change of issues against the "agitators and stirrers up of domestic discontent." Such papers as the St. Louis Republic and the Louisville Courier-Journal were the active agents of this propaganda, and it was part of the plan to carry it out by seeming to force the war on the Republican administration. This was done with great deliberation and some skill. It was well understood, however, by all who were studying the situation. An attempt was made to foil it by forcing an issue for the recognition of the Cuban republic.' It was well known that the sugar trust, which intends to put down the Cuban patriots and their republic, would not allow war to be declared if the republic were recognized. But under the circumstances the best that could be got out of congress was the declaration that the Cubans "are, and of right ought to be, free and independent." Considering this a mere glittering generality, the Republicans on their part accepted the war power with eagerness. They have attempted to use it to create rival candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination. The bond-syndicates and trusts, who look on the practical politicians of both parties as their spittoon-cleaners, have done their best to make a great man of Fitzhugh Lee, and have used the Republican administration for that purpose. Lee, being a "sound-money man," was to be held in reserve against Bryan, and in the meantime Democratic machine managers were to be "controlled" and committees stacked in the west and south so as to turn Democratic state conventions against Bryan and what he stands for.

It was expected that the combination formed to carry out this programme would be able to use popular excitement over the war to elicit from Democratic conventions resolutions disarming opposition to the administration, and making it so popular as a result of the war that the "silver crank" would never be heard of again.

At this point of the proceedings William J. Bryan enlisted.

His secret opponents, who sat in luxuriously appointed offices and club parlors, conspiring to fatten themselves on the pickings of practical politics, have a thousand tricks, but this one act of his will be enough against them.

Men who were to be put forward as Democratic candidates against him in the West or South remained at home after plotting the war. And, after speeches urging our gallant and susceptible youths to go and die where glory waits them, they went themselves back to their offices to pick up whatever dollars there are loose as the rewards of politics. But William J. Bryan, taking his gun and offering his body as a target for Mauser bullets said this to his countrymen:

"As long as the oppressor is deaf to the voice of reason, so long must the citizen accustom his shoulder to the musket and his hand to the sabre."

With that addition to the declaration of the Chicago platform he asked to be sent to the front, and though President McKinley will of course never allow him to do anything but garrison duty, yet in the trenches where "They also serve who only stand and wait," he will not appear in the eyes of honest and sane men to deserve less glory than attaches to Mr. Hanna and to Mr. McKinley in Washington, as commanders in chief of the army and navy of the United States.

Of course, when he enlisted, Mr. Bryan knew that he would be kept in the background as much as possible. But he was not after military glory. He was merely accustoming his shoulder to the musket and his hands to the sabre. He has nothing of the jingo and still less of the imperialist about him. While bank attorneys, secure in their back offices, were effervescing for gore and glory, Mr. Bryan, in his Omaha speech against imperialism, spoke of war with something of the sadness of a Milton and the sternness of a Cromwell.

"War is harsh; it is attended by hardship and suffering; it means a vast expenditure of men and money. We may pray for the coming of the time, promised in holy writ, when the spears shall be beaten into pruning hooks and the swords into plowshares; but universal peace cannot come until justice is enthroned throughout the world. Jehovah deals with nations as He deals with men, and for both decrees that the wages of sin is death. Until the right has triumphed in every land and love reigns in every heart, government must, as a last resort, appeal to force. As long as the oppressor is deaf to the voice of reason, so long must the citizen accustom his shoulder to the musket and his hand to the saber.

When the combination against Bryan begins operating in the southwest, it finds the Democratic sentiment in his favor so strong that nothing can be done against him at all except by beginning with an ostentatious endorsement of him and the principles he stands for.

This is a very great gain. Six months ago these conspirators believed the Chicago platform effete, and bimetallism a dead issue. They were ready to set Bryan aside as a back number. They did not do it then. They have not done it yet. And to do it at all, they will have to demonstrate that plutocracy is able to afford a better quality of political brains than those of the "peanut" statesmen it can buy here and there as coadjutors of Croker and the professional corruptionists who live as bloodsucking parasites.

William J. Bryan is not beaten yet, and he will not be. In Missouri, in Illinois and throughout the country generally, the banks and their attorneys, the railroads and their "cow coroners" are using every imaginable trick and device to get rid of him and what he stands for; but if they were to give Hanna the war power a hundred times over, and to endorse his use of it in every convention they can pack from New York to San Francisco, they would still have to face every issue Bryan represents when, in protest against oppression, he begins accustoming his hand to the saber and his shoulder to the musket.

Therefore the Democrats of Missouri are to be most earnestly congratulated that the state platform adopted at Springfield opens with the unqualified endorsement of him, which even the boldest of his secret enemies dared not oppose. Whatever else happens as a result of the Spanish war, the short-card players of machine politics, who thought to use it to force free coinage to one side and William J. Bryan to the rear, will fail of their object. He will be the Democratic nominee in 1900, in spite of the little huckstering bosses who are now trying to sell him and the Democratic party with him.

In Behalf of the Soldiers.

From the Chicago Dispatch: When congress meets there will be an investigation as to the conduct of the war. If the Republicans succeed in retaining a majority in the house, the result of that investigation will be simply a whitewashing of Alger and all the rest of the incompetent and venal officials appointed by the Republican administration. There have been many corrupt bargains, great incapacity and innumerable blunders during the short campaign against the Spaniards. These matters should not be hushed up. Soldiers who have been starved by robber commissaries, neglected by incompetent officers, murdered by lack of proper medical attention, should be remembered by congress, and the men who caused all this needless suffering should be severely punished. But if the Republicans remain in power the congressional investigation will prove a farce. For this reason Democrats should labor strenuously to return their candidate to the house of representatives. This is a duty the party owes to the soldiers. The war was brought about largely through Democratic influences, but the injuries to soldiers have all proceeded from Republican maladministration. Soldiers who have suffered will hesitate to bring their cases before a Republican congress; therefore, in behalf of these brave defenders of the flag, Democrats should work zealously for success.

POPULIST POINTS

A DISAPPOINTMENT.

THE WAR BRINGS HARDER TIMES INSTEAD OF BETTER.

The Plain Reasons Why This Gold Standard War Causes Business Depression While the Greenback War Caused an Era of Prosperity.

The business interests of the country generally looked for a revival of trade as the necessity and inevitable outcome of the war with Spain. To say they are disappointed is to mildly state the fact.

The expectation that war would dispel the condition of business stagnation, bordering on paralysis, that has hung like a pall, not alone over this country, but over all gold standard countries during the past five years, did not take into account the controlling factor in the case, says the Silver Knight Watchman; namely, that the expenses of the war were to be met through taxing production and enlarging our interest-bearing debt, without providing an increase of money supply to meet the increased demand.

Remembering the tremendous impetus that business received during the civil war, many reasoned that favorable trade conditions, better prices, and better times would inevitably follow the vast expenditure by the government that war would necessitate. This would be true if the extraordinary conditions inseparable from war were accompanied by an increase of money supply commensurate with the increased demand for money occasioned by the war.

The withdrawal of 225,000 able-bodied men from the field of competitive production, to be fed, clothed, and paid wages from the nation's treasury, thus being transferred to the field of consumption, would naturally tend to improve the market. The equipping, provisioning, and transportation of an army calls for a vast expenditure of money and furnishes employment and hence the ability to become consumers to thousands aside from those composing the army itself. All of which by drawing from the normal labor supply and creating an enlarged demand for the products of labor of all kinds would, under conditions that would permit of it, cause wages to advance and advance the prices of all the products of labor.

But when it is remembered that prices are governed by money supply it becomes evident that an additional demand for money, unaccompanied by a corresponding additional supply, makes a condition under which an advance of prices is impossible and a fall of prices becomes inevitable.

The present war presents a case of this kind and hence has brought no improvement to the general business of the country. The increased demand for money, unaccompanied by a corresponding increase in the supply, has made business conditions harder than before for all, except those having contracts to furnish supplies to the government, who have been exempt from many of the conditions of the general competitive market. Under normal business conditions there would not have been $1,250,000,000 offered to the government in exchange for bonds bearing only 3 per cent interest. Such an offering on the part of those having capital shows a universal distrust of business investments and a disposition to avoid investment in property, the incomes of which are affected by the general prosperity of the country, and to seek investment in bonds, which are money features, the income from which rests upon the taxing power of the government.

The majority of the finance committee of the United States senate proposed, in addition to levying a war tax, that the government coin the $42,000,000 of silver seigniorage now lying idle in the vaults of the treasury, and in addition to this issue $150,000,000, or so much thereof as might be necessary, of legal-tender non-interest bearing notes of the government. Had this plan been adopted we would have had an increase of the supply of money which would have caused a general revival of business, with better prices for products; the labor of the country would have found employment at fair wages, and there would have been no necessity to increase the interest-bearing debt of the nation.

But the government of the country is in the hands of an administration committed to the gold standard and under the influence of the gold contractionists. The administration is not averse to the issuing of interest-bearing bonds to be made the basis for the issuance of bank notes, because the banks who furnished the campaign funds in 1896 want an investment of this kind that will return them a double interest. But it is opposed to the only policy that can restore prosperity to the labor and business interests of the country, which is an increase of the legal tender money necessary to uphold prices and stimulate production, which alone can give to the country general prosperity.

CURRENT NOTES.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Scott says the present generation will not see the war taxes repealed, because of the need of large revenue to support an increased army and navy.

This generation will see a portion of the burden of federal taxation placed upon incomes and inheritances, at least, and the standing army has not been increased yet.

If the Republican party is given control of both houses of congress there will be a large increase in the standing army, none of the expenses of which will be borne by aggregated wealth, because a Republican congress will vote no income, corporation or inheritance taxes.

If the Republicans control the next congress more interest-bearing bonds will be sold for the purpose of retiring the greenbacks and silver certificates, and those bonds will be made payable in gold alone.

If Senator Hanna controls the next congress the trusts will get everything they ask for. Is not Hanna interested in the coal trust and steel trust, and probably to the extent of some stock in most of the other trusts? The railroads will have things all their own way, and will not be compelled to disgorge any of the millions they have stolen from the treasury for transportation of troops and supplies during the late war. Mr. Hanna is a railroad magnate himself.

The People's party calls attention to the fact that it is time business men as well as farmers and workingmen should stop voting for policies and candidates, of whatever party label, dictated by men like Senator Hanna, whose personal interests are all antagonistic to the interests of the producers.

Governor Leedy in a recent speech vigorously assailed Secretary of War Alger in the administration of his office during the war. He charged Alger with "boodling" in contracts let for war supplies, declaring that Carnegie, Mark Hanna, Senator Elkins and others had, by jobbery in contracts, through the connivance of Secretary Alger, looted the treasury of many hundred thousand dollars. Governor Leedy said that he spoke advisedly, and that he had waited until peace was in sight before making these accusations. President McKinley, he declared, was not big enough to shake off these mill stones which were hanging about his neck. Governor Leedy said in justification of his attack upon Secretary Alger that Kansas Republicans had charged him with furnishing to the Kansas volunteers shoddy clothing and an inferior quality of food supplies, when the fact was that the war department, and not the state government, was responsible. He said that Alger's anxiety to help some of his pets make big money out of war contracts resulted in the purchase by the government of inferior supplies, which the volunteers not only of Kansas, but of the entire West, were compelled to use.

Sixteen to One or Bust.

A bank note currency based on United States bonds, held by London bankers, involves the control of our money supply by them.

This involves the adaptation of our financial policy to those the English imperial government carried out in India and its other subject provinces.

Its colonial policy is to get as much out of India and to give as little as possible. It forces up the price of money in order to force down the price of Indian wheat, cotton, rice and other agricultural food stuffs and raw material.

Necessarily the English holders of our bonds occupy the same attitude towards our producers that they do towards those of India. It is a part of English imperial policies to keep down agricultural prices in all parts of the world. English bondholders, organizing national banks in the United States, will continue to use their whole influence for this purpose. Unless we can have free coinage they must succeed.

Sixteen to one or bust, means that we are going to have it in spite of bayonets, and in spite of boodle.—Journal of Agriculture.

The Logical Outcome.

Patriotism calls aloud for national ownership and operation of railroads, and their modern adjuncts—telegraphs. It should own and operate all coal and iron mines, all smelters, foundries and machine shops necessary to equip and run the roads, all armories for the manufacture of the munitions of war, all navy yards for the building of battleships and such other ships as might be advantageous for the people to own. This is the logical outcome of the national ownership of the Nicaragua canal now—favored by nine-tenths of the people of the United States.—Pittsburg Kansan.

The Administration's Carelessness.

The daily papers in all the cities are filled with letters and interviews with soldiers who have endured the hardships of a three months' campaign in Cuba. They all tell the same story of shameful neglect and failure to provide for the sick and wounded.—Grand Rapids Chronicle.

THE BANNER.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

CLANTON, - ALABAMA

The London Saturday Review says: "The lesson of all our conflicts with America was that the American soldiers and sailors shot markedly better than our own and won astonishing victories. It looks as if the old lesson holds good to-day."

No higher tribute could be paid to a warship's crew than that paid by Captain Evans to the men of the Iowa: "So long as the enemy showed his flag they fought like American seamen, but when the flag came down they were as gentle and tender as American women." In that pregnant sentence is the whole philosophy of military heroism.

The recent establishment of a whale-oil manufactory on Notre Dame Bay calls attention to the fact that whaling is now a paying venture off the coast of Newfoundland. Recently seven whales, worth nearly $1000 each, were captured by a company of Norwegian whalers. A company has been formed to carry on the industry. This ought to make the old fishermen around Amagansett prick up their ears. Possibly the old shipyard of Cold Spring Harbor, which fitted out the whalers of the last century, may resume business.

The Philadelphia Commercial Museum says that Porto Rico is well adapted by soil and climate not only for the growing of cotton, but for the manufacture of cotton fabrics as well, though for the growth of the plant it will be necessary to engage native labor or to secure help from Cuba. Of the more than one thousand streams upon the island sixty are navigable, and many of them could be utilized to furnish power, which is an important consideration, since all the coal used must be brought from this country; and all the chief towns are connected by railway, though communication with the interior is only possible by ox teams.

In speaking of the recent popular war loan the Baltimore American says: Not since the wonderful alacrity with which, in July, 1871, the French peasants and the working people of Paris went down into their stockings and subscribed in a day $400,000,000 to meet the first installments of the big war indemnity with which the German invader was bought out of France, has there been so impressive a demonstration of the latent resources of a great nation, or of its patriotic confidence in its Government. It will be to European Governments as significant a proof of the enormous reserved strength of the American people as all our military and naval successes put together, brilliant though they are. The wealth of a nation and its ability to raise money within its own territory on moderate terms is a main element in its fighting capacity.

More and more is the machine encroaching upon the fields where formerly the handworker held full sway, says the Dry Goods Economist. This not entirely new observation is suggested by our latest advices from Paris as to fall and winter styles. It seems that trimmings of all kinds will be profusely used in costume and garment decorations, and that this style has been brought about largely by the dressmakers in an endeavor to bring into popularity something that could not be produced by machines. Judging from present reports, however, they reckoned without their host; for the modern mechanical devices are capable of reproducing even the finest and most delicate designs wrought by the cunning hand of the seamstress or maker of embroidery. Of course, there are some applications and figures that cannot be made on machines; but nevertheless such a high state of perfection has been attained in this direction that there is but precious little in his line that the machine cannot reproduce with a fidelity to handwork that is startling, and so close is the imitation in many instances that only the expert eye can detect the difference.

To Invite the President to Birmingham.

A delegation composed of some of Birmingham's leading citizens left that city Sunday for Washington to invite President McKinley and others to be present at the peace jubilee to be held in Birmingham in October.

Cuban Debt to Be Settled at Paris.

The Spanish cabinet council again considered the question of the Cuban debt Saturday. It is believed that a loan will be issued later to meet the debt of 1886, but a definite settlement of the matter has been left to the Paris commission.

EAGER FOR ANNEXATION.

A Delegation of Prominent Filipinos Visit Consul Wildman.

WILL NEVER SUBMIT TO SPANISH RULE.

Do Not Want Independence—Warlike Mountaineers as Well as Those Engaged in Business Pursuits Would Welcome Stars and Stripes.

MANILA.—A Hong Kong deputation, representing the Southern Philippines and consisting of the best and richest natives of Pana, Mindoro, Cebu, and Mindanao, visited United States Consul Williams Friday, and urged that every possible effort be made for the annexation of the whole of the Philippine Islands. The deputation declared that all classes, the warlike mountaineers as well as those engaged in mercantile pursuits, would welcome the Stars and Stripes, and had resolved never to submit to Spanish rule. They also said that there were 4,000 men, many of them armed with rifles, near Iloilo, ready to support the Americans. They refuse to join the clamor for independence, which they consider a mistake and impracticable. They only wish for annexation to the United States.

Aguinaldo remains at Bakoor. He recently wrote an impertinent letter to General Otis, which resulted in his receiving a sharp snub. The insurgent leader will probably render himself amenable to the American authorities.

SANTIAGO SHAKEN.

Earthquake Caused the Frightened People to Rush Into the Streets.

Two earthquakes of unusual severity were felt at Santiago de Cuba Saturday, shocking every house in the city. The frightened people ran out into the streets.

The Saratoga has sailed for Montauk Point with 100 sick and a quantity of Mauser rifles and ammunition.

The sailing of the Missouri has been delayed owing to the difficulty of obtaining a sufficient supply of water. The reports of General Wood's corps of physicians showed a marked improvement in the general health of the city. The death rate this week is from 50 to 75 cents lower than it was two weeks ago.

Gen. Pando on His Way to His Native Home With 12,000,000 Francs.

A dispatch from Havana says: Having successfully done everything in his power to convey the impression that he was sailing to Spain via New York on the steamship Philadelphia Thursday, General Pando secretly started direct for his native land about ten hours later on the French steamer Notre Dame de Salut, it is said with 12,000,000 francs, supposed to be war funds. The secret was so effectively kept that very few persons here have any knowledge of it, and all the Havana papers announce Pando's departure on the Philadelphia. The question that is now being asked is when and how did Pando get the 12,000,000 francs.

CLOUDBURST IN TENNESSEE.

A General Flood in Knox County Washing Away Railway Tracks.

Heavy rainfalls and a cloudburst in the lower part of Knox county, Tennessee, occasioned a general flood. The tracks of the Southern railway at Concord, ten miles from Knoxville, were washed away, thereby stopping all travel toward the south. The Southern tracks on the Asheville division suffered the same fate, and at a station near Harrison an embankment was washed away, cutting off communication with Cincinnati and Louisville. A cloudburst at Concord washed away several houses, and an entire family was rescued from the roof of their floating home. No lives were lost. Damages resulting from high water will be many thousand dollars.

General Carpenter Arrives.

Brigadier-General L. H. Carpenter commanding the Third brigade Fourth army corps, reached Camp Wheeler, Huntsville, Saturday morning and established headquarters.

President McKinley Visits Camp Wikoff.

President McKinley spent five hours in Camp Wikoff, Montauk Point, N. Y., Saturday, bare-headed most of the time, visiting the sick in the hospitals and inspecting the well in their cantonments. He made a speech to the assembled infantry, reviewed the cavalrymen, expressed his opinion of the camp to the reporters and issued an order directing the regulars to return to their stations east of the Mississippi.

German Naval Force Reduced.

A semi-official note issued at Berlin says: "A state of peace having been re-established between the United States and Spain, orders have been given that the German naval force at Manila be reduced to one of ships."

BUSINESS IS ENORMOUS.

Dun's Commercial Report Says the Volume of Business is Larger Than Has Ever Been Known Before.

R. G. Dun G Co.'s weekly review says:

The smallest number of failures ever recorded in any month for five years were those of August. The clearings have been the largest ever known in August, and 23 per cent larger than in 1892.

The enormous volume of business in a month usually one of the most inactive of the year demands attention. Postponement during the months of war of some contracts and of purchases which have now come forward explain part of the increase, and the strong absence of securities explains but half of it, but there has also been a decline in prices for all commodities, so that it takes a much larger volume of business in tons or bushels than make up transactions amounting to a million or more than in 1892. It is therefore strictly true that business is larger than in the very best of all past years, and yet there is every prospect of much further increase.

There is no room to doubt that the wheat crop will prove the largest ever harvested, and although Beerbohm estimates Europe's crop at 232,000,000 bushels more than the last, that will be only about an average yield, while other evidence is less favorable. Foreign buying has been strong, but receipts at the west are increasing, and the price has dropped 5 cents for spot, though the September option is seven-eighths lower for the week. Corn has fallen a fraction, later reports indicating a less satisfactory yield, and probably not more than should be consumed at home in enlarging the stock of animals.

The woolen mills have rather better orders this week, but not enough as yet to warrant running nearly full force. In cotton manufacture there is better demand, with a sixteenth raise in print cloths, though brown sheetings are a shade lower, the demand for other goods being still fairly strong.

SITUATION IN HAVANA.

Prices of Some of the Necessaries of Life Higher Than During the Blockade.

HAVANA.—Although not a day has passed since the blockade was raised without two or three vessels arriving here with provisions, the prices of the necessaries of life are not only excessive, but in some cases higher than they were during the blockade. As the Red Cross society's supplies on the Clinton were not landed this condition of affairs seriously affects the poor. Rice is selling at 6½ cents a pound, retail; lard at 20 cents and meat at 60 cents a pound, retail. The retailers are taking advantage of the situation, and wish to raise the prices stilt further, regardless of the distress of the poor, who, as they cannot afford to pay even the present prices, must continue to suffer.

GEORGIA STORM.

Waters in the Flooded District Rising Rapidly—More Wrecks Off the Coast.

SAVANNAH, GA.—Two more wrecks were reported Saturday off the entrance to Calabogue sound. Both were dismasted schooners. There were no signs of life on either vessel. The coast is being patrolled in the hope of rescuing the crews of some of the wrecked vessels, but except the crew of the bark Noe none are known to have been saved.

In the storm-swept section of the coast the loss of property is increasing. The miles of water on the lowlands are being added too by the floods in the rivers and the waters everywhere in the flooded district are rising. The Savannah and Ogeechee rivers are rising rapidly and are likely to cause heavy damage when the flood reaches the low country.

Primary Ordered.

The democratic executive committee of Morgan county, Alabama, met and ordered a primary election to be held in that county on September 17 to select a candidate for congress for the Eighth district to be elected in November.

Gen. Royal T. Frank, commanding the Third army corps, which consists now of only the First division, arrived at Anniston Saturday from Chickamauga accompanied by his staff, division corps, ambulance company, signal corps and Company C, Fourteenth New York. General Frank has established headquarters in the city.

Private McHugh Drowned.

MUSTERING OUT THE ARMY

Orders Issued Affecting Seventy Thousand Men of the Volunteer Service.

FIRST AND SECOND ALABAMA INCLUDED.

Will Require Some Time for the Alabama Troops to Be Mustered Out—List of Organizations Included in Friday's Orders.

A statement prepared at the war department shows that including Friday's list eighty-three of the organizations in the volunteer army have received orders looking to their being mustered out of the service. This number probably represents almost one-third of the approximately 220,000 men called for by the president in the two proclamations issued by him.

The following troops were ordered to be mustered out of service Friday:

First Pennsylvania, Knoxville to Philadelphia.

Second Pennsylvania, Montichanin to Philadelphia.

Third Pennsylvania, Huntsville to Philadelphia.

Eighteenth Pennsylvania, Camp Meade to Pittsburg.

Fourth Wisconsin, Camp Douglass, Wis.

Seventy-first New York, Montauk to Camp Black.

First New Jersey, Camp Alger to Seagirt.

Thirty-second Michigan, Chickamauga to Camp Eaton, Mich.

First Ohio, Jacksonville to armory, Cincinnati.

Eighth Ohio, Montauk to Columbus, O.

One Hundred and Fifty-eighth Indiana, Knoxville to Indianapolis.

Third Ohio, Huntsville to Columbus.

Second North Carolina, St. Simons Island, Ga., to Raleigh.

First and Second Alabama, Jacksonville to Mobile.

Third United States Volunteer Cavalry, Chickamauga to Old Fort Omaha.

Second Massachusetts, Montauk to South Framingham.

First South Carolina, Jacksonville to Columbia, S. C., and Second Squadron of Ohio Cavalry, Huntsville to Columbus.

It will require some time for the Alabama troops to be mustered out. It will probably be several days before they start for Mobile, and it will take a week or so or longer, after they arrive at Mobile, before the necessary formalities can be complied with. However, the chances are that they will be back home by the middle of September. Even with the mustering out of these two regiments Alabama will still have 1,700 men in the service, viz.: the negro regiment at Mobile and half the Fifth Volunteer Immunes at Santiago.

COMMISSIONER EVANS' REPORT.

Recommends a Revision of the Pension Regulations.

WASHINGTON.—The annual report of Hon. H. Clay Evans, commissioner of pensions, was made public Saturday. It shows that the amount paid out at the several agencies for the year on account of pensions under the general laws were $75,275,385, and on account of pensions under the act of June 27, 1890, $66,255,670.

Pension claims pending June 30, 1898, numbered 635,059. The commissioner is confident that there are not over 75,000 of these (invalids and widows) that are genuine original claims. The others are cases where the claimants are already pensioned.

Commissioner Evans recommends that a commission be appointed on the revision of laws, rules and regulations governing the issuance of pensions. A special division has been established to adjudicate claims growing out of the Spanish war. These will be paid under the general laws. Only about 100 claims of this class have been filed up to the close of the fiscal year and none have been adjudicated.

Gold Reserve Highest in History.

The gold reserve in the United States treasury reached the highest point in its history Friday, with a total reserve of $210,320,372. The highest previous amount was $218,000,000, which was recorded in March, 1888.

BROOKE COMMANDS

Since Miles Has Left Porto Rico—Has Started Toward San Juan.

GUAYAMO, PORTO RICO—Upon General Miles' departure General Brooke issued an order assuming command of the troops in this island.

The bridges along the military road are being repaired, and General Brooke started northward Saturday. The march to San Juan probably will consume four days. The General expects to establish his headquarters at Piedras, outside the city, owing to the crowded condition of San Juan, which is filled with Spanish troops on this side of the island.

ISLANDS SEIZED.

Philippine Insurgents are Grabbing all They Can.

MANILA—Several ship loads of insurgents troops have invaded the southern islands with the view of seizing everything possible, prior to the settlement of the peace conditions. Gen. Bios, the Spanish commander, with a flotilla of gunboats, is acting energetically, but the insurgents have captured the outlying islands of Romblon and Pelawan, where they found treasure to the amount of $42,000.

HESTER'S COTTON CROP REPORT.

An Increase of 2,242,030 Bales Over Last Year's Yield.

Secretary Hester's New Orleans cotton exchange annual report was issued Friday. He puts the cotton crop of 1897-98 at 11,199,944 bales, an increase of 2,242,030 bales over 1896-97, and says that of this increase 877,000 was in Texas, including Indian Territory; 943,000 in the group of other gulf states, consisting of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Missouri, and 672,000 in the group of Atlantic states, consisting of Alabama, Georgia, Florida and North and South Carolina, Kentucky and Virginia.

Mr. Hester puts the average commercial value of the crop at $28.62 per bale, against $36.26 last year, $41.09 the year before, and $30.00 in 1894-95, and the total value of the crop at $320,553,000 against $921,925,000 last year; $294,095,000 year before last and $297,038,000 in 1894-95.

He puts the total spindles in the south at 4,052,224, an increase over last year of 205,253. These include 241,000 new, not completed, most of which may be brought into play this fall and early next spring. The net gain in the number of southern mills last year has been nine, making the total new 491.

Of this year's American cotton crop Mr. Hester says that 2,212,000 bales were taken by American mills north and 1,232,000 bales by American mills south; 119,000 bales by Canadian mills; 37,000 by Mexican mills; 227,000 by Chinese and Japanese mills and 6,747,000 bales by the mills of Europe, making the total takings by the spinners on both sides of the Atlantic of American cotto 10,564,000 bales.

ENGLAND WITH THE CZAR.

Will Co-Operate With Him in His Peace Scheme.

The Westminster Gazette announces that although owing to the absence of the Marquis of Salisbury, Great Britain has not yet formerly responded to the Czar's peace note. The British ambassador at St. Petersburg has already communicated in cordial terms the hearty sympathy with which the rescript was read by the acting minister for foreigh affairs, Mr. Balfour, the first lord of the treasury. When the Marquis of Salisbury replies to the note, the Westminster Gazette continues, he will hail with satisfaction and delight the czar's initiative assuring him of the determination of her majesty's advisers to co-operate heartily in promoting his great aim.

QUEBEC CONFERENCE.

Adjournment Until September 20 Taken. Difficult Problem to Solve.

QUEBEC.—The joint high commission of the United States, Canada, Newfoundland and Great Britain, after ten days' hard work, adjourned Friday to meet again in this city September 20. What the commissioners accomplished up to this point or what they are likely to accomplish in the future can only be inferred from outward indications. Absolutely nothing has been revealed from within the meeting rooms of the commission. From the first session until the adjournment the commissioners on both sides have repeatedly stated that the most friendly relations existed on both side.

FOUR LIVES CRUSHED OUT.

A horrible accident occurred at Stinesville, Ind., Friday in which four men were instantly killed by a dynamite explosion and many others seriously injured. The men were blasting rock for a new pike when the plosion occurred.

MINISTER OF WAR RESIGNS.

Another Chapter in the Dreyfus Case. The Populace Inflamed.

PARIS.—M. Cavaignac, minister of war, has resigned. The resignation of M. Cavaignac is due to a disagreement with his colleagues, who desire a revision of the Dreyfus case; that a revision of the case seem assured.

M. Cavaignac sent the following letter of resignation to M. Brisson, premier and president of the council:

"I have the honor to send you, and beg you to transmit to the president of the republic, my resignation as minister of war. There exists a disagreement between us which being prolonged would paralyze the government at a time when it most needs full power of decision. I remain convinced of the guilt of Dreyfus, and as determined as heretofore to combat a revision of the case. I do not intend to ... sponsibilities of the situation, but I cannot assume them without being in accord with the chief of the government to which I have the honor to belong."

The Dreyfus agitation is increasing. The populace is again inflamed by posters printed by the Nationalists which the town has been plastered.

ENGLAND AND GERMANY

Believed to Have Formed a Treaty ... Alliance.

NEWS OF AGREEMENT STARTLES EUROPE

It is Positively Stated That the Treaty Has Been Signed Which Embraces an Offensive and Defensive Alliance in Certain Eventualities

LONDON. The Pall Mall Gazette says it has received from a source in which it has every confidence, information that an Anglo-German agreement was signed this week by Mr. Balfour and the German Ambassador in behalf of the respective powers.

Continuing the Pall Mall Gazette says that while the agreement is reserved it embraces an offensive and defensive alliance in certain eventualities.

The Pall Mall Gazette adds: "This new and momentous departure in our foreign policy comes as a natural development of the European situation."

The Pall Mall Gazette then quotes the speech of Mr. Chamberlain, made in Birmingham on May 13 last bidding for a German alliance, and continues: "Latterly it has been evident from the tone of the semi-official German press, that the two Governments have been drawing closer, and finally there were prolonged conferences between Count Hatzfeldt and Mr. Balfour. The departure of Count Hatzfeldt proves that the object of the consultations has been achieved. Besides, Mr. Chamberlain has gone to America, Lord Salisbury is prolonging his absence, and Mr. Balfour leaves for his holidays on Saturday. Evidently the ministers do not expect to deal with crucial questions of foreign policy."

It is said that as a quid pro quo for Germany's support in Egypt, Great Britain will recognize Germany's claims to utilize Syria as an outlet for her surplus population.

Syria is a division of Asiatic Turkey, which includes Palestine, said to cover an area of about 146,000 square miles. It has a population of about 2,750,000, mostly Mohammedans, but including about 350,000 Greek Christians, 260,000 Maronites and Roman Catholics, 175,000 Jews and 48,000 Druses.

THE REALM OF FASHION.

Skirt of Figured Foulard.

Figured foulard in sage green and white is here shown with a pretty simple foot trimming, composed of three narrow frills of sage green satin ribbon.

Having a straight back breadth with each has edge of gores joined to the straight edges, this skirt will not sag and, therefore, especially adapted to sheer fabrics, such as organdy, lace net, silk tissue and other light textures, while for washable fabrics it is more than desirable. The front gore is of moderate but fashionable width and separate two narrow gores on each side of it smoothly over the hips and is prettily folds with the fashionable flare at the foot.

The lower edge measures about three and a half yards in the medium size. Braid, ribbon or insertion, with or without ruffles, ruching or other applied trimming can be used to decorate the skirt in any preferred style.

To make this skirt for a lady of medium size five and three-eighth yards of material thirty-six inches wide will be required.

Dress For a Growing Girl.

Whatever number of more elaborate and dressy gowns the growing girl's wardrobe may include, one of sturdy but simply made, is essential to her comfort and well-being. The model shown in the large illustration is of light weight serge in royal blue and is trimmed with fancy black braid. But cheviot, covert cloth and all the seasonable suitings, as well as cashmere are equally suitable.

The foundation for the waist is a fitted lining that closes at the centre-front. On it are arranged the full blouse portions and the yoke, which is cut bias and divided to form slashed épaulettes. The straight strip shown at the front is lined with crinoline, then applied to the waist proper, covering the edges of full fronts. The sleeves are two-seamed and fit smoothly, except for the slight puffs at the shoulders, which are universally worn by children and young girls. The pointed wrists are finished with frills of lace, and at the throat is a high standing collar.

The skirt is four-gored and fits smoothly across the front and over the hips, the fulness at the back being laid in backward-turning plaits. It is lined throughout, but unstiffened, and is trimmed with two rows of fancy braid.

To make this costume for a girl of eight years will require two and one-half yards of forty-four-inch material.

A Cure For Bad Complexions.

Bad complexions have sent more women to the grave than epidemics. Nothing frets a woman like a rough, muddy skin. A cure-all for blemishes is certainly simple enough. It is this: Wash the face in very salty sweet milk every night and let it dry without wiping. A mixture made of one small tablespoonful of milk and a teaspoonful of salt applied to the most obstinate blemish of the skin will cure it almost like magic. This is the remedy prescribed by one of the best skin authorities in England, and it is said that the use of milk and salt is half the secret of the English woman's smooth, beautiful skin.

Fancy Braids For Millinery.

To some extent fancy braids have reappeared in the autumn millinery, and may be used a little, although the Paris model hats shown in the wholesale houses scarcely use that material. The braid has been popular, and it is likely to take a long time in "dying out."

Striking Fall Costume.

The popularity of the skirt made from taffeta, either black, gray or beige color, seems to increase as the season advances, and it bids fair to take first place for wear with waists of various sorts. The model shown is in a soft shade of gray and is worn with a fancy waist of figured silk, showing bits of pale corn color in conjunction with mousseline de soie of the same tender yellow. The foundation skirt is circular and fits snugly about the hips. The frills, which are five inches in width, are each cut bias and edged with velvet ribbon stitched on.

GIRL'S COSTUME.

The fancy waist is made over a fitted lining which closes at the centre-front, but is itself fitted by shoulder seams and smooth underarm gores, and closes below the left side, the basque being separate and seamed to the waist proper. The full mousseline is faced to yoke depth at the back and stitched to the right-front, but hooks over into place at the left shoulder and beneath the left rever. At the neck is a soft collar of the same, supplemented by a frill. The revers are each faced with gray, and are trimmed with tiny ribbon frills, which match the mousseline in shade. The sleeves are not seamed, and show only slight fulness at the shoulders. At the waist is worn a belt of straw-colored velvet, with an oblong buckle of rhinestones.

A POPULAR MODEL.

To make this waist for a woman of medium size five yards of material, twenty-two inches wide, will be required.

BRYAN AND THE WAR.

THE ATTACK IN THE REAR HAS FAILED.

The Missouri State Democratic Convention an Utter Rout for the Plotters Who Have Attempted to Pull Down the People's Choice, W. J. Bryan.

The endorsement of the Chicago platform and of William J. Bryan given by Missouri Democrats under Mr. Bland's leadership at Springfield is an expression of honest American sentiment which ought to be intelligible to Mr. William C. Whitney and Mr. Richard Croker, says the St. Louis Journal of Agriculture. Their plan to assassinate Mr. Bryan by striking him from the rear in Missouri has not succeeded.

The qualities which most endear Mr. Bryan to the people are courage and candor. He is not a coward in conception, nor a sneak in execution. He goes straightforward whether he is right or wrong.

This is a quality so valuable that all other qualities are sure to become valueless without it. And it is by virtue of this quality of manliness that Mr. Bryan will defeat the conspiracy to turn the machinery of the Democratic party over to the same interests which now control the Republican party so completely.

When Mr. Bryan volunteered for the Spanish war, many of his stanchest friends were surprised and perhaps pained. The Democratic instincts is to avoid the military hero and to oppose the military idea in government. But it is likely to appear shortly, if it does not already, that in offering himself to the McKinley administration to be shot at by the Spaniards, Mr. Bryan was more farsighted than the rest of us. He severed thus a Gordian knot which might not have been unloosed otherwise.

It is hardly necessary to say that the whole force of plutocracy is being used to retire Mr. Bryan from Democratic leadership. Six months ago, immediately after Croker's return from exile in Europe and the Tammany victory in New York City, it was believed that through alliances made by him with politicians in Missouri and the southwest, other issues would be substituted for those of the Chicago platform. Aware of this design and familiar with the records and methods of some of those who were a party to it, the Journal has worked with all its energies to prevent the issues of the Chicago platform from being obscured. With the help of journalists on weekly papers whose honesty, intelligence and incorruptibility are the hope of the country, the effort has met with such success that the men in Missouri who were in secret league with Croker and the trusts and national banks which control him, against the Chicago platform, have been compelled to be loudest in their protestations of devotion to it. That they mean to betray it at the first opportunity is certain. In the meantime they have not yet had the opportunity, and it is entirely possible, if not probable, that they will have to go out of the Democratic party to get it.

Seeing themselves unable to carry out their plans under conditions then existing, this element determined to take advantage of the blowing up of the Maine to give the Republican administration the war power as a means of forcing a change of issues against the "agitators and stirrers up of domestic discontent." Such papers as the St. Louis Republic and the Louisville Courier-Journal were the active agents of this propaganda, and it was part of the plan to carry it out by seeming to force the war on the Republican administration. This was done with great deliberation and some skill. It was well understood, however, by all who were studying the situation. An attempt was made to foil it by forcing an issue for the recognition of the Cuban republic. It was well known that the sugar trust, which intends to put down the Cuban patriots and their republic, would not allow war to be declared if the republic were recognized. But under the circumstances the best that could be got out of congress was the declaration that the Cubans "are, and of right ought to be, free and independent." Considering this a mere glittering generality, the Republicans on their part accepted the war power with eagerness. They have attempted to use it to create rival candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination. The bond-syndicates and trusts, who look on the practical politicians of both parties as their spittoon-cleaners, have done their best to make a great man of Fitzhugh Lee, and have used the Republican administration for that purpose. Lee, being a "sound-money man," was to be held in reserve against Bryan, and in the meantime Democratic machine managers were to be "controlled" and committees stacked in the west and south so as to tufn Democratic state conventions against Bryan and what he stands for.

It was expected that the combination formed to carry out this programme would be able to use popular excitement over the war to elicit from Democratic conventions resolutions disarming opposition to the administration, and making it so popular as a result of the war that the "silver crank" would never be heard of again.

At this point of the proceedings William J. Bryan enlisted.

His secret opponents, who sat in luxuriously appointed offices and club parlors, conspiring to fatten themselves on the pickings of practical politics, have a thousand tricks, but this one act of his will be enough against them.

Men who were to be put forward as Democratic candidates against him in the West or South remained at home after plotting the war. And, after speeches urging our gallant and susceptible youths to go and die where glory waits them, they went themselves back to their offices to pick up whatever dollars there are loose as the rewards of politics. But William J. Bryan, taking his gun and offering his body as a target for Mauser bullets said this to his countrymen:

"As long as the oppressor is deaf to the voice of reason, so long must the citizen accustom his shoulder to the musket and his hand to the sabre."

With that addition to the declaration of the Chicago platform he asked to be sent to the front, and though President McKinley will of course never allow him to do anything but garrison duty, yet in the trenches where "They also serve who only stand and wait," he will not appear in the eyes of honest and sane men to deserve less glory than attaches to Mr. Hanna and to Mr. McKinley in Washington, as commanders in chief of the army and navy of the United States.

Of course, when he enlisted, Mr. Bryan knew that he would be kept in the background as much as possible. But he was not after military glory. He was merely accustoming his shoulder to the musket and his hands to the sabre. He has nothing of the jingo and still less of the imperialist about him. While bank attorneys, secure in their back offices, were effervescing for gore and glory, Mr. Bryan, in his Omaha speech against imperialism, spoke of war with something of the sadness of a Milton and the sternness of a Cromwell.

"War is harsh; it is attended by hardship and suffering; it means a vast expenditure of men and money. We may pray for the coming of the time, promised in holy writ, when the spears shall be beaten into pruning hooks and the swords into plowshares; but universal peace cannot come until justice is enthroned throughout the world. Jehovah deals with nations as He deals with men, and for both decrees that the wages of sin is death. Until the right has triumphed in every land and love reigns in every heart, government must, as a last resort, appeal to force. As long as the oppressor is deaf to the voice of reason, so long must the citizen accustom his shoulder to the musket and his hand to the saber.

When the combination against Bryan begins operating in the southwest, it finds the Democratic sentiment in his favor so strong that nothing can be done against him at all except by beginning with an ostentatious endorsement of him and the principles he stands for.

This is a very great gain. Six months ago these conspirators believed the Chicago platform effete, and bimetallism a dead issue. They were ready to set Bryan aside as a back number. They did not do it then. They have not done it yet. And to do it at all, they will have to demonstrate that plutocracy is able to afford a better quality of political brains than those of the "peanut" statesmen it can buy here and there as coadjutors of Croker and the professional corruptionists who live as bloodsucking parasites.

William J. Bryan is not beaten yet, and he will not be. In Missouri, in Illinois and throughout the country generally, the banks and their attorneys, the railroads and their "cow coroners" are using every imaginable trick and device to get rid of him and what he stands for; but if they were to give Hanna the war power a hundred times over, and to endorse his use of it in every convention they can pack from New York to San Francisco, they would still have to face every issue Bryan represents when, in protest against oppression, he begins accustoming his hand to the saber and his shoulder to the musket.

Therefore the Democrats of Missouri are to be most earnestly congratulated that the state platform adopted at Springfield opens with the unqualified endorsement of him, which even the boldest of his secret enemies dared not oppose. Whatever else happens as a result of the Spanish war, the short-card players of machine politics, who thought to use it to force free coinage to one side and William J. Bryan to the rear, will fail of their object. He will be the Democratic nominee in 1900, in spite of the little huckstering bosses who are now trying to sell him and the Democratic party with him.

In Behalf of the Soldiers.

From the Chicago Dispatch: When congress meets there will be an investigation as to the conduct of the war. If the Republicans succeed in retaining a majority in the house, the result of that investigation will be simply a whitewashing of Alger and all the rest of the incompetent and venal officials appointed by the Republican administration. There have been many currupt bargains, great incapacity and innumerable blunders during the short campaign against the Spaniards. These matters should not be hushed up. Soldiers who have been starved by robber commissaries, neglected by incompetent officers, murdered by lack of proper medical attention, should be remembered by congress, and the men who caused all this needless suffering should be severely punished. But if the Republicans remain in power the congressional investigation will prove a farce. For this reason Democrats should labor strenuously to return their candidate to the house of representatives. This is a duty the party owes to the soldiers. The war was brought about largely through Democratic influences, but the injuries to soldiers have all proceeded from Republican maladministration. Soldiers who have suffered will hesitate to bring their cases before a Republican congress; therefore, in behalf of these brave defenders of the flag, Democrats should work zealously for success.

POPULIST POINTS

A DISAPPOINTMENT.

THE WAR BRINGS HARDER TIMES INSTEAD OF BETTER.

The Plain Reasons Why This Gold Standard War Causes Business Depression While the Greenback War Caused an Era of Prosperity.

The business interests of the country generally looked for a revival of trade as the necessity and inevitable outcome of the war with Spain. To say they are disappointed is to mildly state the fact.

The expectation that war would dispel the condition of business stagnation, bordering on paralysis, that has hung like a pall, not alone over this country, but over all gold standard countries during the past five years, did not take into account the controlling factor in the case, says the Silver Knight Watchman; namely, that the expenses of the war were to be met through taxing production and enlarging our interest-bearing debt, without providing an increase of money supply to meet the increased demand.

Remembering the tremendous impetus that business received during the civil war, many reasoned that favorable trade conditions, better prices, and better times would inevitably follow the vast expenditure by the government that war would necessitate. This would be true if the extraordinary conditions inseparable from war were accompanied by an increase of money supply commensurate with the increased demand for money occasioned by the war.

The withdrawal of 225,000 able-bodied men from the field of competitive production, to be fed, clothed, and paid wages from the nation's treasury, thus being transferred to the field of consumption, would naturally tend to improve the market. The equipping, provisioning, and transportation of an army calls for a vast expenditure of money and furnishes employment and hence the ability to become consumers to thousands aside from those composing the army itself. All of which by drawing from the normal labor supply and creating an enlarged demand for the products of labor of all kinds would, under conditions that would permit of it, cause wages to advance and advance the prices of all the products of labor.

But when it is remembered that prices are governed by money supply it becomes evident that an additional demand for money, unaccompanied by a corresponding additional supply, makes a condition under which an advance of prices is impossible and a fall of prices becomes inevitable.

The present war presents a case of this kind and hence has brought no improvement to the general business of the country. The increased demand for money, unaccompanied by a corresponding increase in the supply, has made business conditions harder than before for all, except those having contracts to furnish supplies to the government, who have been exempt from many of the conditions of the general competitive market. Under normal business conditions there would not have been $1,250,000,000 offered to the government in exchange for bonds bearing only 3 per cent interest. Such an offering on the part of those having capital shows a universal distrust of business investments and a disposition to avoid investment in property, the incomes of which are affected by the general prosperity of the country, and to seek investment in bonds, which are money features, the income from which rests upon the taxing power of the government.

The majority of the finance committee of the United States senate proposed, in addition to levying a war tax, that the government coin the $42,000,000 of silver seigniorage now lying idle in the vaults of the treasury, and in addition to this issue $150,000,000, or so much thereof as might be necessary, of legal tender non-interest bearing notes of the government. Had this plan been adopted we would have had an increase of the supply of money which would have caused a general revival of business, with better prices for products; the labor of the country would have found employment at fair wages, and there would have been no necessity to increase the interest-bearing debt of the nation.

But the government of the country is in the hands of an administration committed to the gold standard and under the influence of the gold contractionists. The administration is not averse to the issuing of interest-bearing bonds to be made the basis for the issuance of bank notes, because the banks who furnished the campaign funds in 1896 want an investment of this kind that will return them a double interest. But it is opposed to the only policy that can restore prosperity to the labor and business interests of the country, which is an increase of the legal tender money necessary to uphold prices and stimulate production, which alone can give to the country general prosperity.

CURRENT NOTES.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Scott says the present generation will not see the war taxes repealed because of the need of large revenue to support an increased army and navy.

This generation will see a portion of the burden of federal taxation placed upon incomes and inheritances at least, and the standing army has not been increased yet.

If the Republican party is given control of both houses of congress there will be a large increase in the standing army, none of the expenses of which will be borne by aggregated wealth because a Republican congress will vote no income, corporation or inheritance taxes.

If the Republicans control the next congress more interest-bearing bonds will be sold for the purpose of retiring the greenbacks and silver certificates, and those bonds will be made payable in gold alone.

If Senator Hanna controls the next congress the trusts will get everything they ask for. Is not Hanna interested in the coal trust and steel trust, and probably to the extent of some stock in most of the other trusts? The railroads will have things all their own way, and will not be compelled to disgorge any of the millions they have stolen from the treasury for transportation of troops and supplies during the late war. Mr. Hanna is a railroad magnate himself.

The People's party calls attention to the fact that it is time business men as well as farmers and workingmen should stop voting for policies and candidates, of whatever party label, dictated by men like Senator Hanna, whose personal interests are all antagonistic to the interests of the producers.

Governor Leedy in a recent speech vigorously assailed Secretary of War Alger in the administration of his office during the war. He charged Alger with "boodling" in contracts let for war supplies, declaring that Carnegie, Mark Hanna, Senator Elkins and others had, by jobbery in contracts, through the connivance of Secretary Alger, looted the treasury of many hundred thousand dollars. Governor Leedy said that he spoke advisedly, and that he had waited until peace was in sight before making these accusations. President McKinley, he declared, was not big enough to shake off these mill stones which were hanging about his neck. Governor Leedy said in justification of his attack upon Secretary Alger that Kansas Republicans had charged him with furnishing to the Kansas volunteers shoddy clothing and an inferior quality of food supplies, when the fact was that the war department, and not the state government, was responsible. He said that Alger's anxiety to help some of his pets make big money out of war contracts resulted in the purchase by the government of inferior supplies which the volunteers got only of Kansas, but of the entire West, were compelled to use.

Sixteen to One or Bust.

A bank note currency based on United States bonds, held by London bankers, involves the control of our money supply by them.

This involves the adaptation of our financial policy to those the English imperial government carried out in India and its other subject provinces.

Its colonial policy is to get as much out of India and to give as little as possible. It forces up the price of money in order to force down the price of Indian wheat, cotton, rice and other agricultural food stuffs and raw material.

Necessarily the English holders of our bonds occupy the same attitude towards our producers that they do towards those of India. It is a part of English imperial policies to keep down agricultural prices in all parts of the world. English bondholders, organizing national banks in the United States, will continue to use their whole influence for this purpose. Unless we can have free coinage they must succeed.

Sixteen to one or bust, means that we are going to have it in spite of bayonets and in spite of boodle.—Journal of Agriculture.

The Logical Outcome.

Patriotism calls aloud for national ownership and operation of railroads, and their modern adjuncts—telegraphs. It should own and operate all coal and iron mines, all smelters, foundries and machine shops necessary to equip and run the roads, all armories for the manufacture of the munitions of war, all navy yards for the building of battleships and such other ships as might be advantageous for the people to own. This is the logical outcome of the national ownership of the Nicaragua canal now—favored by nine-tenths of the people of the United States.—Pittsburg Kansan.

The Administration's Carelessness.

The daily papers in all the cities are filled with letters and interviews with soldiers who have endured the hardships of a three months' campaign in Cuba. They all tell the same story of shameful neglect and failure to provide for the sick and wounded.—Grand Rapids Chronicle.

IN the twenty-third Pennsylvania district John H. Stevenson, Populist, has been nominated for congress by the Democrats.

CHANCERY court convenes next Monday at Clanton. This will be the last court presided over by the present Chancellor Dowdell, who has made an excellent judge and given universal satisfaction.

THE 17 year old son of Gen. Joe Wheeler was drowned while bathing at Montauk, N. Y., on Wednesday. He was on the staff of his father. The deepest sympathy is felt for the gallant General, who at the end of his successful campaign, suffers this grievour loss.

Representative Reynolds of Chilton, desires his constituents to inform him as to their wishes in the matter of legislation. Mr. Reynolds is the re-elected Populist member from Chilton, and makes such an excellent member one could wish him to be a good Democrat.—Montgomery Journal.

WITH regret we learned from the last issue of the Reform Advocate of Wetumpka that it had suspended publication. The Reform Advocate was, as its title implies, an advocate of reform and every individual who favors refom should take a lesson from this and remember that even reform newspapers cannot live unless its subscribers come forward and support it.

By some oversight, no call has been made by anyone in authority for a county convention for the purpose of electing delegates to the district congressional convention. Under the circumstances, after consulting with some of our leading Populists, the call for a mass meeting, which will be found on first page, was issued, and we hope to have a goop meeting on Saturday afternoon.

THE middle-of-the-road convention at Cincinnati on Tuesday cannot be said to have been either harmonious or useful. As was expected Wharton Barker, of Philadelphia, was nominated for President in 1900, with Ignatius Donnelly for Vice-President. It was the smallest national convention on record, and it adopted the longest platform on record. There was lots of noise and much confusion, and no connected report of the proceedings will ever be recorded. Most of the delegates were self-constituted, attending the convention as individuals, not accredited by any organization, or having credentials from any party or meeting. While the radicals controlled the convention they could not have carried out their program without a bolt from the Northern delegates. An elaborate address to the people of the United States was adopted; it reaffirms the previous Populist platform and covers many questions.

The camp meeting at Fairview, formerly known as the Shelby Jones place, has been postponed until the third Sunday in October, commencing on Friday before at 11 o'clock. Rev. W. B. Dennis will preach two sermons on water baptism at Fairview on the third Sunday in September, one in the evening at 4 o'clock, and one at night. Everybody is invited to come.

The New Time is published in Chicago and in many respects is the most interesting magazine of the day. The current number is full of live matter for those who aim to keep in touch with the progress of thought and events. The cartoons are unsurpassed and are being copied all over the world. Though a reform magazine, The New Time is intensely American in tone, and is vigorous in its advocacy of the extension of our national territory. In spite of the war this wide-awake publication has passed the 50,000 mark and expects to double this before the first of the year. The publishers make the novel and attractive offer of a first-class photographic camera for a club of six new subscribers at one dollar each. This ofier seems to be very popular and The New Time pays for all photographs which are accepted for reproduction.

The Weekly Crop Bulletin reports generally favorable temperatures prevailed throughout the State but the rainfall was unevenly distributed, being confined to the southern half of the State and along the eastern border; while the rainfall was mostly in showers, it was heavy in some south-central and eastern counties; in north-central counties very little rain was received and none fell in some of the north-west counties. Cotton continues in generally poor condition in the southern half of the State, where rust, rot and shedding are seriously damaging the crop, and there are some complaints of boll-worms, caterpillars and sprouting in the bolls; some correspondents report cotton has stopped making fruit and is opening prematurely. Along the eastern border, the crop has also been damaged by rain. In other portions of the northern half of the State, it is rusting and shedding some, but continues in fairly good condition. It is opening rapidly and picking is becoming general, but the yield, so far, is of poor grade. Conservative estimates now place the prospective cotton-yield in this State as much below the average. Corn continues to promise an unusually large crop, though it has been damaged slightly by continued wet weather. In northern counties considerable fodder and hay have been housed during the week. Cane and minor crops are maturing, and all promise generally good yields; sweet potatoes are being gathered and sorghum-syrup is being made. Scuppernong grapes are yielding well, and much wine will be made therefrom. Pasturage is good, and, with favorable conditions, considerable more hay will yet be made.

The war between Spain aud the United States was ended on August 12, having run a course of less than four months. All recent wars in which important members of the world's family of nations have been pitted against each other have been of a short and decisive character. Last year's war between Turkey and Greece began April 17 and was terminated by a truce preliminary to a final peace treaty at the end of four and a half weeks. The Greeks had thought that their superior navy and the esprit de corps of their people would offset the great superiority of the Turkish army. But the Greek fleet accomplished next to nothing, and the invasion of the Turkish army was irresistible. The war between Japan and China showed the great superiority of the Japanese both on sea and on land, with the result that a war which began on July 25, 1894, was ended by the utter defeat of China after eight months. The great war of Russia against Turkey which began April 24, 1877, came to an end with the Russian army lying just outside of Constantinople nine months later. The Franco-Prussian war which began July 23, 1870, found the Prussians making peace at Versailles on January 28, 1871. Bismark's war of 1866, in which Prussia made an attack against Austria, lasted only seven weeks. Civil wars and insurrections have a tendency to drag on for a longer time; but all the circumstances and conditions of modern life are favorable to brevity and positive conclusions in wars between distinct nations. Nineteenth-century life is practical; and nations have lost the habit of fighting on and on merely to gratify a false sense of pride or out of considerations of hatred and revenge. The cumulative force of precedent has helped to make it the established rule of modern statesmanship to seek peace with a public adversary on the best terms possible at the earliest moment when it is clearly apparent that the fortunes of war can have no favorable turn.—American Monthly Review of Reviews.

Political Pointers.

Peoples Party Press Bureau
St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 7, 1898

Interesting news comes from Nebraska, to the effect that the friends of Col. W. J. Bryan are trying to induce him to resign his position in the army and return to the West where his services will be in demand during the campaign. It is argued that there will be no more dangerous duties for him to face in the army as he is stated to go to Cuba, with Fitzhugh Lee, for garrison duty only. It is also stated that nine-tenths of Col. Bryan's command want to be mustered out and it is confidently expected that he will resign.

The Republicans of Texas have refused to nominate a state ticket this year and there is a tacit understanding that they will support the Populist nominees. This sort of combination with the Democrats in any other state, would be howled down as "fusion" by the midway Populists of Texas. It makes a difference whose ox is gored.

The Democrats of New York state are just now considerably divided upon the silver question. The friends of W. J. Bryan and the white metal, however, seem to be in the majority. Ex-Gov. Stone of Missouri, who is a member of the National Democratic committee, while on a recent mission to the East, gave it as his opinion that the Democracy of New York and the East must fall into line with the policy of the party as outlined in the last national platform or retire from party councils. The rural New Yorkers have verified Gov. Stone's prediction by refusing to send ex-Governor Flower as a delegate to the approaching state convention on account of his opposition to Bryan in 1896.

A sensation has been created in Texas, by the Populist candidate for governor, Barnett Gibbs, offering to withdraw from the race in favor of the Democratic candidate, provided the latter will enter into an agreement, pledging himself, if elected, to carry out the cardinal principles advocated by the Populists. Among the conditions imposed on Mr. Sayers, is a promise to submit to a vote of the people, a constitutional amendment providing for the building of a state railroad from the gulf to Red river, with the surplus school fund and convict labor; also to favor a constitutional amendment providing that the state may have the final vote on all state and municipal bond issues and all state laws passing the legislature, by less than a three-fourths majority. Failing to accept this proposition, Mr. Gibbs proposes ten joint debates with his opponent.

The "Federal Iron and Steel Trust," is the name of a new corporation recently formed for the purpose of controling the production and distribution of ore from the manufacture of barbed wire used by the farmers for fences, to the armor plate for war vessels. The new company has organized under the laws of New Jersey, with a capitalization of $200,000,000. Who says there is a law against trusts?

The national convention of the so-called middle of-the-road Populists, convened at Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 5. Soon after the call was first issued by Chairman Milton Park, of Texas, there was a strong effort made to have it withdrawn, but through the influence of Wharton Barker, of Philadelphia, Thomas Watson of Georgia, Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota, and Frank Burkett of Mississippi, the call was sustained. It is no secret that Republican influence is behind this convention, and that it is used to prevent, if possible, any co-operation of the Populists and free-silver Democrats and Republicans in the future. The Cincinnati convention, however, does not represent the real Populists, and those who participate in its deliberations, read themselves entirely out of the People's Party.

The gold standard papers are rejoicing over the refusal of the United States sub-treasury to receive gold for currency on account of the superabundance of coin already locked up in Uncle Sam's strong boxes, while at the same time publishing the fact that there is almost a panic among the bankers of New York and Chicago because of a shortage of money to move the farmers crops. Consistency may be a jewel and truth a treasure of rare value, but neither are found in the editorial columns of the gold bug press.

Gen. Coxey has gone on the road again to scatter the seeds of reform, this time in a private car refitted at the Pullman shops. It is doubtful about the laboring men forming any great attachment for anything connected with Pullman fame. A. R.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption, and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, fouud herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at Dr. Johnson's Drug Store. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

Three members of the Populist state executive committee of Tennessee have resigned and declared their intention to support the Hon. Benton McMillen, Democratic candidate for governor. One of the number and perhaps the most influential Populist of Tennessee, J. H. McDowell, sergeant at arms of the last Populist national convention and recently a radical middle-of-the-roader, having been one of the leading spirits in the re-organization meeting held last year at Nashville. He now says the party in Tennessee has no hope and advises those who desire reform to vote the Democratic ticket.

What can't be cured should be well insured.

It's harder to save a penny than it is to earn it.

An ignorant wise man is less dangerous than an educated fool.

"Saved Her Life."

MRS. JOHN WALLET, of Jefferson, Wis., than whom none is more highly esteemed or widely known, writes. "In 1890 I had a severe attack of LaGrippe and at the end of four months, in spite of all physicians, friends and good nursing could do, my lungs heart and nervous system were so completely wrecked, my life was despaired of, my friends giving me up. I could only sleep by the use of opiates. My lungs and heart pained me terribly and my cough was most aggravating. I could not lie in one position but a short time and not on my left side at all. My husband brought me Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure and I began taking them. SPAIN'S BRUTAL BULLFIGHTS

THE CHARACTERISTICS FOSTERED BY THE TOREADORS ARE LARGELY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE DEGENERACY OF THE NATION.

OLD SPAIN, despite the disgusting immorality of the thing, knows of no sight more stirring and imposing than the first part of an expensive bull fight, with the ceremonious entrance to the blare of trumpets; the procession of historic costumes of crimson, pale blue, white and canary; of pea green, silvery white and pink; of scarlet, black, dark blue and white—and over all of it the brilliant sunlight, the perfumes of spring in the sweet air, and the enthusiasm of a mighty audience that moves and shouts and blazes with excitement.

The ring at Tarragona, for example—little, old, lost-to-the-world Tarragona—gives seats for 17,000 people—more than the entire population of that backward town along the Mediterranean; and yet, the seats are often full, for the country people for miles around flock in, on foot, on donkeys, asses, horses and in bullock carts. So that when the big band strikes up the old barbaric march, and the thousands on the benches move themselves uneasily, and shout down greetings to their favorite fighters, you have a scene before you not to be forgotten.

The central idea of a bull-fight, the Spanish will tell the visitor, is to display the courage and dexterity of men. It is acknowledged that the bull is more than a man's match—the bull with his strength, ferocity and sharp horns, and the man alone, armed with a sleder sword. Again, it is essential that the bull should be killed with but one single stroke, given while the swordsman, the espada, faces him. This stroke must also be delivered in one special spot, behind the shoulders, to penetrate the heart. Should it glance and strike the lungs instead, so that the bull will drop blood from his mouth, the audience is disgusted, and expresses its disgust. All this is delicate and dangerous work, and it requires preparation to make conditions equal for both parties, man and bull. Besides there must be ceremony and a show. Out of these necessities the numerous and well-defined acts and scenes of a bull-fight take their due progression.

The bull must first be exercised before the audience, that they may take pleasure in his strength. The animal is noble, with a pedigree as long as that of many a Don. He is slender, with small hind-quarters and tremendous neck and shoulders. Nevertheless, he is rather small than large. His horns are straight and sharp; and he is quick, tricky and vicious. The ordinary bull-fighters, toreadores, flaunt their cloaks before his face and escape with difficulty, often being obliged to jump the fence around the ring. But for the poor horses there is no escape, and here is where the illness of the stranger takes its sudden rise.

The object of bringing in the horses, early in the game (poor broken-down old creatures), is really four-fold. It is first to exhibit the vigor of the bull, when he lifts and tosses them with the most abominable strength. Next, it is to tire the bull a little, so that it will not be impossible for a single man to face him, later on. Thirdly, it is to give the bull a smell of blood, that being naturally what he himself is fighting for. Lastly—it must be said, unhappily—it is to give the people themselves a sight of blood.

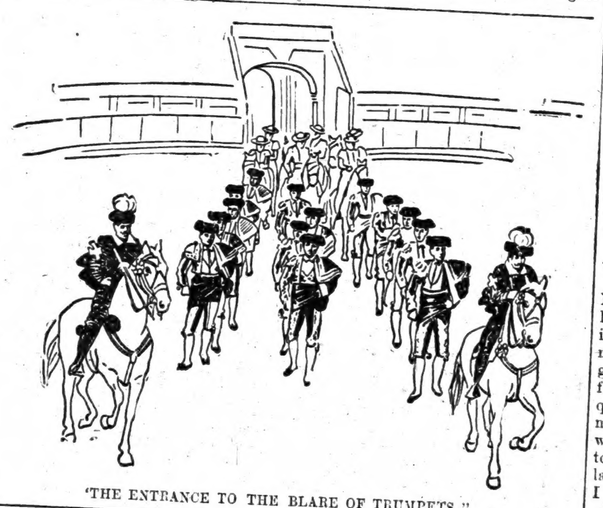
I believe this latter to be absolutely true, in spite of all denials of Spaniards. The audience seems to like the blood of mangled horses!

And now, while the bull is being taunted in the ring, almost at the beginning, the horses, blindfolded, are therefore being slowly ridden around to him. Upon them are mounted the most degraded of all bull-fighters, the picadores, so little-thought-of by the people themselves that the lowest, cheapest brand of Spanish cigarettes are called, with one consent, the picadores. It is the trade of these gentlemen—who ride in always, it is said, half drunk—to see that the bind-folded horses which they ride are properly ruined by the bull; it is their trade to spear the bull with a long lance, to irritate him, and to save themselves. They, themselves, are protected on the legs by iron sheathings. After two or four or even eight horses have been gored and tossed and tumbled, and are dragged away dead and bleeding, the trumpet sounds and a very different set of men dash into the wide bull-ring.



'THE ENTRANCE TO THE BLARE OF TRUMPETS."

These are the banderilleros. Each one of them has two be-ribboned darts, like little harpoons, in his hand, which he must fix in the bull's neck to pain him, to infuriate him, and to make him exhibit the agility of men.

It is a matter of no little skill and danger; if successful, it almost crazes the animal, giving him the maximum of ferocity with the minimum of strength. It is also one of the "prettiest" parts of the corrido de toros; for the bull comes on with a rush to these most nimble and courageous banderilleros, who often must evade him by a single inch. Each evasion and each trick of daring has its name, and is applauded or hissed by the excited thousands on the benches, according to the audacity, coolness and dexterity of the men, or the reverse.

These lively fellows, who take terrible risks, will seat themselves on chairs and let the bull come thundering down on them. Then at the very instant that he would strike them, toss them, mangle them, they rise, plant their harpoons into his neck, and leap aside. The bull must be content to toss the chair. Or they will take a long pole, and leap over the bull's back as he comes at them. Or they will kneel down on one knee, with grace, and tickle the puzzled beast upon his nose with a lace handkerchief and slip aside from him. Their harpoons, which they jab into his injured and insulted neck, should make him wild.

But if he does not show sufficient wildness, the people cry for "Fire!" And here it is too sickening and cowardly to proceed in detail. Sufficient it will be to say that there have been invented banderillas with firework attachments, that they may burn after they have been thrust into the bull's neck!

Enough. The time has now arrived for the great act of the matador, or the espada, the most important man, the high professional who has to kill a crazy bull, made monstrously wicked by ill-treatment and a thousand goadings. The bull is weakened, it is true, but he is still so dangerous that a mercenary show; and with the Spanish dons content to patronize it in the simple act of paying for their seats.

Romero found the national sport "degenerated" to a simple conflict between a bull and professional-without-a-profession. Apart from the lack of noble Spanish blood in the bull-fighter, the degeneracy appears to have consisted in an exchange of the heavy armor in which chivalry was wont to prudently envelop itself for the cheaper suit of padded leather and shirt of mail of the time and trade. Pedro Romero, first, threw aside every kind of protection, appearing as a gymnast, light, graceful and exact; and secondly, to counterbalance the obvious disadvantage, hit upon the device of "tiring out" the bull by a whole series of "preliminary exercises," to be performed by understudies. He invented, also, a new and very dangerous method of killing the animal, a single sword-blow, which must penetrate a certain spot behind the shoulder of the bull, while the bull-fighter perilously faced him. How much this was "degenerating" from the prudence of the old aristocrats who, in their knightly armor, speared the bull from the backs of their war-horses, and hacked at him, when unseated, with their battle-axes, is a question rather delicate than difficult to answer.

During the past twenty years two names have been all-powerful in the peninsula. Rafael Molina y Sanchez (called Lagartijo) and Salvador Sanchez (Frascuelo) have done for their trade what John L. Sullivan did for the fighting business in America. They refused to fight for the comparatively small pay of their predecessors, and by reason of their popularity were able to make extraordinary terms with the Spanish public and impresarios. The profession is grateful to them to-day, now that they are in their old age, and they are still called by courtesy the two stars of Spain. Lagartijo, in particular, was always a ferocious fellow, insisting that the public should have its full of blood and excitement.

Nowadays the success of the fighters does not depend so much on the applause of wealth and beauty in the boxes as it does on the fidelity of the respectable middle-class public in the reserved seats of the grada, to say nothing of the yelling populace on the stone benches immediately around the arena. As for the modern Spanish lover, he feels that he is doing a great deal when he pays the admission price to the grada for his sweetheart and her mother. The Spanish lover is, ordinarily, spoony, and the Spanish girl is seemingly—ordinarily, timid to a degree; the Spanish mother is very often pretentious, and the whole middle class and lower class population astonishingly democratic and outspoken.

This, then, is the bull-fight, and the spirit of the bull-fight audience. The audience is composed of every type of citizen—the respectable and good, as well as the depraved. Little children suck their oranges contentedly while the miserable horses are squealing with pain, their entrails protruding from their ruined bellies. It seems to be only a question of getting used to it. They say you can get used to anything.

EASY TO DEAL WITH A GIDDY BULL.

this regard all through the eighteenth century, there is reason to give the date of "the accession of the Bourbons" its mere sentimental value. The chronicles of the ring begin again in 1770, with the name of the plebeian Pedro Romero, with the Corrida de Toros in full swing as

YOUNG HERO OF SANTIAGO.

Charles Escudero, of Ohio, Age Fourteen, Carried Water to the Wounded on San Juan Hill.

Although Charles Escudero, fourteen years old, doesn't realize it yet, time will show that as the water boy of the Ninth Infantry in Cuba he was as much a hero as any man who carried a gun in the wild fight and fearless charge up San Juan hill. Charlie arrived at New York City, a few days ago, on the transport Louisiana and was shipped to his home, Columbus, Ohio, by the Children's Aid Society.

Charlie looked like a picturesque reconcentrado, wearing a regulation brown cavalry hat, an old brown jacket and a pair of trousers much the worse for the Santiago campaign. The remnants of the shoes that carried him up the rocky hill of San Juan held his feet, and a blue flannel shirt, much too large, was lapped about him.

His father was a bugler in the Ninth Infantry, which Charlie managed to join at Tampa. There he was smuggled on a transport, and when he got to Cuba he was told he might act as water boy for the Ninth Infantry.

He was in all the fighting at Santiago and wherever there was a man of the Ninth with his gun there the water boy went at the call of the soldier.

Charlie is modest in his stories of what he did at San Juan hill.

"I carried water to the soldiers. My father is a bugler and I was with him nights. When there was fighting I had to work. When I saw our men getting killed I wished I had a gun, but I had to carry water. I had four canteens. One held about two quarts. The men firing would see me and yell to ask if I'd got any water. If they were all empty I went to the creek and filled them. At the last it got a long way to go. 'Wasn't I afraid?' I just thought I'd get killed, and we'd all get killed that day, the bullets came so thick. I saw men I knew get hit.

"I kept run of my father by the bugle, mostly. Did I see many wounded? Yes, I carried water to 'em when I could. Sometimes I had to pour it into their mouths, but most of the men I saw wounded were able to get on their elbows to drink.

"I've got plenty of relics for my mother—Spanish cartridges and other Spanish relics. I'm going back to school. I'm in the fifth grade."

The boy seems to have suddenly become aged by his experiences. He is only a little chap, with big brown eyes and long lashes, and he says he does so want to see his mother and sisters.

Consumption of Coal.

The consumption of coal per head of population is lowest in Austria, where it is only one-sixth ton per annum, and highest in Great Britain, where each person averages three and three-tenths tons each year. In the United States the average is two and one-fourth tons a year.

15,000 DERVISHES KILLED.

Abdullah's Army of 60,000 Bravely Fought the Anglo-Egyptian Forces.

DESPERATE FIGHTING IN THE SOUDAN

Description of the Great Battle in General Kitchener's Campaign—The Dervishes Undismayed by the Slaughter Advanced to Death.

OMDURMAN, Opposite Khartoum on the Nile, Nubia. The Sirdar, General Sir Herbert Kitchener, with the Khalifa's black standard, captured during the battle, entered Omdurman, the capital of Mahdism Wednesday, at the head of the Anglo-Egyptian column after completely routing the Dervishes and dealing a death blow to Mahdism.

The day previous to the fighting the Anglo-Egyptian army encamped at Agaiza, eight miles from Omdurman. The Dervishes were three miles distant. At dawn the following day our cavalry, patrolling toward Omdurman, discovered the enemy advancing to the attack in battle array, chanting war songs. Their front consisted of infantry and cavalry, stretched out for three or four miles. Countless banners fluttered over their masses and the copper and brass drums resounded through the serried ranks of the savage warriors, who advanced unwaveringly with all their old-time ardor. Our infantry formed up outside the camp.

At 7:20 a. m. the enemy crowded the ridges above the camp and advanced steadily in enveloping formation. At 7:40 our artillery opened fire, which was answered by the Dervish riflemen.

The attack developed on our left, and, in accordance with their traditional tactics, they swept down the hillside with the design of rushing our flank. But the withering fire maintained for fifteen minutes by all our line frustrated the attempt and the Dervishes balked, swept toward our center, upon which they concentrated a fierce attack. A large force of horsemen, trying to face a continuous hail of bullets from the Cameron Highlanders, the Lincolnshire regiment and the Soudanese, was literally swept away, leading to the withdrawal of the entire force, whose dead strewed the field. The bravery of the Dervishes can hardly be overstated.

When the Dervishes withdrew from the ridge in front of their camp the whole force marched in echelon of battalions toward Omdurman. As our troops surmounted the crest adjoining the Nile the Soudanese on our right came in contact with the enemy, who again bore down on the Soudanese 15,000 strong, but the flower of the khalifa's army was caught in the depression and within a zone of withering cross-fire from three brigades with the attendant artillery. The devoted Mahdists strove heroically to made headway, but every rush was stopped. Finally they broke and fled, leaving the field white with Jibbah-clad corpses, like a snow drift dotted meadow.

It is estimated that 15,000 of the enemy were slain. Our total casualties were about 500. Besides Colonel Rhodes another correspondent was slightly wounded. Mr. Howard, the New York Herald correspondent, was slain by a shell in Omdurman.

APPALLING DISASTER.

Trolley Car Loaded With Picknickers Struck by Locomotive—Many Killed.

An appalling disaster occurred in Cohoes, N. Y., Monday night. A trolley car of the Troy City Railway company was struck by the night boat special of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad at a crossing at the east end of the Hudson river bridge, which connects this city with Lansingburg, and its human freight was hurled into the air. Eighteen of the thirty-five passengers were killed and at least ten of the remainder will die.

Alabama Negroes Sick at Pana, Ill.

A number of Alabama negroes who took the places of the striking coal miners near Pana, Ill., have contracted malarial fever, half a dozen cases being reported. It is said all the sewerage from Pana empties into a pond near the mines, and it is feared the negro quarters will become a pest hole in a few days.

Cubans Surrendering.

Two hundred Cubans surrendered their arms and asked for rations at Santiago Monday. The Cubans say their forces in Santiago province are suffering for want of provisions. Gen. Lawton has replied that he will ration all men who will return to town and give up their arms. He believes it will not be long before most Cubans have given up their fight for recognition and have returned to their homes.

Spanish Methods.

According to advices from Iliolt, General Rios, of the Vizcaya, is arresting and shooting suspected persons, including prominent natives of Manila.

Hobson's Future Work.

Naval Constructor Hobson will again be in charge of the course of naval architecture at the Annapolis naval academy, where the cadets have been pursuing their studies preparatory to being assigned at the end of three years to the construction corps.

Cervera Leaves Thursday.

It is understood that Cervera and the other Spanish prisoners will leave Annapolis Thursday morning. Capt. Eulate has secured the City of Rome, of the American line, as a transport.

Heroes of War.

From the Chicago Times-Herald.

The feeling of admiration for heroes of war seems to be innate in the human heart, and is brought to the surface as the opportunity and object for such hero worship presents itself.

Among those who proved their heroism during our Civil War was A. Schiffeneder, of 161 Sedgwick street, Chicago. He is an Austrian by birth, came to America at the age of twenty and soon became an American citizen. He was living in Milwaukee when the call for volunteers came, early in 1862, and he promptly enlisted in Company A, of the Twenty-sixth Wisconsin Volunteers. In the Army of the Potomac our hero saw much fighting, campaigning in the Shenandoah Valley.

He received a wound.

In the first day's fighting at the battle of Gettysburg, Schiffeneder received a wound in the right side, which afterward caused him much trouble. With a portion of his regiment he was captured and imprisoned at Bell Island and Andersonville, and afterward exchanged. He returned to his regiment, which was transferred to the army of General Sherman, and marched with him through Georgia to the sea.

In this campaign Mr. Schiffeneder's old wound began to trouble him and he was sent to the hospital and then home. He had also contracted catarrh of the stomach and found no relief for years.

"I happened to read an account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People about a year ago," he said, "and thought that they might be good for my trouble. I concluded to try them. I bought one box and began to take them according to directions. They gave me great relief. After finishing that box I bought another, and when I had taken the pills I felt that I was cured. I recovered my appetite and ate heartily. I can testify to the good the pills did me."

Mr. Schiffeneder is a prominent Grand Army man in Chicago, whither he moved some years ago with his family.

WASPS ASSIST IN A TRAGEDY.

Caesar's Death Scene Was Acted with Great Feeling.

"One of the most comical experiences in the history of the stage," said a local manager the other day to a Cleveland Leader man, "befell a company not long ago in a northern New York town. The company was playing 'Julius Caesar' and at the last moment it was found that the property man had failed to send up the regular throne chair used in the senate scene and an old rustic chair was hastily procured from the loft of the theater and after being covered with draping was pressed into service. In the midst of the scene a large wasp's nest was discovered attached to the chair and its inhabitants, becoming indignant at the disturbance they had suffered, began to swarm about the stage seeking revenge upon the Romans in their low-necked and short-sleeved dresses. The wasps seemed to be particularly offended with Caesar and it is doubtful if Caesar's death scene was ever acted with more feeling, for at the moment he was being pierced by the conspirators' daggers the wasps were most industrious in their work.

"In the tent scene where Caesar appears to Brutus, one might almost have doubted its being the true Caesar. It was the same in form and dress, but the face was no longer the same. In the last act Brutus had one eye closed, Antony a swollen lip, Cassius an enlarged chin, Lucius an inequality in the size of his hands and Octavius Caesar a nose that would have done service as the famous nose of Bardolph in 'Henry IV.'

"The tragedy came very near becoming a roaring comedy, when the leading man, as Cassius said: 'Antony, the posture of your blows is yet unknown,' but for your words, they rob the Hybla bees and leave them honeyless,' and Antony replied: 'Not stingless, too.'"

In Love with Celebrities.

Frivolous as the French are supposed to be, they take love, or what passes for it, very seriously on occasion. A French specialist in lunacy has been giving some information about the insane men and women who follow celebrities about and fall in love with them. The doctor has to send two or three women of this sort to asylums every month, and nothing is known of the cases by the public. Good looking priests, members of Parliament who make good speeches in the chamber, authors and handsome actors, are notably marks for the attention of such women. The actors, like the priests, have often been threatened by their jealous admirers, who are not content to worship at a distance, like the American matinee girl. Actresses, too, have their dangerous admirers. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has sometimes to be watched over very carefully. Her worshipers secrete themselves in all sorts of places in order to see her enter or leave her theater or her residence. The special detectives have had to interfere on two noted occasions, in order to save the famous actress from the bullets or the daggers of maniacs who resolved to injure or kill her because she refused to respond to their declarations of love.

Spanish Commissioners Selected.

It is currently reported in Madrid that the Spanish ministers at Saturday's cabinet meeting definitely selected the three following peace commissioners: Gen. Rafael Cuerero y Saenz, general of engineers; Senor Eugenio Montero Rios; Senor Villaurutia, under secretary of state for foreign affairs.

HAIR AND WAGES.

Necessary to Dye the One to Live by the Other.

It would be humorous—were it not so pathetic—to learn that the dyeing of the hair is not confined, in England, to the woman with the peroxided locks, but is a habit rendered necessary by fierce labor competition to the working man, whose gray hairs would handicap him against younger candidates for employment.

That the working man who is getting on in years does have to resort to artificial aids to rejuvenate his appearance was made very clear to a London Daily Mail reporter, whose investigations led him to inquire of some of the chemists who sell the dyes.

Mr. Black, the manager of Day's drug store, High street, Whitechapel, said: "It is absolutely true that there is a very large demand for hair dyes among the men working in the factories and wholesale houses in this neighborhood. The sale of hair dyes is brisker during the busy season of the factories than at any other time. The foreign element in this district, and throughout London, is so eager to work at a reduced wage, that the Englishman whose hair is turning has very little chance. The slightest suspicion of gray hair is sufficient to cause the rejection of his application. It is a well known thing, and a great shame, that men who are able bodied, active, with experience in the work which they are seeking, are constantly refused because they are 'grayheads.' The bosses are like the children of Biblical notoriety who derided Elisha. We are selling about fifteen bottles a week just now, but the average of weekly sales during the year would give a higher figure. The men are generally between thirty-five and fifty, but all our clients are Englishmen. Our particular prescription has become so popular that we have christened it Charlie's Fancy." The dye remains good from a week to a fortnight, according to the amount of grayness, but many of our customers make a regular weekly purchase. The men are very shy and sensitive about it. They call me aside for a private chat, and it is always 'for my friend outside.' We are constantly being asked curious questions. But one striking feature in the sale of hair dye is the popularity it meets among Hebrew women."

The manager of the Aldgate drug stores, Whitechapel, was able to confirm from personal evidence the accuracy of the story.

"The most popular shade is brown, from medium to dark brown. Black is too dark. The man doesn't aspire to be a Romeo, but just to possess a serviceable color which will stand a week's wear. Some of the men work in the city and the West End, and live about this vicinity because it is cheaper. The majority are factory hands, who are afraid they will lose their places if their hair becomes gray. Foreigners are so numerous here that there are a hundred desirous to work at a lower wage should there be a chance."

"GOVERNMENT LOTTERIES."

An Item of Public Revenue in Many Countries—Spain's Great Expectations.

In the Prussian budget of receipts and expenditures for 1898 is one item which must seem rather unusual to American financiers—$2,000,000 marks the equivalent of about $20,000,000 from authorized government lotteries. In Prussia the lottery is operated under the direct authority of the state. There are a number of prizes of 500,000 marks, and it is an annual affair in the line of revenue raising. In Italy this year in the annual budget for 1898 was the item of revenue 65,000,000 lire from lotteries, about equivalent to $13,000,000 in American money and it is somewhat curious that in nearly every country of Europe, with the exception of France and Belgium, lotteries as a means of revenue raising are the rule rather than the exception.

Denmark made last year a profit on its lotteries—a net profit over and above expenses—of 1,000,000 crowns; equivalent to about $400,000. In Holland, too, there is a state lottery, the net proceeds of which are figured each year at 650,000 guilders, or about $300,000. Portugal is another European country which recruits its revenues from this source. In the year 1897 the Portuguese lottery gained 1,750,000 milreis (nearly $2,000,000). But Portugal has at least some justification in its adherence to lotteries by reason of the fact that the finances of that country are in an unsettled condition, that creditors are pressing against it, and that the expenditures have for a number of years exceeded considerably the revenues.

In the European countries lotteries are state monopolies, as much as the sale of stamps or of cigars and tobacco, and the government makes usually a considerable profit from them. The Spaniards are great believers in the advantages offered by lotteries, and the financial plight of that country now being most serious, there will be started soon under the auspices of the Spanish government a great lottery scheme, the receipts of which, minus the prizes, will be turned over to the government for its needs. Circulars are being sent out, and it is expected that 7,000,000,000 pesetas, or about $100,000,000 will be netted for the government. There are five capital prizes of 500,000 pesetas each.

A conscience-stricken resident of a small town in Maine recently sent ten worthless postage stamps to Secretary Gage, at Washington, with the explanation that they were to replace stamps which, being imperfectly cancelled, he had unlawfully used a second time.

Profit from Waste.

A novel scheme has been adopted in the public schools of Brussels. Some time ago the teachers requested the children to collect and bring to school such apparently useless articles, found on the streets, as metallic bottle capsules, tin foil, old paint tubes, and any refuse metals. In ten months the joint collection represented about three tons weight. Out of the proceeds of this apparent rubbish five hundred children were completely clothed, and fifty sick ones sent to convalescent homes, while there was a balance which went to the sick poor. The scheme has been so successful that it is being adopted in other towns on the continent.

Inexpensive and Effectual.

When the cycling season is over, the gay Parisienne, seeking a safe retreat in which she may store her wheel until the springtime comes again, simply pawns it. The "Mont de Piete" affords an effectual and inexpensive means of storing one's bicycle when not required for use. Effectual, because the institution is under State control, and the authorities bind themselves to keep the machine safely; inexpensive, because the cost of storage for four months is only two to three francs. Lucky people, those Parisians, to be able to house their wheels on such terms.

Her View and His.

She—What an imposing figure Maj Borrows has.

He—Oh, yes; naturally so.

She—And why naturally?

He—He's always imposing on some one.

Transplanting Wild Flowers.

In digging the wild flowers, especially those having bulbous roots, be careful to go deep enough to get all of the roots. Leave as much soil clinging to the roots as possible, and after wrapping them in damp moss or grass, roll the plants up in paper to exclude the air. Gather a basketful of leaf mold from under the trees where no grass grows, the first inch of the ground being the best, and use this freely in making up the bed for the reception of the wild flowers. After planting them in their new quarters, water liberally and shade from the sun for a week or more. A rather shaded location should always be selected.—Woman's Home Companion.

YOUNG AT SIXTY.

Serene comfort and happiness in advanced years are realized by comparatively few women.

Their hard lives, their liability to serious troubles on account of their peculiar organism and their profound ignorance concerning themselves, all combine to shorten the period of usefulness and fill their later years with suffering.

Mrs. Pinkham has done much to make women strong. She has given advice to many that has shown them how to guard against disease and retain vigorous health in old age. From every corner of the earth there is constantly coming the most convinciug statements from women, showing the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in overcoming female ills. Here is a letter from Mrs. J. C. Orms, of 220 Horner St., Johnstown, Pa., which is earnest and straight to the point:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to tell all suffering women that I think your remedies are wonderful. I had trouble with my head, dizzy spells and hot flashes. Feet and hands were cold, was very nervous, could not sleep well, had kidney trouble, pain in ovaries and congestion of the womb. Since taking your remedies I am better every way. My head trouble is all gone, have no pain in ovaries, and am cured of womb trouble. I can eat and sleep well and am gaining in flesh. I consider your medicine the best to be had for female troubles."

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalelled, for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, treating by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

Climbing Up and Down Stairs

CARRYING heavy burdens, washing, ironing, scrubbing and other laborious duties are productive of an enormous amount of suffering among women who are already weak and prostrated by the ravages of female diseases. The performance of these heavy labors is obligatory to many women, but the suffering is not. This feature of the household burdens may soon be removed if women will only take the trouble to learn how. A few bottles of MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. ROZENA LEWIS, of Ocnsville, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

The Congressional convention of the People's Party of the Fourth District of Alabama met at Talladega yesterday. Chairman I. E. Watson opened the proceedings and appointed Mr. Wilson of Shelby, temporary chairman. Mr. Street of Talladega was elected secretary and Mr. Dodson, of Clebourne, assistant secretary. A committee on credentials was appointed and reported all the counties in the district represented. Then the temporary organization was made the permanent organization.

The committee on resolutions reported.

1. We affirm the principles of the People's Party as declared in the Omaha and St. Louis platforms.

2. We endorse the course of Hon. W. F. Aldrich in Congress.

3. We commend the administration of President McKinley for the satisfactory prosecution of the war with Spain.

Hon. W. F. Aldrich was unanimously endorsed as our candidate for congress and the convention pledged itself to do everything possible to elect him, and adjourned.

Randolph, Ala., Sept, 10 1898

Editor Banner—In reply to L. H. Reynolds we don't want any stock law. I have talked with this entire country and have found one man for that law. No, the people elected Mr. Reynolds believing that he was opposed to stock law. As for the road law, we keep up the roads by working them at leisure times. In these times we could not make money to pay taxes to keep up the roads. Now, the writer who said 15 cents each a year would keep up the roads is sadly mistaken. As for the bull and boar law, it will be for the best for the reason we can't improve our stock when scrubs run at large. As for the dog law, it will be for the best, as some will keep three or four half starved dogs to kill sheep and suck eggs, etc. As for the school law, anything to better it. Now, Mr. Editor, I have written as short as I can to express the will of the people.

S. E. Waldrup.

Jemison, Sept. 12, 1898

Death is said to be a cruel foe, though often it comes and relieves a suffering mortal.

Thus it was on the 8th of September, 1898, Mrs. Mollie Barnes at their home in Jemison was called to leave her husband and tender little daughter, five years old, one devoted sister and four brothers. Mrs. Barnes told them a few hours ere the spirit took its Heavenward flight, that she was going home. Her whole life was characteristic of a gentle, sweet disposition, preferring the happiness of others before self. To know her was to love her. She had long been a lovely member of the M. E. church. To offer sympathy to the bereaved seems like mockery in their grief, yet it is a duty we owe to our friends. Sometimes a tender word, a look that bespeaks warmth and love, lightens the weight which presses so heavily on the very vitals of our life.

"We will meet beyond the river, where the billows cease to roll." Dear one adieu till then.

Mrs. I. C.

West Chilton, Sept. 12, 1898.

More roads and better roads; more bulls and better bulls. In reply to Mr. L. H. Reynold's letter of Aug. 28th will say that Chilton county does not need any bull law at all. We need more bulls and free bulls to run at liberty. A bull law might suit a few men about Jemison and Clanton, but away from those places it would not. There is too many cattle running at large in Chilton for a bull law, and a bull law would be too much against the poor people. I hope the people of Chilton will consider this matter, and object to it and contest it, for we don't need any such foolish law.

And now in regard to the road laws. We need an amendment to the road law; we need more roads and better roads in Chilton county, and we need a law that would compel the overseers to have more work done on the roads every year. I know of some roads in Chilton that are nearly impossible to travel. Chilton county needs the Dallas county road law. A good portion of our overseers are too slack.

We need a dog law worse than we need a bull law; there are too many dogs and not enough sheep.

Old Mike.

A CRITICAL TIME

During the Battle of Santiago

SICK OR WELL, A RUSH NIGHT AND DAY

The Packers at the Battle of Santiago de Cuba were all Heroes. Their Heroic Efforts in Getting Ammunition and Rations to the Front Saved the Day.

P. E. Butler, of pack train No. 3 writing from Santiago, De Cuba, on July 23d, says: "We all had diarrhoea in more or less violent form, and when we landed we had no time to see a doctor, for it was a cause of rush and rush night and day to keep the troops supplied with ammunition and rations, but thanks to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, we were able to keep at work and keep our health; in fact, I sincerely believe that at one critical time this medicine was the indirect saviour of our army, for if the packers had been unable to work there would have been no way of getting supplies to the front. There were no roads that a wagon train could use. My comrade and myself had the good fortune to lay in a supply of this medicine for our pack-train before we left Tampa and I know it, four cases it absolutely saved life."

The above letter was written to the manufacturers of this medicine, the Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by Dr. J. S. Johnson, jr.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

CLANTON, - ALABAMA

Spain ought to be considered pretty good authority now on submarine boats.

Many of the tragedies of war pale before the tribulations and despairing experiences of the peaceful Klondike gold seekers.

The London Statist, a paper of the highest authority on financial subjects, forecasts the American business future as one of unbounded prosperity.

It is stated that the merchandise carried by rail in the United States is double the amount of land carriage of all the other nations of the earth combined. This means that the 70,000,000 people of the United States transport twice as much merchandise as the remaining 1,400,000,000 of mankind.

New York is far ahead of all the other states in the amount of money in savings banks, its banks holding on the first day of this year $718,176,889. Massachusetts follows, with 453,220,257, and then comes Connecticut, with $149,496,556, and California, with $127,929,281. The figures of savings deposits of all the New England states speaks volumes for Yankee industry, economy and thrift. Thus, the minute state of Rhode Island has $68,683,698; Maine, $57,476,896; New Hampshire, $49,493,056, and Vermont, $32,600,627.

The record of the torpedoboat Porter is remarkable. Although not intended for sea service, she was kept at sea for three months and weathered the storms with the best of them. Although not intended for long range fighting, she took part in the bombardment of San Juan de Porto Rico. But if her record marks the utmost of achievement of torpedoboat efficiency it also marks the limitations of this arm of the service. On neither side has the torpedoboat done any harm to the enemy, and a single, well-directed shot at the Porter would have disposed of her as effectively as the Spanish torpedoboat destroyers were disposed of off Santiago, before they could get within double their torpedo range of our ships.

So far Southern manufacturers of cotton have been mainly confined to the coarser yarns and ruder fabrics, but in this they have made astonishingly rapid progress. To take the example of a single state, North Carolina had in 1886 eighty cotton mills; in 1897 it had 1010. In the first named year it had 4071 looms, with 199,433 spindles; in the latter, 24,517 looms and 1,044,385 spindles. Some of the other cotton-growing states are not far behind, and with abundant water-power, cheap coal and extremely cheap labor the development of the business there is certain to continue and to display results as surprising as the last decade has shown. By and by the mills there will be able to do finer work, and some time — who knows? they may control the markets of the world with their home-grown and home-woven fabrics, thinks the New York Tribune.

One result of the war with Spain will be to enhance the value of American citizenship in the eyes of the world, predicts the New York Mail and Express. Hereafter the American flag and the American citizen will be respected abroad as they have never been before. Among all but the best educated and most traveled classes we have always had the reputation of being a nation of shopkeepers, shrewd, boastful, vulgar, but of little account outside of commercial transactions. They know better now. The extraordinary, almost miraculous, successes of our navy riveted the eyes of the world in admiration or in fear. The rapidity with which we have evolved an army of a quarter million of men from a state of unpreparedness has also impressed the nations, while the brave, fierce fighting of our rawleries before Santiago has been officially reported to every great power of Europe in words of unstinted praise. With the news of the terrible effectiveness of our army and navy have gone also the reports of the ease with which a great government loan has been placed in sums less than $5000, with five times the amount of the desired loan offered, but not accepted. More than all, the nations have been impressed with our magnanimity and the generous treatment of our prisoners. The American citizen will hereafter, when traveling abroad, be treated with a degree of courtesy and respect that he has never known before.

DEWEY WANTS MORE SHIPS

Situation in the Philippines in Considered Critical.

GENENAL AGUINALDO IS INTERVIEWED.

Wants Absolute Independence—Natives Do Not Want Annexation to the United States—Rebels in Control of the Islands.

MANILLA. — Rear Admiral Dewey considers the situation critical. It is understood that he has asked for an additional cruiser and battleship.

The Spaniards assert that Germany willl take a coaling station here and that Spain will retain the islands.

The last Spanish garrison at Illocos and Laguna have surrendered and the whole island of Luzon is in the hands of the insurgents, except at Manila and Cavite.

Aguinaldo went to Telollos on Friday. He has announced his intention of convening an assembly of the Philipinos in September in order to decide upon the policy to be adopted by the insurgents.

The correspondent of the Associated Press has had an interview with Aguinaldo, who said:

"Indeed, the whole population on the Philippine islands was willing to fight for their independence."

Continuing, Aguinaldo said he had 9,000 military prisoners, including 5,000 in the vicinity of Manila, besides civil prisoners.

Later Aguinaldo said the "provisional government" was now operating twenty-eight provinces. He asserted that on August 2 they elected delegates in numbers proportionate to the population.

As to the Americans, he said that he considered them as brothers, and that "The two sovereign republics were allied against a common enemy."

Aguinaldo has persistently demanded, in terms not too polite, various impossible concessions; for example, an occupation of the governor-general's palace and other palaces, a written assurance that the insurgents will be permitted to occupy permanently their military positions around Manila, and protection for the insurgent vessels by the American fleet—with many other claims, including an innocent demand for a share of the booty captured by the Americans at Manila.

After a careful review of the situation, General Otis arrived at the logical conclusion that the insurgents have no right to occupy the suburbs of Manila, and that Aguinaldo's claims have the support of neither equity or reason. He has, therefore, categorically refused to consider Aguinaldo's demands, and sent him an ultimatum, in terms plainly comprehensible and authoritative, that he must withdraw his troops from the suburbs before the 15th or suffer the consequences of refusal.

Burned or Massacred.

The correspondent of the London Times at Candia, island of Crete, who has just landed after five days in the roadstead, says:

"About 600 men, women and children were either burned alive or massacred in the outbreak last week. The Turkish troops are now patrolling and blocking up the streets. The Musselmans are ransacking the ruins of the burned quarters of the town, where devastation is complete. Blood is visible everywhere. Such bodies of the slain as were not burned were removed in carts and buried outside the town limits.

Killed His Best Friend.

Private A. W. Sullivan killed Private Arthur Burns at the First Georgia camp at Knoxville, Tenn., Sunday night. The men were drinking and quarreled in their tent. Sullivan was turned over to the civil authorities. He is in jail, a raving maniac, having killed his best friend. Both men belonged to the Macon, Ga., company.

Arizona Town Wiped Out by Fire.

The town of Jerome, Arizona, was completely wiped out by fire, entailing a loss of over $1,000,000 in property. Eleven bodies have so far been recovered, while a score or more are said to be in the ruins or missing.

Shot by a Guard.

Private Joseph S. Mouser, of the Third Texas regiment, while in St. Louis en route home, was shot down by Guard Bridgewater, at the command of Captain Shields, of Company M. Mouser was intoxicated, and becoming boisterous, was reproved by Captain Shields. This enraged him, and drawing a knife, said he would settle with the captain, and made a lunge at the captain, whereupon Bridgewater fired the fatal shot.

Cotton Mills to Resume.

There will be a general resumption of work by the cotton mills of Fall River, Mass., this week.

Farmers Will Plant Wheat.

Commissioner of Agriculture Culver says the farmers of Alabama are going to plant wheat next year. He has been busy filling orders for the grain recently. He says he is willing to get all that is wanted for those who intend raising their own wheat next year.

Shooting at Goodwater.

At Goodwater, Dick Allen and L. W. Allen, brothers, shot and seriously wounded M. F. Ray, of Columbus, Ga. Four balls took effect and the wounds may prove fatal.

SCHOONER PLATT LOST.

Search Reveals Evidence That She Went Down in the Recent Gale.

A Brunswick, Ga., special says that Postmaster Symons, who chartered a tug and went in search of the schooner John H. Platt, which was in the terrible storm of August 30, has returned to Brunswick with unmistakable evidence of the ship's loss with all on board. Postmaster Symons' son was a passenger on board the Platt. A brother of Captain Townsend, of the schooner Jessie C. Woodhull, accompanied Mr. Symons, and he is confident that his brother's ship has met the same fate. A total of twenty persons were aboard the two lost ships.

TO ABANDON CAMP WIKOFF.

Peremtory Orders From General Miles to Send Soldiers Home.

A dispatch from Camp Wikoff says: Under peremptory orders from General Miles preparations are being made to break up this camp at once by sending home all the soldiers here. This is entirely contrary to what has been the understanding of the officers in command. General Shafter said last week that 6,000 or 7,000 men would be kept here at least until October, and this was supposed to have been the order of Secretary Alger. An officer said that when General Miles' order came a telegram was sent him saying that his order was contrary to that of Secretary Alger and Miles replied: "Never mind what Alger says; I am in command now."

H. C. Tompkins Dies Suddenly.

Col. Henry C. Tompkins, one of the most prominent lawyers of Montgomery, fell dead in his office Monday. He had been seen on the streets half an hour before, in admirable spirits and apparently in robust health. Just as he was seating himself at his desk he was stricken by heart failure and collapsed. A physician was hastily summoned, but his efforts were unavailing, and the unfortunate gentleman died within a few minutes. Acute indigestion is supposed to have superinduced the attack.

Powers' Flags Hoisted Over Candia.

VIENNA.—According to a dispatch received here from Canea, Island of Crete, the troops of the various powers have hoisted their flags over the town walls of Candia, and the admirals have sent an ultimatum to the deputy governor and the Turkish commandant demanding that all arms be laid down by 5 o'clock Saturday evening. The warships, it is added, are in readiness to resume the bombardment of the place.

Republican Ticket Elected.

The election in Maine Monday resulted in the success of the full republican ticket, as follows: Governor, Llewellyn L. Powers; Congressman First district, Thomas B. Reed, of Portland; Second district, Nelson Dingley, of Lewiston; Third district, E. C. Burleigh, of Augusta; Fourth district, Charles A. Boutelle, of Bangor. The state elected a solid republican delegation to congress.

A Murderer Lynched.

Ernest Anderson, a negro, was taken from the jail at Sulligent, Ala., Sunday morning early by a mob, and his body was left swinging to a tree—riddled with bullets. He was the negro who murdered Officer Sam Henson over a week ago. Both of his ears were cut off close to his head before he was taken from the jail down into the river bottom—the scene of the lynching.

A City Destroyed by Fire.

A dispatch from Vancouver, B. C., Monday says: New Westminister, the chief city on the Frazer river, presents a fearful scene of desolation, fire having wiped out the whole of the business portion. There is not a public building standing in the central portion of the city. The loss is roughly estimated at $2,500,000, with insurance of $1,500,000.

Kentuckians Fight It Out.

At Deer Ridge, Ky., an old feud between neighboring farmers was wiped out in blood. It was father and son on each side, reinforced by their respective farm hands. At least 100 rounds were fired. Joseph Michaels, Jr., and James McCray were killed and James Watson and Ben Michaels, Sr., will probably die.

PROTCOL RATIFIED

By the Spanish Senate—U. S. Censured for Seizing the Antilles.

MADRID.—The senate has adopted the Hispano-American protocol by a sitting and standing vote. During the senate session Senor Lastres, of Porto Rico, and Senor Pinedo, of Cuba, violently attacked the United States "for having seized the Antilles, regardless of justice and legality," and for "discarding the mask of humanity assumed in order to get possession of the islands, the great majority of whose people is devoted to Spain.

GOVERNMENT TAKES STAND

No Food or Subsistence to Be Issued to Cuban Army.

THE FRENCH HAVE OCCUPIED FASHODA.

Close Race in First Alabama District. Miss Winnie Davis Gradually Sinking—Lawton's Bill of Health. Other News Items.

The government at Washington has assumed a stand upon the matter of supplying food to the Cuban insurgents. Recently M. Bolonzo made a request upon General Lawton at Santiago that certain Cuban troops at Dos Caminos and Cobre be supplied with food.

This application was in turn submitted to the war department by General Lawton. It is now learned that the matter was submitted directly to President McKinley, who responded through General Corbin that no subsistence or stores would be issued to any armed troops other than those of the United States, the law providing that provisions be issued only to inhabitants of Cuba who are in immediate danger of perishing unless they relieve them. This decision is expected to hasten the disarmament of the Cuban forces in all parts of the island.

KITCHENER WILL INVESTIGATE

Report That the French Have Occupied Fashoda.

A cable dispatch from Omdurman dated September 7 says: An important incident occurred this morning. It appears that the khalifa, Abdullah, a few days before the arrival here of the Anglo-Egyptian army, heard that a force of white men had occupied Fashoda, a town on the west bank of the White Nile, about 400 miles south of Khartoum. The khalifa immediately sent two steamers to investigate the report, and one of them returned and surrendered to General Sir Herbert Kitchener. The commander of the stemaer reported that on his arrival at Fashoda he found that place occupied by a force of whites. The latter opened a heavy fire on the steamer, which narrowly escaped annihilation, the crew losing many men in killed and wounded. From the bullets found imbedded in the hull of the steamer it seems to be certain that the white at Fashoda are a force of French troops. The British commander will send a flotilla of gunboats up the White Nile as soon as possible, in order to investigate the situation of affairs at Fashoda.

NECK AND NECK

Run the Two Taylors for Congress in the First Alabama District.

The situation in the First district remains intensely interesting, both of the Taylors claiming the democratic congressional nomination. One vote for either man will make him a congressman. Marengo, Monroe and Clarke counties, with twenty-five votes, are instructed for G. W. Taylor. Mobile's seventeen and Choctaw's six are for Hannis Taylor. The result in Washington, the smallest county in the district, has excited intense interest. Its three votes are claimed by both candidates.

FOUR HUNDRED CORPSES FOUND.

Another Bombardment of Candia Is Imminent.

ATHENS.—News was received here from Candia Friday evening that another bombardment was imminent. The fires continue. Four hundred deaths are already attested. Martial law has been proclaimed.

Horrible stories of atrocity were told by the refugees from Candia. They say the Bashibazouks cut open the bodies of their Christian victims on the first day of the outbreak and threw their entrals into the flames of the burning houses. They hurled the British vice-consul bodily into the flames, shouting, "Now let the English come help him."

CANDIA.—The daughter of the massacred English vice-consul, with her baby has disappeared. It is supposed that both have been massacred.

The foreign admirals have requested the powers to send battalions to reinforce the international garrison. On the request of the admirals the Cretan executive committee has succeeded in inducing the Christian insurgents in Candia to retire outside the cordon.

Djevan Pasha, the Turkish military commandant, says he has given the Turkish military authorities at Candia strict instructions to assist in maintaining order. He insists that the Bashibazouks are responsible for the outbreaks. Friday twenty-one additional bodies of Christians were discovered under some outlying ruins at Candia. The British admiral, it is said, has demanded the disarmament of the Mussulman.

INVESTIGATING COMMISSION

Appointed by the President to Inspect General Department of the Army.

WASHINGTON.—President McKinley has tendered places on the proposed commission to investigate the war department in relation to the conduct of the Hispano-American war to Major-General Schofield, former commanding-general of the army, and Ex-Senator John B. Gordon, of Georgia.

It is said that the proposed commission for the investigation of the affairs of the war department has been under consideration for some time by the president. Just what its duties will be when appointed has not been definitely determined, but it can be stated that one reason for its creation will be to visit and report upon the conditions in the various army camps and to satisfy the anxious relatives of soldiers that the care that is being taken of them is the best that can be afforded and if not to ascertain what should be done and report to the war department.

PORTO RICAN COMMISSIONS MEET.

Americans Send Note to Macias and Receive Reply.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico.—The American evacuation commissioners, at a meeting held Friday, decided to notify Captain-General Macias that they were present and ready to proceed with business. A communication to this effect was drafted in most courteous terms. It asked where and when the Spanish commissioners would meet the Americans. The American commission received a reply from Captain-General Macias saying the Spanish evacuation commissioners would be ready to meet the Americans at the palace Saturday morning. The thirty days expire on Sunday and the Spaniards must be prepared to proceed on that date or they must explain matters.

WILL FEED CUBANS.

But They Must Lay Down Their Arms and Retire to Their Homes.

As announced in a dispatch from Santiago a few days ago, General Lawton, Military Governor of Santiago Province, will furnish food to such of the Cuban insurgents as lay down their arms and return to their homes. It was also said that he had given employment to such men of the Cuban army as could be utilized.

This plan of General Lawton has been approved by the Administration. It is believed that his action will have a tendency to turn the Cubans into peaceful walks of life.

Comparison of Normal Schools taken from the State Superintendent's Report to L. M. Curry, Peabody Fund Agent, August, 1898:

NORMAL SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.	Males	Females	Total	States Represented	Counties Alabama Represented	Total
Troy College	271	307	578	28	60	88
Florence College	118	196	314	2	36	38
Jacksonville School	100	97	197	3	9	12

Montevallo Polytechnic	*	368	368	1	51	52
Total	489	1125	1640	38	189	214

This is a fine showing for Alabama's white normal schools, even the weakest deserving public approval. Alabama pays but $47,000, all told, to her white and colored normal schools. These bring into the state by Peabody, Slater and other donations almost $200,000, and from the work they do in training teachers for the public schools, they pay the state $4 for $1 appropriated. But some wise-acres cry out, "Abolish the normal schools and use the $47,000 appropriated to the common schools." To do that would not only [illegible] work, but their $200,000 to Alabama.

TROUBLE WITH INSURGENTS

Attitude of Filipinos Leaders Becoming More Alarming Daily.

RECONCILIATION WILL BE DIFFICULT

Aguinaldo Openly Shows His Hostility to the United States Authorities and Won't Let His Soldiers Enter American Lines.

MANILA.—The attitude of the Philippine insurgent leaders is daily becoming more dangerous. So open is their opposition to the American authorities that the situation is strained and reconciliation may be difficult.

What makes the situation the more troublesome is the undisguised rivalry between the followers of General Aguinaldo, the self-proclaimed dictator, and General Piopilar, who covets the honor which Aguinaldo has assumed.

General Piopilar is in command of the insurgent troops stationed south of Manila. He uses them in a way that will be most annoying to Aguinaldo, and that the same time makes every effort to show his utter disregard of the American officials.

His forces continue to parole the city, encouraging lawlessness in every direction. They are constantly annoying the American troops, who are engaged in the difficult task of preserving order.

Aguinaldo's course is no less annoying. He no longer attempts to conceal his hostility to the officials who represent the United States, and has issued an order prohibiting his soldiers from entering the American lines. This course was probably deemed necessary in order to prevent them from becoming so well disposed towards Americans as to destroy his power by repudiating his leadership.

The attitude of the rival leaders cannot fail in the end to injure the cause of the Philippine independence. Certainly it will prevent the presentation of a strong case before the Paris commission in behalf of the Filipinos.

AN EMPRESS ASSASSINATED

The Empress of Austria Falls by the Hand of an Italian Anarchist.

EUROPE SHOCKED BY THE TRAGEDY.

While Walking From Her Hotel to the Landing Place of a Steamer the Assassin Suddenly Approached and Stabbed Her in the Heart.

GENEVA, Switzerland.—The Empress of Austria was assassinated at the Hotel Beaurivage Saturday afternoon by an anarchist. He was arrested. He stabbed her majesty with a stiletto. The murderer is a man named Luchenni. He was born in Paris of Italian parents.

It appears that her majesty was walking from her hotel to the landing place of the steamer at about 1 o'clock, when the anarchist suddenly approached and stabbed her in the heart. The empress fell, got up again and was carried to the steamer unconscious. The boat started, but seeing the empress had recovered consciousness the captain returned and the empress was carried to the Hotel Beaurivage, where she expired.

The Empress of Austria was born December 24, 1837. She was the daughter of Duke Maximillian of Bavaria, and was married to Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, April 24, 1854. They had three children, the Archduches Gisola, who married to Prince Luitpold of Bavaria, the Archduke Rudolph, who married Princess Stephanie of Belgium, and was seemingly assassinated in 1878, and the Arch duchess Maria Valeria, who married the Arch-duke Franz Salvator of Austria-Tuscany.

WELCOMED TO HAVANA.

HAVANA.—The United States transport Resolute, having on board the American evacuation commission, entered the port of Havana Saturday and moored near a place called Triscornia, a short healthy part of the bay. General Solano, the chief of staff, and General Garcia Benitor, of the general staff, met the palace in a carriage, and a few minutes afterwards. General Parrado, a member of the Spanish commission, and Dr. Congosto, secretary of the government, drove in a carriage to La Machina wharf. Both parties there embarked in a steam launch and went on board the Resolute to welcome the American commissioners.

The members of the captain-general's staff prepared to do honor to the American commissioners. The stairs were covered as upon the occasion of state receptions days, and the commissioners will be received in the cabin of the crown. Captain-General Blanco will be in full uniform.

DUN'S TRADE REVIEW.

Volume of Business Larger Than Ever—Cotton Figures.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The volume of business is larger than it has ever been. Corn is a shade higher on estimates, promising only 1,750,000,000 bushels. The cotton year has closed, according to the Financial Chronicle, with a yield of 11,180,960 bales in 1897, of which 7,646,085 were exported, 1,856,000 were consumed in northern mills, 1,227,939 in southern mills, 420,079 were added to northern mill stocks, and 91,801 to commercial stocks.

It is but fair to say that the Financial Chronicle makes no calculation of the quantity produced, but not marketed, which the New Orleans cotton exchange reckons at 330,000 bales, presumably including cotton owned by southern mills, but not yet consumed. The European mill stocks, according to Mr. Ellison, are 770,000 against 398,000 bales a year ago, the American 499,775 against 79,696 a year ago, the commercial stocks here and abroad 1,641,000 bales against 685,000 a year ago and other allowances leave on hand for the coming year 3,031,000 bales, about as much as was estimated a month ago, and indicate consumption of 3,083,939 bales in this country against 2,893,352 bales in the largest previous year.

The increase of 44 per cent. in southern consumption during the past three years, with a decrease of nearly 9.3 per cent. in northern is great. Nobody can guess how great the demand for iron and steel products may be a month hence, but the manufacturer has the rare good sense to wait for actual order before hoisting prices. So far the advance has been remarkably moderate in the average of all finished products, only 3.3 per cent. from the lowest price this year, while pig iron has risen less than 3 per cent.

They Demand Aid From England.

KINGSTON, Jamaica.—The conference of West Indian representatives at the island of Barbadoes passed a resolution formally demanding aid from the British government, as a matter of right as being the only available remedy for the industrial crisis. No ultimatum looking to American annexation was adopted, although the question was incidentally discussed as a possible future contingency to affect Cuban and Porto Rican competition in the American market.

The Territory of Hawaii.

The "Territory of Hawaii" is the name which the annexation commission has decided to recommend to congress. The history and tradition of the islands and the associations that no resident wants forgotten will go on in unbroken union with the name. The form of the government will be modeled on that of existing territories. There will be no further departure from this form than local conditions and national political considerations make necessary.

Attempt on Wilhelmina's Life.

The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger says that a fortnight ago an attempt was made to assassinate Queen Wilhelmina near Amersfort, province of Utrecht, on the road between Castle Soostdyt and Baara. A man emerged from behind a tree and fired a revolver at her majesty. The bullet missed the queen, but plowed the cheek of a lady in attendance.

Hobson Promoted.

Among the naval orders Saturday were the following promotions: Captain Higginson, of the Massachusetts, to be commodore from August 10; Assistant Naval Constructor R. P. Hobson, to be full naval constructor, to date from June 23, the delay in making the last promotion being caused by the impossibility of having an earlier examination.

An Island Engulfed.

News comes from Suva by the steamer Miowera that Falcon Island, recently situated between the Tonga Tabu and Haafai groups and immediately opposite the Nomuka gronp of islands, has disappeared beneath the waves owing to volcanic action. There were about twenty native fishermen on the island.

Greater Economy and Efficiency.

The city of Troy has turned over her City Graded schools to the State Normal College, to be incorporated as an integral part of its Model School, consisting of Kindergarten, Primary, Intermediate and High School departments, nine grades. This insures greater economy and efficiency to both the city and college, and greatly strengthens the college in every way. The organization of the college could admit this without any change, for already it covers every feature of the State public school system, from kindergarten through a college course. The opening, September 20, promises 500 or more of an enrollment, and for the session, above 800. The superior facilities offered by this college for the training of teachers for general and special education are becoming popular everywhere, and this is the key to the phenomenal growth of this popular school.

The State Normal Exponent, published at this school, gives a great variety of able educational articles, and educational information generally, and is sent on application to the president to any one enclosing three 2-cent stamps.

The scholarship nominated by senators and representatives, are being taken up rapidly, and the prospects of the college are said to be greater than ever before in its history. The people of Troy are staunch friends of the college, and all who come to get its benefits.

CURRENT EVENTS IN ALABAMA.

RIOTOUS SOLDIERS.

Negro Regiment Attempt to Rescue One of Their Number From the Police.

Members of the Third Alabama (the negro regiment) engaged in a riot at Anniston Saturday night which came near having serious results. A member of the regiment was very disorderly on the streets and was arrested by the police. Other negro soldiers followed the officers and their prisoner toward the city jail, threatening to release the prisoner and cursing the police. Members of the Third Tennessee and Second Arkansas resented this talk and threatened interference on the part of the police and two or three fights occurred on the way to the city jail, where the prisoner was finally locked up. At night about five hundred of the negro soldiers slipped out of the camp with the intention of liberating the negro soldier from jail, kill the Tennessee and Arkansas soldiers that they found and take the town. When they reached the city they found it surrounded by the provost guards. They then gathered in the principal business portion of the city, where there were many white soldiers and citizens. Here a riot was soon in progress. Clubs and brick-bats were used freely and a dozen or so pistol shots fired. The negro soldiers were finally formed in line by white officers of the regiment, who ran up with drawn swords and pistols and marched them back to the camp. In the melee two of the negro soldiers and Private Tyson, of the Second Arkansas, were shot, though not dangerously wounded.

Another Big Industry for Ensley.

In connection with the steel mill which is now being built at Ensley by the Alabama Steel & Shipbuilding company, there will be constructed a wire rod and nail mill. A contract has been made with the steel mill people by which they are to furnish a large quantity of steel annually at a fixed price to the wire rod mill people. The concern is made up of Chicago, Cleveland and Joliet people, who are entirely outside of the present nail and rod trust. Instead of making an investment amounting to $800,000, as was stated some time ago, this concern will invest not less than $1,200,000 in the plant to be erected at Ensley near the steel plant.

A Brave Soldier Dead.

In St. Luke's hospital, at Jacksonville, Fla., Friday morning, the soul of Captain George F. Hart, of Company L, was called to an eternal command among the legions of the dead. Captain Hart was among the first to respond to the call of arms, and, gallant soldier that he was, he bravely laid down his life at the altar of his country's honor and died a hero. At the time of his death Captain Hart was in command of Company L, First Alabama volunteers, formerly the Huey Guards, of East Lake. He was 28 years of age.

An Alabamian Can Name a King.

The Warwick of the Samoan islands, the man who, in all probability, will be called upon to name the next king for that country, is an Alabamian. He is Judge William Lee Chambers, of Sheffield, at present chief justice of Samoa. It is as chief justice that he becomes the king maker. Whatever complications grow out of the death of King Malletoa must, by the terms of the Berlin conference establishing the protectorate over the islands, be solved by the chief justice.

Books of Subscription Opened.

The books for the subscription of stock in the Canton, Aberdeen and Nashville railroad were opened Monday at Sulligent, in Lamar county, Winfield in Marion county, and Glenallen, in Fayette county. These are the only three counties in Alabama through which the road will pass for the present. According to the charter of the new road issued by the secretary of state, the capital stock of the road is $1,000,000.

Z. M. Little Drowned.

The falling waters of Terrpain creek, near Centre, brought a tragedy to light. A passer-by saw a horse lying on the body of a man, who was recognized by papers in his pocket to be Dr. Z. M. Little. The horse was still hitched to the buggy, and he had evidently tried to lead him out and both went down together.

Return Surrendered Sword.

MANILA, Philippine Islands.—The United States Consul here, G. F. Williams, in behalf of Captain N. Mayo Dyer, of the United States cruiser Baltimore, has returned to general Miranda the sword which the latter surrendered to the American officer at the capture of Corregidor Island, at the entrance of the Bay of Manila. The general replied that he was overwhelmed by the generosity of Captain Dyer. The American army chaplains have instituted Protestant services in private buildings. Such services have never previously been held in the history of the Philippine Islands.

Mrs. Virginia Pelham Stuart Waller, only daughter of the confederate cavalry leader, General Jeb Stuart, died at Norfolk Friday, aged thirty-two.

A CIGARETTE DESPERADO.

A Newark Youth of the Nicotine Habit Arrested For Murder.

NEWARK, N. J. (Special).—A cigarette degenerate, sixteen years old, was caught a few days ago in Jersey City, and is held here as the suspected murderer of Frederick Woods, of Baltimore, the young man who was found dead in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards in Waverly about four weeks ago.

The prisoner is Benjamin Rand, of this city. He admits that he is the guilty person in a mysterious shooting which occurred ten days later in the same locality. The victim was Thomas Pondar, a colored boy, of Jersey City. Pondar's case has become a celebrated one. Doctors from all over this State and from other States have visited him in the hospital here to see the human being who could live and chat cheerfully with a bullet in his brain.

When Pondar was shot the detectives believed that the guilty person also was the one who shot Woods, as the bullets were of the same calibre, and in each case the pockets of the victim were rifled and turned inside out.

Pondar was traveling on a freight train with several other boys. They carried satchels. While the train was passing through this city two white boys came creeping along the roof of a car and pounced upon the colored lads, demanding that they open the satchels and show whether there was anything inside that was valuable.

The colored lads refused to do so, and one of the white boys, who turned out to be Rand, thrust a revolver in Pondar's face and told him to open his satchel or his brains would be blown out.

"Go ahead and shoot," said Pondar.

There was a flash and crash, and Pondar rolled from the train, with blood pouring from a wound in his forehead. Some hours later he was found beside the track in a pool of blood, calmly inhaling a cigarette.

Rand says he was in Asbury Park at the time Woods was murdered. For nearly a year he has been away from home. Because of his enormous consumption of cigarettes his growth is stunted and his mind is seriously affected.

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN ARRIVES.

The English Colonial Secretary Comes on a Vacation.

NEW YORK CITY (Special).—The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the British Colonies, and Birmingham's representative in Parliament, arrived here a few days ago on the Majestic. He was accompanied by his wife and Miss Chamberlain. They left later on for Massachusetts, where they will visit the parents of Mrs. Chamberlain, who was Miss Endicott.

Mr. Chamberlain said his health was fairly good and he expected that a rest and short vacation in the United States would do him a great deal of good. He will return home in the fall. His visit to this country, the distinguished Englishman said, had no political significance, notwithstanding the fact that the Joint High Commission is at present holding its sessions in Canada, and that Ambassador Hay has been recalled to assume the portfolio of Secretary of State.

Chicago's Peace Jubilee.

The General Committee for the National Peace Jubilee to be held in Chicago has selected October 18 and 19 as the dates for holding the proposed peace celebration in that city. It was also agreed that the chief features of the jubilee parade shall be an open-air reception to President McKinley and other guests of honor and the returned soldiers, at which Grand Army veterans and ex-Confederates shall march together as a guard of honor for the President, all the provisional regiments of the city being invited as escorts for the returned volunteers.

Bandits Turn Out to Be Boys.

The six bold bandits who held up the Burlington train near St. Joseph, Mo., have been arrested. They prove to be mere boys. Their leader, James Hathaway, is seventeen years old and day delivery clerk of the Western Union Telegraph office. That the striplings should overawe a crew of veteran railway men and capture the safe from the express car is surprising, but that is what happened. The boys got no money for their pains, and all are under arrest. They were victims of the habit of reading nickel detective novels.

Guatemala's New President.

Manuel Estrada Cabrera has been elected to the Presidency of Guatemala. When President Barrios was assassinated Cabera assumed the office of Chief Executive, as provided by law. The election just concluded in Guatemala place him in office for the ensuing term. President Cabrera is a man of great executive ability. He is a lawyer, and has held many high offices in Guatemala. His election is accepted as a sign of increased business activity in the republic.

The Arkansas Election.

Unofficial returns of the election in Arkansas show that the People's Party lost Nevada, White, Cleveland and Polk Counties, and elected one member of the Legislature. About 100,000 votes were cast in the State. The Republicans polled about 35,000 and the Populists and Prohibitionists around 15,000. Governor Jones ran far behind the Democratic ticket.

Lynched One of Their Race.

A mob of colored men lynched John Williams, one of their own race, six miles from Fowlstown, Ga., because he assaulted an eight-year-old colored girl. He was befar taken by a deputy sheriff to Bainbridge for safe keeping when a mob of colored people took him from the officer, and, leading him into the woods, shot him to death.

Soldier Brothers Dead.

Two brothers who enlisted and fought side by side in Company H, Ninth Massachusetts Volunteers, died on the same day in the general hospital at Camp Wikoff, Montauk Point, L. I. They were attacked by pernicious malaria simultaneously and lay in adjoining cots in the hospital. Their deaths occurred within an hour. They were James and Elden P. Keene.

Promoted For Distinguished Services.

The President has made the following promotions for distinguished services at Santiago: To be Major-Generals of Volunteers, Brigadier-General William Ludlow and Brigadier-General S. S. Sumner. To be Brigadier-Generals, Colonel Richard E. Combs, Fifth Infantry, and Lieutenant-Colonel Joseph T. Haskell, Seventeenth Infantry.

ALGER ASKS FOR AN INQUIRY.

Wants a Searching Investigation of the War Department Made.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—There were two dramatic developments in the Alger-Miles row on Thursday.

One was the arrival at the National Capital of the commanding General of the army, fresh from the triumphs of Cuba and Porto Rico.

GENERAL RUSSELL A. ALGER.
(He has asked for an investigation.)

The other was the fact that Secretary of War Russell A. Alger has written a letter to President McKinley formally asking for an investigation into the conduct of the war.

The letter was prepared and submitted to the President shortly before Secretary Alger's departure from Washington for a tour of the army camps. The General first visited Camp Meade in Pennsylvania where he had a consultation with General Shafter who had come on from Camp Wikoff for that purpose.

Adjutant-General Corbin has united with Secretary Alger in the request for an investigation.

Such an investigation as has been requested is, it is pointed out, beset with some difficulties. No charges of a definite character have been filed by any responsible person or official. Sensational stories and rumors, for which some of the Administration hold there is no foundation, have been circulated, and objection is made to dignifying them by the ordering of an investigation. By those who desire and advocate the investigation it is maintained that it can do no possible harm, and may be of positive benefit in clearing away manifest error from the minds of many people, and placing the blame, if any there is to be placed, where it rightfully belongs.

SENATOR GRAY ACCEPTS.

He Takes the Place of Justice White on the Peace Commission.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—The place made vacant on the Peace Commission by Justice White's determination to decline service has been filled by the acceptance of

SENATOR GEORGE GRAY.

Senator Gray, of Delaware, at present a member of the Joint High Commission now in Quebec.

He is the Democratic member of the Commission, and it is probable he will oppose territorial expansion.

ACCUSED OF TAKING STATE FUNDS

Ex-Deputy Treasurer Gerrish, of New Hampshire, Tells Tales After Arrest.

CONCORD, N. H. (Special).—Ex-Deputy State Treasurer Hiram F. Gerrish, who was forced to resign on July 1 by reason of irregularities in his accounts, was arrested a few days ago, charged with the embezzlement of $5000 of the State's funds. After giving bail he made a statement concerning affairs at the State Treasury during his seven years in office.

He said he discovered a shortage of $4000 during his first week in office, and that during his term the shortage increased at one time to $9500. The shortages were covered at the periodical auditing of accounts by means of certificates of deposit, which would disappear after each examination. Just before a burglary at the Treasurer's office two years ago, when $3000 disappeared, there was credited to "cash" an envelope marked "$2500," which contained no equivalent. He asked State Treasurer Carter about it and was told that the absence of an equivalent would be made good. The burglary took place before this and was made good, according to Gerrish, and the envelope disappeared.

Treasurer Carter said in reply to the ex-deputy's accusations, that he could show where every dollar of the State's money has been at all times during his term of office.

BRITISH HOIST STARS AND STRIPES.

Flew by the Side of the Royal Ensign at Review of Troops.

LONDON (By Cable).—The Stars and Stripes was raised a few days ago with the British Union Jack and the Royal Standard on the marquee on Salisbury Plain during the march past of the troops at the end of the army manœuvres, as a compliment to Colonel Alfred F. Bates, the United States Military Attache, and Henry White, the Secretary of the United States Embassy, and Mrs. White, who went there by a special train with Lord Wolseley, the Commander-in-Chief of the British forces; Prince Christian, the Duke of Connaught and other notabilities.

The foreign military attaches seemed to be surprised at the sight of the American flag.

Crazed by Cigarettes.

James Hoffman, sixteen years old, of New York City, became insane by smoking cigarettes to excess. A few days ago he grabbed his three-year-old sister Dora by the hair and began to drag her around the room. After a desperate struggle he was overpowered and placed in confinement in a hospital.

Cost of Trained Nurse Service.

An itemized statement of disbursements by the Red Cross Society for the maintenance of trained nurses from July 28 to September 1 shows that $21,999.05 has been expended.

HOT WAVE VANISHES.

Disappeared in a Cyclone That Caused Death and Destruction.

NEW YORK CITY (Special).—The fierce heated term of eight days, which killed over two hundred people in New York, came to an end Wednesday afternoon. It ended with a cyclone that carried death with it.

The temperature fell eighteen degrees in eleven minutes after the storm broke. It came from the southwest and the wind blew seventy-two miles an hour.

The cyclone hurled down 400 feet of a new iron pier which was building near the foot of West Twelfth street. Samuel Patterson and John Leonard were killed, a third cannot recover, and eleven others were injured. There were 120 men employed on the pier and many of them saved themselves by jumping into the river.

Two children were killed by the blowing down of a house in Jersey City. Five carpenters at work in Brooklyn were hurt—two fatally. Several persons in New York were injured by falling signs and skylights.

The storm was general and reports from various parts of the country show a great amount of damage.

The storm played havoc at the New Jersey State Fair. When a great black cloud appeared in the west and came rapidly east the ten thousand people in Waverly Park ran for shelter in the buildings and big tents. But hundreds were caught by the storm, which swept across the grounds like a tornado.

The gale carried President Tompkins's new tent on Governor's Hill up in the air like a balloon. Next to go was the great horticultural tent. Several hundred men, women and children were under it when a fierce blast leveled it to the ground.

Three Men Killed in Pennsylvania.

TOWANDA, Penn. (Special).—A terrific storm swept over Springfield Township, killing William Brace, C. M. Comfort and F. A. Voorheis. Six horses and fourteen cows were also killed and a number of barns and outbuildings destroyed.

MOSLEMS RIOT IN CRETE.

English Control Causes Fighting Between Troops and Mussulmans.

CANDIA, Island of Crete (By Cable).—Trouble between the Mussulmans, who were demonstrating against European control and the British authorities, culminated Tuesday in bloody fighting between the Mussulmans and the British troops. Riots took place in various parts of the city and many have been killed.

When the outbreak was fiercest a warship stationed in the harbor began firing shells, with the result that a portion of the city is in flames.

The trouble began with the attempt of the British military authorities to install Christian officials. They had appointed a Council of International Control to administer the tithe revenues, and a detachment of soldiers was stationed outside the office as a precaution.

A crowd of unarmed Mussulmans attempted to force an entrance into the office. The British soldiers fired and wounded several. The Mussulmans ran for their arms, and, returning, attacked the soldiers.

The total casualties, so far as known, are twenty killed and fifty wounded.

The British Vice-Consul, Mr. Calocherino, was burned to death in his house.

The Turks set fire to the whole town.

The only warship here at the time of the outbreak was the British gunboat Hazard, which landed a party of marines to assist the one hundred and thirty British troops.

GENERAL WHEELER'S SON DROWNED.

The Naval Cadet and Lieutenant Kirkpatrick Perish at Camp Wikoff.

CAMP WIKOFF, Montauk, L. I. (Special).—Thomas H. Wheeler, son of General Joseph Wheeler, and Second Lieutenant Newton D. Kirkpatrick, First Cavalry, were drowned while bathing here Wednesday afternoon. Young Wheeler was a Naval Cadet in his second year. He was seventeen years of age, was a fine young fellow and had made a host of friends.

Together with Lieutenant Kirkpatrick, Wheeler went to the beach to enjoy the surf bathing. The surf ran high and the undertow was strong. No one saw the young men drown, and it was not until about 6 o'clock that they were missed. Their clothes were found a short distance from General Wheeler's tent, close to the water.

Of the accident General Wheeler has nothing to say. His three daughters, two of whom have been acting as nurses in the general hospital and the other as a nurse in the Detention Hospital, are with him, grief-stricken.

Lieutenant Kirkpatrick was from Virginia. He was appointed second lieutenant 3 June 12, 1896.

The bodies were washed upon the beach near where the accident happened.

HOW DID PARRETT DIE?

Secretary Alger Wires General Shafter to Hold a Court-Martial.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special).—Secretary of War Alger is determined to strictly carry out the decision he has announced to hold field officers responsible for the condition of their men in the case of Private Hugh Parrett, who was reported to have perished in his tent at Montauk, L. I., lacking medical attendance.

Secretary Alger several days ago called upon the commanding officer at Camp Wikoff for a report on this subject, and on Wednesday he sent a peremptory order to General Shafter by telegraph to create a court of inquiry to investigate the case, or, if the facts warranted it, to shorten the proceedings by at once ordering a court-martial for the officer responsible for Parrett's lack of attention.

EXIT LI HUNG CHANG.

The Great Chinaman Sacrificed to the Exigencies of European Politics.

PEKIN, China (By Cable).—Li Hung Chang has been dismissed from power. Presumably this was done in accordance with the demand which it is rumored the British Minister here, Sir Claude M. Macdonald, was instructed to make on account of the alleged general partiality of the great Chinaman to Russia, culminating in Great Britain being deprived of the contract for the Peking-Hankow Railroad by giving the Russo-Chinese Bank financial control of the road.

Li Hung Chang's dismissal from power is another proof of the existence of a new understanding between Great Britain and Russia as to China.

Powers Reply to the Czar.

Almost all the European Powers have sent formal replies to the circular of Czar Nicholas of Russia, and it is now regarded as certain that the disarmament congress will meet in St. Petersburg in November.

Criticism of Alger Resented.

In the course of the Grand Army of the Republic campfire at Music Hall, Cincinnati, Governor Pingree, of Michigan, was hissed and hooted off the stage, because of his criticism of the management by Alger of the Spanish war. There was a great disturbance.

Heavy Punishment For a Private.

Private A. D. Kinney, of the First Mississippi, who attempted to assassinate Colonel Govan of that regiment, has been tried before court martial at Chattanooga, Tenn. The evidence was conclusive and his sentence is five years in prison.

READ our special offer on page 8. The Banner one year, the Columbian to Jan. 1, 1900, and the beautiful souvenir spoon, all for $1.00.

The Second Regiment, to which our Chilton boys beloag, will be mustered out at Montgomery, but the date of their arrival is not yet fixed.

THE First Alabama Regiment will go into camp at East Lake, Birmingham, preparatory to mustering out. Birmingham proposes giving them a hearty welcome when they enter that city next Saturday.

IN view of the report that has been industriously circulated that Probate Judge elect S. M. Adams had failed to make and file a proper bond, we deem it best to say we are authorized to deny the statement. The bond is perfectly good and properly filed. The probate judge elect is all O. K. and will undoubtedly serve the people of Chilton for the next six years, unless some Higher Power should remove him to realms above.

WITH perfect unanimity the convention at Talladega endorsed W. F. Aldrich as the candidate to be supported by the Populists of the Fourth District. There was not one dissentient vote. Not a single objection was raised. Not a delegate had a word to say against Mr. Aldrich's course in the past, or that any fears were entertained for the future. On the contrary, the convention declared that Mr. Aldrich was the man to carry our banner to victory, and when the question was put there was one hearty unanimous "aye."

No man with a spark of manhood in his composition, whatever his political belief may be, but will execrate and condemn the miserable scoundrel who last Saturday murdered the Empress of Austria. That in most countries the poorest people have a hard time to make a living is not to be denied, but the murdering of women will not ameliorate their condition one jot. The Empress of Austria was a good woman who had suffered enough to have entitled her to pass the few remaining years of her life in peace. The class of anarchists, to which the murderer claims to belong, should be extirminated.

For the third time Hon. W. F. Aldrich has been nominated or endorsed by the Populists of the Fourth Congressional District as their candidate for Congress. While there are some few Populists in the district who would have preferred a straight-out Populist nominee, it was conceded, even by the most radical, that the most available man to make the race was our present congressman. His record is clean and good; he has fairly and impartially represented the people in congress and out of congress; he has won the respect and esteem not only of Populists and Republicans but also of many Democrats. He has waged two successful campaigns against bulldozers and thugs, and it is tolerably certain if any fraud should be attempted in this section he will again expose it. With the combined vote of the Populists and Republicans in the five white counties of this district he will have an easy victory, and we sincerely hope the one black county has learned the folly of attempting to over ride the expressed wish of the five white counties by manufacturing a fictitious majority.

Our Invalid Army

While the work of transporting the conquered Spanish soldiers back to their native land has been progressing, there has been a simultaneous transfer of the conquering American troops from Santiago to the United States. If the Spaniards had fully realized how seriously the army of General Shafter had been weakened by hardships and disease, it is scarcely probable that General Toral would have surrendered without further resistence. The American people will not be satisfied until they are convinced that every phase of the Santiago campaign has been rigidly investigated, with no political screen for the negligent or the guilty. It is declared that this country—the richest and presumably the most enlightened in the world—dispatched an army to the tropical jungles of eastern Cuba at the height of the season of rains and fevers, without medical supplies or any kind of adequate provision whatsoever for the principal dangers that everyone knew the army would encounter. To send the army to Santiago without every precaution against the real enemy—namely, the fever fiend—was every whit as absurd as it would have been to send it without ammunition for the rifles. There is not even the excuse that the expedition was gotten off in haste. It took an inordinate time after Cervera's fleet had been bottled up in Santiago harbor by our navy to get General Shafter's army on board the transports and fairly started. Unhappily, there has seemed, even after these matters had been pointed out, very little capacity on the part of the authorities of the army to improve sanitary conditions. Nothing could have been more severe than the physical examination to which the volunteers were subjected when the regiments were formed at the opening of the war. We sent into the various camps something like three hundred thousand young men, every one of whom was in excellent health. It needs no argument to show that the experience of being in camp of the United States in the pleasant months of May, June and July, far from breaking down the health of these young men, ought to have just the opposite effect. The regular life, systematic drilling, and careful attention to personal and camp hygiene that were not only feasible, but plainly obligatory, ought to have put our army into a superb physical condition by August or September. That is what would have happened in France or Germany. It is not what has happened in the United States. The camps have been infested with typhoid fever, malaria, and enteric troubles of all sorts, with the alleged result of a shocking average degree of debilitation.

With the War Department's unlimited resources there was no possible reason why fever patients by the hundreds should have been dumped on the coast of Long Island, only to find the hospitals not yet built because mules enough had not been provided to haul the lumber from the railroad station. While hostilities lasted, it behooved us all to be very patient and forbearing in all our criticisms. But when the War Department had no longer to cope with hostile armies, there was no reason why a single enlisted man, whether at Montauk Point or at any other camp in the United States, should have gone for another twenty-four hours without suitable shelter, food, medicines, surgical attendance, and nursing. Milk can be had in this country, and the men who have been responsible for feeding typhoid patients on tainted pork and musty hard-tack are not to be dealt with in mild and forbearing terms. There are times when vigorous language is in order. There is not the slightest danger that any one will condemn too harshly the seeming inefficiency that has been responsible for the hideous treatment to which our brave soldiers have been subjected. It is unnecessary at this point to mention any names. It is enough to join the best public opinion of the whole country in the demand for a searching investigation and for the fixing of responsibility where it belongs. The course pursued by the leading officers of the Santiago army, and especially by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, in courageously subjecting themselves to possible disfavor by protesting against the War Department's policy, was commendable in the highest sense. The whole country appreciated it.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for September.

Politicl Pointers.

Peoples Party Press Bureau
St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 7, 1898

The mountain labored and brought forth a mouse. The "middle-of-the-roaders" met, wrangled and split at Cincinnati, on the 6th inst. Their so-called National convention to reorganize and purify the party was issued months ago and from the amount of noise made by these "patriots" and the goldbug Republican press of the country, many people were led to believe this contingent really represented the People's Party. After watching and waiting for those who never came, the little crowd of malcontents who met in the Lyceum building at Cincinnati on the 5th inst., were called to order by John A. Parker of Kentucky, Secretary of the so-called Reform Press association. Milton Parks of Texas, chairman of the resurrection or re-organization committee, failed to make connections for some unaccountable reason. Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota, was made temporary chairman and the ball opened. There were less than 300 delegates present, most of whom were self appointed, but, nothing daunted, they led off in their usual way, by resoluting against everything and everybody not in accord with them. Chairman Donnelly took a fall out of Marion Butler, chairman of the National Populist committee, in his opening speech and he was followed by nearly every "delegate" in the convention. The platform is a revision of the Omaha platform, the preamble of which was written by Ignatius Donnelly. It aims to touch every question under heaven and extends all the way from Genesis to Revelations. It was the smallest convention on record, yet it adopted the longest platform, containing about 7,500 words. No accurate record of the proceedings were kept and all of the usual convention rules were ignored. It was a noisy convention and so much bad blood was engendered that the delegates were ordered out of the Lyceum building by the manager who feared the destruction of the property. Wharton Barker of Pennsylvania, was nominated for President and Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota, for vice-President. About half the delegates bolted and issued an address denouncing the action of the other half.

It is feared by those who are deeply interested in having W. J. Bryan return to his state and assist in the present campaign that it will be impossible to have his regiment mustered out as the full quota of troops from Nebraska has already been released.

It seems that with our acquirement of foreign territory we are incorporating Populists institutions. At least the addition of Hawaii to our country has given us postal savings banks in which is deposited over two millions of dollars. They also have then a tax of one percent on all incomes over two thousand dollars. Good!

The widespread refusal of employers to make Labor Day a holiday is being much commented upon and should be taken up and dealt with by the press so that by the time another year rolls around this important day may be universally given to the laboring classes.

The People's Party State Executive Committee of Texas met at Houston, September 6 and pulled "Cyclone" Davis off the state ticket, substituting C. H. Jenkins as Attorney General. George T. Todd resigned the position of Justice for which he had been named.

The executive committee of the three silver parties met at Marshalltown, Iowa, September 7, and agreed to the following division of the state offices: Democrats three places, Secretary of state, Treasurer and Attorney General; Silver Republicans, Supreme Judge; Populists, Auditor and Railroad Commissioner (for the long term.) Resolutions condemnatory of the treatment of our troops during the war with Spain were passed, but the question of territorial expansion divided the delegates about equally. The building and owning of the Nicaragua canal by the government was commended.

At the recent G. A. R. meeting at Cincinnati, Ohio, Governor Pingree was hissed from the stage where he had been put on as a fire-eater of the evening. It was feared that he was going to make an attack upon Alger, Secretary of War, although it is said by the redoutable governor that he had no such intentions.

H. L. Loucks of South Dakota, for years well known as a leader in the Farmers Alliance and People's Party of that state has declared in an open letter his allegiance to the Republican party. Mr. Loucks has led the middle-of-the-Roaders in his state for some time.

Herb Folklore.

The following piece of herb folklore was told to me many years ago by a North Lincolnshire lady: On the night our blessed Lord was born the stable of the nativity was littered with bracken and what we now call the yellow lady's bedstraw. Before this time both these plants had produced in the summer time insignificant little white flowers, but then it was the depth of winter, and they were flowerless.

When the first cry of the divine infant was heard, the bedstraw burst into bloom in honor of the birth of the Saviour of the world, but the bracken made no sign of reverence; so it has come to pass that the bracken has ever since been deprived of the power of producing any blossoms whatever, while the bedstraw has been endowed with long sprays of golden florets.—Notes and Queries.

I suffered for years from sleeplessness and nervous heart trouble. Would feel weary and used up in the morning, had no ambition and my work seemed a burden. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I purchased a bottle under protest as I had tried so many remedies unsuccessfully, I thought it no use. But it gave me restful sleep, a good appetite and restored me to energetic health. It is a grand good medicine, and I will gladly write anyone inquiring, full particulars of my satisfactory experience."

Giving His Order.

"I want you to write a speech for me to deliver at the annual banquet of our lodge," said Mr. Bunting to the man who was engaged in general literary work.

"Yes, sir. Any particular instructions?"

"Oh, no! I merely respond to the toast, 'The Ladies, God Bless 'Em!' Of course I want the speech very witty and about ten minutes long. Be sure to begin by saying that, 'owing to the short notice, I have not had the time to devote to the response which the importance of the subject naturally demands.'"—Detroit Free Press.

A Kiss That Paid.

Edward IV had a habit of calling his wealthy subjects together and asking them pleasantly what they meant to give him for the maintenance of his wars. He was extremely handsome, and this so won upon a widow of good estate that she exclaimed, "By my faith, for your lovely countenance's sake you shall have £20!" This was so much more than he expected that the king kissed her, whereupon she gave him £20 more.—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE REALM OF FASHION.

A Favorite in Sheer Fabrics.

For lawns, organdies and all sheer fabrics this style of waist, designed by May Manton, is a great favorite.

It can be made up perfectly devoid of decoration, simply trimmed around the epaulettes and wrists as shown, or lavishly decorated with insertion, lace or ribbon, in straight, cross, diamond, horizontal or perpendicular lines, as fancy may dictate.

LADIES' FULL WAIST.

A perfectly fitted lining of colored lawn is the foundation over which the full white organdy is adjusted, Valenciennes lace and insertion being chosen for decoration. The fronts and back are gathered at the neck, shoulders and waist line, the skirt being worn over the lower edge of waist.

The front pouches slightly in up-to-date style, but the back is drawn tightly to the waist line.

The wrinkled sleeve adjusted over two-seamed linings (which may be omitted at will) and the gathered epaulettes are a stylish feature of this pretty waist. The mode is especially adapted to thin silks of India and Japanese weave, mousseline de soie, liberty silk and grenadine, while silk, embroidered chiffon, passementerie, gauze, net and ribbon ruching and frilling can be used to trim a waist like this very handsomely.

To make this waist for a lady of medium size will require four yards of material thirty-six inches wide.

A Dainty Little Dress.

White lawn, tucking, Valenciennes lace and insertion combine to make the dainty little dress shown in the large engraving.

The design provides for a short, low yoke, that is simply fitted by shoulder seams, to the upper edge of which the skirt portion is attached, the fulness being collected in gathers. The skirt falls freely from yoke to the lower edge, which finishes with a wide hem, over which two evenly spaced rows of insertion are placed. An attractive feature is the bertha, shaped with square corners at the lower edge, which is also edged with lace headed by insertion, the round top being gathered and sewed on at round yoke outline.

Plain or figured organdie, dimity, nainsook, India silk, swiss, challie, cashmere or any soft, becoming material in silk, wool or cotton will make pretty dresses by the mode.

In place of the insertion can be used ribbon in plain or gathered rows, braid, gimp, embroidery or ruchings of the material.

As illustrated, the dress is worn with a guimpe of white lawn, the yoke of which is tucked.

To make this dress for a girl six years of age will require three and one-half yards of material thirty-six inches wide.

A Rainy Day Waist.

A good rainy day waist is made of fine mohair. One practical damsel has a mohair waist which has been made water repellant. Another always carries with her a little cape of mohair which has been similarly treated. The cape rolls into a space not over three inches square and can be slipped into the pocket or bicycle kit and the space will never be missed. Its owner declares that it has saved her many a cold and that she would not dispense with it under any circumstances. Too little attention is given to minor accessories of this sort. Young persons do not seem to realize that a trifle of precaution may save many wearisome days of illness if not broken-down health.

An Empress Who Loves Bird

The dowager empress of China is devoted to birds of all kinds, and innumerable bird pets are kept about the palace. She is reported to have wept copiously about the death of a favorite nightingale not long ago. Upon being told of a Chinese girl who had complained bitterly of the dreariness of life, this exalted lady remarked sagely that a woman ought to take so much pride in her home that it could be a heaven to her, adding: "There are always birds and flowers." She is a clever artist and delights in painting from nature.

The Capes of the Season.

Capes of a couple of seasons ago were so full and voluminous that the owners of them are finding them available for Eton jackets, boleros and various uses. One cape will cut a handsome Eton and will make sleeves if it happens to be of the full average size. Even the very small ones work over in this way to the most excellent advantage.

Women's Rights in Canada.

The new charter of Montreal, Canada, gives full municipal suffrage to women, either widows or unmarried, who occupy, either as lessees or owners, property in the city subject to taxation.

A Pretty Frock.

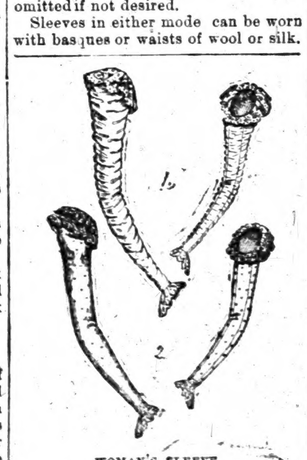
A black tulle frock which differs from other black tulle frocks is spangled with jet and silver from the bottom of the skirt to the curve of the hips, leaving a free space of about a quarter of a yard from the waist downward. The bodice is made of gauged tulle, transparent upon the arms and upper portion of the chest and back, and forms a sort of cuirass to the waist of heavy steel and jet embroidery. No color is worn with this frock, and a pretty touch is given by a white osprey in the coiffure.

A Notable Feature of the Season's Styles.

Sleeves of material that contrasts with the gown and harmonizes with yoke, vest or accessories are a notable feature of the season's styles.

Light-weight textures, such as veiling, grenadine, mousseline or soft silks, are tucked by gathers at each edge over fitted linings, as shown in No. 1. This style adds greatly to the comeliness of a rather thin arm, while disguising the one too generously proportioned. For heavy silks, brocades, velvet and broadcloth, a plain, close-fitted sleeve is chosen, as represented in No. 2. Both styles are included in the pattern, with double-gathered caps that may be used singly or together on either style of sleeve, or omitted if not desired.

Sleeves in either mode can be worn with basques or waists of wool or silk.



WOMAN'S SLEEVE.

To make No. 1 will require one and one-eighth yards of material thirty-six inches wide. To make No. 2 will require three-quarters of a yard of the same width material.

INDIA WON'T HAVE IT.

PEOPLE THERE SEE INIQUITY OF GOLD STANDARD.

Under It They Would Have to Give Away Twice as Much of Their Products for a Dollar as Under the Bimetallic System.

From the space which our London contemporaries devote to the subject it is to be concluded that the proposition to put British India on a gold-currency basis is regarded as a burning question. It has already been pointed out that the view taken by the leading economic and financial writers of Great Britain is decidedly hostile to the scheme. This opposition, it is fair to say, is not grounded upon the theory that the discarding of silver by India would be detrimental to British interests, although there is an idea present in the discussion that such a move would increase the difficulties which the London market and the Bank of England have to contend with growing out of the demand for gold from Russia and Japan, not to mention the heavy drafts which the United States has made during the past year on the English supplies of gold and those which are liable to result from a maintenance of this country's favorable trade balances.

The principal contention of British critics in discussing the gold currency proposals of the Indian government is that the effect would be disastrous to India itself. That country and all its business interests, it is maintained, have already suffered severely from the contraction of the currency caused by the closing of the Indian mints to the free coinage of the silver rupee. Financial stringency is an annual occurrence throughout the presidencies. Money goes to prohibitory rates; and according to one authority, the leading Indian banks were recently unwilling to make loans even on the security of bar gold. The restriction and disturbance of business from such a state of affairs is obvious. And it is further pointed out that for a poor country like India, already burdened with a debt in Europe, on which the interest is payable in gold, to enter upon a policy that necessarily involves additional heavy gold loans in Europe in order to accumulate and maintain a large gold reserve would be little short of suicidal.

Another feature of the Indian financial situation which is also dwelt on with emphasis in the course of the discussion is the relation of India's immemorial popular habits of hoarding silver to the proposed gold standard. It is pointed out that even since the Indian mints were closed that country went on importing silver to the extent of about $20,000,000 a year, although it was a period of low prices for wheat, cotton and other products and was marked by plague, frontier war, famine and exceptional dearth of money. Since 1859 it is calculated that about $780,000,000 of silver had been absorbed by India for hoarding and personal ornaments, and the usually careful London Statist goes so far as to assume that the total amount of silver held in that way, not coined in India, is fully $1,500,000,000.

While the rupee in exchange is worth about 1s. 4d., the value of the silver in the rupee is worth about 10½d. Silver, therefore, is about one-third below the artificial existing value of the rupee. Consequently the hoards and ornaments of the people of India are worth about one-third less than they would be if the mints had not been closed. In old times, before the mints were closed, rupees and silver in the form of ornaments were interchangeable. Now if a native is forced to sell the latter he finds he is offered about two-thirds their weight in rupees. "It follows," says the journal quoted from above, "that there is a depreciation of approximately $500,000,000 in the value of the silver hoards and ornaments held in India. The proposal of the Indian government is that this depreciation should be perpetuated. The sum is equal to one-half the indemnity exacted by Germany from France at the end of the war." The economic and political complications which might follow the further development of such a line of policy, therefore, fill the leading London authorities on the finance with apprehensions which they are at no pains to conceal. The drift of their argument is that the fall in the value of the rupee has not really injured India, which has been vastly benefited by good government and the development of its sources through the inflow of British capital. The remedy proposed is, therefore, a gradual fall of the rupee so managed by the government as not to disarrange trade.—Bradstreet's.

The Paramount Issue.

The earnest determination of the people of the United States to continue the fight against gold monopoly in war as well as in peace is manifested in every state of the Union where conventions have been held during the current year, says the Silver Knight-Watchman. From Maine to Texas and from Florida to the state of Washington the Chicago platform is the guiding star of 1898, as it was in 1896, for all who desire the restoration of silver and the overthrow of the greedy, unscrupulous combination which is laboring to contract the legal tender money of the world to gold alone, for two purposes: One to rob their neighbors, the other to enslave the masses. The vociferous, mendacious and frantic howl of the gold papers in every commercial center of the Union that the silver question is dead shows the desperaton of Shylock in lying to keep his courage up. No matter what may occur or what new issues may arise, the action of the Democrats, Silver Republicans and loyal Populists in every state of the Union is proof conclusive that the paramount issue of an adequate supply of money will never be set aside until the United States regains its financial independence of any foreign power whatsoever.

The glorious courage of our sailors and soldiers displayed at Manila and Santiago is inspiring to American patriotism. The spirit of independence of all foreign powers is being developed by our conflict with Spain, which will make Americans scorn with contempt every suggestion that the United States must be a vassal of some foreign power, either commercially, financially or political. Financial independence goes with political independence, and as the spirit of independence is excited and inspired its effect will be seen in the legislation of every department of the government.

The war, so far from burying the silver question, will vitalize those forces which strive for financial independence, which is equally essential with political independence. The very fact that we are at war with Spain has aroused the Democrats, Silver Republicans and Populists to the vital issue of financial independence, as shown by every political gathering between the two oceans.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

Now that the end of Spanish misrule and cruelty on the Western Hemisphere is in sight, the American people will turn their attention to the gold combination.—Silver Knight Watchman.

If the McKinley prosperity puts wheat up when the people have to buy, and wheat down when the farmers have wheat to sell, there will soon be an imperative call for prosperity of a different brand.—The New Era.

The "dollar wheat" boasted of by the Republican press leaders is not for the farmers. Last year nine-tenths of the farmers sold their wheat from 60 to 68 cents. In the hands of speculators the same wheat reached $1.85 on the Chicago board. Now, when a new crop is in the hands of the farmers, wheat has dropped to 70 cents. Dollar wheat is not for the farmers.—Sun (Vincennes) Ind.

An indication of McKinley prosperity is the price of flax. The first of last week, we are told, the price was 85 cents. On Saturday the price had dropped to 50 cents. You can always depend upon the price dropping when the farmer has a crop to sell. As soon as he has sold, and the speculators have the crop, up goes the price. There is no more demand for these things just after the speculators have cornered the crop than there is just after harvest time.—Kansas Agitator.

The reason why $1,250,000,000 sought an investment in government bonds bearing 3 per cent interest is because the owners of the money knew that although the rate of interest was low, the dollars in which the bonds were to be paid would continue to grow larger and fatten under the gold standard. Property that is growing cheaper under gold contraction cannot compete in the markets against bonds payable in dollars that are appreciating in purchasing power.—Silver Knight Watchman.

The Republican party is unable to redeem its promises. It obtained a new lease of power on the promises that it would check importations, put a surplus in the treasury and raise both the price of the American product and the wages of the American laborer. So far as the fruit industry is concerned, it may have succeeded in checking importations, but wages are no higher, and in many instances they are lower, and fruit is not worth so much as it was before the Dingley bill was enacted.—Yolo Democrat.

This Is Republicanism.

In America the opinion was definitely reached that Amasa Stone's millions had more to do with his selection by Mr. McKinley of John Hay as secretary of state than any other factor.

We have from England an altogether different view. The London Times says, in speaking of Mr. Hay's recall from England: "We must console ourselves with the reflection that the foreign affairs of the United States are in the hands of a man who has learned from actual observation what are the necessities of the foreign policy of England."

No formal alliance, offensive or defensive, has been struck up between England and the United States. That would require a treaty, which the president would be obliged to submit to the senate of the United States, and the president might well hesitate to father such a scheme lest his popularity suffer among the people of the United States, who are not ripe for any such alliance.

But we may gather from London that policy which will not be declared openly or formally will be given operation by an indirection.

Mr. McKinley selects for the head of the department of state in the United States a man who has learned from actual observation what are the necessities not of the United States but of the foreign policy of England.

We may reasonably suppose that it is the English view that Mr. Hay goes into the cabinet of Mr. McKinley as England's particular representative.

To build the Nicaraguan canal is purely a governmental function. The Democratic party is pledged to this great work, and just so sure as there will be a victory in 1899, just so sure the work will be begun.

POPULIST POINTS

VIEW OF THE FIELD.

NATIONAL POLITICAL ISSUES BEFORE THE PEOPLE.

Monopoly Which Is Seeking Complete Control of the Legislative, Judicial and Executive Departments of the Government Must Be Defeated.

In the New England states the apathy of the producers may continue but in the western and southern states there are indications that the political revolution, begun in 1896, when a majority of the western states joined with nearly all of the southern states in voting for modified populism, is growing in strength and radicalism. This year's people's party platforms are no less sound and radical than those of 1892, and the silver Democrats and Republicans, who took what was styled by the plutocratic press extreme Populistic ground in 1896, are much more radical and Populistic in their platform utterances this year.

The Democratic convention in Illinois is especially deserving of Populist congratulations, because besides a ringing anti-plutocratic money plank the Illinois Democratic platform contains Populist planks in favor of direct legislation and public ownership of franchises. "Public ownership of franchises" means public ownership of the means of transportation and communication. The Ohio and California Democrats have also declared in favor of direct legislation, and the educational influence of People's party press and speakers will no doubt bring the states rapidly into line.

The Populist demands—abolition of monopoly in money, land and transportation—will be supported by a majority of the voters sooner than most of us had dared to hope, judging from the present signs. With the political winds blowing from the right quarter Populists will be encouraged to more vigorously proclaim the truths of their platform.

On the other hand it is evident that the banks, loan and trust companies, railroad companies and trusts are politically united against the interests of the people, and that an enormous campaign corruption fund will be expended by M. A. Hanna, who himself has some $17,000,000 invested in the above forms of monopoly, and a desperate effort will be made to place a majority of goldbugs and corporation tools in both houses of the next congress.

While the Republican national platform declares for the suppression of trusts, every trust official in America will contribute towards Republican control of congress, knowing the platform to be a lie and that they have nothing to fear from a party whose politicians are their paid attorneys and whose real leader, Mark Hanna, is a member of their own inner circle.

The Republican platform declares for bimetallism on the basis of an international agreement, but it is a well-known fact that Hanna, McKinley and Reed have promised that in case they control the next congress the single gold standard will be firmly rivited upon the people, if possible, through an unrepealable treaty with foreign gold standard powers. Gold bonds will be sold and the greenbacks retired, and whatever the organized usurers of the country demand will be given to them.

Therefore the voters should be on their guard. All of the votes that boodle can buy, that the giant corporations can bulldoze, that war cries can bamboozle, will be cast against the producers and for the monopolists. Fondly convinced that the people are fools, all of the lawyers on the payrolls of the corporations will try to prove that every vote against the gold trust and the railroad trust is a vote against the late war with Spain, and fools will believe it.

In this country the power of aggregated wealth in control of the metropolitan press and the professional spellbinders, when combined with rooted political prejudice and the folly of fools, is not to be despised. Unless the people get actively into the fight in their own interests and guard against boodle influence over the official count, Mark Hanna may actually be, next year, in control of all branches of our government—legislative, judicial and executive. Activity among patriots who see the horrible possibilities involved in this is all that is necessary to prevent it. PERCY PEPOON.

Too Poor to Hold Office.

From the Omaha World-Herald: It is reported that Secretary of State Day will resign, for the reason that he is too poor to meet the social obligations of his position. We have heard something like this before. It is an old story, but it brings up an important problem, which must sooner or later be solved. The solution will lie in an increase of the salary paid our public officials, or in a decrease in the tomfoolery which has attached itself to the social incidents of official life. A little more businesslike methods on the part of public minds for the homely character of the country's institutions, both political and social, and the public welfare will be advanced.

When it is considered that the United States furnished Great Britain last year with 618,000 head of live cattle and 612,000 sheep, it is not surprising that England should be warmly in favor of the Anglo-American alliance.

The list of those who volunteered to drive Spain out of Cuba is a long one, but it won't be a circumstance to the number of those who will apply for reinstatement in the army of commerce under the new bankruptcy act.

Investigation into the condition of the poor in Aachen, Germany, showed that of 900 families with three or more persons, 402 had only one room per family, though two families consisted of 11 persons, 3 of 10, 6 of 9, 39 of 8, 52 of 7, 59 of 6, 72 of 5.

Admiral Cervera is most certainly not without a keen sense of humor. At a recent dinner party a naval officer's wife asked him: "What were you most struck with in the handling of the American ships?" Without hesitation the Admiral replied in good English: "We were all most struck by the eight-inch shells."

The opal production of Queensland, Australia, is becoming very important. More than $160,000 worth of rough stones were exported last year. In the western districts of the colony the opal deposits are very considerable. The Queensland opal is of brilliant quality, and experts pronounce it to be equal to the best Hungarian varieties.

The hospitality shown to the boys in blue in Charleston, S. C., while they were temporarily in camp there, has brought to its Mayor and its people a shower of grateful letters from fathers and mothers, wifes, brothers, and sisters, in the North and the West since the troops sailed for Porto Rico. The boys had written home enthusiastic accounts of the warm welcome that had been given to them in the Southern city.

Ten thousand "old settlers" of Chicago attended a picnic a few days ago. A Chicago old settler is one who settled in the Lake City prior to 1875. Gold medals (value $15) were given to the oldest German settler, the oldest German woman settler, the oldest settler not German, the oldest German settler who has been longest in the United States Army or Navy, the oldest settler not German who has been longest in the United States Army or Navy, the oldest German married couple, and the oldest married couple not German.

The last issue of the "Foglio d'Ordine," the official journal of the Italian Navy, contains the following order: "On battleships, as a general rule, the use of wood will be abolished. The authorities will endeavor to carry out this principle at once on warships now in course of construction, and the same will be done gradually on the others whenever the opportunity presents itself, attention being paid to the detailed instructions which will be issued by circular." This is said to be the first effect of the report of the American naval experts after the destruction of Admiral Cervera's squadron by the American fleet.

Some interesting statistics are gathered from the records of the recruiting station at Baltimore, Md. The most startling showing was in relation to the height of the recruits. The volunteers as a rule were members of State military organizations, and except in the matter of height, were usually above the average. The record shows that fully nine per cent. of the applicants were less than the average height, five feet and eight inches, and six per cent. were below the minimum height, five feet and four inches. At this station about thirty-four per cent. of the applicants were mustered into the service. The rejections were in most cases due to causes other than disease. It is said by the recruiting officer of the station that the colored men who offered themselves were in better condition for service, generally, than the white men.

A Washington paper notes the fact that on July 20 a Virginia postoffice was named "Hobson," which indicated a proper regard for heroism. Pope County, Ark., on July 22 secured a new postoffice, which is called "Sigsbee," showing that it remembered the Maine and her commander. North Carolina came along on July 23 with a postoffice in Randolph County, which it called "Dewey," and on July 26 with a "Sampson" postoffice, and on the 28th Florida named a postoffice for Dewey and Kentucky secured one named "Manila." Just what idea controlled the people of Woodruff County, Ark., in asking to have an office named "Fakes" does not appear. The favored name since the victory of May 1 in Manila Harbor has been "Dewey," and it is expected at the Postoffice Department that the popularity of the Admiral of the Asiatic station will not be exhausted until something like ten "Dewey" postoffices are named. When that number has been reached it will be up to the average. Very few public men have named more than ten postoffices.

Down in Jamaica they say "the Yankees aren't afraid of Old Nick." The people of this English colony also consider the armed tugboat Leyden the greatest vessel in the American Navy. Some weeks ago H. M. S. Talbot, a cruiser about the size of the New York, steamed into Kingston harbor and told a story which gave rise to this respect for Lieutenant Crossley's tiny warship. It seems that the cruiser was steaming down the Bahama channel one dark night when a blank shot was fired close by. The watch officers could see nothing and paid no attention to the signal. Then a solid shot sank across the big ship's bow and she hove to in a jiffy. A few minutes later a tugboat came tearing up alongside, and, through the megaphone, her commander demanded the name of the vessel he had held up. "The British cruiser Talbot." "You can go on," was the condescending reply. The cruiser did go on, and her officers and crew now have the greatest respect for our American tugboats. It is only natural that this should be the case.

To point out the phenomenal increase in our foreign trade during the past ten years comparisons are made between the figures of 1898 and the figures for 1888. Taking the principal countries of the globe, our exports to them have been as follows: Great Britain, in 1898, $540,000,000; in 1888, $362,000,000; Germany, in 1898, $150,000,000; in 1888, $56,000,000; France, in 1898, $100,000,000; in 1888, $40,000,000; Canada, in 1898, $85,000,000; in 1888, $38,000,000; Netherlands, in 1898, $65,000,000; in 1888, $16,000,000; Belgium, in 1898, $47,000,000; in 1888, $10,000,000; Japan, in 1898, $21,000,000; in 1888, $4,000,000; Africa, in 1898, $17,000,000; in 1888, $3,000,000; China, in 1898, $10,000,000; in 1888, $4,500,000; Austria-Hungary, in 1898, $5,000,000; in 1888, $500,000; Denmark, in 1898, $12,000,000; in 1888, $3,000,000. As the above figures show our foreign trade during the past ten years has doubled in almost every instance. No other country on the globe can show anything like this record. Thus we literally become the purveyor of food and supplies to the nations of the earth.

A system of portable or field electric railway has been brought out in Germany with complete success. As described by a correspondent of the Boston Transcript, the track consists of easily transported rail frames, made of two rails of the usual field railway profile, and connected together by, say, five crossbars; the middle crossbar extends a few inches beyond the rails on either side, and to its ends is bolted an iron yoke, or frame, in shape an inverted "U," the top of which is high enough to be well clear of the cars. The overhead conductor is supported at the center of the upper horizontal part of the yoke; the yokes are placed closer together at curves, and at the sharpest curves it may be necessary to fit every rail frame with a yoke, in order to keep the overhead conductor sufficiently near the center of the track. The generating station is fitted in the usual way with a dynamo, and two feeders are led from the station to one end of the track, one being connected to the end of the overhead conductor and the other to the rails. For running the trolley wire a special truck has been devised. On it are a pair of ladders, leaning toward each other, and between them on the floor of the truck is a reel containing wire, and at the top, where their upper ends meet, is supported a guide pulley. By means of this truck a long field line, it is found, can be run out in a surprisingly short space of time.

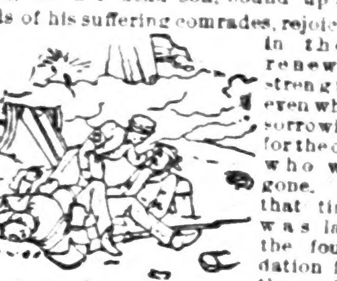
The Women of Mexico.

The women of Mexico, all untrained as they are, have a hard time. They are utterly unskilled housekeepers, doing everything without proper implements and in the most primitive way. Some few are skilled needlewomen, but many of them are not. It is one of the most sensible charities in the City of Mexico which puts a half hundred sewing machines in some large building in a crowded part of the city and teaches the women to use them. Sometimes the coarse cotton cloth that is chiefly used for garments is furnished to the women, but mostly the machines and thread are furnished and the poor housewives are welcome to make up their garments. As the Mexican women are without housekeeping implements, so the children are without toys. There never was a nation of children so utterly devoid of things to play with. They have not even a spool or a bone. But these children which have never been cradled or lulled with the music of a rattle watch you from the recesses of the maternal rebosa with large eyes in which the sadness of their ancestry and the cruelties since the conquest are shadowed forth. There is a good deal of the stoicism of the Indian in these baby faces, and a good deal of inherited sorrow, too. The proud but gentle race of the Aztecs has been humbled and ground in the dust by his brave conqueror, the Spaniard, and the hereditary face, behind its good nature, has a look of extreme sadness.—San Francisco Examiner.

Woman's Heroism.

From the Register-Gazette, Rockford, Ill.

During the civil war nearly as much heroism was shown by the women of our nation as by the brave soldiers. Many a woman, weeping for her dead son, bound up the wounds of his suffering comrades, rejoicing in their renewed strength, even while sorrowing for the one who was gone. At that time was laid the foundation for the world-famed organization known as the Woman's Relief Corps, whose aid to the soldier of to-day, fighting against the world for a living, is no less notable than the heroism of the early '60's.



On the Battlefield.

One of the most earnest members of the corps at Byron, Ill., is Mrs. James Houseweart, but illness once put a stop to her active work. A year or so ago, when she was nearing fifty years of age, the time when women must be most careful of their strength, Mrs. Houseweart was taken seriously ill. The family physician told her that she had reached a critical period of her life, and must be very careful. His prescriptions and treatment did not benefit her, and other treatment proved unavailing.

At last Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were brought to her notice, with indisputable evidence that they were helpful in cases such as hers, and with renewed hope she tried the remedy. Last March she took the first box of the pills, which gave much relief. She was determined to be cured, and kept on with the medicine, until now eight boxes have been consumed, and she feels like a new woman.

Mrs. Houseweart said: "I have taken only eight boxes, but I have been improving since I took the first dose. I do not believe I could have lived without the pills. They certainly have done me more good than any physician or any medicine I have ever tried."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Russian Admirer of Emerson.

Ambassador Andrew D. White has an article in the Century on "A Russian Statesman." Mr. White says:

But the most curious—indeed, the most amazing—revelation of the man I found in his love for American literature. He is a wide reader, and in the whole breadth of his reading American authors were evidently among those he preferred. Of these Hawthorne, Lowell, and, above all, Emerson, were his favorites. Curious, indeed, was it to learn that this "arch persecutor," this "Torquemada of the nineteenth century," this man whose hand is especially heavy upon Catholics and Protestants and dissenters throughout the empire, whose name is spoken with abhorrence by millions, within the empire and without it, still reads as his favorite author the philosopher of Concord! He told me that the first book which he ever translated into Russian was Thomas a Kempis' "Imitation of Christ;" and of that he gave me the Latin original from which he had made his translation, with a copy of the translation itself. He also told me that the next book which he translated was a volume of Emerson's essays; and he added that for years there had always lain upon his study table a volume of Emerson's writings.—Century.

Motherhood

THIS event in the life of a woman is looked forward to with a feeling akin to horror—not because the little one is not welcome, but because the mother dreads the direful consequences to herself. Those long hours of agonizing labor stand out before her like a hideous nightmare. An improper delivery, followed by child-bed fever, may end the scene in a few short days, leaving the little one motherless. But there is another side to the picture. If women who are expecting to become mothers will commence the use of the great female tonic,

GERSTLE'S FEMALE PANACEA, TRADE (G. F. P.) MARK

regularly as directed a few weeks before confinement, and continue its use until the organs are restored to their normal condition, the hours of labor will be shortened, the pain lessened, and recovery complete. If there is any costiveness, move the bowels gently with mild doses of St. Joseph's Liver Regulator.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

1. Is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.
2. Is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.
3. Secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.
4. Is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, Yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.
5. It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such it will give its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, economic, and literary world, which are of value to busy men and women. The "Progress of the World" will be concisely an illustrated record of the month. The "Leading articles" will give the best thought and information of the current magazine comments; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of serious import.

"We know of no review published, in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully verified information, knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit into one monthly number the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is shown in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Clanton, Sept. 18, 1898

Editor BANNER—In reply to Hon. L. H. Reynolds, in regard to a bull law, I think it the grandest thing the farmers could have to improve their stock. We can breed cows at the season that will suit ourselves. I want every level headed man to think of this important question.

In regard to working the roads, I favor working them by taxation and letting them to the lowest bidder, like the bridges are, and let the contractor give bond for the faithful performance of his duty. We would levy a separate tax on every man over 21 and under 45, say $2.50, and give the man the privilege of working it out at fifty cents a day, and that five days under a contractor will be better than ten, as the law is now.

As to the schools, I want to see the school law so amended that every child can get a good education. I want to see a schoolhouse in every community run nine months in the year.

I think a dog law would be a good law, and let the money go to help the schools, as I am a strong advocate of good schools. Put a heavy tax on the dog.

JOT A. MILLER.

Jemison, Sept. 16, 1898

Editor BANNER—I read in The Banner the letter from our Representative asking the people to express themselves openly as to their wishes in regard to working the roads by taxation. As for myself I can say I am not in favor of that kind of law. It will bring the men who have served their time all in, and leave out the boys; and I think some other law would suit better.

As to the bull law, I am in favor of that. Let each neighborhood buy them a bull and keep him in the bounds of same; and keep him confined, so that his owners may know where to find him at any time. I think either of these plans would suit better than the present one.

As to schools, let someone suggest a school law that will prove to be a better one than we now have; a law whereby rich and poor may alike be able to educate their children, for we all know that when we bring our children up in ignorance we are bringing them up to fill the hard places in life, for the educated get the easy ones. Let everyone think this: I will, by the help of God, educate my children so that they will fill an honorable position in life, so that when we are gone they will be sure and think of us. W. E. VINZANT.

A stubborn cough or tickling in the throat yields to One Minute Cough Cure. Harmless in effect, touches the right spot, reliable and just what is wanted. It acts at once. Stanfield & Matthews.

Thorsby, Ala., Sept. 19. 1898.

Editor BANNER. As I, and others to whom I have spoken on the subject, understand the road tax we would not be taxed so much per capita, but so much per cent of value of our taxable property. Making the wealthier bear the greater part of the expense. Just the thing for us poor people, as it would enable us to dispose of road duties for a very few cents per year. As it is now, it sometimes takes several days to work the road, and it is only half done, left so that the next heavy rain makes it almost as bad as ever. By taking and contracting road work we could demand that roads be properly finished up so that they will remain smooth and durable. Good roads are a move for a better financial condition of a county.

As to the bull and boar law, by all means let us have it unless we can get what is better, a complete stock law. Anyone opposing either is opposing the welfare and prosperity of his country, and is content that we continue raising scrubs and farming at a disadvantage. The advantages of complete stock law are so numerous, it would take up too much of the Banner's valuable space to enumerate them now, so I will get back to the subject. If all the scrub bulls and boars now running at large in Chilton county were sold, the receipts would pay all fees for throughbred service for many years; and our cattle and hogs would be greatly improved, we could all have good cows, one of which is better than two or three such as we now have. One dollar (the usual fee) would be a small increase of cost of a half bred Shorthorn, Heresford or Jersey calf over a scrub, and the difference in value at maturity would be from ten to twenty dollars. This is what the poor man needs to keep him from continuing so poor. Some opponents of these laws seem to think that it is inevitable that we always remain poor, in which event our present laws are all right, but I am sure that the majority of our people want to get out of the rut and make an improvement in their financial conditions, which can hardly be done without the adoption of such better laws. P. C. S.

Death of an Estimable Young Lady

The stern hand of death! Oh, how uncompromising! This time it forced its way into a widow's family and plucked one of the sweetest flowers in Jemison. Miss Mollie Adams, some weeks ago, went on a visit to Birmingham; she was attacked with typhoid fever; for weeks her life hung on a pivot. All that mother, brothers, sister and physician could perform stayed not the monster, death. On the 19th inst. her sweet, happy soul flew away to its blissful abode to join with father and friends. It is hard to say farewell, but 'ere long the broken famtly will be reunited. Friends, weep not for dear Mollie; much as you will miss her at the organ, at the fireside, and everywhere she dispensed her smiles.

The remains were brought home for interment. The funeral service was conducted where deceased held her membership, amid many tears.

A Wonderful Discovery.

The last quarter of a century records many wonderful discoveries in medicine, but none that have accomplished more for humanity than that sterling old household remedy, Browns' Iron Bitters. Death visited Dr. Haye's home today, claiming his dear sweet wife. She leaves a husband one sweet little baby girl, one brother and one sister. Eulah was a friend to all, her gentle, sweet disposition won the love of all. To know her was to love her. She was a member of the Mulberry Baptist church. A CRITICAL TIME

During the Battle of Santiago

SICK OR WELL, A RUSH NIGHT AND DAY

The Packers at the Battle of Santiago de Cuba were all Heroes. Their Heroic Efforts in Getting Ammunition and Rations to the Front Saved the Day.

P. E. BUTLER, of pack train No. 3 writing from Santiago, De Cuba, on July 23d, says: "We all had diarrhoea in more or less violent form, and when we landed we had no time to see a doctor, for it was a cause of rush and rush night and day to keep the troops supplied with ammunition and rations, but thanks to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, we were able to keep at work and keep our health; in fact, I sincerely believe that at one critical time this medicine was the indirect saviour of our army, for if the packers had been unable to work there would have been no way of getting supplies to the front. There were no roads that a wagon train could use. My comrade and myself had the good fortune to lay in a supply of this medicine for our pack-train before we left Tampa and I know it four cases it absolutely saved life."

The above letter was written to the manufacturers of this medicine, the Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by Dr. J. S. Johnson, Jr.

Camara's glory lies in the fact that he saved his fleet as a nest egg for another navy.

If Americans are overcharged at the Paris exposition, they will remember that France owns $400,000,000 worth of Spain's promissory paper.

One of the New York City magistrates has decided that a robin is a wild animal. Inferentially he probably holds that a turtle is an insect.

The iron ore productions of Spain in 1897 amounted to 7,468,000 tons, as compared with 6,762,000 tons in 1896. Of this product the Biscayan mines contributed 5,170,000 tons; Santander mined 800,000 tons; Murcia, 470,000 tons; Seville, 330,000 tons, and Almeria 300,000 tons. Nearly all of this ore is exported, England taking 5,000,000 tons; Germany took 1,000,000 tons; France, 500,000; Belgium, 200,000 tons, and 60,000 tons went to the United States. Spain herself converts but a very small part of this ore; the Spanish production in 1897 only amounted to 297,000 tons of ingots, 63,000 tons of Siemens steel and 134,000 tons of structural iron.

A British Board of Trade publication on the world's coal supply shows that the United States is second only to England in the amount of production, and that in the cost of production the United States ranks under England and Germany. Trade statistics have just been published which for this country and England cover 1897, a year later than the British official figures which cover the world. In 1897 the British production was 202,128,345 tons; that of the United States was 198,250,000 net tons. The Board of Trade figures are as follows: United Kingdom, 195,361,000 tons; average from 1894 to 1896, 191,000,000 tons; United States' average 1894 to 1896, 165,000,000 tons; Germany, 1896, 85,690,000 tons; France, 28,750,000 tons; Belgium, 21,252,000 tons.

A correspondent of an English paper calls attention to the "probably Scotch" descent of President McKinley and confesses to a pardonable pride in the fact, as the writer is a "Lowland Scotchman." He is only partly right and will have to share his pride with his neighbor of the North of Ireland, our worthy President being set down in the record as of "Scotch-Irish" ancestry. In this regard he is like four other Presidents of the United States—Chester A. Arthur, James Buchanan, James K. Polk and Andrew Jackson. Curiously enough, the list includes President Polk, who conducted one of our foreign wars, and another, Jackson, who distinguished himself in the only other foreign war. But the Scotchman need not lack for satisfaction. Three of our Presidents were of Scotch descent, Hayes, Grant and Monroe, and Grant's renown, with a joint share in Jackson's, should suffice. The remainder of our twenty-five Presidents were of English descent, with the exception of Jefferson, of Welsh ancestry, and Van Buren, of Dutch. So it will be seen that, save one, all traced their family trees back to roots in the soil of the United Kingdom.

The Atlanta Constitution says: One of the greatest afflictions under which the Southern States now rest is the impression abroad that this entire section is given up to fever and malaria. So universal is this opinion in the outside world that it is regarded as a very brave act for one to traverse the suspected country without advisement—in other words, whenever a European or a citizen of one of the Northern States or of Canada meditates a trip into one of the Southern States one of his first inquiries is as to the proper season in which to visit these States and as to the sanitary requirements with which he should surround himself. False as this fear is, unjust, unfounded, and without proper basis to rest upon, it still exists, and one of the most difficult tasks which the Southern publicist has to perform is to convince these people that the Southern States, as a whole, are as healthy as any similar territory in any part of the world, and that the plague spots within their limits are no more numerous and no more fatal than are to be found in similar expanses of territory elsewhere, whether North or South. Only in a few spots in the South is it possible for yellow fever to originate. The great bulk of the country is absolutely as free from it as are the New England States.

ON THE EVE OF A CRISIS.

Revision of the Dreyfus Case May Cause a Revolution in France.

MINISTER OF WAR ZURLINDEN RESIGNS.

American Peace Commissioners En Route to Paris—Gen. Wheeler Will Command Cavalry for Occupation of Cuba and Porto Rico.

All reports agree that the Dreyfus case has now brought France to the eve of a crisis, perhaps the most formidable in the history of the third republic. The situation is rendered more acute by the fact that it is threatening not merely the existence of the cabinet, but the stability of the constitution.

A significant feature is the attitude of President Faure. He is known to be utterly opposed to a revision of the case, but the premier, H. Brisson, and a majority of his colleagues, have decided in favor of a reopening of the matter, and with the resignation of the minister of war, Gen. Zurlinden, as a result there is but little doubt that the popular feeling is still against a revision. Thus the cabinet will come in conflict with the people, while President Faure, as the champion of the army, and with the sympathy of a majority of the nations, assumes a formidable role, which may lead to grave developments. This will be clearly seen if the cabinet's decision leads, as is extremely likely, to mob demonstrations. It is predicted that with the present state of military feeling the army will side with the demonstrations against the cabinet.

Zola May Become a Priest.

London Life claims to have information that M. Emile Zola is about to become a Catholic priest. It says the pope has given his assent to the ordination of the distinguished author six months hence.

The commission consists of former Secretary of State Wm. R. Day, United States Senators Wm. P. Frye, Cushman K. Davis and Geo. Gray and Whitelaw Reid. Each commissioner is accompanied on the trip by his wife or other members of his family.

Judge Day said: "I think that America's terms will be regarded as reasonable, and therefore I believe the work of the commissioners will not be impeded by useless discussion."

Spanish Commissioners.

A special dispatch from Madrid says the Spanish peace commissioners were appointed Saturday. They are Senor Montero Rios, president of the senate, and president of the commission, General Cerero and Senor Abarzusa. Villarrutia and Garnica.

JOE WHEELER WILL COMMAND

The Cavalry Forming Part of the Army of Occupation for Cuba and Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON.—Orders were issued from the war department Monday for the disposition of the five regiments of regular cavalry now at Camp Wikoff in command of Major-General Wheeler. Three of them are to be sent to a camp hereafter to be designated within 100 miles of Huntsville, Ala., the Second regiment is to go to South Dakota to relieve the Eighth regiment with headquarters at Fort Meade and the Ninth is to be distributed through Arizona and New Mexico to relieve the Seventh now stationed in those territories. The Seventh and Eighth, upon being relieved, will join the three regiments from Montauk at the camp which may be selected in the vicinity of Huntsville. Its location will depend upon the recommendations of a board of army officers now in the South engaged in inspecting camp sites.

Major-General Wheeler will have command of the cavalry which is to form part of the army of occupation for Cuba and Porto Rico.

NINE LIVES LOST.

The Schooner Alice C. Jordan Sunk by the Steamer Gloucester.

The steamship Gloucester, of the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation company, which arrived Friday at Boston from Baltimore, reports that she collided with the Gloucester schooner Alice Jordan, off Martha's Vineyard, and that nine of the Jordan's crew were drowned. Seven of the crew were saved. The Gloucester struck the schooner with fearful force, nearly destroyed her port and bow and cut into her fully a third of breadth. She began to fill immediately.

THREE HUNDRED KILLED

By the Hurricane That Swept Over the Barbadoes Last Week.

KINGSTON, Jamaica.—The hurricane of Sunday was undoubtedly the worst visitation of the kind experienced by the West Indies during the century, both in violence and extent. The storm swept along the island chain from the Barbadoes westward to St. Vincent, and thence northwest to St. Kitt's, where it was last heard from. The Barbadoes suffered mostly from the rain, which destroyed the crops and roads, as it did at St. Lucia and other islands, while the center of the storm swept St. Vincent and Guadaloupe.

Details received from St. Vincent shows that an unparalled destruction of life and property has taken place there. Out of a population of 41,000, 300 were killed and 20,000 were injured and rendered homeless. Besides this, owing to the complete destruction of the provisions, they are all starving. The island has been completely gutted by the winds and floods from the mountains, in addition to the waves along the coast.

GENERAL TORAL THREATENED.

His Residence Stoned by an Infurated Mob—Escaped to a Steamer.

A crowd of about 700 people beseiged the house of General Toral at Vigor, Spain, demanding that the troops which arrived the day previous from Santiago de Cuba be immediately landed. They proceeded to the quays, cheering the troops and were with difficulty dispersed by soldiers of the garrison. Afterwards a crowd of about 1,500 people returned to the quays and, when they saw the soldiers landing, barefooted and nearly naked, they became infuriated and surrounded General Toral's house, hooting and hissing and stoning the building. Eventually the Spanish general succeeded in escaping to the Leon XIII. On learning this the mob gathered on the dock and stoned the steamer for half an hour, smashing the cabin windows.

Five steamers are ready to transport the returning Spanish soldiers and civil officers, with the archieves and munitions of war from Cuba, but it is believed it will take four months and cost 80,000,000 pezetas to bring the troops back to Spain.

EVACUATION OF PORTO RICO.

Spaniards on the Island Will Begin to Withdraw at Once.

SAN JUAN Porto Rico.—At their meeting Thursday the Spanish evacuation commissioners agreed to begin the formal withdrawal of their lines within two days. They will evacuate Lares, San Sabastian and Aguadilla, in the northwest of the island, withdrawing towards the capital. Under the armistice they could not withdraw their outposts without permission. Detachments of the Eleventh Infantry will occupy this territory and raise the American flag. The abandonment of other outposts will follow.

The Spanish commissioners understand perfectly that the evacuation of the island must be in accordance with the terms of the protocol as soon as transports can be procured.

TEXAS TROOPS IN TROUBLE

Who Would Not Receive Pay From Colored Paymaster.

Paymaster General Stanton has turned over to the president all the papers relating to the recent unpleasantness growing out of the refusal of a Texas regiment to receive pay from Major Lynch because he is colored. The president has taken no definite action beyond expressing approval of General Stanton's course in sending a sharp dispatch to the commanding paymaster of that department, stating the troops must take their pay from him or else go without pay. There is the possibility that a new question may arise on the point of insubordination in refusing to receive pay from paymasters regularly commissioned to make payments.

Italy and Colombia Break Relations.

Italy, it is announced at Rome, declares that her diplomatic relations with the Republic of Colombia are ended, Colombia refusing to recognize the British minister as the Italian representative during the latter's absence.

MAY BE EXPELLED.

Kitchener May Demand That the French Forces at Fashoda Retire.

A dispatch to the London Post from Cairo says that Gen. Kitchener has absolute authority to claim Fashoda as Egyptian territory and to expel the present occupants forcibly if necessary. Fashoda, the correspondent says, will then be occupied by an Egyptian garrison. The Daily Telegraph's Cairo correspondent says that Gen. Kitchener intends to present an ultimatum demanding that the French expedition under Marchant quit Fashoda forthwith.

NORTH ATLANTIC FLEET

Reduced From 100 to 32 Vessels by Secretary Long.

Secretary Long has issued an important order reorganizing the North Atlantic squadron. The fleet is reduced from a force of about 100 vessels to thirty-two, the remainder being detached ready for disposition in the future. The four vessels of the Morgan line, Prairie, Yosemite, Yankee and Dixie, with the auxiliary cruisers Badger and Panther are ordered to be laid up in reserve at League Island.

THE ARMY OF OCCUPATION

Being Assembled at the Southern Winter Camps.

MAKING PREPARATIONS TO OCCUPY CUBA.

It Is Not the Intention to Send Troops to Cuba Until the Unhealthy Season Has Passed—Speedy Evacuation of Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON.—The military movements are being directed rapidly toward assembling a large army in Southern stations for winter camps and preparatory to the military occupation of Cuba and Porto Rico. About 70,000 men are now located in the South, and orders were issued Saturday sending the First, Second, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth cavalry from Montauk Point to Southern stations. The Third cavalry already has gone South, and the First and Second infantry have been ordered to Anniston, and the Eighth and Sixteenth to Huntsville. The major part of the army thus assembled is destined for service in Cuba, with a much smaller force for Porto Rico and a reserve in the winter camps. It is not the intention, however, to send the army of occupation to Cuba until after the healthy season has passed, and meanwhile the troops will be put in the best possible condition.

On account of the desire of the war department that no chances will be taken in the way of exposure of the troops to dangers of the unhealthy season, no impatience is felt on account of the rather deliberate action of the commission of evacuation at Havana.

Great satisfaction is expressed at the progress made in Porto Rico, and the evacuation is expected to occur speedily. In connection with the occupation of Porto Rico the same anxiety as to the health of the army is not felt, nor are there similar difficulties in connection with establishing the government, Porto Rico becoming at once a part of the United States.

MOBILIZING AT SANTANA.

Philippine Rebels Change Their Minds. Fifteen Thousand Rebels Reported Marching Against Aguinaldo.

MANILA.—The insurgents have changed their minds and instead of evacuating all the suburbs of the city they have moved from Ermita and Malate to Satana, where they appear to be concentrating in strong force.

It is reported, although it has not been confirmed, that Aguinaldo has ordered that this place be held at any cost. It is more likely a move on the part of Pio Pilar to embarrass the dictator.

The former rebel chief, Isabello Artacho, who was condemned to death by Aguinaldo for treachery in May and was reprieved and escaped, is leading 15,000 men against Aguinaldo. Artacho is backed by priests.

At the meeting of rebel leaders at Malolos, the majority will vote for autonomy under American protection.

All Spaniards in the northern provinces are now prisoners. The rebels seized stocks and cash of the tobacco estates belonging to the Compania Tabacelera, in Cagayan province, and also those of Coprax, in Camarine province. The losses are enormous.

The rebel steamer Bulusan has been sunk by a Spanish gunboat at Marbate.

SPANISH PEACE COMMISSION.

Queen Signs Bill Passed by Cortes Ceding Territory.

MADRID.—The Spanish peace commission has been appointed. Senor Montero Rios, president of the senate, will preside. The other names are withheld until the queen regent has given her approval. Luke Almodovar de Rio, the foreign minister, and Senor Moret, former secretary for the colonies, are engaged in drafting the instructions for the commission. The queen regent has signed the joint bill passed by the cortes, authorizing the cession of national territory under the terms of the protocol.

General Augustin, former captain-general of the Philippines, accompanied by his family, arrived Friday at Senoa.

Will Contend for Philippines.

A long conference was held between Senor Sagasta, the premier, and Senor Montero Rios, the Spanish president of the peace commission, at Madrid Monday, which resulted in the decision that the peace commission shall strenuously defend the retention of the Philippine Islands by Spain.

WAR CLOUD OVER SOUTH AMERICA

Chili and Argentina Preparing to Fight. Denial by the Latter.

A dispatch from Valparaiso says Argentina's circular note instructing her representatives abroad to deny the alarming rumors in connection with her differences with Chili and to state that she is not hostile to the general plan of arbitration proposed by Chili has not caused a cessation of the preparations of Chili to meet an emergency.

The note is regarded as a trick, designed to allure the bankers to place a new loan in Europe for war purposes. As evidence of this it is pointed out that Argentina is pushing her war preparations harder than ever, in spite of such peaceful declarations.

MESSAGE FROM AGUINALDO

Denying That Strained Relations Exist Toward America.

NEW YORK.—The following dispatch has been received at the New York office of the Associated Press:

"MANILA, Philippine Islands.—The Filipino government desires to assure the American government and people that the many rumors circulated regarding the strained relations between the Filipino and American forces are base and malicious slanders of the enemy to both parties, are without any truth and are circulated for the purpose of prejudicing the appeal of the Filipinos for their release from the oppression and cruelty of Spain.

"The relations of our people and yours have been and will continue to be of the most friendly nature, and we have withdrawn our forces from the suburbs of Manila as an additional evidence of our confidence in the great American republic. AGUINALDO."

TROOPS FOR CUBA.

Orders for Movement of 10,000 Men Will Soon be Issued.

It is the present intention of the administration to send to Cuba as a garrison force about 40,000 troops in addition to the force now in Santiago under command of General Lawton. The organizations which are to comprise the Cuban garrison have not all been designated yet, but it is assured that at least half of them will be volunteers. Within two weeks orders will be issued for the movement to Cuba of the first 10,000 of the permanent garrison, and it is expected that they will sail about October 10. These troops will be followed quickly by others until the entire force of 40,000 has been established on the island.

CALLED HOME.

Spanish Troops in the West Indies Ordered to Return to Native Land.

The Spanish minister of war, General Correa, has issued instructions for the return of the Spanish troops in the West Indies. The sick are to leave first and the archives, especially those relating to the war, will be brought to Spain with the arms, ammunition, flags and material stored in Cuba and Porto Rico.

The minister is greatly incensed at General Toral for having sent him a dispatch on the latter's arrival at Vigo, Spain, from Santiago de Cuba, and said Toral ought to be court-martialed for his conduct as governor of Santiago.

Captain Capron Dead.

Capt. Allyn Capron, First Artillery, died at his home near Fort Myer, Va., Sunday. Captain Capron was one of the best known officers in the regular army. When General Shafter's corps went to Santiago Captain Capron accompanied it, and his battery did notably fine work in the battle of Santiago. During the first day's fight before the city Captain Capron's son, Capt. Allyn M. Capron, of the Rough Riders, was killed.

Vessel Goes for Dreyfus.

It is reported that a vessel has already started from Paris for the Isle du Diable in readiness to bring Dreyfus to Paris, and M. Brisson and General Chanolna are determined that nobody, however high his position, will be sheltered. Stirring events are regarded as impending.

Garrisoning Porto Rico.

Detachments of American troops at Ponce are proceeding to garrison places not held by the Spaniards for the purpose of taking over the island. The yellow fever scare has abated.

New Departure in Money Orders.

An order has been issued by First Assistant Postmaster-General Heath authorizing postmasters to issue money orders payable at their own office. The new departure will be an accommodation to the great number of people who, not having an account at a bank, desire to follow this economical and absolutely safe method in payment of bills.

Gen. Oates Assigned.

General Oates, of Alabama, reported to General Graham at Camp Mead, Middletown, Pa., Saturday, for duty, and was assigned to command the second brigade of the second division.

Former Alabamian Dead.

Richard Busteed, once a noted lawyer and politician, is dead. He was appointed a brigadier-general of volunteers in 1862 by President Lincoln, and was in command of a brigade at the battle of Yorktown. Subsquenty he was appointed by President Lincoln to be United States district judge of Alabama. He resigned this office in 1874.

Ex-Governor Lounsberry has been nominated by the republicans of Connecticut for governor.

NO NEED OF PRO

Says Aguinaldo

A NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Filipinos Ask Arms, Say They Can Manage Their Own Affairs.

Manila Thursday was quiet. The insurgents made no attempt to enter the city. The crowds of the last few days in the suburbs of the town have disappeared. The Spaniards are beginning the arrangements for the withdrawal of the troops from the suburbs, and the insurgents who have been following the example of their leader are coming down to the city.

Continuing, Agoncillo, with much eloquency and gesticulation, said: "I follow the noble steps of my revered chief, Aguinaldo, the supreme dictator of the Filipinos." The assemblage then adjourned for the day.

The correspondent of the Associated Press had a private interview with Aguinaldo, who is extremely reticent, owing to compromised situation of the natives. He said that a majority of the Filipinos had been constantly struggling for freedom for years and that they now believe that their object has been obtained. Aguinaldo expressed entire ignorance of the United States, its enormous systems in vogue in the colonies, of protectorates and of American state autonomy. He said he was unable to understand the situation, having only understood "absolute independence." Personally, he believed a protectorate for the Philippines was necessary, but he feared the Filipino people would be disappointed at this. He had not studied political economy and knew nothing about the various forms of government.

Continuing, the insurgent leader said there was no need of protection for the Philippine Islands, because the Filipinos were able to cope with the American army. Aguinaldo declined to discuss the American army and protectorate question, but spoke with undying gratitude to the American people. He said that they had come to the Philippines to fight the Spaniards only, and now that they had accomplished the task it was to be expected that the Americans would return to America. He was unwilling to believe that the American people would demand a reward for assisting humanity, and he declined to discuss the necessity of a quid pro quo.

The Filipino leader expressed himself confident that the newly formed government would build a navy immediately. In the meantime, he said, the great nations should protect and aid a young nation instead of grabbing her territories. If the American people should refuse to withdraw, the national assembly, he said, must decide the policy to be pursued—a point which he declined to forecast.

Otis Has Enough Troops.

The following dispatch was received Friday from General Otis at Manila:

"In my opinion, based upon information, no further force is required. Insurgent leaders in Manila and army in excitable frame of mind, but better portion amenable to reason and desire to make approved position before civilized world.

"Insurgents have acceded to demand and evacuated entire city of Manila except small force in one suburb district. No difficulty anticipated. I make no concessions made to them. They express strong desire to maintain friendly intercourse with the United States government in all particulars. Refusal to abide by it, or, ... to carry out any decision ar... as in the case of payments ... ...dicated), results in ostracism. ... a member is thus cut off from ... he may be ostracised by the ... in the latter case he becomes a ... pariah, more wretched than a ... dog. But even if one is only ... out of the guild, one is often, ipso ... cast-casted. In the country such ... outlaw is debarred from all social ... recognition. No one will work with ... him or for him, nor will any one em... ploy him. In the cities no dealer will ... serve him, no broker will act for him, ... no servant will remain in his house. ... The carpenter, the baker, the confec... tioner, the blacksmith, the tile maker, ... the very potter, lowest of the lowly, ... refuse to take his orders, deliver goods ... to him, or perform any service for ... him at any price. Caste here has ... yielded entirely to the guild. The rule ... established by a low-caste corporation ... may involve such ostracism in the case ... of the highest caste, but it is enforced ... regardless of caste. A typical instance ... is cited by Mr. Proctor-Sims. In 1878, ... in a small town in Kathiawar, the Va... nia mahajan levied a religious tax ... which the traders of the Brahman ... caste refused to pay. The Vania guild ... therefore boycotted the Brahman trad... ers and forbade all dealings with them ... till the high-caste traders yielded and ... paid the tax. In small places the ma... hajan is thus absolute master of the ... town. No individual can stand against ... the local guild, nor where there are ... several small guilds which form a ma... hajan can a whole guild resist the un... ion. Owing to the number of traders ... and workmen in large towns who do ... not belong to guilds, the power there ... is not so great, but it is generally coer... cive. Thus in Ahmedebad, as I was ... told, a banker who had his house half-... tiled got into a quarrel with a confec... tioner, and could not get the other half ... of his house tiled till the sweetmeat ... guild had told the tile guild that it ... might resume work for the represen... tative of the bankers' guild."

A Colony That Is Succeeding.

Near Edison, in Skagit county, Wash., is a colony of people who own their land, houses, teams, cattle and all machinery in common. They begun work last November with ten men as pioneers, who went to clearing the land and building houses. At this time there are 300 people there. They cook for all in one kitchen and eat for one in the common dining room. They work nine hours a day except Saturday, when they work only five hours, having holiday in the afternoon. They all get the same pay, men and women. They pay themselves, with a check printed by themselves, which reads units instead of dollars and cents. They use no gold, silver or bank notes between members. They use their checks to buy clothing or any extras they may want from their own store at cost of goods. No profit is taken by any one member from another. The initiative and referendum are in force. Any officer can be dismissed at any time. The women vote and work on the same terms as the men. Every colonist gets his board, lodging, light and fuel, transportation, doctor's attendance, etc., free, and for his personal wants he receives 35 cents a week, or a proportion according to the number of days he works.

And as long as the members of the colony are content to live under the restrictions they have marked out for themselves, there is every probability that they will continue to prosper in a material sense. But whenever a fit of individuality and of mental expansion shall come over the colony, it will cease to exist. Some colonies have endured a long time before the fit came, but it always came and disrupted things. It's a part of the American idea, that, it appears "will not down," even though obedience to its impulse takes men from a calm but restricted certainty to a tumultuous but unrestricted uncertainty.

Labor Notes.

A month ago eighty girls employed in the Diamond Match company's works at Oshkosh walked out in a body after an hour's notice. The fumes arising from the sulphur is extremely injurious to the health of the employes. It is said to be very bad for the teeth, and when even the slightest cavity occurs in a tooth, unless it is attended to at once, the whole jaw will be seriously affected. The dentists' bills and loss of time in consequence of caring for the teeth make a great item in the yearly finances of the strikers. The average wages of the girls was from $2.25 to $2.75 a week. "We get 2½ cents for packing 144 boxes of matches," said Miss Walters, "and we made a demand for an increase to 3 cents for every 144. This would make a difference of from 8 to 11 cents a day for each girl."

The Pittsburg Labor League has decided to enter local politics, and a call has been issued for a convention of representatives of labor organizations September 10. This movement will be styled the Union party, its action to be limited to the congressional and legislative districts within Allegheny county. No person can have a seat in the convention who is not prepared to renounce all former party affiliations and pledge himself to the support of the convention's nominees, who must be members of the convention and of a bona fide labor organization.

Cleveland cigarmakers protest against the action of the retail clothing salesmen, who are trying to close up all the stores in the city on Sunday. If the agitation is kept up they fear that the cigar stores in the city will be closed on Sunday. This same law was indorsed and passed at the special request of the Central Labor Union.

If the West Virginia and Pennsylvania coal operators raise the scale, the operators of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio will not ask a reduction, and the operators of these three states have signified a willingness to co-operate with the miners in their efforts to bring West Virginia to time.

Suiz, a Swiss town, recently dismissed its school teacher, after fifty years' service, without giving him a pension. The Aargau Teachers' league put the town on its blacklist, and declared that it would not remove the ban till the discharged teacher received a pension. No teacher yet.

EVACUATING PORTO RICO.

Spaniards Withdraw From Three Towns —Island of Vieques Given Up.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico.—The evacuation of the outlying positions occupied by the Spaniards began Monday. Aguadilla, San Sebastian and Lares were abandoned by them and the troops of General Garrettson's brigade and the Eleventh Infantry moved in and hoisted the American flag.

The Spanish troops from the abandoned positions are being concentrated at Arecibo, from whence they will reach San Juan by railroad as soon as transportation is available. They could not enter the city before, owing to its crowded condition.

On Wednesday the Spaniards will evacuate the island of Vieques, where a company of American troops, dispatched from General Grant's brigade, has been landed. The Spanish troops from the island of Vieques will remain at Humacoa until the Spaniards fall on the line of the military road. Spanish control is now confined to within a line drawn from Humacao to Abonito, and from there to Arecibo, less than one-third of the island.

A large number of people were at the depot all the morning awaiting the coming of the troops. The three trains bearing the well men of the regiment arrived between 2 and 3 o'clock. The approach of the trains was signalized by the vigorous blowing of whistles and ringing of bells from every quarter of the city. The boys have two months' pay due them, amounting to $80,000. They will probably be paid Monday and furloughed for thirty days, when the formal mustering out will take place.

North Alabama Crops.

The cotton season is now on in north Alabama, and it promises to be a much more srtisfactory season than this section has had for several years. The yield will not be as large in north Alabama as formerly, owing to decreased acreage, but the decrease is not sufficient to be very noticeable. It is believed, though, that the farmers have at last determined to diversify crops more, and while there is no united movement in that direction, it is noticed that many of them this year have planted considerable wheat and have found it more profitable than cotton.

Outrages by a Lower Class of Natives in Porto Rico.

More depredations are reported to have occurred in the neighborhood of Utuado, Porto Rico. Several Spanish haciendas and cafeteles have been burned and two Spanish planters killed. FOR CONGRESS:

W. F. ALDRICH

THE contest in Coosa county instituted by the defeated Populist candidate for Judge of Probate has been withdrawn.

WE again call attention to the necessity of cleaning up all around, on account of the prevalence of yellow fever. While, up to the present, Alabama has so far escaped, it is nothing more than the duty of every person to see that his own premises are clean and in a sanitary condition.

IN placing the name of W. F. Aldrich as our candidate for Congress we do so with the knowledge that he is the best man we could possibly bring into the race. And we wish to impress our readers with the need there is of giving him a far larger majority than he has ever had before. He has fairly earned it and deserves it.

IN the eighth congressional district last week the Democrats held a primary election to nominate a member of congress for that district. General Joe Wheeler received the nomination without opposition. The peculiar feature of this primary is, Democrats, Republicans and Populists all joined in and gave the gallant General an unanimous nomination, showing how highly all parties hold the hero of Santiago in their estimation. It also shows a broad-minded and liberal view of public men and affairs on the part of Republicans and Populists.

BILL STEPHENS, colored, of unsavory political reputation, called a meeting at Calera yesterday, which he was pleased to dub "Republican." Inasmuch as Bill was ignominiously kicked out of the Republican party some time ago it required all the gall which Bill possesses to call any meeting and designate it a Republican gathering. What action was taken we have been unable to learn, but we surmise Bill's meeting was in favor of the Democratic nominee for Congress in this district, and it probably put out what purports to be another Republican candidate. This is the same tactics pursued by Bill and his allies in the State campaign, when Warner was run as a Republican candidate for governor. The idea is that some few deluded colored voters in the district will be induced to vote against the Populist and Republican combination nominee and that the Democratic nominee will thus get the benefit. Stevens, however, who at one time had some influence with the colored voters, is now so thoroughly discredited that whatever action he takes is placed at its proper value, and the resputable colored voter goes in the opposite direction to that which Bill dictates.

The death of Miss Winnie Davis, "Daughter of the Confederacy," which occurred at Narragansett Pier, R. I., on Sunday last, has awakened throughout the entire South expressions of regret at her demise and sympathy for her aged mother, widow of Hon. Jefferson Davis. Miss Davis was perhaps the most popular woman in the whole South. Born in Richmond, during the stormy period in the country's history and while her father was President of the Confederate States, she soon became generally known as the "Daughter of the Confederacy," by which title in late years she was always greeted at the re-unions of the Confederate veterans, whose chief delight seemed to be to bestow upon her tokens of their regard and esteem. Miss Davis was a most estimable woman, of lovely character and possessed or rare intellectuality. Whatever she wrote bore the impress of refinement of culture and loftness of character. We mourn, in common with all of our people, the death of this truly noble young woman.

The people of the United States are given the opportunity to vote upon such questions as the tariff or silver and to determine the national policy by their will as recorded in the ballot-box. Yet other questions equally as important may be decided by one man who becomes for the occasion as autocratic in his powers as the greatest despot the world has known.

Everoone admits that we are at the parting of the ways as between imperialism and continentalism, and everyone admits that to extend our sovereignty to Asia means a profound revolution in American affairs. But the people are not allowed to vote upon this question and decide it by a popnlar majority. Whether they would decide it one way or the other could not be known in the absence of plebiscite. The President may think he can guess what the majority of the people want, yet it is impossible for him to know their will with any certainty by depending upon the opinions of those who write to him or memorialize him in petitions, or send him marked copies of newspapers. Only by a popular vote can the will of the people be definitely known.

We do not state this in complaint of the president or the action he may take in settling the status of the Philippines, but merely to show that under our form of government the president is practically an high office. We wish to show that it is possible in this country for revolutions to take place under constitutional forms by the will of a single man.—Springfield Republican.

The People's Party has, however, been very useful in creating new issues. It put before the country the influence corporate wealth has over legislation; it accustomed the people to the consideration of a graduated income tax, and it brought to the attention of the people the need and value of direct legislation, known as the referendum. All of these issues and perhaps others, will survive the death of the party that brought them out, and years hence they will be fought out at the ballot boxes, and some of them at least promise to become valuable features of American policy. The passing of the Populists does not, therefore, mean that the good they strove for is lost. They have exercised a powerful influence over political thought, and it will be found that everything practical and valuable in their platforms will survive, and no little of it will become law, and beneficial law, too.

In Alabama but eleven counties out of sixty-six remain under the control of the Populists, and some of these are held by narrow majorities. Long before the next state election Butler and Cherokee and Chilton and Choctaw and Conecuh and Coosa and Covington and Geneva and Marshall and Shelby and St. Clair will doubtless conclude that they can best accomplish the reforms they desire by acting with and through the historic Democratic party, and they will be welcomed back with all cordiality and joy. —Age-Herald.

When you call for DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve the great pile cure, don't accept anything else. Don't be talked into accepting a substitute, for piles, for sores, for burns Stanfield & Matthews.

The desk at which President McKinley sits signing momentous war dispatches was a gift of the Queen to a former occupant of the White House. This piece of furniture has an interesting history. It is made of tough British oak, taken from the remains of the ill-fated ship Resolute, which, in 1852 went northwards in search of Sir John Franklin. Three years afterwards some American explorers found remnants of the vessel stuck in the ice, and brought them back to the United States. They were bought by the President, who courteously offered them to Queen Victoria as being a treasure more appropriate to be preserved by Great Britain than America. Her Majesty accepted the gift, and thanked the President warmly for the gracious act, and accompanying her letter was the desk, which is now one of the treasures of the White House.

Politieal Pointers.

Peoples Party Press Bureau
St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 21, 1898

Only thirteen states were represented in the so-called national Populist convention recently held at Cincinnati and the vote on candidates for the presidency showed only 228 delegates present, at least half of whom were self-appointed and the others held no credentials from anyone connected with the regular People's Party organization. It will be seen, therefore, that the attendance at this motley gathering was not as large as at many of the Populist county conventions in Kansas or Nebraska. Yet this pretended national convention—the smallest on record—went through the formality of nominating a couple of chronic office seekers for president and vice president and gravely decided to never hold another national convention, but to make nominations in the future by the initiative and referendum. The deluded mortals who participated in the Cincinnati muddle have made themselves the laughing stock of the whole country.

Mr. Sayers, the Democratic candidate for governor of Texas, has replied to Mr. Gibbs, the Populist nominee, who recently proposed to withdraw on condition that Mr. Sayers agreed to use the surplus school fund and convict labor in the construction of a State railroad from the Red river to the Gulf. In his letter Mr. Sayers refuses to accede to the conditions named. He asserts that the public school fund should be used only for the purpose for which it was intended and in a way to benefit all the people of the state, instead of only those living in the section through which such road might run. He is also opposed to the employment of prison labor or public works, where it will conflict with free labor.

After a very stubborn contest, fusion was affected between the silver forces in Washington, much to the disappointment of the middle-of-the roaders and goldbugs.

Following the lead of a number of other Western states, the Populists, Democrats and free silver Republicans of Nevada have united upon a State ticket and are prepared to make the election of their candidates unanimous.

The fact that the Republican vote was greatly reduced in Vermont and Maine during the recent elections in those States is causing the leaders in that party considerable worry.

The much advertised national currency convention, in connection with the Trans-Mississippi Exposition, began at Omaha the 14th inst. on schedule time. The friends of the white metal and of the yellow are both claiming the best of the argument. In the meantime a book will be published containing the debates.

The Populists, Democrats and Silver Republicans of Colorado, after much caucussing and dissension in their state conventions, finally united on a ticket, the election of which is not a question of doubt.

The Secretary of State of Missouri refuses to file either the straight Populist or middle-of-the-road ticket until the legality of one or the other has been declared by the courts.

The trouble between the striking coal miners and operators at Pana, Ill., which seemed to be in a fair way for settlement some time ago, is being prolonged, and it has required the greatest forbearance on the part of the strikers to prevent conflicts and bloodshed since the negroes imported from the South, who first refused, have been induced by the operators to return to work in the mines.

Twenty-seven Republican embezzlers have been unearthed in Nebraska during the last two years of Populist control in the state and the Republicans are making their campaign this year entirely upon national issues.

The goldbug press of the East never tire of speaking about Kansas prosperity. It is even asserted by Republican papers in the state that bank commissioner Breidenthal is in receipt of letters from parties in the east desiring to borrow money from the Kansas farmers. These smart scribblers evidently forgot that Kansas has been under Populist rule for two years.

Senator J. H. Kyle of South Dakota, was stricken with paralysis at Cleveland, Ohio, recently and for a while his life was despaired of. Mr. Kyle was first elected to the senate as a Populist, but during the last session he affiliated with the Republicans.

Consumption

Will SCOTT'S EMULSION cure consumption? Yes and no. Will it cure every case? No. What cases will it cure then? Those in their earlier stages, especially in young people. We make no exaggerated claims, but we have positive evidence that the early use of

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda in these cases results in a positive cure to a large number. In advanced cases, however, where a cure is impossible, this well-known remedy should be relied upon to prolong life surprisingly.

CROP REPORT

The Weekly Crop Bulletin says the first three days were cool and the nights especially so, but the last few days were warm and favorable; dry weather prevailed, except scattered showers in southern counties during the early part of the week. The sunshine was ample, and, as a whole, the week gave more favorable conditions than any during the last two months. Cotton has improved slightly, but is in generally poor condition from effects of previous unfavorable weather, and damage by rust, while not on the increase, is becoming more apparent, the plant is large but the bolls are small, and rotten bolls are quite generally reported; it is opening rapidly, many correspondents reporting as much as one-half to three-fourths of the entire crop open, and, while picking is now progressing rapidly, and a considerable portion of the crop has been marketed, in some fields picking has been retarded by rotten bolls; reports of poor quality and short yield continue quite general. With favorable weather the bulk of the cotton crop in this State will be gathered during the next three weeks. The corn prospect has changed but little, and, while there are some reports of rot and mould, previous estimates of a large yield hold good; the entire crop is practically matured, and some has been gathered during the week. Considerable late fodder and good hay and pea-vine crops have been saved. Sorghum is making a good yield, cane is maturing nicely and peanuts and sweet potatoes are yielding well. Scuppernong grapes are making a good yield; pasturage continues excellent and stock is in excellent condition. Some plowing has been done for fall wheat.

From Extreme Nervousness.

THAT no one remedy can contain the elements necessary to cure all diseases, is a fact well known to everyone. Dr. Miles' System of Restorative Remedies consists of seven distinctively different preparations, each for its own purpose.

Mrs. L. C. Brantley, 37 Henry St., St. Catharines, Ontario, writes: "For years I suffered from extreme nervousness and annoying constipation. Developing into palpitation and weakness of the heart. I was unable to sleep, suffered much from headache, pain in my left side, palpitation and a constant feeling of weakness and prostration. I began using Dr. Miles' Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills and the Anti-Pain Pills to relieve sudden paroxysms of pain and headache. I soon felt much improved and the pains and aches and weariness left me. I then took Dr. Miles' Restorative Tonic and am now restored to my former good health."

On proprietary medicines is now in effect and it is so great that we have been forced to raise the price on all patent medicines. The druggists pay more war tax than any business or profession in the United States.

We regret this exceedingly, but feel sure that our friends and customers will appreciate our position and not feel agrievad at us for endeavoring to protect ourselves against loss. We have always protected our customers and given them the lowest possible prices and we want them to feel assured that we will continue to do so as long as they give us their support. CHINA TOTTERS TO HER FALL

England Accuses Li Hung Chang of Being Bought With Russia's Gold.

The friction between England and Russia, arising from the attitude assumed by the Chinese Government in regard to railroad concessions in the Celestial Empire, has become the all-absorbing topic of the hour among foreign diplomats. In view of the large American interests in the Far East the trend of affairs is also being closely followed in this country. At the close of the war between China and Japan, England and Russia, both watchful for an opportunity to increase their power in the Chinese realm, stepped in and gained control through "leases" over the territory which had been occupied by the Japanese troops. Russia took Port Arthur and the surrounding country on the north of the Gulf of Pe-Chi-Lie, while England acquired control of Wei-Hai-Wei, on the south of the gulf.

EMPEROR OF CHINA.

At the present time there is only one railroad in China, which was built by Li Hung Chang, and is under the control of the government. The trouble now threatening between England and Russia has arisen through the repudiation by China of a contract with the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank to build a road from Tientsin via Shan-Hai-kwon to New-Chwang. The bank is owned almost entirely by English capitalists, although a few Americans hold stock in it. The proposed new road was an important part of the railroad system under development in China.

The Empress Dowager of China has openly relieved the Emperor of all real power. The Ministers take their instructions directly from her, and Li Hung Chang practically supersedes the Tsung-li-Yamen.

It is rumored that Sir Claude Macdonald, the British Minister, before the Tsung-li-Yamen accused Li Hung Chang of betraying China to Russia; and it is said that Li Hung Chang has threatened to demand the recall of Sir Claude Macdonald.

see this old fossil in his true light, and has rid himself of his "Old Man of the Sea." The Manchus, many of them, sympathize with Weng, and are fearful less this dismissal means wholesale innovations.

With Weng out of the way, the Empress Dowager had no difficulty in regaining her old place as real ruler of the eighteen provinces. All the provincial Governors and Viceroys, as well as government officials ranking higher than Taotai, are commanded to memorialize her, thanking her for the office they hold. She has already shown her favor to Li Hung Chang, and he is in power again as virtual ruler of the Tsung-li-Yamen. It must give old Li much satisfaction to thus prevail ever Weng, who clamored for Li's head during the Chinese-Japanese war.

One weak man in the Cabinet is Wang, who has been called from the Chihli Viceroyship. Prince Kung on on his deathbed stipulated that Wang should succeed him in the Cabinet. Wang is dull, ultra conservative, and smokes too much opium, but he is old and cannot last long.

The resurrection of Viceroy Li has aroused the British in China, who see in it another trick taken by the Russians. Li, who was once the strongest friend of England, is now doing everything in his power to help Russia.

The Empress Dowager of China, Tsou Hsi, is a woman of force. She is sixty-four years old, but she is the Chinese exemplar of the new woman. For nearly forty years hers has been the most powerful influence in the Flowery Kingdom.

The Emperor Kouangsu is the Empress Dowager's adopted son. After her own son's death she took up Kouangsu and trained him so that she could keep him under her thumb. The Emperor is twenty-six years old to-day, so that his open deposition from real power is a left-handed birthday present from his dear adopted mother.

For many years she has been receiving birthday presents which have made her the richest woman on earth. On each birthday the Chinese people have poured riches into her lap. During the war with Japan it was hinted to the Dowager Empress that the people needed all the money they had; that perhaps she might be pleased to refuse the usual presents. She compromised—took half.

Li Hung Chang, who was so popular in New York, has always found his firmest friend and most generous patron in the Dowager Empress. Once in a while she has been mad at him and taken away his peacock's feather or his yellow jacket, but he soon had it again, and her favor. So that usually, when all went well with Li Hung, it proved that the Dowager Empress was supreme. Rarely has the young Emperor tried to demonstrate his manhood and really be Emperor. Then Li Hung Chang was in trouble, but it never lasted long, for the Dowager Empress put her thumbs down on her stepson just as she has done now.

The Tsung-li-Yamen is the Chinese Foreign Office. The only thing to be compared to it in this country is the Department of State. It is stated that Tsou Hsi has lately been filling the

THE TSUNG-LI-YAMEN—THE STATE DEPARTMENT AT PEKIN.

Li Hung Chang is thus once more in power, acting as Chancellor directly under the Empress Dowager. This was brought about through the weakness of the Emperor, who is recognized as unfit to deal with large matters of state. The Empress Dawager, who is a very able woman, convinced him that he must retire Weng, who for several years had been the head and front of the party opposed to all foreign reforms and improvements.

Foreigners and the Progressive party of Chinese are delighted. No more radical or necessary first step toward progress could have been taken. The Emperor has at last been made to Tsungli-Yamen with weaklings to make it easier for him to boss the Tsung-li-Yamen.

It must have been a very pretty quarrel between Sir Claude Macdonald, backed by England, and Li Hung Chang, with the Dowager Empress behind him.

"You sold China to Russia!"

"I'll have you recalled!"

While all the weaklings of the Tsung-li-Yamen trembled in their brocaded gowns.

British subjects can travel entirely around the world without leaving the British Empire.

AN AMERICAN GIRL VICEREINE OF INDIA.

LUCK OF THE CURZONS.

The first American woman to become a real Queen is the daughter of a former dry-goods clerk.

She will rule more than 400,000,000 of people. She will occupy an official position higher than any woman of this nation has ever attained.

She has mounted to her proud place on a foundation of dry goods and Chicago real estate, but she is worthy of it.

George Nathaniel Curzon, who married Miss Mary Leiter, of Chicago, has been made Viceroy of India, the highest administrative office in the gift of the British Crown. Before the vision of the Hon. Mrs. George Nathaniel Curzon there opens a vista of surpassing richness and promise.

Her husband will be created a peer of the realm before he goes to india. There he will be Vice-King and his wife will be the Vice-Queen.

It is quite true this American woman will act for Queen Victoria, Empress of India, in ruling over the largest and most important possession of the British Empire. She will sit on a throne and none will be too great to bow before her.

Mrs. Curzon, to whom a daughter has just been born, is thirty-one. She has great beauty, $5,000,000 as a dowry and a young husband who is already one of the great men of his nation. Surely her career is enough to turn the head of most women.

Her position is fixed for all time. In India she and her husband will occupy a palace of the blood royal. In England she is upon the highest pinnacle.

Thirty years ago the father of this American queen was selling calico and stockings over a counter in Chicago. He saved one-half that he earned. He invested and saved all that he made until he had a fortune.

When he gained wealth his wife fought as hard for social recognition as her husband had to make money. She struggled in Chicago and made little headway. She went to Washington and resumed the fight there and succeeded. What matter if she was called the Mrs. Malaprop of Washington. She was a force, although to this day her sway is disputed.

But there is no disputing the power of her daughter. She has taken a foremost place in the most exclusive society in the world. She has now become the arbiter of the fate of American women seeking recognition abroad. By a mere word the daughter of Levi Z. Leiter can gain royal recognition for other American women, or she can, if she chooses, deny such recognition to them. She can make Mrs. Potter Palmer, her mother's ancient social enemy, knock in vain at the portal of European Courts even after having conquered the 400 and Newport.

Mrs. Curzon was Miss Mary Virginia Leiter, the eldest child of Levi Z. Leiter, and the sister of Joseph Leiter, who was king of wheat a few months ago and who lost something like $18,000,000, of which his father has had to pay about half, the other representing the profits of the deal at one time.

Mrs. Curzon has lived more in Washington and in Europe than she has in Chicago. Her marriage to George Nathaniel Curzon, who has been looked upon as the coming man in the Tory party for several years, was a great social event, although it did not attract as much attention as some other international marriages.

It was generally accepted that Mr. Curzon hoped some day to become Prime Minister of England and that it was his wife who influenced him in deciding to accept the high place of Viceroy.

She will occupy the highest place socially of any woman in India, because she will directly represent the Queen. She will hold court, receive native princes and be virtually queen of 400,000,000 people.

UNIQUE FIRE ENGINE.

London is Using One Whose Motive Power is Gasoline.

The motive power of this engine is gasoline, as the picture plainly indicates, the engine itself is very different from the machine that is ordinarily in use for the purpose. It is more compact and powerful, two improvements that will be very welcome. In the rear of the engine, and within the railing, is the fire hose on the reel of the usual pattern. Thus the engine and hose cart are in one. With this most up-to-date of fire engines there is a contrivance which will reel or unreel the hose, action being regulated by a lever close to that which operates the engine itself. This is one of the features which firemen find great cause for enthusiasm. In fact, the London fire fighters, who are considered fully equal to the bravest and best, even as good as the firemen of the United States, think that the reel feature is the point par excellence of the invention.

Generally the engine is supposed to carry five men, but this number can be increased if desired, as the additional weight of a larger crew would have no appreciable effect upon the speed, which is anywhere from twelve to twenty miles an hour. Two of the firemen stand on the footboard of the engine, which makes the entire circuit. The contrivance being of an elongated nature. The fifth man is the pilot. He stands within the rail and by means of a wheel laid flatwise upon an iron bar steers the queer machine. There is the usual headlight for use at night, located directly forward of the wheel bar.

A "Real Daughter" Gets Her Spoon.

A few days ago there was forwarded to Phoebe Bayard Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at Greensburg, Westmoreland County, Penn., a massive souvenir spoon that brought joy to the heart of Mrs. Margaret C. Craig, of New Alexandria, who is a member of Phoebe Bayard Chapter. The spoon, in accordance with the custom of the order, was sent because Mrs. Craig had been accepted by the national society at Washington as a "real daughter," she being the daughter of General Alexander Craig, who rendered distinguished services to his country during the revolution.

MRS. M. C. CRAIG, "REAL DAUGHTER" OF THE REVOLUTION.

Mrs. Craig is in her ninety-fifth year. The committee of ladies which had the honor of conveying to her the souvenir spoon found her on the Craig farm, in the same house where her revolutionary father left her sixty-two years ago. Every year of her long life has been spent under this roof.

General Alexander Craig, the distinguished head of the family, father of our "real daughter," was born November 20, 1755; served through the revolution, and died October 29, 1832.

THE REALM OF FASHION

Tucked Shirt Waist With Fitted Lining.

The shirt waist is again prominent among the styles, and tucking is one of the marked features this season. With a well-cut and fitted fine percale or lawn shirt waist, fresh from the laundry, there comes an appearance of style and neatness that accounts for its long-continued popularity.

Fancy dotted percale in lavender and white made the stylish model, the tucks of uniform depth giving a desirable fullness across the bust that is very generally becoming. The waist is arranged over a fitted lining (which can be omitted if desired), and has a straight back yoke which meets the front in seams forward on the shoulders. An applied box plait finishes the right front, through which the closing is effected by studs or buttons and buttonholes. Gathers at the waist line pouch the front in latest style, the back being drawn smoothly to the waist. The neck is finished with a collar band, and the standing collar of white linen is made adjustable.

The correct sleeves are of fashionable size, the moderate fullness being gathered at the top and wrists into straight cuffs. A leather belt is worn at the waist, and a bow tie of satin at the neck.

To make this waist for a lady of medium size four yards of material thirty inches wide will be required.

An Equestrian Costume.

For ordinary wear as well as for equestrian exercise the style of basque shown in the large engraving is popular, writes May Manton, it having the merit of being especially becoming to ladies of generous proportions.

Its special adaptation to the requirements of stout women is further emphasized by an extra underarm gore, provided in the sizes above thirty-six inches bust measure, by which the width of the back, and side back, forms are so decreased that an illusion of slimness results. The narrow postillion back, with regular coat plaits and lap, is a becoming feature and will be welcomed by those who aim to dress correctly.

Navy blue cheviot is here represented, smooth covered tailor buttons effecting the closing in center front.

The glove-fitting adjustment is accomplished by double bust darts and curving front edges, the upper portion being reversed in small lapels that meet the rolling collar in notches.

Machine stitching finishes all edges in strictly tailor style.

The chemisette is of white linen, but can be of material to correspond or contrast with the basque.

The sleeves are of fashionable size and fit closely at the wrists, closing with three buttons and buttonholes.

Basques in this style usually match the material of the skirt, firmly woven textures being the invariable choice.

MISS WINNIE DAVIS IS DEAD

At Noon Sunday Her Suffering Was Ended.

THE BURIAL WILL BE AT RICHMOND.

Remains of the Daughter of the Confederacy Will Be Interred by the Side of Her Illustrious Father. Sketch of Her Life.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I.—Miss Winnie Davis, daughter of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, died at noon Sunday of acute gastritis, at the Rockingham hotel, to which place she came as a guest in the early part of the Pier's social season. Miss Davis had been ill for several weeks, and a fortnight ago her ailment was diagnosed as malarial gastritis.

At times her condition became very serious, so that consultations of physicians were deemed necessary, but frequent rallies gave renewed hope that she would ultimately recover. During the past week especially was her condition considered favorable and it was thought that her removal from the hotel would be possible in a few days, as the hotel had closed for the season, leaving the patient and attendants practically alone in the house. Saturday night, however, a relapse in Miss Davis' condition was noticed and throughout the night she lost strength perceptibly.

Sunday morning the physician said that the end was not far off, and at noon death came to end the sufferings, which at times had been intense.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis had watched unremittingly at her daughter's bedside, and she is now bowed with sorrow. She is holding up with great calmness in her affliction, and no fears are at present entertained of her health yielding to the strain.

On Wednesday afternoon the remains of Miss Davis will be removed to the parlor of Rockingham hotel, where they may be viewed by friends. The funeral services will be held at Richmond, Va., on Friday.

Winnie Davis, the "Daughter of the Confederacy," was born in the confederate executive mansion at Richmond, Va., in 1863. She was educated principally at home, owing to the trouble surrounding her father and the publicity which attended all the movements of the Davis family. Miss Davis attained her majority at Beauvoir, Miss. Here she assisted her mother in various ways, and took her place in the many social functions of the place. She was her father's constant companion. She assisted him in all his work, and much of the information which was required by Mr. Davis in his writings was secured for him by his daughter. Her strong character was marked from youth. She was engaged to Mr. Wilkerson, of Syracuse, N. Y., but shortly after her father's death the engagement was broken off. While no public explanation of the rupture was given out, it is well known that it was for the purpose of maintaining her father's name. She received the name, "Daughter of the Confederacy," in 1886, when her father made his famous trip through the south. Mr. Davis being unable to appear, Miss Winnie was brought before the thousands at the different points along the route and introduced as the "Daughter of the Confederacy."

MORE TROOPS FOR PHILIPPINES.

The War Department Has Ordered Five Additional Regiments to Go.

A special from Washington says: Five regiments now at San Francisco have been ordered to Manila. Arrangements for the transportation will be made at once. The regiments ordered to Manila are the following: Fifty-first Iowa, Twentieth Kansas, First Tennessee, First Washington and a detachment of the Second Oregon.

It was stated at the war department that no exigency had arisen which made it necessary to send the troops now at San Francisco to Manila, but the order issued Monday was in accordance with the general plan of the department regarding a garrison for the Philippines. The plan of garrison duty included 20,000 men.

The Rush For Gold.

From the Texas Bluffs, Ill.

The rush of gold seekers to the Klondike brings thrilling memories to the "forty-niners" still alive, of the time when they girdled the continent, or faced the terrors of the great American desert on the journey to the land of gold. These pioneers tell some experiences which should be heeded by gold seekers of to-day. Constant exposure and faulty diet killed large numbers, while nearly all the survivors were afflicted with disease, many of them with rheumatism. Such a sufferer was Adam Vangundy, who now resides at Bluffs, Ill., where he has been justice of the peace and was the first president of the board of trustees. In a recent interview he said:

"A Forty-niner."

"I had been a sufferer of rheumatism for a number of years and the pain at times was very intense. I tried all the proprietary medicines I could think or hear of, but received no relief.

"I finally placed my case with several physicians and doctored with them for some time, but they failed to do me any good. Finally, with my hopes of relief nearly exhausted I read an article regarding Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which induced me to try them. I was anxious to get rid of the terrible disease and bought two boxes of the pills. I began using them about March, 1897. After I had taken two boxes I was completely cured, and the pain has never returned. I think it is the best medicine I have ever taken, and am willing at any time to sign my name to any testimony setting forth its good merits."

(Signed) ADAM VANGUNDY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 29th day of September, A. D. 1897.

FRANKLIN C. FUSK, Notary Public.

Mr. Vangundy's statement ought to be regarded as the criterion of the good merits of these pills. What better proof could a person want than the above facts.

THE DRESS OF QUAKERS.

Origin of the Peculiar Garb of This Peaceful Sect.

The dress of Quakerism—that is to say, the garb and speech which have always been traditionally associated with the sect—may well be treated first, though not of the highest order of importance, because these go to form the first (often the only) impressions of those whose knowledge is confined to what has been seen only. The use of the quietest styles, as was common in Fox's day, and of garments differing widely from the fashions of later times, was a part of the strong protest which the early Friends felt called upon to make against the scandalous and criminal license of the Restoration period in England, when the whole of "polite" society, following the lead of the buffoon King Charles II., seemed determined to turn into contempt all that for which Puritanism had stood, its politics and government, its morals and religion. In these days it will be admitted by most of the adherents of the sect that the protest or "testimony" as to plainness of apparel is to be viewed in the light of its higher meaning. * * * Not long ago a man in New York published a book descriptive of what he called "Society," in which he attempted to show that it was necessary for "fashionable" people, in order to maintain their "position" fully, to spend annually a sum more than enough to support the families of two hundred skilled workingmen for the same length of time, and that the mistress of such an establishment was expected—that is, compelled—to pay $10,000 for dress alone in a twelvemonth. Here are rich opportunities for the exercise of the "Friendly" spirit; not necessarily the old idea that persons should wear a severely plain, unfashionable, and very conspicuous dress, or even that there is any especial merit in so doing, but that expenditures upon the "things which perish" should be directed by justice, delicacy, good taste and common sense.—Popular Monthly.

Mrs. Young—I dreamt last night that mother was coming to stay with me for a month. Mr. Young—Ah! dear me, dreams always go by contraries. Mrs. Young—And I also dreamt that you said I couldn't have a new dress. Mr. Young—H'm! funny, isn't it, how true some dreams come?—Pick-Me-Up.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

1. Is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.
2. Is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.
3. Secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.
4. Is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members in exercising their right of association, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as Dr. Shaw says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it presents to its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, economic, and literary kingdoms, which are of value to busy men and women. The "Progress of the World" is concisely an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in two departments; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the men of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of current serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the American Monthly the alertness, independence and energy of journalism with the sober judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" interests is best proved by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Collins Chapel, Sept. 24, 1898

Editor BANNER. I wish to speak a few words to the people of our county. The cry now is for better times. But how can we have better times as long as we raise from four to five cents cotton? Friends, what must we do? They have got us where they have wanted us for a long time. People, I say we must organize and become as a unit; we could have been the independent people of the world if we had begun in time, but we have waited so long until we are dependent. We can make our bread, meat, clothes and shoes at home; but we now raise 4½ cent cotton to buy them with. People, if I had every bale of cotton in the United States I would have eight cents for it before I would let it slide. And if we will organize we can do the same.

I saw in the issue of the 15th where a few were opposin the bull and boar law. Wake up Uncle Mike, and I think you will see that a thousand pound bull will beat one weighing five hundred, and a cow giving two gallons of milk will beat one giving a quart. Bro. Mike said that we need more bulls and better bulls. How do you expect for us to get them when everything runs at large from one size of a goat up to a six year old bull weighing five hundred pounds. Then trace the bull back, and you will find their mother's giving ½ gallon per day and their father's stock giving one quart. I want plenty of good bulls and boars, and handle as stallions, and a special tax put on them and that to go for the benefit of public schools. I care not say much about public schools; no more than we need them the worst of all. I am ready for any law that will give us a better school system. I want some man to suggest a school law that will beat the one we have and we will follow him and help him to get it through the legislature.

As to the road law, I think the one we have is all O. K. if we will execute it.

J. D. C.

A stubborn cough or tickling in the throat yields to One Minute Cough Cure. Harmless in effect, touches the right spot, reliable and just what is wanted. It acts at once. Stanfield & Matthews.

Thorsby, Sept. 26, 1898

Editor BANNER—I notice in the Banner where several are writing in regard to the stock law, etc. I have talked with several about it, and they say we don't need any such law. I also have talked with two men in Dallas county, and they both said it was the worst thing they ever had to contend with. Consequently we don't need the stock law in Chilton.

As to the bull and boar law, it would be good for some, while it would be worse for others. There are so many poor people that could not pay the fee required by the owners.

As to the road law, we need an amendment to it; we need just such a law that would compel the overseers to have more work done on the roads. We don't need the roads to be worked by taxation, for that would let most all the young men and negroes out; and those that have worked out their time would have to come in and pay for the roads being worked; so that looks like it would be too hard on them.

In regard to the school law, we need everything possible to better it in every respect; for there are just as bright intellects in Chilton as there are anywhere, if they just had the opportunity. We also need the dog law and let it go to the public schools. THE RAIL SPLITTER.

Corinth, Sept. 25, 1898

A large number of persons from the circumjacent neighborhoods assembled at Corinth church for an all day exercise in vocal music. The attendance was not very large, and good order was observed. There is no religious services more inspiring and entertaining than that of congregational music, prayer and praise. It softens the heart and lifts the aspirations of the mind and soul up to God, and we are better prepared for spiritual worship and adoration. The singing of a beautiful hymn has often touched the heart of the ungodly, and been made the means of his conversion. Such gatherings have a decided tendency to accomplish good, not only to the singers in a musical, educational point of view, but socially to all who may attend. The poet says that music hath charms to soothe the savage breast. If it contributes to the general good of the community we hope that many more Sabbaths will be devoted to its enjoyment by the good people of Chilton county.

The meeting was organized by electing as chairman J. S. Jones sr., Walter Kendrick was chosen secretary. The committee to arrange program and appoint leaders were W. D. Goss, P. H. Connell and J. R. Tarver. The services were opened with a short prayer by R. D. May at 10 o'clock a.m., then the lessons were conducted by John Barbour, N. J. Jones, Thomas Pyron, J. S. Jones and R. D. May.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 26, 1898.

Editor BANNER:—Our regiment arrived safe and sound in this city Saturday, Sept. 17. We started from Jacksonville about noon of the day before after a morning's hard work of breaking camp and packing up. We were less reluctant to leave Jacksonville than Miami as we had been treated far better than at Flagler's pest hole.

We reached Waycross in time to see the last section of the 1st Ala. pull out over the Plant system while we went via Albany and Eufala.

The ride was uneventful and the boys tried to catch some sleep until we reached Eufala where the people were out in force to welcome us although they seemed to have forgotten the edibles that a soldier likes so well.

Union Springs was taken by surprise for one or two of the citizens said they didn't know when we were coming.

We rolled into the depot shed with the first section of the 1st. Ala having beaten the third section by three quarters of an hour and then traelled fifty miles futher.

The men of the 2nd Ala., were expecting an enthusiastic reception by the people of Montgomery and for days before starting home they would talk of the good things they were anticipating, even staying sober during the trip so as to have a good appearance; but the feeble cheers from the few who were standing around the depot and the cup of weak coffee provided by the government, was dishearteningly especially when the news of the reception of the 1st Ala., was read.

We pitched our camp out in Riverside park near the old fair grounds and near an old Confederate camp of the days of '61. A veteran who had camped remarked that it was strange to see the southern boys in blue camped so near to where the southern boys in grey once camped.

Early Tuesday morning orders were sent down for us to hand in the government property and to meet the paymaster, both of which were obeyed with alacrity, some of the boys vowing they would never touch a Springfield rifle again.

After the paymaster had finished our furloughs were handed to us and Camp Herbert was immediately deserted.

This will probably be the last letter you will receive from A PRIVATE of the 2nd Ala. Vols., as it's regiment is to be mustered out, and he will be transferred into the Hospital Corps. You may hear from him then. A PRIVATE.

A CRITICAL TIME

During the Battle of Santiago

SICK OR WELL, A RUSH NIGHT AND DAY

The Packers at the Battle of Santiago de Cuba were all Heroes. Their Heroic Efforts in Getting Ammunition and Rations to the Front Saved the Day.

P. E. BUTLER, of pack train No. 3 writing from Santiago, De Cuba, on July 23d, says: "We all had diarrhoea in more or less violent form, and when we landed we had no time to see a doctor, for it was a case of rush and rush night and day to keep the troops supplied with ammunition and rations, but thanks to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, we were able to keep at work and keep our health; in fact, I sincerely believe that at one critical time this medicine was the indirect saviour of our army, for if the packers had been unable to work there would have been no way of getting supplies to the front. There were no roads that a wagon train could use. My comrade and myself had the good fortune to lay in a supply of this medicine for our pack-train before we left Tampa and I know it four cases it absolutely saved life."

The above letter was written to the manufacturers of this medicine, the Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa. For sale by Dr. J. S. Johnson, jr.

Porto Rico means door to riches. The Spaniards have kept it shut and locked so long that it may prove a misnomer.

A bust of Oliver Cromwell has been placed in the corridor of the British house of commons. The house of commons has come to think more of the great Protector than he once did of the house of commons.

The officers of the Philadelphia Museum have received a letter from New South Wales, in which it is said; "When the federation of the Australian colonies shall have been accomplished English and American dealers will commence to build large factories in and near Sydney. Several large firms have already arranged for them."

Professor Koch of anti-tuberculosis fame has made a new discovery. He has come forward with the startling announcement that he knows what causes malaria, It's mosquitoes. Now Professor Koch may be a very great man, but he has simply begged the question. If mosquitoes cause malaria, what causes mosquitoes? That's what this patient world wishes to know. Tell us how to get rid of the mosquitoes, and we shall not worry about the malaria.

Mrs. Louise H. Pratt of Sherwood, Wis., thinks that sweet young things with golden hair should not monopolize the privilege of naming warships; so she wants to be allowed to name the battleship Wisconsin. Among her qualifications she mentions the following: She is fifty-one years old, got her education in a little log schoolhouse in Wisconsin, knows how to cook, knit, spin and make soft soap, wears her hair short, and has christened and reared two boys and two girls of her own.

The Hawaiian government has, in co-operation with a syndicate of planters and merchants, organized a pigeon post service between the eight largest islands of the Sandwich Archipelago. Communication had previously been carried on under difficulties and at irregular intervals, vessels not always being able to reach the islands. Several hundred birds have been trained to the service, and the attempt to establish a daily bird post has been attended with success. The most distant of the outlying posts is two hundred and fifty miles from Honolulu, the central station.

The Baltimore American says: "The effort to introduce foreign quail into this country has apparently proven a complete failure. Several years ago sportsmen through this country were deeply interested in the attempt made in this state to propagate quail from other countries. Many birds were imported into this city, and then liberated throughout the state. These have apparently all disappeared. The most conspicuous attempts were transporting here of birds from the Scilly Isands and from China. The money spent in this direction was a loss. The last attempt on an elaborate scale to stock Maryland with exotic birds was by Frank T. Redwood, the stock broker and member of the Baltimore Yacht club, and a hunt for his birds reveals the fact that none of them are to be found."

The Berlin (Germany) Reichsanzeiger has published an official statement of the finances of the kingdom of Prussia which is of great interest in many ways. It shows Prussia to be the most prosperous industrial state in the world, and explains how it is able to meet the heavy charges imposed by the political and military situation of Germany. With a population of about 32,000,000, the public debt of Prussia is rather more than $50 per capita, or about $1,625,000,000. It has been increased by $450,000,000 in the last six years, but of this amount only about $25,000,000 was expended on unproductive work. The cost to the state of the whole debt is only $55,000,000 a year, while the net revenue received from the public works and state properties is over $135,000,000. The net revenue of the railways belonging to the state, which in 1880-81 was only $23,000,000 during past years has averaged close on $75,000,000, and for 1898-99 is estimated at $109,500,000. The state domains and forests yield an average of $12,500,000.

MUST NOT BE DELAYED.

A Peremptory Message Has Been Sent to Cuban Commission.

TO DEMAND IMMEBIATE EVACUATION.

Satisfactory Progress Being Made in Evacuation of Porto Rico—Elaborate Ceremony When American Flag is Raised Over San Juan.

WASHINGTON.—A very peremptory message of instruction has been sent to the Cuban military commission and by them made the basis of a note to the Spanish commissioners.

The authorities in Washington will not make public the terms of the note, but its general tenor is that the United States will not be satisfied with any further delay in the evacuation of Cuba. It is to the effect that the terms of the protocol called for the immediate evacuation of Cuba, and that Spanish sovereignty must be relinquished. The American commissioners have been informed that the evacuation of Cuba cannot be delayed.

No Hitch in Porto Rico.

SAN JAUN, Porto Rico.—Everything regarding the evacuation of the island of Porto Rico by the Spanish troops is proceeding satisfactorily. The Spaniards are acting in perfect good faith, and are turning over everything as they quit the various towns.

Preparations are being made for an elaborate and impressive ceremony when the American flag is raised over San Jaun.

The lights on the north coast of the island, which have been dark since the war began, have been relighted by the Spaniards, except at San Jaun, where the lighthouse has been destroyed in the bombardment of the fleet under Rear Admiral Sampson.

CHANGES IN CHINA.

The Emperor Deposed by the Dowager Empress.

An imperial edict just issued definitely announces that the emperor of China has resigned his power to the empress (dowager empress), who has ordered the ministers to deliver to her in future their official reports.

It is difficult to obtain reliable information at the palace in regard to the proceeding, but the recent reformatory edicts probably caused the changes. While the emperor was subservient and a mere figurehead, the dowager empress permitted him to remain in peace, but as soon as he attempted to act on his own initiative his practical deposition was the result.

The effect of the change must be great. In all probability Li Hung Chang will be reinstated in power and Russian influence will increase. The hopes of reform evidently cherished by the intelligent factions of the Chinese are now impossible of fulfillment.

The suddenness of the coup is said to be due to the desire of the dowager empress to prevent the mission of the Marquis Ito from being successful.

The Japanese statesman recently came to Peking with the object of trying to bring about an alliance, offensive and defensive, between Japan and China.

The new order of things will undoubtedly prejudice British interests in China.

ENVOYS OF AGUINALDO

Will Urge at Washington That the Filipinos Be Allowed to Govern Themselves.

The steamer China, from Hong Kong and Nagasaki, arrived at San Francisco Friday. Among the passengers were Filipo Agoncillo and Jose Lopez, who are going to Washington as representatives of Aguinaldo. Agoncillo did not come direct from Manila, but started from Hong Kong, where he has been for some time. He declines to make public what Aguinaldo wants or expects, but states that the insurgents generally look for ultimate independence. After a short stay at Washington, the men will proceed to Paris to attend the meeting of the peace commission. It is probable that if they call at the white house on their way through Washington to Paris, they will be permitted to see President McKinley, but only as individuals, and not as representatives of any government.

All Relations Severed.

Advices received from Bogota, the capital of Colombia, say that all relations between Colombia and Italy have been severed, owing to the action of the Italian government in the Cerruti affair, which the Colombian officials considered arbitrary and in violation of the treaty of 1892, which was thereby annulled.

I have orders to organize six regiments of cavalry to go to Cuba. The Fifth cavalry is now at Huntsville; the First cavalry has been ordered from Camp Wikoff to relieve the Eighth in Dakota, the Eighth to proceed to Huntsville for preparation for Cuba; the Ninth goes to Colorado to relieve the Seventh, the latter going to Huntsville; the Second Sixth and Tenth, all at Camp Wikoff, have been ordered to Huntsville direct and will move just as soon as transportation can be arranged."

LIABLE TO CAPTURE AS PIRATES

Are the Vessels of the Philippine Insurgents—Talk of French Recognition.

MANILA.—When the United States auxiliary cruiser McCulloch captured the insurgent steamer Abbey, formerly the Passig, sixty miles south of Manila, the Abbey, it is believed, having landed 7,000 rifles, an insurgent gunboat followed the American vessel into Cavite and now the Americans contemplate taking possession of the entire insurgent fleet, because the vessels are flying an unrecognized flag and are liable to seizure as pirates by the war vessels of any nation. American cruisers have gone north, where the steamer Filipinos is landing troops.

The steamship Topeka has arrived at Port Townsend from Alaskan ports with 150 Klondikers, 90 per cent of whom have little or no dust to show for their experience in the land of gold, and they all express themselves as being glad to get out alive. Three thousand cases of typhoid fever is the estimate placed on the number of sick in Dawson September 6. A large number of deaths occur daily, of which no record is made. The cold weather coming on soon will check the fever. It is estimated that about 9,000 people joined the rush to Stewart river. Nearly every foot of available ground has been prospected, but no gold was found.

10,000 TROOPS OFFERED

By Russians to the Chinese to Keep Order in Peking.

EASTERN WAR CLOUD GROWS DARKER.

English Fleet Will Intercept Russian Transports if an Attempt to Land Soldiers is Made—Emperor Believed to Be Dead.

A special dispatch from Shanghai says that Kang Yu Wei, the emperor's brother, has been arrested in Peking and condemned to death. The dispatch also states that Sir Claude MacDonald, the British minister, gave instructions that Kang Yu Wei should be protected from arrest. The British consulate holds his baggage and documents referring to state secrets. The Russians are incensed at the latter fact, and it is reported that Russia has offered the dowager empress the services of 10,000 troops from Port Arthur to keep order in Peking if necessary. It is stated that the British fleet in Chinese waters has been divided between Taku and Shan Haik Wan under orders to intercept Russian transports in the event of an effort to land troops.

The London Times' Shanghai correspondent telegraphs:

"On the arrival of Kang Yu Wei at Wu Hung he was placed for safety on board the steamer Ballarat. In the course of an interview he said that he left Peking on Tuesday in compliance with a secret message from the emperor warning him of his danger and urging him to obtain assistance from those interested in the country's welfare. He further stated that recent events were entirely due to the action of the Manhu party, headed by the dowager empress and Viceroy Yung Ti, and including all the high Manhu officials. The latter were displeased by the emperor's leaning toward the reform party, and decided to restore the regency of the dowager.

"The dowager empress' party is bound by an understanding with the Russians whereby the latter, in consideration of the support of the Russian interests, undertake to preserve Manchuria as the seat of the dynasty and to maintain Manchurian rule in China. The present movement is entirely Manchu as opposed to Chinese.

"The influence of Li Hung Chang is now subordinate to that of Yung Tu and is likely to decrease.

"The emperor's health is excellent, and his capacity for work and eagerness for progress are remarkable. His majesty is convinced, however, that it will be impossible to overcome the opposition without the assistance of England, which he endeavored to obtain for his recent progressive measures.

"Kang Yu Wei urges that England now has an opportunity to intervene and restore the emperor to his throne, by doing which, he asserts, she will earn the gratitude of the Chinese people. He also observes that unless protection is afforded to the victims of the coup d'etat, it will be impossible henceforth for any native official to support British interests."

Now Believed That the Emperor is Dead.

HONG KONG.—Although there is no positive confirmation, all the evidence tends to the conviction that the emperor is dead. A private dispatch says he died September 21, directly he issued the edict giving the dowage the regency.

SUAKIM.—The only organized remnant of the khalifa's army was defeated, and its last stronghold, Gedaref, captured on September 22, after three hours' hard fighting, when an Egyptian force numbering 1,300, under Colonel Parsons, routed 3,000 dervishes, of whom 500 were killed. Three British officers were wounded and thirty-seven Egyptian soldiers killed and fifty-nine wounded.

GARCIA ENTERS SANTIAGO

Welcomed by 10,000 Persons—Banquet Tendered by American Officers.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA.—To the residents of Santiago Friday was the most important event since the capture, as it was the occasion of the entry of General Calixto Garcia into the city since he left there in a hostile manner July 17th. At 9 o'clock in the morning General Wood, with a party of General Lawton's staff and several American officers, met General Garcia outside the city limits and escorted him to town. Garcia was accompanied by his son, Colonel Calixto Garcia, many Cuban officers who have come to Santiago, and by a troop of cavalry.

The streets through which the party passed were thronged with cheering people, and it was estimated that 10,000 persons filled the plaza in front of the palace, where Garcia dismounted. He was met at the door by General Lawton, and an informal reception by the American officers was held in the audience room.

At night another reception was tendered General Garcia at the Hidalgo Club, which was filled with prominent Cubans, American officers and ladies.

The powers have tacitly decided to settle the Cretan question immediately, and will not hesitate to send their fleets to the Dardanelles and beyond if necessary.

Liquor and Labor.

Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright has concluded an investigation into the relationship between liquor drinking and hard work, the degree of discrimination of employers against drinking men, etc. He sent schedules of inquiry to employers of labor throughout the country, and replies were received from the employers of about 2,000,000 men.

About five-sixths of the responding employers said that they made careful inquiry into the liquor habits of applicants for work. Of the different classes of employers replying that they are careful on this point those engaged in the transportation industry showed the greatest percentage.

In some establishments no one using intoxicants is employed. In others certain employes may drink, others not. In many prohibition rules are applied only during working hours.

The two chief reasons given for insisting of non-indulgence are: "To guard against accident," and "because of responsibility of position."

Employes subjected to night work do not appear to be addicted to drink to any considerably degree above others. Between a fifth and sixth of the establishments having employes subject to overwork reported that these were harder drinkers than those not overworked. Out of more than 2,000 establishments having workmen exposed to severe weather less than 400 reported that such employes drink more than others not exposed. Men who are idle days or months at a time are apt to get into all kinds of mischief. Out of almost 2,000 establishments employing men irregularly and reporting as to this question a trifle more than 1,200 did not note any conspicuous relationship between such irregularities and drink, almost 400 confessed that they did and over 300 refused to answer. Conspicuous among those affected by irregularity are those whose occupations keep them busy only in certain seasons of the year.

One would reasonably suppose that more drinking is done immediately after payday than at any other time in the week or month. A majority of employers, replying as to this point, find that this is the case. Almost 4,000 find it so. This is strikingly noticeable in the mining and quarrying industries. A majority of employers, asked the general question whether they are troubled with intoxication among their employes, admit that they are. Discharge is the chief means tried and found effective to lessen the evil. Changing the pay-day from Saturday ranks next in effectiveness. Men are more apt to get drunk on Saturday night than at any other time in the week, because they have a day of rest and recuperation immediately in anticipation. Some purely practical employers report that they have changed their pay-days from other days of the week to Saturday in order to allow their hard-drinking employes the Sabbath for full recovery, and that they may return to their work Monday morning feeling fresh and clear-headed.

A firm doing an extensive coal handling business in Chicago and Milwaukee, and constantly employing many laborers of various nationalities common in this country, has contributed statistics as to the relationship between nationality and drink. The firm remunerates all of its employes every Tuesday by pay checks. For two months a record has been kept of the different concerns which return these checks to the firm for cash. As to the portion of money wasted for drink, it was discovered that in Milwaukee all, or one hundred per cent of the Hungarians and Poles and sixty-four per cent of the Germans cashed their checks at saloons. In Chicago seventy-seven per cent of the Hungarians and Poles, seventy-one per cent of the Scotch and Irish, seventy per cent of the Germans and sixty-one per cent of the English and Americans did the same. A conspicuous exception are a good majority of the Swedes and Norwegians and Scotch and Irish in Milwaukee, who cashed their checks in groceries. Still better, in Chicago as many as ninety-one per cent, or nearly all, of the Swedes and Norwegians spent their money away from the saloons.

From all of which it follows that he who seeks employment stands a better chance of securing it if he is a teetotaller than if he isn't.

PRICES GOING DOWN.

EVERY ARTICLE YOU HAVE FOR SALE GETTING CHEAPER.

The Cause of the Depreciation Is the Gold Standard of the Republican Party—Charles A. Towne Makes Some Facts Very Plain.

Falling prices are an industrial, economic, political and social evil of almost unparalleled proportions. They discourage industries, drive money from activity into idleness, from the channels of trade into the bank vaults, reduce wages and throw laborers out of employment, make property unproductive and therefore worthless, destroy equities, increase the burden of taxes and all fixed charges, ruin debtors, pile up wealth in the hands of the few, encourage the formation of trusts, monopolies and combines, make producers the prey of middlemen, strengthen the hold of the merely rich upon the political machinery of the state, stifle the spirit of liberty among the masses, increase immorality, and, if long enough protracted, inevitably lead to the overthrow and demolition of the very fabric of popular government. This indisputable and portentous fact—the tremendous appreciation of gold—is the central point of this great controversy. Rightly apprehended, it is alone absolutely destructive of all claims on the part of the gold standard to be considered a satisfactory money system. Any such claim is confronted with the insuperable fact that during the existence of that system it has given the gold-using world a most unstable measure of value, one that has nearly doubled in twenty-five years. The gold standard and permanently higher prices are impossible companions. The continuance of that system means a continued increase in the purchasing power of the dollar and, which is identically the same thing, a protracted fall of general prices. The par of exchange among nations can be restored in only one of two ways—either by the universal adoption of the gold standard, so that all nations shall use a common measure of one metal, or by the restoration of genuine bimetallism, so that all nations may possess a common measure, composed of the joint volume of both gold and silver. But the universal adoption of the gold standard is impossible. To say nothing of the folly of attempting its extension to India, its establishment in all its rigor, even in Europe, would produce a cataclysm of disaster and misery due to the enforced annihilation of hundreds of millions of dollars of silver and silver-supported paper, with their superimposed credit, that a social chaos would supervene, compared to which the dark ages would seem like an Arcadian era. Our country's power is rising. The next great conquest of commerce is in the Orient. The exploitation of China is an impossibility without the establishment of a stable par of exchange between ourselves and that country, nor can we make it profitable if her developing forces are to continue to receive the progressive stimulus afforded by a failing exchange. CHARLES A. TOWNE.

Maine Republicans.

Maine has returned Speaker Reed to congress with a marked falling off in the Republican vote. Lewellyn Powers was re-elected governor by a plurality of about 27,000, whereas two years ago he went into office with a plurality of 42,000. The decrease in the Republican vote is discouraging to the party in power, and explanations and excuses are now in order. Reed's constituents showed a lack of interest in their candidate and the result was a decrease of 4,000 votes in his usual majority. Analyzing the vote, it becomes apparent that the Republicans have lost 21 per cent, which is much more than the normal loss shown in an "off year." Such a thing as a Democratic victory in Maine is not to be expected, but Democrats can find encouragement in the showing of the polls, because it demonstrates that many thoughtful Republicans have become disgusted with the administration and have refused to give it the seal of their approval. While few speeches were made on either side much literature was distributed. The Democrats sent 280,000 documents to voters bearing upon the silver question. The Republicans mailed about 1,200,000 letters and circulars. The war was not discussed.

Jeering the Irish Soldiers.

From the Chicago Chronicle: The thoughtless gentleman who jeered at a member of the Seventh regiment last Tuesday because that organization didn't get to the front now knows that at least one of Kavanagh's warriors is willing to fight if he gets a chance. When the thoughtless gentleman gets his head out of a sling he will probably be more cautious about flouting the volunteers who have had the bad—or the good—luck to be debarred from participation in the actual fighting of the war. There is a good deal too much of this disposition manifest, not only among individuals, but in certain newspapers. It is idiotic, of course, but it is nevertheless exasperating—this idea that only the soldiers who went to Santiago or Porto Rico are entitled to credit for patriotism. In point of fact, the inaction of the home camps was tenfold more trying than the strain of active campaigning, and not a man in the army but would have preferred to take his chances with Mauser bullets rather than fight typhoid fever at Camp Alger or Chickamauga. It may take some fat-witted persons a little time to learn this fact, but after a few of them are satisfactorily thrashed, like the thoughtless gentleman referred to above, we shall hear less of this stupid and insulting slander on the men who were compelled to stay in camp while their comrades—no better and no braver—got the coveted chance to pot the Spaniards.

Hanna on Deck Again.

Many people who entertain no great admiration for President McKinley will nevertheless regret that the return of peace has apparently subjected him once more to the domination of the man Hanna. Since he emerged from his cyclone cellar upon the signing of the protocol Hanna has gradually assumed his former attitude of boss to the administration. He talks of the president's views in regard to all sorts of matters as if he were the authorized spokesman of the White House. The old firm of "Me and Mack" has resumed business to the disgust of everybody, including the president's friends. If the president can put a stop to it he ought to do so. It is a painful and humiliating spectacle to all Americans—Republicans and Democrats alike—this of a heavy-jowled fat-witted vulgarian posing as the master of the president of the United States without a protest or disclaimer from the president himself. Major McKinley owes it to the nation and to himself to assert his manhood and the dignity of his office. Let him turn Hanna down.

No Need of Private Funds.

From the Denver News: In the name of all that's good, what does it mean, this donation of money by private individuals to feed and clothe and comfort the soldiers? Why should Helen Gould or John Smith or anybody else have to donate $50,000 or $1 to buy needed supplies for the heroes of the Cuban war in camp along the Atlantic coast? The government has thousands of millions in its treasury. It is authorized to spend at its discretion, the people are willing to pay the bill. What is it, then, that clogs the wheels? What palsy has seized upon the departments? Is it the product of doddering, impotent stupidity or of downright callous cynicism?

Democratic Policy.

From the Grand Rapids Democrat: Whatever the reason, the growth of public opinion in favor of municipal ownership generally has for the last half dozen years been steady and rapid and in spite of the general opposition of the newspapers, not a few of which have been retained as special advocates of the private corporation. And this, in itself, is strongly suggestive that this change of public opinion is based on solid grounds.

CURRENT EVENTS IN ALABAMA.

GRAND MILITARY INAUGURATION

Alabamians Propose to Honor Their Governor and Their Soldiers.

A movement is on foot at Montgomery to celebrate the inaugural of Governor Johnston on December 1st with very attractive military ceremonies, to be concluded with a grand military hop. The idea is to make some demonstration of approval of Governor Johnston's administration and to toast the Alabama military. On inauguration day the legislature will be in session. Unless signs are misleading, the Second regiment will be in camp at Montgomery, and the First in camp at Birmingham, for there appears to be no doubt but that neither will be ordered mustered out until congress shall have confirmed the peace treaty with Spain. No plans have matured as yet, but it is likely the undertaking will be put in systematic shape.

Two Soldiers Killed.

Two volunteer privates came to their deaths at Montgomery from the effects of drinking too much whiskey. Both were members of Captain Vaiden's composite company, which was left to guard the effects of the Second Alabama regiment. Private Wallace Welbourne, of Ocean Springs, Miss., was killed by a train at Camp Herbert. He had been drinking hard since pay day, and had been having fits. The second tragedy occurred in the suburb of Vesuvius, where some soldiers found the horribly mangled remains of one of their comrades beside the track of the Western Railway of Alabama. Captain Vaiden recognized the body as that of Robert Tipton, a private in his regular company, the Uniontown Rifles, Company K, of the Second Alabama regiment.

Blasts and Engines for Ensley Furnace.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company has just decided to put in two new blowing machines at its big Ensley furnaces. To run these will require 300-horse power engines. The engine house will have to be enlarged to accommodate them. This addition is being made in order that all four of the furnaces at Ensley can easily be kept in blast at one time, for the whole capacity of the plant will be taxed when the steel mill begins operations. The work of putting in the new engines and blowing machines will be completed in about four months.

Big Contracts Let.

The Alabama Steel and Supply company, which is erecting a million dollar steel plant at Ensley City, has let contracts for a forty-four inch blooming mill, a gas-producer building and ten open hearth furnaces, aggregating about $200,000. The contract for the iron work of the ten open hearth furnaces is the largest ever let in the world. Pittsburg concerns secured the contracts.

Wash Taylor Wins.

The State Democratic Executive committee, in session at Montgomery Saturday, unanimously passed resolutions declaring that while there were irregularities in Washington and Choctaw counties, and in the district convention, yet G. Wash Taylor had a majority of the delegates and was nominated for congress in the First district.

More Troops at Camp Shipp.

The First and Second United States regular infantry arrived at Camp Shipp from Montauk Point. They came on four special trains of twelve passenger cars each. There are only about 1,400 men in the two regiments, as they have been somewhat depleted by deaths at Santiago, Tampa and Montauk Point.

Fatal Quarrel Over a Debt.

A shooting affair occurred at Owens Cross Road in Madison county, which resulted in the death of Pratt Owen and the serious injury of Hugh Craft. Craft and Owen quarrelled over a small debt and Owen began shooting with a shotgun. Craft drew a pistol and shot Owen through the heart.

Big Vote for General Wheeler.

The central democratic executive committee of Madison county met Friday and canvassed the vote cast for General Wheeler for congress. The vote cast for General Wheeler numbered 4,525, the largest vote a candidate for congress ever received in this county.

Colored Labor for Pana.

One hundred negroes left Birmingham Saturday for Pana, Ill., where they will take the places of striking miners in the coal mines there. This makes about 500 negroes in all who have been carried from the Birmingham district to Pana.

Secretary Alger Visits Camp Shipp.

Secretary of War Russell A. Alger, Surgeon-General George M. Sternberg and Quartermaster-General M. I. Ludington were Saturday shown Camp Shipp, Anniston, and the army stationed there, by Colonel Royal T. Frank, in charge of the camp.

Minister Woodford Resigns.

Following the custom in the case of a minister who has been obliged to leave his post by the breaking out of hostilities, Stewart L. Woodford has filed his resignation as minister to Spain. It is believed that it will be six months before the United States has occasion to send a minister to Madrid again.

Japan Wants Money.

It is understood that the Japanese government has decided to negotiate for a foreign loan of $50,000,000.

ARMY INQUIRY COMMISSION

To Investigate the Conduct of the War Meets With the President

GENERAL DODGE MADE CHAIRMAN.

President McKinley Instructs the Committee to Proceed with Its Work Without Fear or Favor and Make Thorough Investigation of Charges.

WASHINGTON. The commission to investigate the conduct of the war department during the recent conflict with Spain held its initial meeting in the office of President McKinley at the white house Saturday. There was eight members present and it was announced that the services of a ninth man were counted upon, though his name was not made public. The eight who were present were: Major General Granville M. Dodge, of Iowa; Colonel J. A. Sexton, of Illinois; Captain Evan P. Howell, of Georgia; Major-General J. M. Wilson, chief of engineers of the United States army; Hon. Charles Denby, of Indiana, late minister to China; Ex-Governor Urban A. Woodbury, of Vermont; Ex-Governor James A. Beaver, of Pennsylvania; Major-General H. McD. Cook, of the army (retired).

The proceedings with the president consisted in the main of a general exchange of views as to the scope of the commission, in which the president participated quite freely. He told the members that the organization of the commission had been undertaken at the request of Secretary Alger, and read a letter from the secretary, in which he made the request. The president had put his own views in writing, and read them before proceeding to a verbal discussion. In this statement he said that complaints had been directed especially at the surgeon-general's, the quartermaster-general's and the commissary-general's departments of the army, and he suggested that the conduct of these departments should receive especial consideration at the hands of the commission. To this specific request he added that it was his desire that the entire military organization should, if it appeared necessary, be made the subject of inquiry, saying that he wished the committee to go to the bottom of the subject in all cases, and proceed with its work without fear or favor.

COLONEL JOHNSTON DEAD.

He Was Noted as an Educator, Lecturer and Writer.

Richard Malcolm Johnston, the famous lecturer and novelist, died in Baltimore, Md., Friday, after an illness of several months.

Colonel Johnston was born in Hancock county, Georgia, in 1822, was educated at the Mercer Baptist University and began life as a school teacher. Subsequently he took up the practice of law at Sparta, Ga., which he afterwards gave up to accept a professorship in the University of Georgia. At the close of the civil war he went to Baltimore and established a school near the city at which many prominent men received their rudimentary education. Several years ago he abandoned this occupation and has since devoted his time to lecturing and to writing those characteristic stories and sketches of southern life that have made his name a household word in all parts of this country.

Dewey Prizes Worth $1,500,000.

The work of setting the wheels of business in the harbor of Manila in motion has been entrusted to Captain Henry Glass, of the United States steamship Charleston. One of his first duties was that of taking an inventory of all the shipping that fell into Admiral Dewey's hands on the 14th instant. This includes everything afloat, either on the bay or river, which means a radius of forty miles, and its value is about $1,500,000.

To Be Mustered Out.

Eight companies of the First Florida regiment are to be mustered out. As there are twelve companies in the regiment, this will mean the mustering out of two-thirds of the regiment, and will probably mean the consolidation of the remainder with the regiment from some other state.

Congressman Cox Renominated.

Late returns from the democratic congressional primary held Saturday in the Seventh Tennessee district show the renomination of Congressman N. N. Cox by 1,200 majority.

Governor Taylor Very Sick.

Advices from Johnson City, Tenn., are to the effect that the condition of Governor R. L. Taylor, who has been ill for some time, is alarming.

Miss Winnie Davis Buried.

The funeral service and burial of Miss Winnie Davis, "Daughter of the Confederacy," took place Friday at Richmond, Va.

More Soldiers for Huntsville.

Batteries A and F, Second artillery, and the Sixteenth infantry, reached Huntsville Saturday. The Eighth infantry has gone into camp at East Huntsville.

Brief Summary.

About ninety-five per cent of the Second Alabama regiment have been furloughed.

The Laxson cotton gin at New Market was destroyed by fire, loss about $3,000. The fire was of incendiary origin.

FOR CONGRESS:

W. F. ALDRICH

THE yellow fever has gained no foothold in Alabama, but none the less all sanitary precautions should be taken.

Cotton at 4½ cents is most disheartening to the whole southland, and the prospects of any advance are not at all bright.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN is sick in the city of Washington. There are many who would like to see Col. Bryan reign from the army, and resume his place in politics.

Ex-Secretary of State Bayard died this week. He was a gentleman and a statesman, whose life work was of the highest order of statesmanship.

We are glad to see the suggestion of Hon. L. H. Reynolds being acted upon, and the people are discussing the merits and demerits of road laws, stock laws, bull and boar laws, school laws, etc. The more discussion the more likelihood of the best points for or against any proposed legislation coming out. Laws to suit the people best be prepared this way, and we hope the discussions will be continued to a finish.

LIEUT. Hobson first came into celebrity by skilfully sinking a ship. He has again distinguished himself by raising one and adding her to the United States Navy. After the Spanish fleet was sent to the bottom by Schley's guns Lieut. Hobson confidently believed that two of the great warships might be raised. His superior officers had faith in his plans and they officially reported adversely to his proceeding. But he had the same confidence in himself in this matter that he had in the matter of sinking a ship, and he persisted. He has his reward. He has raised a noble cruiser, the Maria Teresa, towed her forty miles into a harbor, whence after repair she will sail for an American port.

He still believes thathe can raise the Cristobal Colon and add her too to our navy. Surely after this conspicuous success he should have leave to try, and ample means with which to try.—N. Y. World.

Of all the metals hitherto discovered there is none more interesting from certain points of view than nickel and cobalt. There is a scientific mystery surrounding them that has never been solved and is not likely to be explained for many years to come. Although they possess very distinct properties, and form salts of very different colors, they have exactly the same combining number (29.5), and this number approaches that of iron (28), the commonest metal, with the exception perhaps of aluminum, that exists in the crust of the earth. They are also, like iron, attracted by the magnet.

Moreover, they are invariably present in those masses of metal called meteoric iron, or aerolites, which occasionally fall from the skies upon the surface of our earth. The fall of these aerolites generally occurs in broad daylight, when the sky is clear and the sun shining brightly. A stream of cloud, or luminous vapor, appears in the air, and is soon like the loudest thunder is heard after the whizzing of the meteor, constituting one of the most striking phenomena it is possible to behold.—Chambers' Journal.

Hon. W. F. Aldrich,
Aldrich, Ala.

Dear Sir—I challenge you for a joint discussion of political issues in all of the counties of the Fourth Congressional District; and I hope that you will accept this proposition because I propose to make some remarks, on the stump, relating to your record in Congress, of which I prefer to speak in your presence.

The details of such joint canvass can be arranged through Mr. F. W. Gist, Chairman of the Democratic Committee, Columbiana, and the Chairman of your Committee.

Yours truly,
(Signed) GASTON A. ROBBINS

Hon. Gaston A. Robbins,
Selma, Alabama.

Dear Sir.—Your letter of September 23, which was published in the Montgomery Advertiser of September 24, in which you challenge me for a joint discussion of the political issues, in all the counties of the Fourth District, at hand; and in reply thereto will say: The principle issue and the only one before the people, until it is settled, is the question whether or not the people shall be accorded an honest election and have an honest return of the votes as cast. I cannot see from my standpoint favoring this proposition, how there can be any joint discussion of this subject; and I, therefore, decline your challenge.

The record of my official acts in Congress is, of course, public property and you are at liberty to discuss the same from the Record, at all times and at all places, whether I am present or not. It needs no defense by me.

Mr. G. B. Deans, of Calera, is the Chairman of my Campaign Committee. Yours truly,

The Nothingness of It.

He had been to see her father.

It is hardly necessary here to state what the object of his visit was.

Whatever it was may be guessed when the reader is apprised that the visitor was 25 and the daughter of the father was five years younger.

He had returned to her and she had met him in fear and trembling, for the youth was poor and their hearts' happiness depended upon how much papa could be coaxed into allowing them as a wedding portion.

In fact, without that there was no happiness, for happiness is scarcely possible on $7.50 per week.

"Did you see papa?" she asked timorously.

"Yes, darling," he replied.

"And he gave his consent?" she asked with maiden eagerness.

He was silent.

"What did he say?" she asked, grasping him by the coat sleeve.

"Nothing."

"Nothing!" she exclaimed. "Nothing! He must have made some reply," she insisted.

"He said nothing, I tell you," he answered angrily.

It was the first time she had ever seen him thus and her heart sank. She could not understand. The tears came to her eyes and she put her arms about his neck.

"What did you ask him, Harold?" she inquired.

"I asked him how much he was going to give you when I married you."

That was Harold's answer and she knew then what her papa's reply meant to them.—Somerville Journal.

Sleep.

Sleep ensues when the brain is largely denuded of blood, when cerebral anæmia is established. To partly empty the brain of its blood supply, to keep the head cool, the body sufficiently warm and to send the blood rather to the lower extremities—this is the physical problem of the sleepless. It is interesting to note that during sleep a great number of the bodily functions continue quite normally without interfering with sleep itself, and therefore sleep is not so like death as some of the poets have imagined. Man asleep is not so profoundly different from man awake, the two chief points of difference, however, being these—a greater indrawing of oxygen and exhalation of carbonic acid and a complete vasomotor rest.—London Spectator.

Technically, We Annex Cuba.

In spite of every precaution that can be taken, the Spanish evacuation would seem almost certain to be attended by a somewhat dangerous condition of interregnum in Cuba. Throughout the greater part of the island the Spanish authority is still in active political operation, although it is now more than two weeks since Spain signed away all her sovereign rights there. The government at Madrid is absolutely without any means of effective control over the officials in Cuba who remain clothed with a little brief authority. Every populous and civilized portion of the globe is supposed to pertain to some responsible power which holds a recognized place in the family of nations. Since the signing of the protocol Spain could not well be held accountable—at least, in more than a very limited sense—for violations on Cuban soil of the rights of foreigners; while, on the other hand, the United States could hardly be expected to admit as yet any full degree of accountability. Although the protocal does not specifically make a cession of Cuba to the United States, the logic of the situation leads to practically the same thing. Political sovereignty must certainly be exercised by somebody in Cuba. Spain's withdrawal makes it obligatory upon the United States to exercise such sovereignty, and so far as other nations are concerned there can be no "limited-liability" clause in the arrangements. The Spaniards are going to make Cuba over to the United States in just as short a time as the transfer can be carried out as a piece of practical business. The United States will thereby have become wholly responsible, so far as the out-side world is concerned, for the management of Cuban affairs. If, for example, a European consul should be mobbed in a Cuban town, the United States would be held to just as strict an account as if the outrage had occurred in New York or Washington. In other words, to be perfectly plain, the protocal means nothing short of the immediate annexation of Cuba by the United States. We have already annexed the easternmost tip of the island by virtue of the terms of the Santiago surrender. Major-General Lawton, who represents the United States as governor of the ceded district, and General Wood, who is in command of the city of Santiago, are exercising sovereign authority in the name of the United States in as complete a sense as Gov. John G. Brady is exercising it in Alaska. We must not confuse metaphysics with facts. So long as the Spaniard remained in exercise of Cuban sovereignty, he was accountable to the outside world for Cuban government. The responsibility that he relinquishes we, perforce, must assume.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for September.

The city of Boston runs its own printing office. For the year 1897 after setting aside 10 percent of the profits for depreciation of the plant it cleared over $8000. What could the state of Alabama clear? The Journal believes that $50,000 per year could be cleared on a state printing office, and this would be a neat sum to add to the school fund of Alabama. Most of the money now spent for state and county printing goes out of the state.—Luverne Journal.
